Van Sweringen issues all recorded sharp gains. "Nickel Plate" common jumped 7 points and the preferred moved up to a new 1925 high at 96. Chesapeake & Ohio closed 3 1-2 points higher at 100 1-2, after attaining a new maximum at 100 3-4. Pere Marquette showed a net gain of three points at 68 3-4. Erie common and first and second preferred each showed net gains of about 1 1-2 points. Revival of activity and strength in New York, Ontario and Western was run up 4 points to a new top at 29 3-8 was another outstanding feature in the railroad group.

Call money ruled unchanged at 4 4-1 per cent. Time money and commercial paper markets were quiet with no change in rates.

Foreign exchange rates were slightly reactionary. Demand sterling held firm around $4.58 3-8 but French and Belgian francs ruled slightly lower at 4.68 and 4.31 1-3 cents.

CLOUDY TODAY; SHOWERS AT NIGHT AND TOMORROW

Norwich Bulletin

NORWICH, CONN., SATURDAY, AUGUST 8, 1925

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Saturday, August 8, 1925

THE WEATHER

Conditions

Scattered thunderstorms have occurred within the last 24 hours in the north Atlantic states. Elsewhere in this section fair weather has prevailed.

There will be showers and probably thunderstorm middle and northern sections east of the Mississippi river in connection with the northeastward movement of a disturbance now centering over northeastern Illinois. The tempegature will not change materially in the Washington forecast district during the next two days.

CORONER INVESTIGATES DEATH OF CONN. CO. LINEMAN

Coroner Jeremiah J. Desmond and a representative of the public utilities commission were investigating Friday afternoon the accident which caused the death of Max Dempske, a Conn. Dempske was working with a night crew changing wires on Franklin square when he evidently lost his balance and fell to the pavement, about 15 feet below. The accident happened about 2 o'clock Tuesday morning and Dempske was so badly injured that he died at the hospital about 5:15 the same afternoon. Pictures of the wires on which Dempske was standing at the time he fell were taken for use in the investigations being made by Coroner Desmond and the public utilities commission.

NOTED SPEAKERS AT CLOSING SESSIONS OF FARMERS' WEEK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Conn., Aug. 7—Farmer's week at the Connecticut Agricultural college was brought to a close today with an excellent program on milk marketing, in which men of national reputation, including representatives of the three leading dairymen's cooperative associations were among those speaking. These included Dr. G. R. Little, president of the New England Milk Producer's association; R. F. Lewis, of the Dairymen's League of New York, and Clifford E. Hough, manager of the Connecticut Milk Producer's association. Meetings were also held today in the homemaking division.

"The Future of the Dairy Business" was the subject of the address made by Dr. Little here this afternoon, in which he pointed out some of the more important developments and requirements that he thought would face the New England milk producer in the future.

That the future of the dairy business, fro mproducer to the consumer, will prove to be nothing more or less than what the producers themselves make it, was the contention of Dr. Little. The degree of either success or failure encountered will prove an accurate index of the producer's willingness and business ability to decide for himself the best course of action to follow, he said.

Dr. Little said that farming was our biggest business, and that dairying was the biggest branch of that business, returning in 1924 more money to the farmers of New England than all other farm products combined. It was remarkable, he said, that this great wealth could be produced by a business which was probably the most poorly organized and conducted, the least conserved, and the most neglected of any other existing business of anywhere near like proportion.

That the economic problem of marketing and not production is what is the matter today with the New England dairy farmer was one of the significant statements made by Dr. Little. He said that the dairy farmers are today being grossly penalized because they have failed to adopt for themselves, and are being selfishly hindered in some sections, in their efforts and desire to adopt recognized business methods in marketing their products. These farmers need farm organization and they need ever increasing applications of business methods in the conduct and operations of their work, he said.

Prediction that the farmers, who are now the greatest buyers and consumers of industrial products in the world, will soon be the greatest and most systematic salesmen on earth, was made by Dr. Little. This will come, he said, because farmers will take this much needed step in their business because the methods of those other lines of business and industry with which they deal and compete, are driving them to take action sufficient to protect their own interests, and force the commercial world to accord due respect to the importance of their agricultural business.

Dr. Little recounted how when some years ago the dairy producers in the New England milk shed found conditions so manifestly unfair toward them that they began to make an insistent demand for the privilege to adopt organized marketing machinery of their own. They then set up a bargaining organization of their own, he said, in which they associated themselves in such a way that they could collectively dispose of their product, thereby placing themselves in a position to unite their efforts in securing trade and trade conditions as possible. That cooperative marketing step has proved its value to its owners many times over in the interval up to the present, and it is still proving itself a valuable asset to the New England dairy farmer. It has insisted from the first on a square deal and the same deal for all. It has kept its members well informed on the trade and the trade requirements, and has always secured the best returns possible with the equipment at hand.

That the farmers of New England do not ask or seek legislative nor governmental subsidy unless the same is accorded to other lines of industry with which they deal, was brought out by Dr. Little in his concluding remarks.

Cooperative Marketing of Milk

Asserting that there was no conflict between the Connecticut Milk Producer's association, The Dairymen's League of New York, or The New England Milk Producer's association, Clifford E. Hough, of Hartford, manager of the Connecticut organization, said here today that these three associations are all doing good wrk in their respective territries. This was the statement of Mr. Hough in his opening remarks in a talk on "Cooperative Marketing of Milk," which was one of the features of the milk marketing program today.

That cooperative milk marketing has made great strides in the United States was brought out by Mr. Hough who said that there are 300,000 members in the National Milk Producer's federation, which covers the entire country. Accomplishments which this organization is directly responsible for include the passing of the Capper-Volstead law, which Mr. Hough characterized as the "American Farmer's Bill of Rights." Others include the elimination of the traffic in "filled milk," a product made of cocoa nut oil and skim milk; a proper balanced tariff for dairy products; and the defeat of the Kapper-Haugen bill, which if passed would seriously hamper the effectiveness of all cooperative farm organizations in the country. Some discussion followed the latter statement, and the question was asked if it seemed likely that this bill would go through in the next session of congress. In answering, Mr. Hough said that it was impossible to say what congress would do with the bill, but in seeveral of the states that favored this law a year ago, the sentiment at present was decidedly unfavorable. He added that the proponents of the bill had not quit, however. G. C. Sevey, editor of the New England Homestead, was among those present, and in the general discussion of this bill termed it "ridiculously unsound."

Mr. Hough went into a description of the benefits of cooperation, showing how in the past people have acted collectively in securing the of life such as roads, education, public institutions, and other things that could not be secured when action was taken as individuals. Industry and commerce have benefitted by concerted action, he said, and now it is no longer necessary to assert to an intelligent group of farmers that it is advisable to market farm products cooperatively. History of the past has proven conclusively the need of the farmers to act in concert in the selling of their products, he said.

Applying it to the co-operative selling of milk, Mr. Hough said that all associations so engaged, and whose purpose is sincere, are endeavoring to merchandize their products in accordance with the law of supply and demand, and in accordance with American costs of production and American standards of living.

"If milk producers in all sections of the country will efficiently produce and market the milk in their territory," he said, "the result will be the preservation of the industry of the country, and the country will receive the benefits of the existence of the dairy business, and society will be protected by their ability to secure an abundance of nature's most valuable food products, and a quality in these products which they desire, deserve, and are willing to pay for."

Explaining how his organization work, Mr. Hough said that the Connecticut Milk Producer's Association has found by experience that a form of pooling in the sale of the milk produced by its members is essential. It is a bargaining organization, he said, largely for the reason that seventy-five per cent of the milk production of the members is finally consumed as fluid milk, and the buyers of the products are equipped with facilities for handling it. That Connecticut dairymen cannot afford to produce dairy products for manufacturing into butter or cheese, was also brought out by Mr. Hough, who stated that this would bring them into direct competition with areas that would produce those commodities much cheaper than the Connecticut dairyman.

Mr. Hough stated that it was the policy of his association to execute pooling contracts with only such dealers as can and will use some surplus milk, and those who are equipped to do the bookkeeping accurately and promptly, and honestly. No contracts of any kind are made with unreliable dealers, he said, and contracts are cancelled if wilfully broken by milk dealers, though very seldom were any contracts broken. During the four years which the association has sold milk by contract, not a dollar has been lost for any members on contracted milk, and as brough out by Mr. Hough, this was remarkable in view of the fact that the association does an annual business of approximately eight million dollars a year.

That cooperative marketing should serve to introduce better farming, better business, and better living was the statement of Mr. Hough in his concluding remarks.

Farmer Is To Blame.

Claiming that not politics, not the middleman, but the farmer himself was to blame for the period of depression in agriculture, R. F. Lewis, manager of the Dairymen's League of New York in the course of his talk on "Cooperative Marketing," gave a clear description of just how and why the farmer experiences hard times.

Explaining why a farmer should go into co-operative instead of individual marketing, Mr. Lewis claimed that the old system led the farmers into periods of prosperity or semi-prosperity from which he fell into periods where there was no prosperity. Quoting from statistics of Cornell University, Mr. Lewis showed how the price of beef on the hoof goes in waves, or cycles, of fourteen years, with the prices up for seven years and then down for seven years. These waves of price were not accidents, he said, rather they were the result of the working of economic laws. He explained that as prices went up and profits increased, more people went into the business, thereby increasing the supply without increasing the demand, and prices fell, as a natural result. With the falling of prices profits were less and in many cases there were no profits and many were forced out of the business, and farmers found themselves in a period of depression. It was not the result of a conspiracy, said Mr. Lewis, or of politics or the middleman; there was no one for the farmer to blame but himself, and the sooner he realized that fact and applied a remedy, the better off he would be.

When a farmer violates an economic law he must suffer the penalty, said Mr. Lewis, and in order to avoid this situation his job is to find out how much food the consumed wants, and then give it to him. It is a mistake to give the consumer more than he wants, said Mr. Lewis, for the surplus will destroy the value of what the consumer does want, and leave no profit for the farmer. If we are to have agricultural prosperity, we must take the price waves out of it, said Mr. Lewis.

The Homemaking Program

Speakers on the homemaking program with the subjects they discussed were: Miss H. Parker of the American Social Hygiene Ass'n. of New York; "How to Guide Children in Health Forming Habits," C. B. Gentry, professor of agricultural education, C. A. C.; "Healthy Boys and Girls," Miss Elizabeth Nickerson, State Board of Health; "The Health of Children as Revealed in studies made by the Children's bureau of New Haven," Dr. Edith Jackson.

SPLENDID BAND CONCERT AT UNION SQUARE

A large crowd of people assembled at Union square Friday evening despite the threatening weather and were repaid for their attendance, by the rendering of a most delightful concert, by St. Jean's Baltic band, under the direction of Prof. J. Bergbinzo.

The band concert was arranged through the courtesy of A. Werman & Sons, Inc., shoe manufacturers, with a plant on Thames street, and was given from a platform erected in the center of the square by men in the employ of Street Commissioner John C. Donovan.

The concert program included many of the latest and most up-to-date song and dance numbers, interspersed with classics and solos by members of the band. The program was one of unusual merit and won instant applause from the large and appreciative audience.

HIGH SCORES MADE AT EAGLES CLUB

The scores were high Thursday in the weekly pinochle played at the Eagles club in the fifth night's play of the eight night series.

Thomas Fields, with a score of 7390, won first prize; W. R. Hastedt, second, 7,585; A. Hastedt, third, 7,340, and John Sautter fourth, 7,205.

Small Chimney Fire

The fire repartment was called out at 9 o'clock Friday morning for a small chimney fire at 27 Main street, in the building owned by Meyer Bruckner. The fire was at the base of the chimney in the apartment rented by Donald Meech.

Some candidates get there with both feet and others put both feet in it.

GAS SALES NET TWO MILLIONS IN PROFITS

Gross profits in the neighborhood of two million dollars were realized by retail filling stations from the sale of gasoline for motor vehicle consumption in Connecticut during the first half of this year. These were shared by 3,255 filling stations throughout the state. The stations continue to increase rapidly and, on the first day of this month, 3,351 of them were registered in the state motor vehicle department, of which 96 were established during the past month and 108 in June.

The average price of gasoline for the past seven months in Connecticut has been 24.5 cents a gallon. The average price per gallon at retail increased from 19 cents on January 1 to 23 cents on the last day of July. From January 1 to 15, it was 19 cents; from January 16 to 24, 21 cents; from January 25 to 31, 23 cents; from February 1 to 4, 24 cents; from February 5 to 28, 26 cents; from March 1 to 20, 26 cents; from March 21 to 31, 25 cents; from April 1 to 15, 25 cents; from April 15 to 30, 26 cents; from May 1 to 7, 25 cents; from May 8 to 14, 23 cents; from May 15 to 31, 25 cents; from June 1 to 30, 27 cents, and from July 1 to 21, 28 cents.

Approximately 51,791,400 gallons of gasoline were sold in Connecticut in the half-year period, and the average margin of gross profit was four cents a gallon. The quantity consumed during July, when the peak price prevailed, was the largest sold in Connecticut in any single month since the gasoline tax was imposed four years ago. The consumption in Connecticut was about one-nineteenth of the total for the country.

At the end of last year, the excess of gasoline supply over the demand in the country was 1,179,053,125 gallons.

NORWICH MAN SELLS MIAMI CASINO INTERESTS

Avery C. Smith of this city, who for several years operated small excursion boats between Norwich and Ocean Beach, has disposed of his interests in Smith's casino at Miami Beach, Fla. With regard to the sale of the casino interests to Mr. Smith's News Says:

Smith's casino has the distinction of being the oldest among the casinos at Miami Beach having been built by Avery C. Smith and James C. Warr, in 1908. Mr. Smith has recently announced the sale of his interest in the amusement place to his former partners, James C. Warr and Charles L. Brigg, both of Massachusetts, who will continue to run the establishment under the old name.

Mr. Smith since selling his interest in the establishment expects to divide his time in the future between the beach and his home in Norwich, Conn., from which place he came to Miami 26 years ago and has been since that time, notable in the development of south beach property.

It was in 1908 that he conceived the idea of building boats and running them regularly from Miami to Miami Beach. At that time it was possible to get to the beach only by means of row boats whose owners, it is said, charged the exorbitant price of $5 for passage. Mr. Smith organized the Biscayne Navigation Co., with James C. Warr as partner. They acquired a tract of land on South Beach taking over the old ramshackled structure which had been built by Dick Smith, no relation to Avery Smith, and was operated by N. M. Black.

The company chartered a boat, the Lady Lou, and put her into operation immediately. Later two 60-foot double decked boats were built and placed in service. These boats were called jocularly the Mauretania and Lusitania, signifying that they were the largest boats in the harbor. The installation of this method of transportation immediately made the beach more popular, with the result that Smith's casino was forced to expand every year. Three years ago an $85,000 addition was made.

At the present time the casino is said to be the largest south of Atlantic City having 1,300 bath houses. The swimming pool is the largest at the beach and measures 40x140 feet, with wading pool for children, where they disport themselves with glee under the eyes of their protectors.

Picnic parties are afforded every facility at Smith's for their delight and comfort. There are spacious picnic pavilions for large parties and small ones for smaller parties. On the beach are restful beach chairs and various paraphernalia for the amusement and delight of the bathers. There is a chute running into the ocean, which has proved to be a real thriller, for those who demand excitement.

FOUND UNIQUE MESSAGE IN OLD CHIMNEY

While looking into an old chimney at his house on Waawecus Hill, which caught fire during the month of June Clifford S. Rogers of R. F. D. 9, Norwich, recently found an old fashioned covered can, evidently one that had been inside the chimney for many years. Being curious and wondering why the old covered can had been placed within the chimney, Mr. Rogers pulled off the cover and after shaking out the contents found a supplement of The Weekly Courier of January 26, 1859, issue number four.

Upon opening the paper he was surprised to see a small piece of burnt leather upon which was inscribed in ink "To whoever rebuilds this chimney." With the leather was a note written in ink on ordinary paper, but although the paper was yellow with age, the ink was as clear as when it was written and contained the following message.

"This house was erected by John Hyde, of the 3d generation from William Hyde, one of the 1st settlers of the Town of Norwich, about A. D. 1725. It passed to his son, Eleazer Hyde, who rebuilt the chimney in 1763 a brick top to the chimney. perty of his 2nd daughter. Sarah Hyde, and from her to her nephew, Eleazer Rogers who added to the house and rebuilt the oven and run out a brick top to the chimney.

It is now the property of his two surviving daughters, Sarah and Fanny L. Rogers and this chimney was taken down on the 1st of Feb. 1859 and rebuilt for them by Eleazer Rogers, Master Mason, grandson of the above."

The supplement of the Weekly Courier was a single sheet six column affair containing the usual news of the day and although slightly discolored after being in the chimney for 66 years, the print is remarkably distinct.

Among the interesting items is one headed, "The Voice to the People." When Mr. Douglas was notified of his re-election to the United States he said, "Let the voice of the people rule." The vote for state representatives was figured and showed the following to be true. Abraham Lincoln, 124,973, Stephen A. Douglas, 120,782. Majority for Lincoln 4,191.

On the rear of the supplement were many advertisements bearing such familiar names as W. R. Hitchcock, C. T. Barstow, Curtis & Perkins, Waureagan House, T. Norris proprietor, Uncas bank and A. R. Gladwin & Co. Many New York and Boston advertisements were also seen.

The old can and message will be kept by Mr. Rogers as a souvenir as it is an interesting bit of history of his family.

FOUR LINEMEN BURNED WHEN "DEAD" LINE CROSSES LIVE WIRE

Knocked down and badly burned by a heavy voltage shock about 11.10 o'clock Friday morning while working with a crew stringing wires on the Eastern Connecticut Power Company's Montville-New London line, Charles Mumford of No. 120 North Main street, this city, is in a serious condition at the W. W. Backus hospital. Three other members of the wire crew suffered from the same shock that so badly burned Mumford, but their injuries were of minor nature and they were able to return to their homes. They are Michael Griskey and John Starr of this city and Thomas Ryan of Willimantic.

The four men were all working on what is known as a "dead" line which was being strung on the power company's line between Montville and New London. Mumford was on the ground, holding the "dead" line and Ryan and Griskey were on poles Starr was working on the ground. Some how or other the "dead" line became crossed with a line carrying 33,000 volts, and in spite of protective grounds, one phase of the line passed through all four men. There was a sudden flash and Mumford was knocked to the ground, the wire he was holding falling across his body. He was terribly burned.

The shock knocked Ryan from the pole, 30 feet to the ground. Fortunately he landed on his feet and escaped with slight burns from the current and a bad shaking up. Griskey and Starr also suffered somewhat from the effects of the shock. Dr. J. J. Donahue of Montville was called and attended the injured men and the Backus Hospital ambulance was rushed from Norwich. Mumford was brought to the Backus hospital where his burns were dressed. Although in intense agony Mumford did not lose consciouness. Dr. A. C. Freeman attended the other three men. At first it was a mystery as to how the "dead" line became charged with high voltage but officials of the Eastern Connecticut Power Company who conducted an immediate investigation discovered that the "dead" wire had momentraily touched a high voltage wire near the scene of the deplorable accident, and between the protective grounds.

FLETCHER POST TO SEND BIG DELEGATION

At the meeting of Robert O. Fletcher post No. 6, American Legion, held Friday night at the new post rooms in the Thames bank building on Shetucket street, plans for the American Legion convention were discussed and Past Commander John A. Cunningham was elected as chairman of the "On to New London" committee.

It is expected that over 100 members of the local post will be in attendance at the convention on Aug. 27, 28 and 29, on one or more days and that more than this number will be in New London to participate in the big Legion parade on Saturday afternoon, when it is expected that nearly 10,000 will be in line, this number including many bands and drum-corps from all over the state.

Robert O. Fletcher post intends to make a good showing at the convention and has selected the East Side Drum corps to lead them in the parade in the Whaling City, feeling that this drum corps compares favorably with others in the state and is certain to make a hit with the thousands of spectators along the line of march. It was also voted that the post colors and standard be taken to New London for the parade, under proper military escort.

During the business session, which was in charge of Commander Webster D. Copp, the post went on record as against promiscuous solicitation in the name of the Legion and voted to carry the matter before the state convention.

A committee to handle all post motion picture enterprises was voted for and Max Levine was elected chairman of the committee, with power to select his assistants.

Adjutant Jonathan L. Johnson announced that Norwich now ranks as eighth largest post in the state, something of which the city may well be proud, and that the post has grown nearly 100 per cent. in the past year and is showing a steady growth every month.

It was voted to hold a "house warming" sometime in the near future, in honor of entering the new and more spacious quarters and Comrades Charles Olsen and Lou Hawkins were named as joint chairmen for the enterprise, which is for post members only.

Frank P. Chase, chairman of the house committee, reported that new equipment for the rooms would be purchased soon, probably in time for the next regular meeting of the post.

Owing to the nearness of September, the month when Fletcher post will open its drive for the American Legion Endowment fund, for disabled veterans and orphans of World war veterans, Commander Copp and Adjutant Johnson spoke at length on the matter. The post voted to discharge the old committee on the drive and selected Jonathan L. Johnson as chairman of the committee to secure a citizen chairman for the drive, empowering him to select his own committee of workmen.

COMP. ACT HOLDS OUT OF STATE

Workmen who go from Connecticut to any other state on a job; and workmen who come to Connecticut from any place in the United States; are financially protected in case of injury, as are their kin if fatal accidents occur, under a definite interpretation of jurisdictional and extra-territorial features of the Connecticut workmen's compensation act made by the supreme court of Connecticut in a decision written by Chief Justice Wheeler and filed in the superior court at Bridgeport.

The clarification of jurisdictional powers, heretofore confused, is made in the case of claims filed by Genoeffa Pettiti, Bridgeport, against the Employers' Liability corporation, Hartford, for the death of her husband, who died as the result of a fall down a flight of stairs in a parochial school building erected in Webster, Mass., by the T. J. Pardy company, Bridgeport.

To clear existing doubt and establish a definite rule for all future cases, the supreme court was moved to overrule a contradictory opinion handed down in 1918.

The claim was made that Pettiti, having been told "to get off the job," in Webster for some minor infraction, and being hired back five days later, a new contract of employment was therefore made in Massachusettss where the fatal accident also occurred, and for that reason was outside the scope of the Connecticut act.

BOUND OVER TO THE CRIMINAL SUPERIOR COURT

Pleading guilty to charges of obtaining money under false pretenses and forgery, John Murphy, known as Peanut Murphy, was bound over to the superior court Friday morning by Judge Arthur F. Libby of the city court. Unable to furnish bonds of $1,000 Murphy went to jail to await trial.

The charge against Murphy is that he presented two false orders to the paymaster at the street department office, on the account of C. Rodden and E. Rodden, one for $9.60 on E. Rodden, and the other for $36 on C. Rodden. After he was paid off, and had gone Mr. Rodden appeared at the paymaster's desk and demanded his money. The paymaster informed him that a man had appeared and taken the money. This led to an investigation, with the result that Murphy was located, arrested, and locked up. At the time of his arrest more than $30 was found on his person.

TAFTVILLE MILK DEALER IS FINED IN COURT

At the city court session Friday morning, Joseph Lobe of Taftville was presented on a charge of selling milk under standard. Judge Libby fined him $10 and costs and warned him that another offense of that nature will mean a jail sentence. Lobe paid his bill. He claimed he had not watered the milk but that his cows were giving milk which was not up to the standard.

POETRY

HOLLYHOCKS.

The streets of Heaven, I've been told
Are paved with bricks of solid gold;

The gates are all of precious stone,
And poverty's a thing unknown.

No thunder-showers enters there,
For every day is dazzling fair.

Yet, strangely, I have never heard
A flower mentioned, or a bird;

And I'm quite sure that I would tire
Of playing on a golden lyre,

So, if there's room, along the walks
I think I'll plant some hollyhocks;

And soon as they begin to grow,
I'll tend them with a golden hoe.

If Gabriel should pass my way,
I'm certain he'd sit down and stay.
—Wayne Ward in "Gems."

DOES THE PEARL KNOW?

Does the pearl know, that in its shade and sheen,
The dreamy rose and tender wavering green,
Are hid the hearts of all the ranging
That beauty weeps for gifts as fair as these?
Does it desire aught else when its rare blush
Reflects Aurora in the morning's hush,
Encircling all perfection can bestow,
Does the pearl know?

Does the bird know, when, through the the waking dawn,
He soaring sees below the silvered lawn,
And weary men who wait to watch the day
Steal o'er the hights where he may wheel and stray?
Can he conceive his fee divine to share,
As a free, joyous peer with sun and air,
And pity the sad things that creep below,
Does the bird know?

Does the heart know, when filled to utter brim,
The least quick throb, a sacrificial hymn
To a great God who scorns the frown of Jove,
That here it finds the awful power of love?
Think you the new-born babe in first wise sleep
Fathoms the gift the heavens have bade him keep?
Yet if this be—If all these things are so—
Does the heart know?
—Helen Hay.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

A woman was being shown over a fox ranch.

After gazing admiringly at a fine young specimen, she asked her guide: "Just how many times can a fox be skinned for its fur?"

"Only three times, madam," the man replied soberly. "Any oftener than that would ruin its temper."—Boston Transcript.

Lady—Dear me, I've left my money at home. You'll have to trust me, I'm one of the director's wives.

Conductor—Lady, I couldn't do that, even if you was the director's only wife.—University of Chicago Phoenix.

Why was Buozer arrested? Caught napping?

Yes, caught napping.—Boston Transcript.

Prof.—How would you get the height of a tower by means of a barometer?

Student—I'd lower the barometer from the top of the tower and then measure the rope.—Stevens Stone Mill.

Sailor—I just seen some orange peels and banana skins floating on the water, sir.

Columbus—Was there any chewing gum?

Sailor—No, sir.

Columbus—Then we must be near the West Indies; it certainly can't be America.—Illinois Siren.

First Girl (in bathing)—Goodness, isn't the water cold? My teeth are chattering.

Second Girl—Well, don't let them chatter too much. They might tell where you bought them.—Boston Transcript.

BASEBALL AND BOXING OCCUPIED CENTER OF SPORT STAGE LAST WEEK

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Emerging from a week of startling upsets tonight was focused upon America's athletic host.

Major league baseball was aflame with prospect of new champions at Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, fed by the decline of the Giants and the sturdy defense of the Athletics against the challenge of Washington. Netdom buzzed over the return of a great veteran at the expense of a youthful sensation in the defeat of Vincent Richards at the hands of W. M. Johnston in the first of the preliminary Davis cup team tests. Pugilism saw a new champion taking up his new managerial reins as word came out of the far west that his financial requirements for a fight with Harry Wills would be $1,000,000.

Records severed a cloudy heavyweight atmosphere with three shafts of light. The champion voted finally against a fight this year. He took initial steps in the management of his own fistic affairs. He limited his contemplated ring activities to one fight next summer with Wills.

Promoter Floyd Fitzsimmons of Minnesota city met the champion and confidently made known that he had received the signature of the Whilom movies picture actor to an agreement to box the negro. At the same time Dempsey came out an interview announcing that the fight was still open to the highest bidder. Rickard disputed the story of Dempsey's agreement to fight for Fitzsimmons. Jack Kearns, refusing to admit retirement as Dempsey's pilot joked about it. Jack Mullins, manager of Wills, took a different attitude and preferred to await the arrival of Fitzsimmons and Kearns here next week.

Dempsey punctuated the thump of the padded mitten in daily training with pad and pencil workouts in the first week as manager. Reports from California described the champion's forecast of Dempsey-Wills training power as equivalent to 53,000 of which Dempsey was said to get one-third. The amounts are approximately double the gate and purse paid to see the champion defeat Carpentier in the greatest financial success of pugilism four years ago.

Dempsey's record shows that he has fought 67 fights for a total of 281 rounds an average of four and one-half rounds per conflict. On the basis of an average fight, sportsmen estimate that he asks approximately $50,000 for every minute he is in the ring. They likewise maintain that no man in the country is large enough to hold a gathering of sufficient size, in receipts which have hitherto prevailed at such contests, to draw so much an amount.

Interest among baseball men last week centered in the pennant drive of Pirate and Mackmen and in superlative pitching. Six shutouts were registered, home run hitting markedly subsided while in eleven games the beaten team was limited to a single run. Veteran hurlers posted two two-hit games, two of three hits, four of four hits, five of five hits, five of six hits and ten of seven hits.

Contrasting reverses were crowded into a teeming tennis week. Defeat of Mary K. Browne by Eleanor Goss and the triumph of Johnston over Richards set the stage for ripened interest in a renewal of rivalry between the pair approaching major tournaments.

The gallery at Rye, N. Y., scene of the New York state women's title tournament, had scarcely recovered from the defeat of Miss Browne at the hands of Miss Goss before the latter succumbed to the skill of Helen Wills, who trounced her Sea Bright in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4. Miss Ryan, ranking No. 2 player, gave hope to a continuation of Eastern tryouts next week after suffering setbacks. Beaten in the doubles competition with E. N. Wilson, William T. Tilden and Vincent Richards defeat yesterday by the latter in a best-of-three matches was the first after the Olympic champion himself had been three times the victim of the same opponent.

The question of saving amateur tennis from the ruin with which efforts are wrested for years, thrust forward upon ruling powers in two men, Karel Murchison, Newark, N. J., returning from a European trip with a signal of charges of professionalism against the sportchief of Davis cup abroad, found himself unwillingly not so long ago. Paavo Nurmi, Murchison's expected tended to indicate unwarranted claim.

International interest was attached to emergence of the player-writer controversy in American lawn tennis. Tilden's alleged guilt of violating the code by giving interviews for newspaper publication aroused punishment which he will compete henceforth only on invitation and never awarding his fee to the locker room.

The athletes of Nikkels and Mashie, contested the cluster of New seven posted on cards of public links before last week in their annual tournament, today turned interest to the opening of the New Jersey open golf title starting on Tuesday.

Tennis fans looked ahead to a series of invitation play at Southampton, an international struggle between women's teams of England and France at Forest Hills N. Y., on Friday and Saturday, and Davis Cup matches between Spain and Japan at Baltimore, Md., and between Australasia and Canada at Montreal—all these a prelude to a renewal of the struggle between Richards and Johnston.

HOLMAN BEATS TILDEN IN STRAIGHT SETS

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Cranston Holman of Leland Stanford university defeated William T. Tilden, national champion in an exhibition match today at the Detroit Tennis club as a feature of the Western Clay court tennis championship. Tilden was handicapped severely from a lame shoulder, losing in straight sets, 7-5, 9-7.

Paired together, Tilden and Holman defeated victorious over Harvey Snodgrass and Walter Westbrook, of Los Angeles winning two out of three sets 3-6, 6-4, 8-6.

Mrs. F. C. Johnson, Detroit, defeated Miss Marion Leighton, of Chicago, as the women's clay court champion defeating her in the finals 6-4, 7-5, 2-6.

TAYLOR'S DOUBLE WINS GAME FOR ALBANY

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 9—Taylor's double which scored Colwell and Gehrig in the fifth inning gave Albany a 3 to 2 victory over Springfield here today. The fielding of Taylor and Herring stood out. Both Colwell and Lehr pitched good ball. Score:

HORNSBY LEADS HOME RUN HITTERS WITH 29

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—(AP)—By blasting out a brace of home runs today, Roger Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals widened the gulf between himself and his strongest competitors for the home run championship of the major leagues. Although it was Hornsby's only performance of the week, his new total gives him a lead of five.

While "Gabby" Hartnett of the Chicago Nationals and Ken Williams of the St. Louis Browns failed to break their deadlock at 24 each, during the week new rumbles of batting prowess came from the middle of the heap.

Jimmy Bottomley, team mate of the pace-making Hornsby, cracked out three circuit blows and Al Simmons of the Athletics and Jack Fournier of the Dodgers bagged two apiece.

Babe Ruth failed to raise his total of 11.

THIRTY-TWO ROUNDS OF BOXING AT WESTERLY TONIGHT

Connecticut Boxing Commissioner Thomas Donahue of New London is expected to be among the fans from New London, Windham and Washington counties assembled at the new Westerly arena on Canal street this (Monday) night at 8 o'clock, when promoter "Joe" Grills will stage the thirty-two rounds of fast boxing bouts. Referee, "Billy" Manice of New London; announcer, H. R. Plympton and timekeeper, D. Harold Rogers, both of Westerly will be the officials of the bout.

The card follows:

Main bout—Lou Bogash of Bridgeport vs. Frankie Madden of New York, for ten rounds.

Semi final—Pinky Burns of New London vs. Johnny Saxon of Bridgeport, for eight rounds.

Preliminaries—Steve Culver of Bridgeport vs. Franky Garcia of Providence, for six rounds.

Mickey Ross of Westerly vs. Kid Spike of Westerly, for four rounds.

Battling Irk of Westerly vs. Kid Tramp of Westerly, for four rounds.

These bouts were originally scheduled for Wednesday evening August 5th at Varieltyville but heavy rain which soaked the ring and seats necessitated a postponement.

GIANTS BUNCH HITS AND BEAT OUT REDS

CINCINNATI, Aug. 9.—(AP)—New York, although outbatted and outfielded, bunched hits with bases on balls in the first and eighth innings, and took the last game of the series from Cincinnati 5 to 4

The Reds hit Nehf sharply but seldom when much damage resulted. A lucky double play in the sixth, started when Critz's drive bounced off Terry's glove into Kelly's grasp, featured the game. Frisch injured his hand in a collision with Schultz in the sixth and will be out for a week or more. The score:

WHITE SOX BEAT YANKS IN 12-INNING BATTLE

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—(AP)—The Chicago White Sox turned back the Yankees today, 4 to 3, in 12 innings. Thurston's single after Kamm and Crouse had bingled, giving the visitors their margin of victory. It was the fourth straight defeat for the Hugmen.

Earl Sheely's homer in the eighth put Chicago ahead but Meusel's 23rd circuit drive of the season tied the count, 3-all, in the ninth. Gehrig hit a home run in the second inning. Score:

WATERBURY POUNDS HILLIES PITCHERS FOR EASY VICTORY

WATERBURY, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Waterbury broke its losing streak, defeating Pittsfield 14 to 5. The local club bunched their hits with the wildness of Faulk to win. Helgeth hit a home run inside the fence in the third inning with two runners on base. The game was halted for thirty five minutes in the third inning by a heavy shower. Score:

NEW HAVEN BEATS BEARS IN CLOSE CONTEST

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 9—New Haven defeated Bridgeport 6 to 5 here today. The visitors rallied in the ninth with the score 6 to 3 and filled the bases with none out. Davies then relieved McKenty and struck out two men, although a scratch hit and an infield out gave the Bears two runs in the first inning Drake intentionally passed Hauk and Murray doubled. Lerian was then intentionally passed and McKenty singled. Score:

McFARLANE AND FARRELL WIN EXHIBITION MATCH

EASTERN POINT, Groton, Conn., Aug 9 (AP)—Willie McFarlane, American open champion, and Johnny Farrell, of the Quaker Ridge club, defeated Jack Stait, professional, of the Hartford Golf club and Budd Clarke, professional at the Shenecossett Country club, 8 and 7, in a 36-hole exhibition match on the Shenecossett links today. The scores were:

McFarlane 72-70—142; Farrell 69-69—138; Stait 72-72—144; Clarke 73-72—145.

Farrell was three under par on the morning round and again bettered the par figures by three points on the afternoon round. McFarlane was two under par on the afternoon round, he and Stait played par golf on the morning round and Stait and Clarke equalled the par figures on the afternoon round.

WELLS RUNS OUT OF BOUT WITH WALKER

CHICAGO, Aug. 9—(A. P.)—The ten round, no decision boxing match between Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, and Bermondsey Billy Wells, British champion, set for tomorrow night at East Chicago, Ind., was called off tonight when it was learned that Wells had departed for New York.

"It was a plain case of a run out," declared James Mullen, promotor of the contest, a statement joined in by Charles Havey, manager for Wells.

"If refuse to make an alibi," said Harvey. "Wells was in perfect condition and had no reason for running out."

RIVERVIEW CLUB WINS FROM BOTH SUB BASE AND KENSINGTON TEAMS

The Riverview club won both its week end games, beating the Sub Base team in the deciding game of the series at Morgan Field Saturday afternoon, 5 to 4, and winning an easy victory over the Kensington team at Kensington on Sunday 7 to 1. Both games were won in the early innings.

At Kensington on Sunday the Riverview got away with a bank scoring 5 runs before the Kensington players had realized that the game was on. After this it became a pitchers battle between West and Field with the local boys having the edge. Kensington's lone tally came as the result of three successive hits. The scores:

Two base hits, Mills. Three base hit, Moore. Struck out, by West 6, by Field 2. Bases on balls, off West 1, off Field 1.

Saturday's Game.

The game Saturday with the Sub Base was an easy victory for the Riverview boys the veteran Paul Zemke pitching good ball until the eighth inning when he was relieved by West after three hits had been scored off him. Up to the time Paul was taken out he had allowed but four hits and had fanned three. Sentiment said leave the old timer in the box but good baseball said take him out and Manager Donovan yielded to good judgment.

For the first three innings it was a pitching duel between Harry Harrell and Zemke. In the fourth Hamil was safe on Meska's error and advanced to second on Burns' sacrifice and took third while Allard was being thrown out at first. Joe Belair came through with a pretty hit to right field scoring Hamil. Zemke fanned.

The Sub Base evened the count in their half of the fourth without the aid of a hit. Harrell drew a walk, went to second on Zemke's wild pegto second and scored a minute later on Hamil's error.

In the fifth Moore led off with a double and Noel laid down a bunt that was fielded too late to catch Moore at third. Mills hit safely scoring Moore and Normandin followed suit scoring Noel. Mills scored on Hamil's sacrifice fly to deep left. Burns was safe on Hawes' error and in an attempt to catch Burns stealing Normandin scored and Burns also scored when Hawes threw wild to the plate to catch Normandin. This ended the scoring for Riverview.

The base added another run in the fifth when Kneppley singled and scored on Meska's long double to right center, but was out when he tried to stretch it into a triple. This final stand was made in the eighth inning when Justus singled and Hawes duplicated the feat both scoring on Ancil's double. West was sent into the box and retired the next two men on two pitched balls! West was never in danger in the ninth and the game went to the Riverview club. The score:

HOME RUNS FEATURE CARDS EASY VICTORY

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Four home runs helped the Cardinals defeat Philadelphia in the opening game of the series here today. The score was 8 to 4. Shinners, the first Cardinal to bat, hit into right field bleachers with the call 3 to 2. Hornsby clouted a homer in the same inning and raised his season's total to thirty with a drive out of the park in the fifth. Blades hit for the circuit in the second. Friberg was banished for arguing with Umpire McCormick. Fonseca moving to second and Hawkes to first.

BRIDGEPORT MANAGER PROTESTS GAME WITH PROFS

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 9—(A. P.)—Manager Wilhelm of the Bridgeport club of the Eastern league notified Umpire Summers during the game here with the New Haven club today that Bridgeport was playing the contest under protest. No announcement of this, however, was made at the ball park and the game continued, New Haven winning 6 to 5.

According to Umpire Summers Manager Wilhelm's claim for protesting the game was that McKenty, who pitched for New Haven today, had been suspended for five days and that his suspension would not end until tomorrow.

President George M. Weiss, of the New Haven club stated tonight that McKenty, so far as he knew, had not been suspended this season and he was at a loss to understand what suspension Manager Wilhelm had in mind.

J. B. MARTIN TEAM LOSES TO DIXIE A. C. SUNDAY

The Dixie A. C. team of Hartford handed the J. B. Martin team the first shut out of the season, winning from the local boys 5 to 0. The Velvetmen were unable to solve the delivery of Flynn the lean right-hander of the Dixie club. Flynn pitched nice ball and was never in danger.

Major Wins Fairfield Title

STAMFORD, Aug. 9—(AP)—Cedric A. Major, of New York, defeated S. Onda of New York in the final in the Fairfield county single tennis championship, played at the Stamford Yacht club today. The scores were 1-6, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2, 6-1.

ONEY LEADS TWI LEAGUE WITH BATTING AVERAGE OF .571

According to the latest averages, Manager Oney of the St. Joseph's team is leading the Twilight league batters with an average of .571. Harry Mills of the East Ends is the real batting leader, however, as his average of .560 is based on seven games while Oney has played in only four. Bill Austin, also of the East Ends, who has been leading in the race for the batting championship ever since the season started is now third with an average of .550. Other leading hitters are Chip Dugas, Palace, .526; Red Charon, Hallville, .500; and Cardle, of the Centrals, .500.

Mills has made the most hits, fourteen, and A. Dugas, the Centrals' first baseman, is the leading run-scorer with eleven. Mills is also tied with Charon of Hallville for total base honors, each having piled up eighteen bases. Sullivan, the Hallville centerfielder, is leading the base-stealers with eleven stolen sacks.

The following batting averages include all players who have played in four or more games, and who are hitting for .300 or better. The averages take in all games played up to and including Thursday, Aug. 6th.

The league-leading Centrals are again out in front in team batting with the fine average of .311. Yantic and the East Ends are tied for second place with .307, while the E. C. P. Co. are third with .291. In addition to having the highest average, the Centrals are also leading their rivals in every other phase of the offensive game. They have made the most hits, 85, and have scored the most runs, 76. The league-leaders have piled up a total of 112 bases, which is six more than Yantic, and their 33 stolen bases is two more than Hallville has been able to gather.

The averages on which follow include games played up to and including Thursday, Aug. 6th.

Sachems Trim Moosup.

Sunday afternoon the Sachems went to Moosup and handed the fast Moosup team their first defeat, 6 to 4, out of nine starts this season. The game was fast and interesting from the start and credit for the victory must go to J. Lamphere, who pitched for the Sachems, having 10 strike-outs and allowing only 6 hits, and 4 of these came in the seventh inning, when the ball was wet. Two other players shared in the honor of this victory, Pepe Tombari, who caught one of the finest games that any catcher could around these parts, and Gab Burns, who made two sensational catches in right field, which seemed to be sure hits, and would have meant two runs each time. The Sachems, through a cancellation of a game, are without one for next Sunday, and any team wishing a game to be played on their grounds, for that date, please write Sachem B. B. Club, 34 Lafayette street, Norwich, or call 1126-3 between 6:15 and 7 o'clock any night.

FRANCE'S AFRICAN DREAM

... the diplomatic negotiations ... France and Spain which have ... ended the French war against ... Rifs, one point has clearly emerg... Spain has accepted the fact of ... defeat by Abd-el-Krim and is ready to give up the whole of the Riff with the excepton of the two small districts of Ceuta and Melilla at each end of the territory.

Having made her surrender Spain is through. She is not willing to help France in a war out of which she expects to get nothing. She does not care what becomes of the Riff, with the exception of the two points she now holds. Abd-el-Krim, for all Spain will do to prevent him, can set up an independent state.

This attitude is of high significance to France. For years she has been moving towards full and exclusive control of Morocco. If the outcome of the present war adds the Riff to her protectorate, she will, to all intents and purposes, have realized her dream of possessing the whole northwest corner of Africa. This dream is frankly imperialistic. The present French government is anti-imperialistic. But it would not be the first time in history that a government has in practice pursued a course diametrically in opposition to its preachings.

POLAND'S LESSON

In an interview in which he touched of the armis question, Count Alexander Skrzynski, foreign minister of Poland said: "There are two theories. One is that disarmament should come first and that security would follow. The other is that security should be first attained and that disarmament could then follow. Poland subscribes to the latter theory."

In the first half of the nineteenth century Poland was not so much one government or nation as it was a series of governments. There were great lords who within their own territory exercised extraordinary powers and made it a policy to oppose the reigning family. About these princes and barons were thousands of retainers, loyal to their houses but unorganized and undisciplined. They were useless as material for national defense. It was this weakness that led to the partition of 1772. At the end of the century the Poles were devoting months to debating the question of reorganizing the army. They were carrying on a species of factional warfare and disputing as to cases and individual privilege. The situation invited more partition and they came with the ultimate result that Poland as a nation had ceased to be.

This history is a burning lesson to the reborn Poland. It teaches the nation that it cannot afford to be weak in the presence of the strong. It teaches us not to be too trustful of powerful neighbors, and it carries the lesson that unity, together with adequate means of defense, is the price of national security and integrity.

Poland is an excellent illustration of the fact ignored by many Americans, that idealism can be dangerous. Upon two sides of the Polish countries which covet the lands they once confiscated and ruled and then lost, she has two forms of security against these covetous neighbors—one a treaty and the other an army. Of the two, the army is the more dependable.

TOO MANY SOLDIERS

The late United States Senator Medill McCormick, returning from France after a close study of the subject in 1922, figured that there were then under arms 800,000 more men in Europe than in 1914 when the world war began and that this was so despite a considerable cut in Britain's army, only a slight increase in the forces of France and Italy and substantial wiping out of German ... tremendous military machine. ... smaller nations of Central ... are contributing to this bad ... condition which is keeping ... commerce, able-bodied, and mostly young, out of industry in Europe.

These men are fed and housed and clothed at the expense of the working masses. If they themselves were working civilization would have a triple advantage—burdens would be removed from taxpayers, production would be increased and the threat of militarism, which can only justify its existence by and through the development of actual hostilities, would be removed.

The United States only supports 1.54 soldiers for each 1,000 population. Germany, despite her limitations, supports 1.64; Japan, 4.60; Italy, 6.64; [illegible] 7.03; Great Britain, 5.43, and France 19.13. Figures for Poland are not given, though she has something like 700,000 men under arms. Probably Czechoslovakia has now about 400,000 and Jugoslavia considerably more.

Senator McCormick's theory was that the United States should continue to encourage any loans public or private, to governments which instead of paying their debts, were using the cash to keep up standing armies. Every year that this reckless business continues is a new argument for his proposition. It is pretty likely that if there were no standing armies in Europe quick development of any war would be impossible, and no war would come without attempts at arbitration. That an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure is perennial.

EDITORIAL NOTES

New York is now urged to defeat Hylan for mayor, if only for variety's sake.

President Coolidge started his third year quietly, which does not indicate any departure from normalcy.

The man on the corner says: once again it has been demonstrated that there's no fool like an old fool.

"Cell-shock" is a new barrier thrown up for the state to surmount in executing death sentences upon criminals.

California points with pride to the fact that no earthquake has threatened its most popular industry by wrecking a single motion picture studio.

The present strengthening of the Pacific defenses ought to be a great comfort to Mr. Doheny and those admirals who are so nervous about Japan.

The tax-reduction band wagon has room for all the statesmen of both parties and all factions who will climb up. With President Coolidge at the reins reckless driving will be at a minimum.

Calvin Coolidge, according to astute observers, can have another presidential term if he desires it. No hint has been given of the extraordinary mental processes which might prevent such a desire.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Always save twine and brown paper. They will be at hand when required. In a well-regulated house there should always be a drawer where brown and other thick paper are to be found. Roll up pieces of string separately so that the necessary thicknesses can be pulled out at a glance.

Sweet oil will remove finger marks from varnished furniture, and kerosene from oiled furniture.

When ironing lace, embroidered garments or bedding, or any kind of initialed handwork, have a piece of an old Turkish towel fastened to one end of the ironing board to lay these pieces on.

The white of an egg applied to a burn or scald is most soothing and will cause the burn to heal quickly.

Keep the vinegar from sweet pickles and put it into a bottle or glass, leaving the spices in it. When making salad dressings, strain out the spices and use the vinegar. It gives a delicious flavor.

When using lemon juice, be sure to measure the amount, as lemons vary as to their content. Three tablespoons should be used where a recipe calls for the juice of one lemon.

To keep parsley fresh, put the stems in a glass of water to which a slice of onion or one teaspoon of vinegar has been added.

Do not bleach your gas stove. Go over it occasionally with olive oil.

A book of paper in the kitchen on which to set down needed household supplies is a great help.

VOGUE FOR TRICOT

Tricot is frequently used in the smarter French frocks shown for practical wear. It is used for an intriguing model which features a skirt of fancy pleating in navy blue, topped by a blouse of Castilian red crepe. WARM KNITTED GIFTS FOR INVALIDS

Knitted things on account of their warmth and softness have always had a favored place in the sick room. There is no better way to express interest in an invalid than to knit or crochet some pretty and useful gifts. For instance, one may knit a bed jacket, a shawl, a bed scarf, hose with sock finish and bed slippers to match. The scarf may be so voluminous as to be almost a robe. Although such a scarf hangs loosely from the neck, the belt draws it warmly about the waist, and in one ... long straight pieces that forms ... the front, place a little pocket ... handkerchief.

5. Receptacles for liquids must never be filled so full that there is danger of spilling when being carried.

6. Dishes should never be scraped or stacked at table.

7. Only so many dishes as can be served without "crowding" should be taken from the table at one time.

8. Care must be taken that one does not get the hands around the ... of others; the fingers should never touch the food being conveyed to dishes.

9. All unused silver must be removed from table before dessert is served.

10. The table is crumbed only, before the dessert course.

11. Coffee is served in small cups after the dessert course, and generally with sugar, without cream. It may be served at table or afterwards in the living room or elsewhere. If served during the meal it is poured into large cups and passed with sugar and cream.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Rainy water is best for removing grease. If there are any such spots, dampen the garments or papery pour boiling water on them and rub lightly with soap. Then wash the places before putting the pieces to soak. Most fresh fruit stains will yield to boiling water treatment. If the water is poured through them immediately after the spot is made. Candle grease should be taken off as much as possible before processing in the hot water. If the cloth is slightly warmed the wax can be peeled off, except that which has become ingrained in the weave. Do not try to pull cold wax off. It may tear the cloth if it is fine, or pull and break stitches of embroidery or threads in hemstitching. After warming the fabric and peeling the superfluous wax off, immerse in boiling water until the wax is soft, then rub and wash with soap and water.

Cold water is best for removing blood stains. Handkerchiefs should be soaked in cold water and then washed in cold water before putting in with the regular laundry water. Egg stains will come out best in cold water. Hot water stiffens and thickens the albumen.

There is nothing that responds so to temperature as does wool. If the water is too hot it shrinks the material. Also if there is a decided change in temperature between wash and rinse water the fabric shrinks. When wool shrinks it also thickens and seems to acquire a hardness of texture that can never be eliminated. It is absolutely essential, therefore, to see that the temperature is right when laundering woolen articles or those that are part woolen. Blankets that are all wool require very careful washing. No blankets are ironed, of course. They will become fluffy and beautiful, almost like new, if well laundered. They must be expected to acquire a deep cream color after a while. This change of tone is not the disadvantage some seem to consider it. It distinguishes all wool from cotton and wool. Some housewives choose to have blankets that are part cotton because they do not turn so quickly. Just in proportion to the amount of wool in the weave does the blanket deepen its hue with time and with washing.

COMFORT IS ASSURED

Summer sleeping throws, with pillow slip to match, are so cool and luxurious that they can woo sleep and comfort even on the hottest nights. They are made of Korean silk with bands of beige lace. They also come in plain, heavy crepe de chine. Or they are made in colors to match the general color scheme of one's bedroom and can be had in all the lovely pastel shades. For cool nights there is being shown a gossamer weight wool blanket which is scarcely as heavy as a sheet, yet is a protection against damp or sharp night air.

MAKING PRETTY VESTS

Some of the summer occupational therapy or porch pursuits are the making of pretty vests of velvet satin and brocades which will prove an essential part of the autumn tailored costume as well as for the ensemble outfit. Some clever women are making sleeves to go with these little vestees.

COTTON'S COMEBACK

French women, as a rule, do not go in enthusiastically for sport, but they have gone in enthusiastically for some of the new sport frocks. These are of cotton, which seems to have fallen into disuse in America. They consist of a pleated skirt, and a jumper, blouse cut exactly like a sweater. The lighter, more delicate colors are chosen.

RECIPES

Corn Fritters—Beat one egg until very light. Add one cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of milk, two tablespoonfuls of corn, a pinch of salt and one and one half tablespoonfuls of baking powder. Mix well and then add flour enough to make a batter the thickness of cake batter. Drop by teaspoonfuls into deep, hot fat and fry until a delicate light brown.

Oriental Delight—One cup raisins, one cup sugar, three pints water, two-inch piece cinnamon stick, one cup quince jelly.

WHITE ONCE

White satin pumps are in strong demand this month and yet one sees few being worn. The answer is that white satin footwear can be dyed to match the softer tints of the various summer frocks.

ENGLISH PRINT SCREENS

Tall screens made of marbled wall paper have insets at the top of each side of quaint old prints depicting English country life of several generations ago.

CEREAL WITH FRUIT

Cold molded cereal is a welcome change at the breakfast table, and the addition of fruit makes it an attractive and palatable food. Press the cereal into small molds or cups that have been wet with cold water, turn out on the breakfast plate and surround with seasonable fruit.

CONCERNING WOMEN

The British Isles contain two million more women than men.

Nearly 30,000 women are employed by banks in the United States.

Mrs. Emma Leutin of Kewanee County is Wisconsin's first woman sheriff.

One theatre in Germany employs women as scene shifters and stage hands.

In England fewer women are earning their own livings now than thirty years ago.

Of forty women present at a recent social gathering in Hiawatha, Kansas, not one were bobbed hair.

Chambermaids in the big New York hotels are organizing a union to better their conditions of employment.

Eskimo girls and women have taken to bobbing their hair, according to a traveler recently returned from the far North.

Leeds, England, believes it has the only city in the world able to boast of a woman who earns her living as a professional rat catcher.

EAT FISH FOR IODINE

Lack of iodine in the system of those living in inland sections of the country makes them more subject to goiter than those who live near the sea. As seafood contains iodine doctors are advising people in the mountainous and inland sections to eat more fish and the result that the demand for canned fish and oyster is growing rapidly in popularity through the middle states.

WIRED BOUDOIR CAPS

Boudoir caps are both beautiful and utilitarian, but their main purpose is to hold the hair in place during repose. Such few women have any longer much hair to keep in place in the back, the latest boudoir caps only extend around the front. They consist for the most part in wired wings which bend closely around the front and top of the head.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

James M. Lynch, who will preside over the convention of the International Typographical union which is to meet today at Kalamazoo, Mich., is one of the most conspicuous figures in the organized labor movement in America. He grew up in western New York, went to the public schools, in 1881 began to learn the printer's trade, and it was not long before he had risen to high official rank in the trade assembly of Syracuse. His ability as an administrator caused his election to the vice presidency of the International Typographical union in 1899, and a year later he was elected president. He has retained this position ever since, with the exception of intervals of several years when he was called into the service of the state of New York to represent organized labor on the state industrial commission. During the administration of Mr. Lynch the typographical union has developed into one of the strongest of American trades unions.

Peter Rabbit Sees An Accident

None from danger e'er is free;
Accidents are bound to be.
—Old Mother Nature

You should have seen Danny Meadow Mouse scamper across the Laughing Brook on the grassy old log which stretched from bank to bank. He didn't waste any time about it. It just happened that Peter Rabbit was sitting near the other end of that old log and saw Danny when he came skipping across.

"For goodness sake, where did you come from?" exclaimed Peter.

"I came from the other side," cried Danny. "Where do you suppose I came from?"

"What are you doing so far from home?" persisted Peter.

"I'm going back home just as fast as my legs will take me," replied Danny and disappeared in the grass.

Peter watched him out of sight and then continued on his way up the Laughing Brook, past the Smiling Pool along the Laughing Brook again until finally he was in the Green Forest. There he spent the night. It was just after daylight and Peter was preparing to go home to the dear old Briar-patch when there came up a sudden storm. It thundered. It lightened and the wind blew. My goodness, how the wind did blow! Peter found a hollow log, where he was very comfortable and very dry and out of which he could peep.

Suddenly there was a dreadful crash close to him. Peter was so frightened that he jumped out of his comfortable, dry hiding place. Then he discovered that a big limb had been broken off of a tall dead tree close by and had fallen close to that old log. Peter looked up to see where that limb had come from. He was just in time to see a small form glide down from the stub of that broken limb high up in the tree. It was Mrs. Timmy the Flying Squirrel. She sailed over to another tree, ran up it, sailed back to the dead tree from which the limb had broken, ran up it and disappeared in the end of that stub. "She has a nest there!" exclaimed Peter to himself, "she was living there! My, it is lucky that her nest wasn't in that part of the branch that fell. I wonder if she has babies up there. If she has I'm afraid they'll get wet."

But just then it stopped raining. In a few minutes the sun broke out. Almost at once Peter saw the head of little Mrs. Timmy as she peeped out from that hollow stub high above his head. She saw Peter almost at once. She glided down, for you know she cannot fly, although she is called a Flying Squirrel, and landed on a stump not far away. There she sat looking at that broken branch beside which Peter was sitting.

"I never was so thankful in my life," said little Mrs. Timmy.

"What are you thankful for?" demanded Peter. "I should thank you would be anything but thankful."

"I'm thankful," replied Mrs. Timmy, "that matters are not worse than they are. I'm thankful that my nest was not in the part of the branch that fell. Oh, dear, what a dreadful wind it was! And now I've got to move."

"Where are you going to move to?" asked Peter.

"I don't know," replied little Mrs. Timmy. "I hope it won't be far, for it will be a dreadful job to move my family very far. Excuse me, Peter Rabbit, I must go look for another house."

Today's Birthdays

Joseph McKenna, former associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, born in Philadelphia 82 years ago today.

Herbert C. Hoover, secretary of commerce in the Coolidge cabinet, born at West Branch, Iowa, 51 years ago today.

Paul M. Warburg, president of the advisory council of the Federal Reserve board, born in Hamburg, Germany, 57 years ago today.

Alexander Glazounoff, celebrated Russian composer, born in Leningrad 60 years ago today.

John G. Price, late grand exalted ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, born at Canton, O., 54 years ago today.

From Small Beginnings

Froebel, the Forest Boy, the Great Educator.

Everyone thought the boy, Friedrich Froebel, a great fool. His stepmother lost all patience with him and prided herself on her own son, who succeeded in school and university, while Friedrich could not get on in school, and in the University of Jena fell into debt and was sent to jail for nine weeks. Friedrich's father, a poor pastor in the Thuringian Forest, sent the "brainless fellow" off to work for a farmer. Today every person who studies the history of education must study the life of Friedrich Froebel, whom they called a stupid boy.

The father died and the boy was set adrift in the world. He was at various times a bookkeeper, a land measurer, a secretary, student of architecture, public school teacher, private tutor and, for a year, was a soldier. He came back from military life and set up a school. From then until his death he taught, sometimes starving, sometimes successful. He lectured on education, established schools, and trained teachers.

He devoted himself especially to teaching the very young. Remembering his country home, he called his school a "garden for children." He brought into education the thing that he had lacked as a child—love. He tried to make children grow like so many tall, straight, beautiful trees. He would have none of them gnarled and crooked. He believed that "As the twig is bent the tree is inclined."

"We must give children," he said, "all that they need for the growth of body, mind and soul."

When he died he was saddened because a government decree had overthrown his work and forbidden the establishment of schools of the kind he had developed.

Just as sunshine prevails in spite of the darkest clouds, so does truth prevail. After his death his work grew, and today, in the kindergartens of the world, little children play with blocks and colors, and sing and grow into orderly, thinking souls, happier and better because of the noble work of Friedrich Froebel.

Notes That Recall Others

Keep It a Secret.

The third grade had been asked to write a composition on a bunny and the teacher had brought one to school for their inspection. In naming over the different parts of the animal, she carelessly pointed out that it didn't have any tail to speak of. The next day Ann in reading hers aloud gave this description: "The bunny has a tail, but we mustn't say anything about it."

Effect of Religion.

Uncle Tobey had a neighbor who was in the habit of working on Sunday but who later joined the church.

One day he met the minister to whose church the man belonged.

"Well, Uncle Tobey," said the minister, "do you see any difference in Mr. Smith since he joined the church?"

"Yes," said Uncle Tobey, "a great difference. Before, when he went to mend his fences on Sunday, he carried his axe on his shoulder. Now he carries it under his overcoat."

MOTOR VEHICLE TAXES USED FOR HIGHWAYS

Excepting Massachusetts and Vermont, the percentage of total highway expenditures paid from receipts from state motor vehicle taxes is higher in Connecticut than in any other state of the Union, according to statistics of the United States Bureau of Public Roads, based on 1923 records. The Massachusetts percentage is 64.5, Vermont, 58, and Connecticut, 57. Maryland follows with 56 per cent., Rhode Island with 55.2 per cent., New Hampshire, with 42.3 per cent., Georgia, with 41.2 per cent. and New York with 40.6 per cent.

Out of thirty-six states collecting a gasoline tax at that time, fifteen, of which Connecticut was one, devoted 100 per cent. of the receipts from that source to state highway work. The average percentage of gasoline tax receipts of these states made available for state highway work was 45. Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, the other New England states which had gasoline tax at that time, used all ... Connecticut in using the receipts ... ely for improvements of state highways.

The percentage of highway costs borne by receipts from state motor vehicle taxes and fees is steadily increasing throughout the country, reaching 31.3-3 per cent. last year. The percentage in Connecticut increased from 27 per cent. in 1921 to 47 per cent. in 1922, to 56 per cent. in 1923 and to more than 65 per cent. (estimated) in 1924.

The proportion is lowest in Western states, being 7.9 per cent. in Arizona, 8.5 per cent. in Mississippi, 11.8 per cent. in Wisconsin, 11.1 per cent. in New Mexico, 11.3 per cent. in Texas and 12 per cent. in Nevada.

With a fraction over six persons for each motor vehicle now in the United States, experts expect that an average of four persons a vehicle will be reached not earlier than 1926 nor later than 1928.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Palace

One of the thrilling scenes in "The White Sheep," Hal Roach's new Pathe novelty feature now playing at the Palace theatre is the sensational fight between Toby, the white sheep of a black sheep family, and the town's bad man as the two drift down a raging river in a farm wagon.

This scene, which climaxes the story, comes after a long series of laughable and sometimes melodramatic incidents that relate the adventures of this timid youth, who eventually outwits his bully brothers, usurps the fighting blood of his pugnacious family and proves to be a holy terror in his own right.

Hal Roach, who wrote and directed this novelty production, has, it seems combined all the known elements of amusement in the picture. It is a merry mixture of thrilling melodrama and hilarious farce with a liberal sprinkling of romance provided by Glenn Tryon as the white sheep and Blanche Mehaffey as the pretty city girl who comes to Toby's home town and immediately becomes the center of a rivalry between the three humorous but amourous members of one family.

On the same bill is Bob Custer in "The Range Terror" a thrilling western picture.

Breed Theatre.

Another noted stage success has been brought to the screen with realism and great dramatic force. This time it is "Daddy's Gone a-Hunting," the play by Zoe Akins in which Marjorie Rambeau won fame, which opened at the Breed theatre last night. Frank Borzage made the production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

In being transferred to the screen none of the strength of this drama has been lost, and much has been added in way of color and lavish beauty.

Alice Joyce, more lovely than when she retired from the screen four years ago, has the role of Edith. It is her second characterization since returning to pictures and will win for her a host of new admirers.

Percy Marmont adds to his steadily growing popularity by his interpretation of Julian, the artist "Daddy" who goes hunting for happiness and inspiration, only to find that all his roving has been in vain when despair and bitter realization fill his life on the death of his little daughter Janet.

Prominent in the Borzage picture is the work of Helena d'Algy, the girl who will be remembered as Rudolph Valentino's leading lady in The Sainted Devil.

Color is furnished by the lavish luxury and daring of the Folies Bergeres in Paris, in which hundreds of beautiful dancers appear, and in the many studio parties which Marmont, Ford Sterling as Oscar and Helena d'Algy as Olga stage. Other members of the exceptional cast include Holmes Herbert, Edythe Chapman and Martha Mattox.

Broadway Theatre

"The Little French Girl" is not written for a passing year or generation. Life, limpid, clear, beautiful, flows through these pages. Picture follows unforgettable picture. Men and women speak; their voices vibrate with reality. They move; we see them, catch their gestures, live with them. Here, undoubtedly, is a novel that is destined to stand for years as the finest study of English and French life and character."

Produced by Herbert Brenon, who made "Peter Pan," the picture features Alice Joyce, Neil Hamilton, Mary Brian and Esther Ralston. The story is not unlike that of "Stella Dallas" but is handled in an entirely different manner.

Picture fans are going to love Mary Brian in her role of Alix Vervier. Alice Joyce, too, as the mother, was never more alluringly beautiful. Esther Ralston, Hamilton and all the others are ideally cast.

This brilliant feature will be seen at the Broadway Theatre today, Tuesday and Wednesday in addition to a new comedy and news.

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Monday, August 10, 1925

THE WEATHER
Conditions

Pressure is relatively high over Saskatchewan, the northern plain states and the northern Rocky Mountain region and off the south Atlantic coast, and it is low over practically all other sections with a center of minimum pressure over western Quebec. This pressure distribution has been attended by local showers within the last 24 hours in the Atlantic and east Gulf states and the northern and eastern lake region. The temperature has risen in the upper lake region.

The indications are for mostly fair weather Monday and Tuesday east of the Mississippi river, except that showers are probable in New England on Monday. The temperature will not change materially during the next two days.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook:—Moderate to fresh south shifting to west and northwest, overcast, probably showers Monday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras:—Moderate to fresh southwest and west and partly overcast weather Monday.

Weather Forecast

For Southern New England:—Generally fair Monday and Tuesday, probably preceded by showers Monday morning; not much change in temperature.

KNOCKED DOWN BY FORD ON WEST MAIN STREET

While crossing West Main street, near the West Side fire station, about 10 o'clock Saturday night, Benjamin Hunt was knocked down and injured by a Ford driven by H. C. Covey of No. 43 Freeman avenue. Dr. Louis Cassidy was called and Mr. Hunt was taken to the W. W. Backus hospital in the police patrol. He is suffering from bruises and other minor injuries. It is said that Mr. Hunt while crossing the street started back again and stepped into the path of the machine.

JAMES CRAWFORD AND WILLIAM READON SUED FOR DAMAGES OF $10,000

James Crawford and William Reardon, both of this city, have been made defendants in a suit for $10,000 damages brought against them by Jeremiah Lyons of New London, father of the late Alice K. Lyons, who died as the result of injuries received on Thanksgiving eve while riding in a machine with Crawford and Reardon. The dead girl, who was 17 years old, and Miss Laura Botinelli, were riding with Crawford and Reardon when the machine went off the road, on the New London and Hartford highway and crashed into a large rock.

Mrs. Mary Crawford of this city, mother of James Crawford, and owner of the ill-fated machine is named as a co-defendant. Following the crash both Crawford and Reardon were arrested and at the last term of the Hartford county superior court, Reardon who was driving the machine at the time, was sentenced to serve four months in jail. Miss Lyons died in a Hartford hospital three days after the accident.

HUMILITY A SCARCE VIRTUE, FR. REILLY DEPLORES

"Everyone that exalted himself shall be humbled, and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted," words taken from the gospel for the day, the 10th Sunday after Pentecost, Luke 18, 9-14, formed the text of the sermon by Rev. John J. Reilly, at the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday. This gospel, read in all the Masses of the day, is the parable of the Pharisee and the Publican. In the teachings of Christ during His earthly ministry, the preacher declared, there were many surprising and almost severe doctrines which so disconcerted some of His followers that they pronounced them "hard sayings" and in their human weakness they "walked with Him no more." Two thousand years later, in our own time, the doctrine of humility rather than pride seems to many outside the Catholic church a hard saying, opposed to every world policy; yet the Catholic knows from Christ's teaching that humility is essential to salvation.

The preacher drew a sharp contrast between that pride which elevates itself upon a pedestal, in word and action implying "I first—God second" and the humility of the Christian who recognizes th eCreator as the giver of everything, hence puts himself meekly in second place. Humility does not imply lack of dignity; the Redeemer, exemplar of deepest humility, whether in his words to the little child, or his admonitions to the Woman of Samaria, was ever dignified, gentle, a little reserved. Various instances were cited to prove the favor which the humble must always have in the sight of God, the lesson drawn being the wisdom of humbling one's self here, to insure being exalted hereafter.

Row after row of men, women and children, penitents following confession the day before, went to the sanctuary railing for Holy Communion. Rev. Myles P. Galvin, who read the low Mass requiring the assistance of Father Reilly in giving Communion.

The epistle for all the Masses of the day was I. Corinthians, 12, 2-11. In spite of the customary vacation absences the attendance seemed not at all affected, the great church being well adorned, although the day was rainy.

INTERESTING SUNDAY SERVICE AT THE LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

An interesting service was held in the Y. M. C. A. parlors Sunday at 4 o'clock, when a goodly audience enjoyed the meeting. After the reading of Scripture and prayer, moving pictures were shown which included "The Venice of the Orient," showing life and scenery in that far away land. A reel showing the polar bear and the lion was interesting, showing as it did the immenseness of these monster animals, etc. An educational reel entitled "X-Ray on Teeth" gave to the audience good points on the care of the teeth and also the danger of neglect of the same.

A brief talk was given by Secretary Hill between the reels, and among other things the speaker said that it was impossible to understand why it is that some men seem to sink lower than some animals. Man was made for higher things than some men seem to think, man is calculated to live in the higher realms instead of the lower, for he was made in the image of God. When man forgets that he was made for high things he naturally sinks into the low things. Let us all take our rightful place in life and live as God expects us to live.

ARRESTED FOR DRIVING WHILE UNDER INFLUENCE

John Kinnie, 50, of this city, was arrested Saturday night about midnight on Shetucket street, on a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. Kinnie, climbed into a machine owned by Henry Plante of this city and parked near the Gately and Brennan store and by working the starter moved the car through Shetucket street. He got as far as the Laurel Hill bridge where he came to grief while making the turn from Shetucket street.

He was arrested and booked at police headquarters. Sunday he was released on bonds of $300 for his appearance in the city court this (Monday) morning.

Mr. Plante had left his machine by the curb and did not know that Kinnie had appropriated it for his until he returned for it later.

NORWICH KLANSMEN AT WASHINGTON DEMONSTRATION

Over a score of Norwich Klansmen were in Washington, D. C., Saturday to witness the great parade of Klansmen held in that city, when 50,000 members of the order paraded. Several of the Norwich members returned home late Saturday while others remained in Washington to attend the ceremonial at the grave of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington cemetery, the Klan initiation and the burning of the monster cross.

LOCAL MACHINE FIGURES IN BOZRAHVILLE ACCIDENT

A machine owned and driven by Clarence H. Thoma of Leonard Bridge and a Ford commercial, owned by the American Steam Laundry of this city and driven by J. T. Rondeau of No. 43 Franklin street collided Saturday night at Bozrahville. Mr. Thoma's machine escaped damage but the Ford received damaged left front rear mudgards, a wheel was sprung and the top damaged.

Monthly Poultry Letter

The extension service of the Connecticut Agricultural c gelloleE,th.Dnecticut Agricultural college is rendering timely aid to Connecticut poultrymen by means of an up-to-date poultry letter released regularly each month to all interested applicants. This material is designed particularly for the commercial poultryman, the sideline poultryman, and the suburban poultry keeper. These letters are sent free of charge in furtherance of the acts of Congress of May 8 and June 30, 1914. Anyone may receive the letters without any obligation by simply requesting them.

The man who is born rich is lucky from the start.

AWARD CONTRACT FOR GALLOWS HILL ROAD

At a cost of approximately $622,000, the Connecticut state highway department has awarded contracts for the construction of two bridges and about thirteen miles of new roadway located in all parts of the state. Eleven separate contracts are involved in the improvements.

Proposals for the new work drew seventy-nine bids from contractors. Work on the new projects is expected to be started at once. In each case, the contract was awarded to the lowest bidder in the competition.

Following are the contracts awarded and the location of the construction work:—

waterbound macadam on the Gallows Hill road to J. Arborio, New Haven, for $39,449.00.

LATEST PARIS STYLES FOR CONN. WOMEN

STORRS, Aug. 8.—That Connecticut farm women may have the latest Paris styles brought direct to their homes may be inferred from word received here today from Miss Mildred C. Annan, assistant clothing specialist of the Connecticut Agricultural College extension service.

Miss Annan is spending her vacation in Europe this summer, and in a letter sent from Semmering, Austria, says she intends to spend a week in Paris where she will be able to obtain many new ideas of value in her work among Connecticut women.

Among the countries visited by Miss Annan since her arrival in Europe in June are North Wales, England, Belgium, Holland, Germany and Austria, with France and Paris yet to be visited. Miss Annan will return to this country September 11, when shortly after she will resume her duties at Storrs.

ELKS PROVIDE PARKING SPACE FOR MEMBERS

Members of the Norwich lodge of Elks and all Elks visiting Norwich will not have to worry about the parking laws of the city, as the board of trustees, at a recent meeting, voted to clear land for parking space at the rear of the Elks Home on Main street.

This parking space will probably be opened in about 10 days and will accommodate over 100 cars, being about as large as the space at the New Haven railroad depot.

This move by the Norwich Elks will not only be beneficial to members of the organization in this city and elsewhere, but will work to the advantage of the city as well. It will certainly tend to relieve traffic congestion in the center of the city on Saturday nights and on other times when traffic runs heavy.

STORRS ALUMNI PLAN FIRST ANNUAL OUTING

STORRS, Aug. 9.—Alumni and former students of the Connecticut Agricultural college will hold their first annual outing at Hammonassett Beach on Tuesday, August 11, according to the announcement of I. A. Alexander, Alumni secretary.

Plans of the committee in charge of this outing are completed, and it is expected that Connecticut's alumni and former students, the majority of whom reside in the state, will welcome this opportunity to renew old acquaintances. A basket lunch will be served at 12.30, and during the day baseball, swimming and barnyard golf will be in order.

VETERAN PLUMBER CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

John A. Button, the veteran plumber, celebrated his 83rd birthday last Thursday at his home. He received postcards and flowers from a number of his friends. Mr. Button also received a birthday cake, fruit and other gifts.

Gustave A. Hoffman

A Sunday paper pictured Gustave Adolph Hoffman, whose home is in Rockville, one of America's best known artists. Born in Germany, reared in poverty in Rockville and tried in the mills of his home town as a mill boy, he managed to overcome the handicaps of his boyhood and rise to a position of security in the art world of Europe and America. Today he is generally noted as a landscape painter and etcher remarkable for his originality of design and effect, and throughout Connecticut is known as a painter of some of its foremost citizens.

TO TEACH MARKETING IN THE SCHOOLS

STORRS, Aug. 9.—Believing that co-operative marketing should form a part of the curriculum for pupils in the public schools of the city and country alike, the National Education association in its recent meeting at Indianapolis announced a vigorous new policy to the preparation of form children for intelligent participation in co-operative agriculture. This was the announcement here today by James L. Hypes, associate professor of agricultural education at the Connecticut Agricultural college, and a member of the committee that has been appointed to work out the idea so it can receive national application.

Working through its department of rural education, the important facts concerning co-operative marketing which should be taught in the schools are being selected and put into text books and courses of study. In so far as it is possible, they will be taught to all pupils in the public schools, city and country alike, that all may have an intelligent and sympathetic understanding of the co-operative mode of agricultural life, which promises to be the permanent type in the future.

Two representative committees have been appointed to outline and develop this new policy. On the first, which is composed of outstanding business men and economists, are such authorities as Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, Aaron Sapiro, organizer of co-operative farm organizations all over the country; Chris L. Christensen, U. S. Department of Agriculture expert on co-operative marketing; Frank Evans, secretary American Farm Bureau Federation; President Kenyon L. Butterfield of the Michigan Agricultural college, and many others of like ability.

The second committee is composed of educators, whose function it is to take the findings of the first committee and build them into an educational programme. Among the educators making up this committee are: James L. Hypes of the Connecticut Agricultural college; L. E. Driver, director of Rural Education in Pennsylvania; Dr. C. E. Myers of the same state; C. G. Sargent of the State College of Colorado; Will C. Wood, State Dept. of Public Instruction, California; Macy Campell of the Ioda State Teachers' college and many others.

According to Prof. Hypes, the motives which impelled the National Education association to engage in this project are as follows:

The belief that every American wants to see farm children given as good educational opportunities as other children have.

Educators now know how to develop as good educational facilities for farm children as other children have, when adequate financial support is given.

Farmers cannot get the money to support schools except as they get it out of their crops.

They cannot get it out of their crops until they cease dumping them individually at a loss and begin to market them collectively as a profit.

They cannot do this successfully until they understand the basic principles of co-operative merchandizing, the form which marketing organizations take, and the absolute necessity for loyalty to the marketing group.

It is the business of education in rural communities to prepare farmers to live intelligent and successful lives; one important phase of this is to prepare them to be intelligent, willing, loyal, courageous members of marketing groups now that the co-operative form of agricultural life is becoming the permanent form in America.

Co-operative marketing develops more soundly where young farmers have first been educated to understand it; the proper education of the youth before they become members reduces the strain on the membership contract, and the morale of the organization as a whole.

The spiritual virtues which make the farmer and his family good citizens in the economic democracy known as co-operative marketing organizations are intelligence faith in his fellows, willing obedience to chose authority, a sense of economic values, loyalty to the groups and undaunted courage. These same virtues make the farmer and his family good citizens in the political democracy known as a township, a county, a state or a nation.

There is no more dynamic and vital means of teaching good citizenship necessary to successful co-operative agriculture. "This should be taught in childhood when ideals sink deepest and bear the largest measure of fruit.

To give such training in the public schools is an act of the soundest patriotism because that which increases the strength and prosperity of the agriculture increases the strength and prosperity of the whole nation. The whole people will ultimately go up or down with the farmers.

MUMFORD'S CONDITION REMAINS VERY SERIOUS

The condition of Charles Mumford of No. 120 North Main street was reported as very serious, early this (Monday) morning, at the Backus hospital, where he has been a patient since Friday morning, suffering with terrible burns about the body.

Mr. Mumford received a shock Friday morning while working on what is known as a "dead" line between Montville and New London, when the line became crossed in some manner with a line carrying 33,000 volts. Mr. Mumford and three other employes of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., received shocks, but his injuries were far more serious than those of his fellow workmen.

His case is considered as one of the most serious now at the local hospital, and although he remains conscious, his condition is far from favorable.

TWO ARRESTED FOR TROUBLE ON STREET

Simon Jesien, Polish, 36, and Alexander Abugal, Russian, 37, were arrested Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock by Officer Quinn on breach of the peace charges. The men had some trouble on Central avenue and it is said the trouble developed into a fight. Both were released on bonds of $50 for their appearance in the city court this (Monday) morning.

Was Stationary Staging.

In a story published in The Bulletin concerning injuries sustained by Bernie Brayman of 294 Laurel Hill avenue, caused by a fall of 25 feet while painting the home of Judge Nelson J. Ayling, it was stated that he fell from a swing staging. The staging was a stationary staging and the ladder broke under his feet.

Presided at Organ.

In the absence of Organist Herbert L. Yerrington, Sunday, H. Dwight Richardson was at the organ for the services at the First Congregational church, Norwich Town.

LOCAL DRIVER BUMPED INTO ANOTHER MACHINE

Sunday afternoon a Cadillac touring car driven by Alonzo C. Geer of No. 8 High street, bumped into another machine on Shetucket street. Geer's machine received a damaged running board and damaged front mudguard.

Entertained at Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Merrill of Brooklyn, N. Y., former Norwich residents, who are spending the summer at Poquyogh, Waterford, entertained at dinner Saturday evening in honor of Dr. Carl Fique and Katharine Noack Fique of New York, who appeared in a piano and vocal recital Friday evening in the chapel at the beach. Dinner was served on the porch of the Merrill cottage, covers being laid for twelve and the guests including friends from Brooklyn, Waterford and Norwich.

The town of Plainfield is the first town in this part of Connecticut to vote on Sunday baseball and a spirited election is expected August 22. The selectmen have been heavily petitioned and a large vote is looked for.

The trial of E. E. Duplus, one of the town's most prosperous and prominent merchants, for violation of the Volstead act, will be held before Judge George R. Torrey today (Monday).

Mr. Duplus, son of E. V. Duplus, will be tried at the same time. One of the interesting facts in connection with this trial is that Town Judge George R. Torrey, was one of the justices who attended the Chief Justice George W. Wheeler conference in Putnam a year ago and voted with the majority to give every one a jail sentence for the first offence.

Herbert Codlin, Arthur Gallup, William Maggia and Ralph West were in Lynn, Mass., last week taking examinations for admission to the West Lynn electrical school conducted by the General Electric Co.

NORWICH TOWN

Rev. and Mrs. James B. Aldrich, their sons Lewis and Mark Aldrich, of West Town street, are to leave early this (Monday) morning by automobile for two weeks' trip to the White Mountains, New Hampshire and through Vermont into Canada. They will be accompanied by Rev. and Mrs. Aldrich's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Comstock and their children, Mary and Allen Comstock, of Haddenfield, N. J., who were their guests over Sunday night. The Aldrich family will spend some time visiting among Mrs. Aldrich's brothers and sister, whose homes are situated in different locations in Vermont.

Mrs. Elizabeth R. Kinney, of Town street, had as callers Saturday afternoon, her niece, Mrs. Nicholas Mooney, of Westerly, and the latter's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lamphere and their three daughters, May, Gladys and Florence Lamphere, of Oklahoma, who have been visiting Mr. Lamphere's relatives in Rhode Island for the past week or more.

The Lamphere family motored from the west, having arrived at the end of eight days' journey. They plan to leave for home Wednesday of this week.

Charles Lamphere, a former Norwich Town boy, with his family, located in Oklahoma five years ago, having previously resided in Westerly.

Rev. and Mrs. Gurdon F. Bailey, of Elm avenue, were guests over the week-end of friends in Collinsville, where the Bailey family resided for nine years previous to locating in Norwich Town. During that time Rev Mr. Bailey was pastor of Collinsville Congregational church. At this church Sunday morning Rev. Mr. Bailey occupied his former pulpit.

Miss Sarah McClellan, accompanied by Miss Susie Matassa, of Washington street, expects to leave today (Monday) for a stay at Lord's Point.

Concluding a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Hitchon, of Washington street, their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wright and children have returned to their home at West Medford, Mass.

Mrs. Annie Hopson, of Branford, for many years a well known writer for a popular New Haven paper, was a caller Sunday at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb, of Town street, while the guest of friends on an automobile trip to South Coventry and vicinity. Mrs. Hopson and Mrs. Lamb had not met before in twenty-three years, when the former paid a visit to Norwich.

Mr. and Mrs. Roswell J. P. Brown, of Oneco street, recently had as guests Mr. Brown's aunt, Mrs. Cora Kotten, of Cuba, N. POETRY

CAMILLA.

Now Camilla's fair fingers are plucking in rapture the pulsating strings,
And her far-away eyes are intent in the scene and the story she sings—
Singing her song of Felipe, her hero intrepid and true;
Singing his praise, and recounting what deeds for her love he would do.

See the wild race after cattle, the bronco's wide nostrils blood red;
Hear the hello of the herder, Felipe, who dashes ahead!
Hist, how the lariat sings as it flies o'er the horns of a steer!
See the wild plunge, and the horse standing firm—hear the bellow of fear!

Then on the trail of Apaches, who leads the long marches by night?
Who but Felipe would dare to press on o'er the mesa to fight?
Who but Felipe sits firm in his saddle when rifles ring out in the dark?
Cooly he levels his weapon, the bullet flies true to its mark.

Such is the song sweet Camilla is singing with gaze far-away—
Such is the song, for she knows not how long her Felipe will stay—
Knows not that lone in the waste of the sage-brush her master lies, slain—
Ah, sweet Camilla, thy songs for Felipe, the fearless, are vain!

—Charles Augustus Keeler.

MORNING.

See, the day begins to break,
And the light shoots like a streak
Of subtle fire; the wind blows cold,
While the morning doth unfold;
Now the birds begin to rouse.

Shepherds, rise, and shake off sleep!
See, the blushing morn doth peep
Through the windows, while the sun
To the mountain-tops is run,
Gliding all the vales below.

And the squirrel from the boughs
Leaps, to get him nut and fruit;
The early lark that erst was mute,
Carols to the rising day
Many a note and many a lay.

—John Fletcher.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Blobbs: Puffduff is pretty generally disliked, isn't he?

Slobbs: Yes, but his own opinion of himself brings the average up pretty well.—Philadelphia Record.

Wife: There's such a lot of flies gathered outside the window.

Hub: Probably watching some fly favorites perform on the screen, my dear.—Boston Transcript.

Aunt: And were you a very good little girl at church this morning, Alice? Alice: Oh, yes, auntie. A man offered me a big plate of money and I said "No, thank you."—Answers (London).

Guide: This is the room where the duke was assassinated.

Visitor: Indeed! Why, last year you showed us another room.

Guide: Quite right, sir; but that room is being repainted now.—Brisbane (Australia) Mail.

Judge: And now I don't know which of the two of you to believe.

First Defendant: Well, your honor, I never told a lie in my life before.—Bucknell Belle Hop.

Julie: What a shame that all handsome men are conceited.

Romeo: I am not, little girl.—Yellow Crab.

NEW YORK CITY ELECTION TO BE A GRUELLING CONTEST

Two Democratic Slates Will Fight It Out in the Primaries Sept 15—Mayor Hylan Heads One Faction, Senator Walker the Other—The Winner Will Be Opposed by a Republican-Fusion Ticket—Frank D. Waterman Tops the Latter Ticket.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10—(A. P.)—A Republican-Fusion ticket was definitely placed in the field today to fight the winner of the Walker-Hylan contest in the Democratic primaries for New York's mayoralty.

After an unusually hectic day on what has been one of New York's busiest political campaigns, definite slates were selected by Democratic adherents of Mayor Hylan and by the Republican Executive Committee. The two slates now selected mound in the last square figures who have long played a leading part in New York's political and business life.

The Republican-Fusion ticket includes:

For Mayor—State Senator James J. Hoey.

For Comptroller—James E. Finegan.

For President of the Board of Aldermen—George W. Harvey, Republican.

The two Democratic slates which will fight it out in the primaries September 15 are:

For Mayor—State Senator James J. Walker.

For Comptroller — Major-General Charles W. Berry.

For President of the Board of Aldermen—City Court Justice Joseph V. McKee.

For Mayor—Mayor John F. Hylan.

For Comptroller—William D. (Big Bill) Edwards.

For President of the Board of Aldermen—William A. Cassidy.

The Walker ticket which has been in the field several days already has established headquarters in all of the boroughs and has begun its campaign against Mayor Hylan's renomination.

Selection of Mr. Finegan, making the Republican ticket a Fusion one, was considered especially important by political observers. He has been one of the chief critics of the politics of John H. McCooey, Brooklyn Democratic leader.

The presence of "Big Bill" Edwards on the Hylan ticket for comptroller also occasioned deep interest.

Mr. Waterman will also bring the subway issue into the campaign, being author of the slogan "say it with shovels" which was widely quoted in efforts to secure more subways.

An unusual feature of the Republican-Fusion ticket was the designation of former Governor Charles S. Whitman for district attorney. An office which he held from 191 to 1914, just before he was first elected governor.

Viewing the Tammany-Hylan split among the Democrats as a good omen for their own fortunes the Republican-Fusion leaders are prepared to offer their candidates as a "business administration."

Meanwhile the fight within the Democratic ranks has assumed more threatening proportions. Opposition to the selection of Mayor Hylan has been expressed by Democratic leaders in Brooklyn and Richmond who say they will support Senator Walker in the primaries. They have characterized the struggle as one between "Smith and Hearst" in which they will support Governor Smith and Senator Walker. Hylan Democrats, however, minimize the importance of this dissension.

NONE BUT STATE POLICE TO BE COUNTY DETECTIVES

HARTFORD, Aug. 10—(A. P.)—A resolution to approve the appointment of none but state policemen to county detectives was made by the Democratic conference committee this afternoon following a protracted conference between governor and the states attorneys, police commissioners and superintendent Robert T. Hurley in executive chambers. The governor pointed out that states attorneys to make appointments with President Elmer Hall of the police commission of the appointment as county detectives of state policemen mutually acceptable to the states attorney of each county and the state police department.

After considerable discussion at the conference, the governor said nothing had been offered to change his original opinion that the state police and county detectives were doing work largely similar and that their efforts should be coordination to get the maximum efficiency at minimum expense to the state. He accepted a statement to be adopted by the state police department, in which the department agreed "to appoint any one now in the service of the attorneys' office, whose so acceptable, and where not, to make place to find one who is mutually satisfactory, if necessary going outside both branches of the state service to secure the proper man or men."

HELD FOR VIOLATION OF THE PROHIBITION LAWS

NEW YORK, Aug. 10—(A. P.)—Although having been held prisoners several hours on the houseboat Stroller when it was seized by the Coast Guard Cutter 164 in Long Island Sound with 53 bottles of alleged liquor aboard, Albert Fink, wealthy Chicago attorney, and C. H. Goddard, a real estate operator fo Great Neck, L. I., were discharged for the violation of the prohibition laws.

Mr. Goddard paid a fine of $500 levied against both Mr. Fink and himself to Assistant Solicitor Barnes of the custom house and regained possession of the Stroller by furnishing a $1,000 bond. The Stroller is listed as owned by the Estates Realty Company of which Mr. Goddard is president.

Coast Guard officers said today they would make the incident the occasion for a request for a modification of the law providing the molestation of ships in the search for liquor unless there was positive information that the law was being violated.

NEW ENGLAND BREWING COMPANY IN TROUBLE

HARTFORD, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Charged with violation of the permit under which it is engaged in the manufacture of near beer, the New England Brewing Company, whose brewery is at number 535 Windsor street, was last Friday called before United States Prohibition Director Frank T. Putney, Mr. Putney said today. He said the hearing Friday had been confined to a statement of facts upon which the charge is based, and that no final decision on the revocation of the company's permit had yet been made. But, in the event of a revocation, he stated, the question of the disposition of the bonds that had been posted by the company under the permit would also be involved.

It is understood that the hearing was the result of an investigation conducted by federal agents into a shipment of beer made by the New England Brewery Company to Long Island early in July.

COURSES FOR HAIR DRESSERS AND BEAUTY SPECIALISTS

HARTFORD, Aug. 10—The state board of hair dressers and cosmeticians opened an office today in the capitol annex at 257 Capitol avenue where all applications for licensing of hair dressers and beauty parlors will be received. Notice has been sent out that all students who have taken up the work since January 1, must take an examination and must register with the state board before September 1.

After that date completion of two years of high school will be necessary before applicants may begin courses of study under hair dressers and beauty specialists.

WEATHER DETRIMENTAL TO CROPS GENERALLY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Weather and other conditions during July were shown today to have been detrimental to crops generally, in the department of agriculture's monthly report.

The large prospective corn crop was reduced 143,000,000 bushels as compared with a month ago, the production now indicated being 2,950,000 bushels. Rye, flaxseed, rice, sweet potatoes, tobacco, hay and grapes also showed losses from forecasts made last month.

Winter wheat, for which a preliminary estimate of 416,000,000 bushels was given, showed an increase over last month, but spring wheat with a total of 263,000,000 bushels declined 13,000,000, placing the entire wheat crop 7,000,00 bushels below that forecast in July.

There was an improvement in oats the crop forecast being 1,537,000,000 bushels, or 37,000,000 more than a month ago. Barley, white potatoes, apples, peaches and pears also recorded increases in their prospective production.

COOLIDGE HELD SERIES OF CONFERENCES YESTERDAY

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 10.—(AP)—In a series of conferences today, President Coolidge studied budget estimates for next year, received a report on the postal rate problem and was given late information as to the Alaskan fisheries situation.

Director Lord of the budget presented to the executive a tentative budget estimate for the next fiscal year calling for a reduction of $20,000,000 in appropriations. This is the amount set by the president and he approves the form in which the budget chief tentatively has allocated the new figures.

With increases necessary in some departments heavy slashes have been called for in others and it is understood the new budget hits hard on the army and navy appropriations. Mr. Coolidge has declared that while he wanted adequate national defense he believes it should be maintained on the smallest sum necessary. This policy is said to have been pursued in the preparation of the new budget.

FRENCH MISSION HAS ARRIVED IN LONDON

LONDON, Aug. 10—(AP)— The French mission which is to endeavor to forumate with Great Britain a reply to Germany's recent security note arrived in London tonight.

Aristide Briand, the French foreign minister, heads the mission. The delegation was welcomed at the railway station by Austen Chamberlain, the British foreign secretary and other foreign office officials, and the French ambassador M. Defleuriau.

Conservations will begin tomorrow at the foreign office. Premier Baldwin and his ministers are remaining in town to be in readiness to hold a cabinet council to discuss and give approval to the draft reply to the German communication. If the conversations are successful it is expected they will lead later to a more formal conference, at which representatives of Germany will be present.

The belief prevails that the two foreign ministers also will use the opportunity to talk over such subjects of common interest, as the debt, Moroccan and Syrian questions.

LIBERAL GOVERNMENT OF NEW BRUNSWICK DEFEATED

ST. JOHN, N. B., Aug. 10—(A. P.)—The Liberal government of New Brunswick, headed by P. J. Veniot, went down to defeat in the provincial general elections today, at the hands of the Conservatives, led by Hon. J. B. M. Baxter, in a repetition of the landslide of June 25 when the Nova Scotia Liberal government was swept out of power.

Premier Veniot's defeat was largely attributed to his policy of hydro-electric development at Grand Falls, a project that would have involved a public expenditure of $10,000,000.

At 9:30 o'clock tonight Conservatives had been definitely elected to 33 of the 48 seats against 2 for the government. Conservatives were conceded 7 others and the Liberals 6, while 10 seats were in doubt.

Caillaux Talks Of "Gentle[illegible]'s Offer"

Fr[illegible]nance Minister Declares to Attend Washington Conference on Debt.

PARIS, Aug. 10—Finance Minister Caillaux told American correspondents today that he desires very much to go to Washington to present what he called a "gentlemen's offer" for the settlement of the war debt France owes the United States. "I do not know whether I can leave the ministry of finance long enough to make the trip to America," said M. Caillaux. "I am going to tell both the British and the Americans just what France can pay and that France will pay it, but that it is impossible for me to undertake payments likely to turn out to be beyond the capacity of the country."

Reviewing the different phases of his financial program, Caillaux explained that the measures already adopted and those in view constituted the first step, but a very prudent step toward the eventual return of France to the gold basis.

M. Caillaux said he intended to go to London soon to confer with Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer regarding the French debt to Great Britain, but that the date was not fixed.

BELGIUM WILL HONOR ALL JUST OBLIGATIONS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10—With an assurance from Ambassador de Cartier that Belgium will honor all her just obligations, and with a promise by Secretary Mellon that she will be asked to pay only within her capacity, the American and Belgian debt commissions opened today the negotiations for the refunding of the little kingdom's $480,000,000 war debt to the United States.

Some general discussion followed the formal statement of the positions of the two governments, the Belgians beginning a detailed presentation as to the financial conditions in their country, so many elements must enter into the equation that their presentation may consume many days of continuous sittings before terms can be discussed.

Ambassador de Cartier told the Americans that his country would have opened negotiations sooner but for the non-fulfillment of "many solemn pledges given to her people during the war." He called particular attention to the levies imposed by Germany during the war and the failure of Germany to pay for the currency forced into use in Belgium.

The ambassador said the Dawes plan for reparations gave Belgium "only a small share of what we were entitled to," but he added that the working of this plan together with the gradual curtailment of government expenditures gave rise to the hope that the country would succeed in her efforts to place her finances on a sound basis.

Secretary Mellon replied that the United States would not ask Belgium "to do the impossible" and that the question before the two commissions was one of narrow compass, with politics, local or international, not involved.

The funding of the debt, he asserted, will mean fat more than the payment of Belgium of a certain number of dollars each year, constituting a recognition of the integrity of international obligations and "the settlement of a question which might disturb the long friendship of our two nations."

SPECIAL TRAIN CARRYING KLANSMEN IN COLLISION

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Aug. 10.—(AP)—A special train of five cars carrying members of the Ku Klux Klan from Washington to Cincinnati on the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad collided head-on today with the engine of a freight train at Clyffeside Park, 15 miles west of here.

Several passengers suffered minor injuries but all continued to their destination. The special was running as a second section to a regular passenger train.

Railroad officials said both the special and freight were traveling at slow speed.

Jacqueline Hobbs Has Returned Home

Declared Her Disappearance Had Been Intended Only "as a Joke on Her Nurse."

NEW YORK, Aug. 10—Eleanor Jacqueline Hobbs, 18 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eloin St. C. Hobbs, Sr., who had been missing from home since Saturday morning, has returned home.

Sought by the police and private detectives throughout New York and in New England, she walked into her home at 5.20 p. m. today announcing her disappearance had been intended only as "a joke on the nurse."

Miss Hobbs recently underwent an operation for tonsilitis from which there were rather severe reactions. She had been under constant attention of nurses and doctors for several weeks.

Mr. Hobbs declined to say where his daughter had been during the nearly 69 hours she was away from home. He reiterated that the family had been without any information from her during that period and added that he did not want to bring "some other people into this."

"My daughter returned perfectly well and happy," he said. "She only intended to play a joke on the nurse and believed that both her mother and father would be away from home until tonight. She was not far away all the time."

Late this afternoon Mr. Hobbs received his first clue and told newspaper men he was confident Eleanor would be home in a few hours. He started out to an unnamed rendezvous, and met the girl virtually at the doorstep.

BROWNING TO PETITION FOR ANNULMENT OF ADOPTION

NEW YORK, Aug. 10—Final preparations were made today for the severance of the legal relations between Mary Louise Spies Browning, would be modern Cinderella and Edward A. Browning, wealthy real estate operator, and disillusioned fairy god-father.

Mr. Browning held a conference with Queens county authorities and [illegible] District Attorney New [illegible] announced that tomorrow he would present a petition for the annulment of the adoption on the ground that the girl deceived Mr. Browning into believing her only 16 years old, when she was actually 21.

The petition in the case of Mr. Browning's secretary last night but as she departed with the agent of a syndicate for which she headed to write a story of her brief romance, little concern was felt concerning the fact that her whereabouts remained a mystery today.

Mr. Browning's secretary offered a reward of $500 for her discovery, but Mr. Browning denied that this was done on his orders.

"I wouldn't pay a cent to get her back," he said. "I don't know where she is and I don't care. She said herself to a newspaper for $500 and I am through."

Dr. Joseph P. C. Lahan, the physician who attended Mary Louise when she took poison in Mr. Browning's apartment after her claim that she was 16 years old had been questioned, said today that the alleged suicide attempt was a "deliberate bluff."

COMMUNISTS EJECTED FROM SITTING OF THE REICHSTAG

BERLIN, Aug. 10—It required the bodily intervention of 20 brawny security police officials today to eject a few communists from a sitting of the Reichstag tariff program, the government is striving to push the tariff bill through the present session.

The German Reds worked in relays today, and as soon as one of the obstructing members was removed, a successor stepped into the breach.

Vice President Grafe summarily expelled five of the noisiest of the communists from future sessions for periods [illegible] days to five weeks.

The disciplined members refused to leave the chamber voluntarily and Herr Grafe was compelled to summon a squad of security police who dragged the resisting men from the floor at the same time beating off other communists who fought to intervene.

Today's affair was a continuation of the communists' attempts to block the passage of the new tariff measure. After quiet had been restored to the chamber, Herr Grafe notified the communist floor leader that he would have the party's entire Reichstag delegation forcibly ejected from the chamber if the rowdying continued.

ARGENTINE GIRL SWIMMER NEARLY DROWNED IN THE ENGLISH CHANNEL

BOULOGNE, France, Aug. 10—(AP)—Lillian Harrison nearly lost her life today by drowning in her fourth unsuccessful attempt to swim the English Channel, only prompt work by Ishak Helmy, an Egyptian swimmer, who was in the water pacing her, prevented her from going to the bottom.

"Catch me, Helmy; I am going down," Miss Harrison suddenly exclaimed while apparently swimming strong. She caught the Egyptian by the neck, and virtually fainted. She was then hauled aboard the accompanying tug and brought back to Boulogne.

"This is my last attempt," said the little Argentine as she reached the deck of the tug in a semiconscious state at 7:17 o'clock this evening, after having been in the water 7 hours and 5 minutes. "The channel is too much for me."

When forced to acknowledge defeat Miss Harrison was eight miles off Dover just opposite Dover Castle. Her position when she abandoned her effort was the best ever reached by any channel swimmer in the same elapse time. The flood tide seemed to be rapidly pushing her toward the shore when she had to give up.

The swim, which was started at 12:12 P. M. from Cape Gris-Nez, was attempted under most difficult conditions. Channel experts and ancient mariners who were along the waterfront when the girl made her swim said she was doomed to failure, [illegible] they expressed no undue surprise when the tug returned to Boulogne with her at 10:20 o'clock tonight.

Miss Harrison revived physically shortly after she was taken aboard the tug, but her spirit seemed broken and she announced over and over again that never again would she try to cross the rough and treacherous waterway separating England from France.

The veteran trainer of aspirants for channel honors, Jabez Wolff, said lack of proper nutrition caused the collapse of Miss Harrison. She is a vegetarian, and Wolff thought she was under-nourished for the tremendous ordeal of a channel swim.

Up to the time Miss Harrison succumbed to fatigue she seemingly was going strong. She was four miles out from Gris-Fez at 2:28. She met with extremely unfavorable weather for the first five hours, rain and hail and gusts of wind. At 4:30 o'clock she began taking nourishment and it seemed to give her new vigor.

At 4:33 o'clock the girl reached her highest speed, she previously had been doing 24 strokes. The prospect for her crossing the channel at this time appeared to be bright.

Jane Sion, the French girl who recently tried to make the trip across the channel, went into the water and paced Miss Harrison for an hour and ten minutes. Then Helmy, the Egyptian, relieved the French girl and was swimming with the Argentino when

TO GATHER INFORMATION ON GASOLINE SITUATION

Action Taken by Hartford Committee and the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce—The Latter Body is Inquiring Into the Relative Wholesale Prices of Gasoline in Connecticut, Rhode Island, Eastern New York and Massachusettes..

HARTFORD, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Action designed to elicit information from the gasoline companies bearing on the Hartford and state gasoline situations was taken today by the municipal investigating committee and by the Connecticut chamber of commerce. The committee, after organizing and discussing the various aspects of the local situation, decided to invite representatives of the various companies selling gasoline in Hartford, to meet with the members for a conference Friday at 1:30 p. m. The Connecticut chamber of commerce addressed a letter to five of the largest producers operating in this section of the country inquiring into the relative wholesale prices of gasoline in Connecticut, Rhode Island eastern New York and Massachusetts.

The letter was sent to the Gulf Refining company, the Texas company, the Standard Oil company, Tidewater Oil company and the Atlantic Refining company, over the signature of George B. Chandler, executive vice-president of the state chamber of commerce, and stated that "there is considerable discussion in Connecticut over the relatively high price of gasoline within the state which apparently cannot be accounted for by the two-cent tax."

BELIEVE IRENE MELANSON WAS ACCIDENTALLY DROWNED

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Belief that Irene Melanson, youthful Winthrop, Mass., beauty shop proprietor, whose body was found floating in Pine Island Park pond, near here, yesterday, was accidentally drowned, was strengthened tonight by the discovery of an empty canoe drifting on the pond.

The Manchester police aided by volunteers, tonight were dragging the pond for the body for Charles Breslin of Malden, Mass., with whom Miss Melanson was last seen alive at a dance hall and who is thought to have drowned with her. His automobile was found abandoned near the park yesterday.

Dr. Charles Duncan, state pathologist, reported that the young woman died from asphyxiation due to drowning. Marks on her face, at first taken to indicate foul play, were characterized in such cases, he said.

TOWN DEMOLISHED BY CLOUDBURST AND WIND

BRAWLEY, Cal., Aug. 10—(AP)—The little town of Rockwood, four miles from here, was reported demolished by a cloudburst and two tornadoes, which met over the little settlement today. No casualties have been reported.

Streets were still under water as the result of a cloudburst which deluged the twisters and the sky was black at sunset as a howling gale raged, more trouble to light and additional reports were awaited.

Irrigation ditches, eye witnesses of yesterday's disaster relate, that saved Brawley and other towns from serious damage. The twisters, one [illegible] the half mile wide and four miles long before it dissipated.

[illegible] reported that the twisters met at Rockwood, [illegible] and destroyed Brawley, four miles from here, and other Imperial Valley towns from serious damage. The twisters, one [illegible] the half mile wide and four miles long before it dissipated.

HAD BEEN SELLING FLOWERS TAKEN FROM A CHURCH

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Police were notified today that a man arrested here Saturday charged with selling flowers taken from a church is Edward J. Kearney, of Bridgeport, Conn., who escaped from an insane asylum at Middletown Conn. After taking the flowers from St. Bernard's Roman Catholic church, police said, Kearney stood in the public square, offering them for sale at trifling sums. Kearney is being held pending investigation of his recent activities.

WOMAN WAS KILLED AND HARTFORD MAN WOUNDED

GILBOA, N. Y., Aug. 10—Clara Harris, 30, was found dead and George Maycock of Hartford, Conn., was found seriously wounded today on a farm two miles from here on the road to Stamford. Both had been shot in the forehead. It is believed that the man killed the woman and then shot himself. Maycock was taken to the Stamford hospital.

OBITUARY

Rev. John Hardenbrook Townsend

GLEN COVE, N. Y., Aug. 10—Word was received here today of the death yesterday at Mount Carmel, Conn., of the Rev. John Hardenbrook Townsend 70, a member of one of Long Island's oldest families. Mr. Townsend had been rector of Episcopal churches in Camden, N. J., Atlantic City, N. J., and Hamden, Conn., retiring four years ago.

A DISABLED SCHOONER HAS 54 SWORDFISH ABOARD

HIGHLAND LIGHT, Mass., Aug. 10.—(A. P.)—The two masted fishing schooner Carlton A. Smith of Portland, Maine, which went aground in a fog early today two and one-half miles south of the Nauset Coast Guard Station, Cape Cod, was pulled off at six o'clock tonight by the cutter Gresham.

The schooner was leaking badly and was taken in tow by the cutter for Boston. Captain Erwnest Doughty and his crew of nine had a catch of 54 swordfish and were homeward bound when the schooned went ashore and was left high on the beach by the receding tide. The cutter was summoned and stood by until the tide was again full when the rescue was effected. The schooner's crew remained aboard.

FIVE MEN WERE SHOT IN RIOT AT KLAN MEETING

FRAMINGHAM, Mass., Aug. 10.—(AP)—At least five men were shot two seriously, here late tonight in a riot which followed a large Ku Klux Klan meeting.

The victims are Alonzo Foley, Thomas Sliney, Francis Maguire, all of Saxonville, and William Bradley and Edward Purcell, of Framingham.

Foley, who was shot through the left temple, is in a dangerous condition at the Framingham hospital.

The wounded men told Dr. C. J. Carr, who lives nearby the Klan's meeting place, that they were shot from ambush while standing in the road.

Foley was carried into his office by the other wounded. After administering medical aid, Dr. Carr summoned Rev. John A. McCauley, of St. George's church, and the priest gave Foley the last rites of the Roman Catholic church as he lay on a couch in the physician's office.

The physician, after notifying the state constabulary and Framingham police, rushed Foley and Sliney to the hospital. The latter was shot twice in the cheek. The other wounded went to their homes after Dr. Carr treated them. The physician learned but few facts of the shooting from his patients. The klan, he said, meets every week in the vicinity of his home and the meeting attracts hundreds of spectators.

There were no disorders before the shooting, he said, as all of the victims were fired on from either a house or a clump of bushes near the meeting field.

MEETING OF TACNA-ARICA PLEBISCITE COMMISSION

ARICA, Chile, Aug. 10—The Tacna-Arica plebiscite commission met this morning under the presidency of General John J. Pershing, but with only the chiefs of the Peruvian and Chilean delegation in attendance. Later Senor Borgo Jarpo of the Chilean delegation and Dr. Alberto Salomon, former Peruvian minister of foreign affairs, were called into the conference.

The Chilean delegation has assured General Pershing that the vote to settle the status of the disputed territory will be conducted impartially and that the Chilean Gendarmerie are solely for the purpose of maintaining order while the plebescite is being carried out.

On the other hand the Peruvian authorities are convinced that their nationals in the district where the vote is to be taken do not have a proper sense of security. The Peruvians have compiled a list of about 30 cases of alleged deportations that have occurred since the award was made.

Today's conference ended at 1:15 o'clock, with the strictest silence maintained regarding the proceedings.

RUN OVER AND KILLED BY AUTO HE WAS CRANKING

NEW MILFORD, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Douglas Green, 20 years old, of Sherman, was run over and killed by an automobile he was cranking at the Willow Brook creamery at Gaylordville, in the town of New Milford, today. Green was employed at the creamery.

An automobile owned by Louis Parsons had driven up to the platform in front of the creamery and the milk cans had been unloaded by Green. The owner of the machine had left and Green was attempting to get the automobile away from the platform when killed. He first climbed into the car and in getting out accidentally threw the engine into second gear. He then attempted to crank the engine and on the first turn of the crank the car started ahead, pushing him in front of it. When a fence was reached, Green was knocked down and the machine ran over him, one of the bolts on the front axle cutting a deep gash in his neck. He died before aid could reach him.

Medical Examiner Dr. Frederic King, of New Milford, investigated the accident.

BUILDING STRIKE TIES UP WORK IN NEWARK

Newark, N. J., Aug. 10 —(AP)— work on the new Prudential Life Insurance building here was completely tied up today with a strike of about 500 iron workers, bricklayers and laborers.

The strike is the outcome of a jurisdictional fight between the plasterers' international union and the bricklayers, mason and plasterers international union.

WILLIMANTIC

Business at the local post office is now on the upward trend, following considerable of a slump during May June, and part of July. With the arrival of families, comprising several hundred people, in the city to take up work at the American Thread company, the delivery of mail has increased to a point nearly normal. As for the rural deliveries, they have never been so large as they have been in the last month in routes branching from the local office. Willimantic merchants appear to be letting somebody get ahead of them as a large part of this record-breaking mail to the rural districts is parcel post matter, most of which comes from western mail order houses dealing in merchandise.

Blood spattered all over the front door of the Morrissey home just over the city line on the South Windham road has been attracting the notice of many passersby who stop to get a second glance. The blood, however, upon closer inspection, is revealed as nothing more than red paint. People in the vicinity do not understand this peculiar decoration on a front door and it is generally looked upon as an act of vandalism although neither the local nor the state police stationed here have received any complaints to that effect.

"It never rains but it pours," believes Eugene Beaulieu, a young married man of 16 Union street. Quite recently Beaulieu's three-year-old daughter Laurencienne broke the radius of her left forearm, in a fall down a flight of stairs. Beaulieu rushed her to the office of Dr. Samuel J. Turcotte. Just twenty minutes after he was rushing up to the same place carrying the same child, who had sustained a complete fracture of both bones in her left forearm, when she fell from the top of a stone wall into an unused cellar near her home.

Cars operated by Ernest Dawson, of Pleasant Valley, and Mrs. George Michaud, of this city, collided, corner of High and Valley streets Saturday night, doing slight damage to both machines. Dawson assumed the responsibility and agreed to settle for the damage to his own and the Michaud machine.

The Lake Wangumbaug Protective Association is to hold a meeting at the Lakeside Casino Friday to discuss of business matters laying over from the disposition of the cottagers' rights in the use of the lake waters for bathing purposes, which was settled several months ago in the Tolland county superior court. The association comprises about one hundred and twenty-five or more cottage owners.

Twenty of his friends called on Postmaster Walter R. King at his home on Pleasant street recently, in celebration of his birthday, and presented him a handsome traveling bag. Luncheon was served and supplemented with a large birthday cake. This was followed by music, dancing and cards.

In the police court Monday morning eight cases were taken up. Disposition was made in six of the cases and two were continued. The majority of the cases were the result of violations committed over feelings arising from the local strike situation.

Mary Reuniski was charged with breach of the peace. She pleaded not guilty, but on the strength of evidence of Marion Czierba, an employe at the American Thread company, who stated that the woman had called her vile names and a "scab" during the past two weeks, she was adjudged guilty. Judge Foss imposed a fine of $2 and costs, amounting to $9.15. Mrs Reuniski testified that she had heard other people call out the name "scab" and she had applied it to Miss Czierba a few times, but not last Saturday, as she was out of town at the time.

Jan Czierba pleaded guilty to a charge of discharging a revolver within the city limits, and was fined $2 and costs. A charge pending against him of possession of a revolver and being an alien was not pressed, as the statutes merely stipulate shotgun and rifle in regard to the possession of firearms by aliens. Czierba fired the shots after a stone had been thrown through a bedroom window at his home, late Saturday night. According to the testimony of Czierba and his daughter, Marion Czierba, the stone landed on the bed in which her mother was sleeping. The witnesses stated that they ran to the window and saw Frank Peterick, a neighbor, running in the direction of his own home. Marion Czierba then handed her father the revolver and he fired in the direction of the fleeing man. Mrs. Czierba corroborated this testimony, through Mary Gulock, acting as interpreter.

Frank Peterick, who was made a defendant in the case brought by Jan Czierba, was charged with injury to private property and pleaded not guilty. He said that he returned to his home from the country Saturday evening and shortly after his supper went to bed, so knew nothing of the alleged trouble until the officers awakened him by rapping at the door and told him that he was under arrest. Lieutenant of Police Frank McLean said that he had to knock several times before the door was opened. The evidence did not appear sufficient for convicting the man, without a doubt as to his guilt and the case was continued for a month, with a warning to the accused and another warning against Czierba for firing firearms within the city limits.

Frank Gwodz pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication and was fined $5 and costs, amounting to $13.15 which he paid.

The case of Mary Bocash, charged with breach of the peace, was continued to Saturday of this week.

Albert Guanche, of lower village, was charged with not having an automobile operator's license while driving his machine Sunday. The case was nolled on payment of costs of $5.15.

Raymond Knapp, of North Windham, charged with intoxication, pleaded guilty. Judge Foss imposed a fine of $5 and costs, amounting to $12.15.

The case of Daniel Kissell, charged with breach of the peace, which was continued two weeks ago, was taken up Monday morning and nolled on payment of costs of $5.15.

Funeral services for Mrs. John Healy were held from the family home, 251 Church street Monday morning. In the solemn mass of requiem at St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock, the celebrant was Rev. Henry E. Quinn, with Rev. C. M. Kelly, deacon, and Rev. E. A. Mathieu, subdeacon. Mrs. Edmund R. Portelance was at the organ. "Nearer My God to Thee," was sung by Miss L. Monica McKeon and Miss Rose Welch as the body was borne into the church. At the offertory, Miss McKeon sang Pie Jesu and gave He Wipes the Tear from Every Eye as a waiting hymn. The recessional was Abide With Me, by the Misses McKeon and Welch. There were beautiful floral tributes. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery where Rev. Father Kelly read the committal prayers. The bearers were Patrick Dennehy, John F. Healy, Edward Moriarty, William Kelley, John S. Sullivan and Michael Murphy. Arrangements were in charge of Killourey Brothers.

Word has been received of the death of Miss Jennie Farwell, 65, in Waltham, Mass., Saturday evening after a brief illness. She was the daughter of Isaac Farwell, Jr., and had resided practically all of her life in Mansfield up to a few years ago.

The body of William Scott, who died suddenly while visiting his sister in Andover, Saturday, was forwarded to Blyth, Ontario, Monday morning for funeral services and burial. Avery & VanZandt were in charge of the local arrangements.

While attending summer school at Yale, Miss Gertrude Phillips of Valley street, this city was taken ill with an acute attack of appendicitis. She sustained a successful operation at St. Raphael's Hospital, New Haven and is now resting comfortably in the care of her sister, Miss Marjorie Phillips.

Miss Marion McKernan is recovering at the home of friends in Eagleville, following an operation at St. Joseph's Hospital for acute appendicitis.

Joseph Samuel Larrow of North Windham and Miss Marie Irene Mathieu of Columbia were united in marriage at nine o'clock Monday morning at St. Mary's rectory by Rev. H. C. Belec. They were attended by John Day and Miss Lillian Mathieu.

Local baseball fans who attended the Worcester-Hartford Eastern League game at Clarkin Field Sunday were George Shepaum, Dennis F. Haggerty, Charles Curran, Fred Shepaum, Eugene E. Hickey, Frank Hevrin, Conrad Dubeau, Aime Clouthier and Walter Caron.

ELKS' HOME CORNERSTONE LAID WITH DUE CEREMONY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 10—Monday evening, hundreds of members of Willimantic Lodge No. 1311, B. P. O. E. gathered at Elks' Park, Pleasant street and in the presence of a large assemblage of citizens laid the cornerstone to the Elks' new Home, which, when completed, will be the show place of the city. Delegations from several of the neighboring lodges, including Norwich, New London, Putnam, Rockville and Hartford were present. District Deputy Thomas O'Loughlin of Rockville, formerly of this city, attended, upon invitation, as the deputized representative of the grand exalted ruler of this district, and delivered an address. The ritual in connection with the laying of a cornerstone was carried out by the officers of the lodge, led by Exalted Ruler Albert J. Fournier. Prayer was offered by Chaplain Harry S. Gaucher. Music was furnished by the B. P. O. E. band, under the direction of Charles N. S. Wheeler. A concert was given on Main street, previous to the exercises, following which the band, leading the crowd, marched over the footbridge to the Park. Several fine selections were contributed by the Elks' Quartet, Oliver Chartier first tenor; Michael J. Farrell, second tenor; William A. Costello, first bass and Joseph F. Aubin, second bass. The speaker of the evening was Town Clerk Frank F. Fenton who delivered an inspiring address on The Brotherhood of Elks.

B. Duggan and is overseer of the night weaving with Ashland Cotton Co. He is a graduate of Norwich Free Academy and is a past grand knight of Very Reverend Michael McCabe Council, K. of C.

Finn's tonight, Buck Jones in Winner Take All.—Adv.

A party of fourteen celebrated Mrs. F. H. Gilbert's birthday by spending the week-end at the Gilbert cottage at Beach Pond. When the party arrived Saturday, everybody within hearing knew there was a festivity somewhere by the horn blowing that waked the echoes. Boating and bathing and "eats" occupied the time. The enjoyment was somewhat subdued by an accident which befell Tyler Gilbert, who while in bathing stepped on a rusty spike, which went almost through his foot. ago a native fisherman of renown, sent and a gold piece as a birthday remembrance.

The party included Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Jeffers, Misses Gladys and Grace Jeffers, Mrs. Grace Webster, Herbert Webster, Miss Ethel Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Cheney of Jewett City, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Smith, Herbert Smith and Miss Harriet Thornton, of Phenix, R. I., Gustave Greenwood and Martin Kraus of Taftville.

There is a search warrant out for a humming bird, and it is wanted to know if any one has seen one of our handsome ruby throated humming birds this summer or last. Once these beautiful birds were common in Griswold.

Lawn social, Pachaug church green, tonight, 7:30, d. s. t.—Adv.

There is always something doing here among the fishing fraternity during the bass season, but more so than ever this year, because of the catches which have been made within two weeks, where the captured bass figured in the "out size" class. Not long ago a native fisherman of renown, sent to a place out in Indiana, where, for the sum of one perfectly good "American dollar, he received a small phial of "Lucky John" fish captivator. The direction on the bottle explained that all it was necessary to do, was to annoint the bait with a few drops of this wonderful composition, and a full creel would be the inevitable result, it being absolutely impossible for the finny tribes to resist the temptation to bite. So far as has been learned to date, a copious application of the same was only rewarded with a few "punkin' seeds," and a hungry looking eel, with but one eye.

Mrs. Roger Guillet and Mrs. Reginald Potts, her daughter Clair and son, William Potts, are spending the week at Oakland Beach.

Twenty-eight years ago today, August 11, Daniel Finn, father of the well known Finn brothers, laid the first brick of the new Finn block. The brick is there today, with his name cut across its face. Mr. Finn died February 2, 1899 from pneumonia, at his home on Main street.

Mrs. Le Roy Holmes and children Royal and Alice, are at home, after a week's visit with Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Kennedy in Lisbon.

No summer within the last 20 years, has up to August 10th, registered as much rainfall as 1925. People with wells, must soon bore holes in the bottom of same, to keep them from running over the top.

BALTIC

Philip and Peter Carden, Joseph Recave and Henry Cote were excursionists Sunday from Norwich to New York.

A farewell party was given by the Baltic M. E. church choir to Mrs. Arthur Hall on her retiring from her work as organist of the church. The choir met at the home of Mrs. Charles Barnes, and during the evening games and dancing were enjoyed. Mrs. Hall was presented a beautiful silk umbrella by the choir members who wished her and her husband success in their new field. Ice cream and cake was served. Mr. and Mrs. Hall are going to Simsbury to reside.

During the past week Sprague Fish and Game Association stocked Beaver Brook with 1,200 trout, received from the state. The trout were in fine shape upon arrival. The association also received and released in cover best adapted to this specie 80 pheasants from the state. They were shipped from Smithtown, Long Island, N. Y. and were in excellent condition. Active members were on hand to receive both trout and pheasants. Wild rice has been planted in swamps and ponds best adapted and it is hoped that hunting and fishing conditions will be greatly improved.

STERLING

BAILEY DISTRICT

A period of anxiety in this town terminated in a very satisfactory manner Saturday evening. Ashbel Young, 81, went out after blueberries at noon Thursday, and not returning, Elmer E. Fenner with whom he resides, Fred Stone and other neighbors searched far and near all night without finding him. Friday morning, William Bitgood, a 77-year old resident, rallied other searchers, but at noon Saturday the man had not been found.

Messrs Fenner and Stone called on Judge C. B. Montgomery in Oneco, who in a very few minutes had notified the state police department. Sheriff Tillinghast, Selectman Irving E. Frink and force, also men and boys from all directions who renewed the search and located the missing man less than a mile from his home, down on his hands and knees, completed exhausted, having been lost over 50 hours.

Floyd Delude and George Legzo were the actual searchers who found him, but the family has expressed gratitude to the many volunteer workers who joined in the search. On Monday Mr. Young had fully recovered from his exhaustion.

The petition of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Chaffee for permission to adopt Ruth Conrad, a minor, and change her name, was referred to Sept. 8th.

The many friends and neighbors of Mrs. Laverne Chaffee, 31, were shocked and pained to learn of her death Aug. 5th at Home Memorial hospital, New London. Taken suddenly ill, while sitting on the veranda of her home Monday evening, she was conveyed to the hospital, operated on for appendicitis, and died Wednesday night. A new bungalow for the family is nearing completion on Oak street, Ashaway, and they were planning the adoption of a child as soon as legal steps could be completed. A very large gathering of the Grange and other friends attended her funeral, Saturday afternoon, at her late home.

FACTS

NEVER has there been wildcat speculation in Connecticut shore property. Never has there been a boom. Never, therefore, will there be a set back such as always follows a boom. The rise in values has been steadily going on and will continue to do so. You can invest in shore property with assurance of profit.

Jas. Jay Smith.

BLACK PT. has everything, everything a magnificent shore property could have. Beyond all the necessary improvements, it has a splendid location, far out in the water, high, cool and sightly, it's over 60 feet above the sound. Then, too, there is a good beach, a snug harbor, an attractive Club House, beautiful homes and—well, you must see BLACK PT.—there is nothing like it on the whole Connecticut shore.

A good lot will cost you less than $500 and you have 4 years in which to pay for it.

From Norwich, go west from New London, through Niantic and on to Black Pt.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

After having been away all summer, Warren Braley, of Attawaugan, manager of the Royal Serenaders, will leave New York next Saturday for Providence. Mr. Braley and his Serenaders will be heard in some radio broadcasts from that city probably during the coming week. This means a treat for all his friends and radio fans in this territory, for the orchestra has achieved a distinctive place for itself in presenting all the newest dance hits and novelties. Having completed a season's engagement at the amusement parks near Paterson, N. J. Mr. Braley will have a short vacation in advance of opening the fall and winter season of dancing. Upon his return he will make his headquarters in Attawaugan.

James Jackson, 66, died suddenly of heart disease early Sunday evening at his home on the Goodyear road, via Maple street. He had been about all day, walking about his premises, enjoying himself and apparently in his normally good health. He was found dead in a chair at his home, possibly two hours after life had ceased. Dr. S. E. Overlock of Pomfret viewed the body. Mr. Jackson was a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Jackson of Eastford.

Funeral services for Mrs. Sarah Moran were held Monday at St. James' church, Rev. J. C. McCarthy, M. S., being the celebrant of the high mass of requiem, attended by numbers of relatives and friends. Burial was in the family lot in St. James' cemetery. The bearers were John Moran, James Moran, Patrick Moran, Edward Moran, sons of Mrs. Moran, and Thomas Moran and Patrick Moran. Louis E. Kenyon was in charge of the funeral arrangements. Rev. Joseph Desenaux, M. S., conducted the service at the grave.

Of interest is the fact that the state department of health in its health bulletin fixes the population of Killingly at 9,051, this estimate as based, July 1, on the United States census. Those who know their Killingly quite well feel that the state officials are not extravagant in their estimate. It would seem that Killingly's population is somewhat even more than 9,051, for the growth during the period since when the last actual census was taken by the United States, has been steady and considerable. Indications now are that Killingly's 1930 census will be at least 10,000 people.

Competition for the passenger traffic that rides through Danielson on various motor buses, operating between Providence and Hartford, is becoming keen at the termini. One of these companies representing a line with headquarters elsewhere than in Danielson solicit fares in an effort to get them to ride over their line. They are not hunting for business. The bus lines are all doing well on the route mentioned. The number of passengers per bus is showing a steady increase. Certain traveling men and others whose business takes them from one of the cities mentioned to the other between them regularly use busses and of course there is also the transient business. The business of the competition for the same grows day by day and is an interesting sidelight on an interesting line of transportation.

Indications Monday were that there would be an outpouring of Windham county people to attend the county picnic at Rocky Point on Wednesday. The fact that it is to be a Rhode Island day and that so many legislators and others in official positions in the county are to be present has called for a great many people—both men and children. Good fun and a good program are promised those who enjoy the pleasure of being at an interesting seaside resort on a summer afternoon.

Of interest to motorists is the appearance of Connecticut registration plates carrying numbers in excess of 100,000. Introduction of the A. Z. H. number lettered plates last year was heralded as having doomed the long number plates, but they are coming again. A few may be seen in this territory.

Superintendent of Police Hurley thinks that Putnam is likely to be visited by a clever crook who has been victimizing the smaller cities and towns of the state. He had been working under the names of Henry Rosenblatt, Charles Morgan and other aliases. He enters the town or city and in some way gets the signature of a substantial citizen and then forges the name to a check made out to himself. The plan of action that has proved successful in a number of places is that of getting a prescription and thus getting the doctor's signature. The man, whom the police would like to apprehend is thought to travel around in style, driving a specially built Hudson sedan bearing either a Connecticut or Michigan license. He is said to be about twenty-five years old and about five feet, six inches tall and weighs 140, and when last seen was wearing a bluish grey suit.

Chautauqua comes to Putnam again next season. There was some doubt until Friday night, the last night of the series, but the response to the appeal for guarantors was so large that the contract for another year's engagement was signed at once.

One of the factors that contributed to this was the exceptionally fine program presented this season. Chautauqua haas been coming here for the past ten years and local citizens, who have been continuous patrons, say that there were more high-class features this season than ever before. Miss Louise Stallings in a song recital, was the biggest event of the week. She has sung at the Metropolitan opera house and her voice has since lost nothing of its beauty and power. The officials of the association feel assured that next year's series will be even better. Double the number of tickets have already been sold for it than were disposed of when the season opened here a week ago.

Two years ago the licenses of 58 physicians who were practicing in this state were revoked on the grounds that there has been a fraud of irregularity in the issuing of their diplomas. The majority of these were of the eclectic school. These physicians sought advice and through injunctions and other legal proceedures, final disposition of the matter was not made until a few days ago when the supreme court of the state confirmed the decision of the lower court, holding that the refutation of the licenses by the state board of health is valid. One of the physicians involved is Dr. Philias Tetreault, of this city. Dr. Raymond C. Trisque of Dayville is another. Both have been permitted to practice pending a final decision, and it is said now that steps will be taken immediately by state authorities to enforce the order. Dr. Trisque is the only physician at Dayville and his practice covers a large territory. At the time the question was first agitated, a petition with 1,200 signatures was presented the state board of health, asking that he be permitted to continue to practice.

Richard Whalem has received some picture postcards of interest from Ireland, from Mr. and Mrs. Sweeney. Mrs. Sweeney is a sister of the late Michael Lynch of Putnam. The pictures would indicate that the town is a busy one and prosperous, but there is not an automobile on the street.

James White, of South Main street, will leave Tuesday for Syracuse, N. Y., Mr. White has been a resident of Putnam for several years and in the employ of the John Hancock Insurance company for the past two years.

Mrs. Moses Aldrich of the Sawyer District is patient in St. Vincent's hospital at Worcester.

Miss Ruth Grant is substituting at the Citizens' National bank during vacation period.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Knight of Bridgeport are guests of Mrs. Knight's mother, Mrs. J. Harry Mann, of Grove street.

HAROLD C. STONE'S DEATH MAY HAVE BEEN ACCIDENTAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Aug. 10—The possibility that the death of Harold C. Stone at his barn in Brooklyn Sunday was accidental and not intentional was receiving the consideration of Coroner Arthur G. Bill Monday afternoon. Mr. Stone's body, with a wound in his head, lay beside a shot gun that he kept in the barn for the purpose of shooting at crows that came about.

Taken with many other circumstances, it is regarded as unusually strange that a discharge from the left barrel of the gun had caused his death, when it was his invariable custom to first discharge the right hand barrel when he used the gun for any purpose.

The accident theroy is further strengthened by the fact that Mr. Stone was in exceedingly cheerful mood Sunday forenoon after having had one of the most pleasant weeks he had experienced in years, entertaining guests and enjoying their society. He had remarked that he had the time of his life. His last remark to Mrs. Stone as he passed along toward the barn was a laughing one as to what success she was having with some vegetables to which she has been giving attention during the growing season.

At no time had he shown even the slightest evidence of morbidity. There was not even the slightest suggestion of mental depression or worry. All of these facts taken with the remembrance of his unvarying evenness of temperament and kindliness make it now appear entirely possible that his death was an accident and that the gun may have been discharged, possibly by catching on a spring on the door near which it was kept when it may be assumed, he hurriedly picked it up to shoot at a crow. Those who know how he used the gun regard it as very strange indeed that he should have varied his fixed custom of using the right barrel first, reserving the left for occasions where he shot twice in rapid succession. All of these things were claiming the attention of Coroner Bill Monday.

Coroner Bill, after a careful checkup of the accident at the Stone farm Monday afternoon expressed his opinion that the chances were more than even that Mr. Stone's death was accidental. The little room where the gun was kept was dark, without windows, and there is the very strong probability that the gun was in some unknown manner accidentally discharged as Mr. Stone swung the door open and reached for it. The discharge of the gun was not noted by Mrs. Stone, because members of the Danielson Rod and Gun club were shooting at their traps nearby and there was a constant sound of gun discharges, at about the time Mr. Stone met his death.

WESTERLY

Charles E. Champlin, a machinist of Bridgeport, visited his Westerly home over the past week end and being an enthusiastic fisherman decided to try his luck at Weekapaug, off the point. In the winter time no week end is too cold for him to visit Worden's pond in South Kingston to fish through the ice and when he returns home his string of pickerel and perch is seldom excelled by those of other fishers. The threatening weather of Sunday did not daunt him and while other fishermen got catches of blackfish off Weekapaug, Champlin successfully landed a five-pound striped bass, along with his catch of blackfish.

MODEL NEW HOSPITAL OPENED FOR PUBLIC INSPECTION

(Special to the Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Aug. 10.—Many residents of Westerly and vicinity, interested in the new three-quarter of a million dollar Westerly hospital, which was opened to public inspection for the first time Monday afternoon from 2 to 5 and again from 7 to 9 in the evening, availed themselves of the opportunity to view at close range an institution up to date in equipment and appointments which has for its object the restoration of the ailing to health and happiness, "the healing of all manner of sickness and all manner of disease among the people." At the same time privilege was improved of going over the Sarah Alexander Champion Home for Nurses, the gift of Charles P. Champion of Avondale, R. I., in memory of his mother. The hospital itself is the voluntary contribution, through larger or smaller sums, of many people as the result of a drive under the direction of Charles D. Folsom of New York.

Located on the elevated land east of Beach street, the highway leading from Westerly to Watch Hill, the institution has become a landmark, from many points of the surrounding country. As one passes up the driveway approach off Wells street, leading from the Watch Hill road, the impression is most pleasing. Crossing the terrace, Monday afternoon, where Mrs. John Champlin, Sr., Mrs. Samuel H. Davis and Mrs. E. B. Foster formed an informal reception line to Miss Ethel M. Doherty, the superintendent. Afterwards many guides of Westerly and surrounding townspeople were met who described the nature and use or various rooms of the interior.

The picture of Westerly Hospital, on the Westerly calendar of the Norwich Bulletin of the current year taken Jan. 1, 1925, gives an excellent idea of the exterior appearance.

The hospital proper is shaped like a T, with the upper part of the T facing westward toward Beach street and the Pawcatuck river. The main entrance is in the center of the west side, where the doorway is fronted by a large terrace or veranda, leading up to which are an approach and series of steps constructed of Westerly granite. Westerly granite is conspicuous in other parts of the building, notably the foundation and exterior trimmings.

Entering the first floor by the main doorway on the west side, the visitor finds himself in the reception room, adjoining which is a small waiting room. Both are simply but attractively furnished and lend a home-like atmosphere to the institution. To the right of the reception room is the men's ward, with rooms on both sides of a hallway, and at the extreme right or south end is a solarium in which male patients may take sun and air baths.

There are three such solaria—one for men, one for women and one for children. Each sun parlor is equipped with windows of an improved type that may be easily opened, thereby converting the solarium into an open air porch, or may be closed if weather conditions are unfavorable.

To the left or north of the reception room are the administration rooms, containing offices of the superintendent and other officials. Beyond the offices is a suite of living rooms for the superintendent. Across the hall from the administration rooms and superintendent's apartment are quarters for the internes, the pathological laboratory and a room for the medical staff. The laboratory is conveniently situated next to the doctors' room. The latter will be used for consultations, monthly meetings of the staff and also meetings of the directors.

The pathological laboratory is under the direction of Miss Elizabeth A. Hartigan, bacteriologist and X-ray technician. It is completely equipped for all types of pathological examinations, including blood chemistry and serology.

In the vertical bar of the T-shaped hospital is the children's ward, adjoining which is a solarium similar to those for adults. Children upon entering the hospital as patients are first placed in separation rooms, of which there are three, the purpose of this separation scheme being to guard against contagion, if found free from disease a juvenile patient is moved from a separation room to a cubicle, or semi-partitioned bed space, and later to the open ward.

The second floor contains the women's ward on one side and the obstetrical ward on the other. The wards for both men and women are furnished with up-to-date equipment in every respect. Of particular interest are the beds, each of which is on five-inch rubber-tired wheels and is fitted with a cranking device for lowering or raising any section of the bed so that the positions of patients may be shifted easily. Hair mattresses of the finest grade are used.

In purchasing equipment for the institution, it was agreed by the superintendent and other officials that comfortable beds should be the first consideration. "We regard the bed of supreme importance in the patient's comfort," declared Miss Ethel M. Doherty, the superintendent.

Altogether there are 65 beds in the institution, which contains 17 single rooms, three double rooms, a nursery of 12 bassinettes, a children's ward of 12 beds and three wards of six beds each. One of these six-bed wards is for men, another for women and a third for maternity cases. Included in the maternity ward is a birth suite consisting of two rooms and a sterilizing room.

The vertical part of the T on the second floor contains the operating suite, consisting of two large operating rooms, an interlinking sterilizing room, a work room and dressing room for nurses, a surgeons' dressing room and an anaesthetizing room. The operating rooms have been located where they will have a northern exposure in order to avoid the glare of the sun. One room, especially for major operations, contains the latest development in an operating table of the Balfour type. The other room is for minor operations. Each is illuminated by a large sciatic light which throws no shadow. The lights are so bright that operations may be performed by night, if necessary, under conditions almost identical with those of the daytime.

The first and second floors each also have a central nurses' station and a central diet kitchen for preparing foods in accordance with the needs of the various patients.

The ground floor, which may be reached from above either by elevator or stairway, contains various departments, including the kitchens, dining room, laundry and bedrooms for employes. At the north end of the horizontal bar of the T are rooms for five male employes, and at the south end are accommodations for 11 women employes. Between the sleeping quarters of the men and women are the X-ray department, a modern mattress room, a well equipped laundry, a nose and throat operating room and store rooms. The nurses' dining room is also located on this floor.

The designers of the hospital very wisely placed the kitchens, operating rooms, nursery and children's ward, all of which are necessarily likely to be more or less noisy at times, in the vertical bar of the T. The segregation of these departments will allow absolute quiet to prevail in the ward occupied by adult patients in the horizontal bar of the T.

At the north end of the ground floor is an ambulance entrance and a small accident room for emergency cases.

The basement contains the boiler room, autopsy room and fireproof record room. There are two large heating boilers, either one of which in moderately cold weather, is adequate to heat the main building and nurses' home. They are equipped to burn either coal or oil. A high pressure boiler heats the water that is used in the laundry and furnishes high pressure steam for the sterilizers and steam tables.

Two elevators, one for passengers and the other for service, are provided.

The furnishings for the hospital and basement to the second or top floor, nurses' home, outside of purely technical equipment, were purchased by a committee consisting of Mrs. John Champlin, chairman; Mrs. E. B. Foster, Mrs. Harry R. Milner and Mrs. Samuel H. Davis.

The Sarah Alexander Champion Home for Nurses, which faces northward on Wells street extension, is a colonial structure of stucco with brick trimmings and green window shutters. There are three stories above the basement, which contains teaching rooms for the school of nurses, including chemical and dietetic laboratories, a class room, demonstration room and recreation room.

The medical staff consists of many prominent specialists and several world known physicians as well as a large representation of local doctors. Miss Ethel M. Doherty, the superintendent, has experienced and capable assistants, including Miss Dorothy M. Tarbox, principal of the school of nursing; Miss Marguerite Poor, dietitian; Miss Elizabeth A. Hartigan, bacteriologist and X-ray technician; Miss Cecil B. Wallace, record clerk and assistant bookkeeper; Miss Eva M. Torrant, operating room supervisor, and Miss Margaret Lyons, anaesthetist. Miss Lyons has taken a special course in anaesthetics and is capable of administering gas-oxygen.

Several graduate nurses, including local young women, have been engaged for floor duty.

The incorporators of the hospital comprise Charles Perry, Arthur M. Cottrell, John O. Mills, Edgar P. Maxson, Agnes Clark Cottrell, Mrs. Thomas Perry, William Segar, George B. Utter, James M. Pendleton, Charles P. Cottrell. The officers of the corporation remain the same. The directors are Charles Perry, Charles J. Butler, Arthur M. Cottrell, Alberti R. Stillman, Charles A. Morgan, Edward E. Bradley, John O. Mills, Thomas McKenzie, Edgar P. Maxson.

With the opening of the hospital to receive patients, Aug. 17th, the first official announcement has been made of the selection of the medical and surgical staff. Local physicians are well represented. Six are on the active surgical staff and four on the active medical, and special services are cared for. Five local doctors are on the directing committee to which medical problems of the hospital management will be referred.

The consulting staff consists of some of the best known physicians in the state. Staff appointments follow:

Pharmacology and Chemical Laboratory—Dr. Samuel C. Webster, Dr. William C. Thompson

Roentgenologist — Dr. Frank L. Payne.

Anaesthetist—Dr. Harold D. Kenyon.

Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat—Dr. Walter J. Grenolds.

McDonald, Dr. Carl D. Sawyer, Dr. Henry E. Utter, Dr. A Roland Newsam, Dr. J. Edward Kerney, Dr. Henry F. McCusker, Dr. Roland Hammond, Dr. James W. Peach, Dr. Joseph L. Dowling, Dr. Harmon R. Jordan, Dr. Wilfred Pickles, Providence; Dr. William Campbell Posey, Philadelphia; Dr. Edmund LeRoy Dow, New York; Dr. J. Whitridge Williams and Dr. William T. Howard, Baltimore; Dr. Daniel F. Jones, Boston.

STILL GETTING NAMES FOR BRIDGE HONOR ROLL

PUTNAM, Aug. 10.—The committee that is securing the names of men and women of Putnam who were in military service during the World war is having difficulty, in face of the fact that there is no official record. They have been advised of corrections in spelling of names of nearly fifty of the list published last week and more than fifty new names have been handed in that are said to be entitled to go on the honor roll.

It is claimed that some of those who are credited were residents of Thompson, Woodstock or Webster, at the time they were inducted into service the committee is having a busy time trying to verify all these claims before Aug. 24th.

STATE COMMISSIONERS TO MEET AT WOLF DEN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Aug. 10.—The state forestry and park commissioners plan to hold a meeting at the Israel Putnam Wolf Den Aug. 12th, at about 11 a. m. Members of the Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R., have been invited to attend. A basket lunch will be carried. Mrs. E. M. Warner is in charge of the transportation.

START ON NEW BRIDGE MADE AT NOON MONDAY

PUTNAM, Aug. 10.—At noon Monday, Charles A. Haggerty had a force of men at work tearing down the old bridge over the Quinebaug to make way for the new Memorial bridge. The new structure will be twelve feet wider than the old one and will be of solid masonry. As soon as the lines were definitely determined Mr. Haggerty's men began work. It was necessary to cut down two of the fine old trees in Cargill park to allow for the added width.

The 16-inch water main that was laid by the water department six years ago is suspended underneath the present bridge. Service through this main will be shut off temporarily until the foundations of the new bridge are in.

The figures of Mr. Haggerty's bid as given out by the state highway commissioner are $28,880.

Your Allure

Don't imperil it . . . some days

This NEW way solves women's oldest hygienic problem so never a day's charm is lost

BEING fresh and charming every day has ever been the average woman's problem.

But today . . . the modern woman meets it with a smile.

Science has supplanted the uncertainty of the old-time sanitary pad with protection that is absolute.

You wear your filmiest frocks, your summery things in confidence. You motor for hours, you dance, you dine; you come in contact with others without a second thought.

The name is Kotex . . . a method scientifically right.

It absorbs 5 times the moisture of the ordinary cotton pad. And that means great protection.

It is as easily disposed of as a piece of tissue—ending an old-time embarrassment.

It is deodorized. And that prevents danger of offense.

You get it at any department store or drug store, just by saying "Kotex." And that banishes the embarrassment of asking for a "sanitary pad."

8 in every 10 women in the better walks of life have adopted it. Which proves its benefits.

It will mean much to you in health, in daintiness and protection. It proves old ways a needless folly.

KOTEX
DEODORIZED

1 Protection: 5 times as absorbent as cotton pads. Absorbs 16 times its own weight in moisture—and scientifically deodorized.
2 No laundry. Discard as easily as a piece of tissue.
3 Easy to buy, anywhere. You ask for them by name. Many stores keep them ready-wrapped — help yourself, pay the clerk, that is all.

No laundry—discard as easily as a piece of tissue

OUR ROLE IN EUROPE

Speaker at the Williamstown institute of politics lifted the curtain on Europe the other day when he suggested that Ambassador Houghton, in London, and now in London, was the "unofficial mother" of the European security compact now under discussion. In the light of the known facts the conjecture appears plausible.

In the first place it was a rather bold move on the part of the German government, because the offer that Germany should guarantee the present boundaries of France. It was an idea that stood a fair chance of being turned out of court at once, especially by France. Knowledge that it came indirectly from the United States government would go far toward getting it a hearing. The German suggestion, in spite of Locarno enthusiasm, was seriously received from the very first. France is not sure that Germany can be depended upon, and is far from confident that, behind the German move, there exists no sinister purpose. But underneath the six months of negotiations hovered the hope that the door to possible settlement, even when the snow was course for France seemed to be closed in the face of what politicians demand.

If Ambassador Houghton was lending his most unique to the attempt to bring peace in Europe, President Coolidge was not far behind. He went out of his way in the Fourth of July speech to mention the security negotiations in Europe and to express a hope for their success. One fact has stood out clearly in European politics in the last few years, and that is that European nations are unable to do anything for themselves without the aid of the United States. Of the three chief problems that grew out of the war—reparations, security and disarmament—America has been instrumental in the settlement of the first. The other two are for the moment in the air, but it is well understood that America will cooperate towards the settlement of these at the opportune time. It seems extremely unlikely that a workable covenant can be brought to a conclusion without some sort of pressure from this side of the Atlantic. As for limitation of armaments, the same plan that the United States must lead the way.

POLITICS AND PROHIBITION

Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury, who is the choice of President Coolidge as chief administrator of the prohibition law, asserts that politics and politicians must be eliminated from the reorganized force, which is to begin work under his direction on Sept. 1. Further, Gen. Andrews will try to induce the big business men of the country to help enforce the prohibition law. Of course was he hopes to demonstrate whether or not the Volstead law can be made effective.

The elimination of politics and politicians is absolutely essential to the effective administration of the law. Such failures as there have been thus far were due in large measure to political appointments and political influence. Because it is important to have it definitely determined whether a force unhampered by politics can succeed in enforcing Volstead in the United States, it will be desirable that Mr. Andrews should be accorded all the assistance.

There are many who believe that some form of reasonable prohibition could be enforced with much difficulty and that would conform to the terms of the eighteenth amendment to the constitution. But the country can come to that only if and when congress so amends the Volstead act as to make the prohibition regulations conform to the public will and conscience by permitting the sale of light wines and beer. If that were done there would be no further demand for kinds of poisonous home brew and the vicious stuff peddled in the bootleggers.

FLORIDA

The rush of thousands of persons to Florida within recent months has made that state possibly the foremost topic of national conversation. Other thousands in the aggregate have sent millions of dollars there. Practically all hope that through investments in real estate, or commercial activity of some other variety, much money will be made in a short time. There will be numerous instances in which this ambition will be gratified. It is just as safe to say that where one person succeeds in gathering a permanent gain there will be many more who will suffer disillusionment. All of this is not to say that Florida, in common with other parts of the United States has no opportunities worthy of consideration, but is merely to direct attention to the fact, that now, as in the past, caution and discrimination are important. Recklessness is dangerous.

In various parts of Florida speculation is at fever heat: There are cool heads in the midst of the situation who wish it were otherwise. If excessive inflation in values develops—only experts can tell whether it already has—drastic deflation is inevitable. For the unwary that means savings lost and perhaps wrecked careers.

Prudence has always paid in the long run for most people and it is extremely likely that it always will. The results of failure to investigate with care in all investment matters are written large in the history of every community. As far as the development in Florida is sound and her prosperity is supported by actual resources, the benefit is bound to be felt far beyond her borders. What is to be prevented, if possible, is the danger of a collapse which, just as in the case of growth, would also affect others. It is safe to say that Florida has every reason to believe that it can be much further developed, but over-expansion usually is worst in economic matters than underexpansion. That is the constant danger of booms, since they make for a tossing overboard of well established business principles.

TRUE TO FORM

The coal strike preliminaries are running true to tradition. Two years ago, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, rejected arbitration for weeks and refused all proposals for keeping the mines in operation, pending a wage settlement. These are his tactics, now. Then, as now, the operators fought every proposal of the miners, and then, as now the miners broke off the conference after the operators refused a wage increase and the check-off. Both sides are as "hard-boiled" now as they were then. The deadlock appears so firm that a "suspension" or strike seems a possibility. These tactics continued for two weeks more will make it a probability. Bluffing and attempted bulldozing may be carried so far that a crisis cannot be avoided. What has happened before can happen again.

However, the way has not been barred to further negotiations, for although the conference has adjourned sine die, two doors are left open. Either side may reconvene the session, and between them they are stirring up sectional panic and fear in the public as the same old methods of threat and counter-threat.

In one respect the people who burn coal are much better off in this present emergency than ever before. Because the hard coal mining contract dated from April 1st, which is about the end of the season of fuel consumption. As a result of the latest strike the date was shifted to September 1st, approximately the beginning of the period of fall and winter consumption. This is a much better time for the sale of the coal consumer, for by the first of September surplus stocks have accumulated, assuring some measure of supply, but on the first of April the reserves have usually heretofore been exhausted. Here in this one particular does the soft coal strike situation differ from anthracite.

Two weeks from now, if the deadlock continues it is probable that pressure will be at work to bring about arbitration. For, regardless of the self-centered attitude of both sides and the anti-arbitration decree of John L. Lewis, arbitration usually proves the best way out of these grim deadlocks.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Left with the passing of the effort in 1924, the question "Why is a third party?" remains unanswered.

When the British get out of Cologne they will of course wind up the watch on the Rhine. Then maybe it will run.

Two men on the corners says: Everybody but the man at the wheel has a "perfectly lovely" time on a long automobile trip.

Another way to boost the city is for all the people in it to behave themselves or suffer prompt and rigorous consequences.

Finding a petrified snake under an abandoned saloon building in Ohio would indicate that the liquor once sold there was unusually hard.

The coal debate seems to be carried on in a spirit of comedy for the parties to it, but it is tragedy for the public which constitutes the audience.

Probably when Mr. Andrews started to reorganize prohibition enforcement he had no idea that good men were so scarce or that politicians were so many.

As president of Germany Hindenburg may have to bestir himself to be sure to make a popular impression that his position is secondary to that of an ex-emperor.

By this time it may have occurred to Harry Thaw that he has been a trifle too generous in permitting himself to be used as a New York cabaret advertisement.

The theory of United States government rests largely upon the existence of two political parties. As a patriotic duty the democratic party will try to reorganize.

Large sums of American money will be invested in London subways. When the fear of "isolation" comes up Uncle Sam always finds hope in his plans for general relationships.

The actor who proposes to beat the hotel keepers by living in an automobile while on tour will not have to count the ties to get home in case his company fat's on the road.

One political observer attributes Coolidge's popularity to his hold on the American imagination, but another explains it is because he loosened the government's hold on the people's pocketbook.

The Duke of York declines the invitation from Yorktown, Va. Probably Oct. 19, 1871, recalls to his mind the tears that ought to be shed for Lord Cornwallis. The point of view is everything.

Trotsky is credited with the assertion that there will be a revolution of English-speaking people. As a literary figure he is rapidly yielding to the current impulse to be absurd without being funny.

Apparently the national republican leaders are not so much worried about electing twenty-four senators next year as they are about what the senators will turn out to be when they answer the senate roll call.

TESSIE ENJOYS HERSELF

Rosily pink and trim as a new dime in her little black one-piece, with white collar and cuffs Tessie stood dejectedly, tapping her chin with a pencil, her brooding eyes on a far-away corner of the basement. The place was just quieting down after a noisy skirmish over an alleged handbag. The accused woman had been taken away, hysterically protesting her innocence, and her sobs were even yet to be heard as an elevator door clanged behind her.

"It's a shame, Gladys," Tess exploded. "There isn't a breath of proof that she took it!"

"They're clever, Tess," answered Gladys. "They take 'em and pass 'em on to a confederate and then turn on the tears."

"What was in the bag that they did find on her convinces me she is no thief—the poor, little, shabby, half-starved lookin' thing! A baby's worn-out shoe to be used to measure a new one with. Gloves that had been mended, mended, mended and a grocery list about right for a goldfish or a canary bird."

That was a stolen or fixed-up bag to use as a blind," Gladys explained. "You just can't lose them."

"Well, the woman who lost the bag deserved to have lost it just for having such a measly kid as she has. It was behind the counters and before the counters, under foot and over head."

"Miss Tessie!" It was the new floorman speaking.

"I will have to request you to say no more of this affair," he went on. "As yet no arrest has been made, and this house is amply able to take care of itself without any advice from its employes."

"But, Mr. Muttley, the woman was not near the counter when the bag was missed," Tess protested. "She had stepped away to get out of the reach of that child, who was simply rampaging through everything. Oh I have a raging headache from it. It is after 4 and raining. Fo business is about over. Could you let me go home?"

"I fear not," said the new floorman. "By the time you get your stock in proper order it will be closing hour." His duty done he stalked away.

Gladys snickered. "Cheer up, Tess; Whadda ya gonna do? It's all in the day's work."

"How would you like to be accused if you were innocent and jerked away like she was—and so puny and ailin'"

"When the other woman's kid was behind the counter did it get into your facialties and such? Its hands looked rather mussy to me."

"Well, I should think it did! Powder spilled over everything, my drinking glass broken and my new package of mints stuffed down the rathole. I never will get the place cleaned up again."

"I'll lend you my duster—what you squalin' like that about? Run a splinter in your hand?"

"Gladys, come here, quick but keep quiet about it," Tess whispered. "Here is the missing bag, jammed down the rat hole. We'll be smart and not let Muttley know of it until it's all over. Mouse right here in it too."

She tapped briskly on the counter with her pencil.

"Mr. Muttley, a pass off the floor for a few minutes, please." Her voice was cooing as she sailed up at him.

Pass in hand, she whispered to Gladys, "I'm going up to the superintendent's office and see what can be done. Don't breathe a word to any one until I get back and if I don't get back that goes the same. I'm going to start something."

"Be wise Tess," Gladys cautioned. "Do not to be too snappy."

Tessie tossed her head and tripped away, sailing into the office of the head of the firm as if on air.

In a minute she was saying, "It was in the rat hole all the time and the reason I was so sure she was not dishonest was because of the contents of her own bag. I just couldn't believe it was a load of some other woman's bag, as no purse stealer ever had such things in a bag as she had. If she is already in jail—"

"Jail! Who's in jail?" asked the boss. "She is in the little room eatin' chicken potpie; we havin' phoned her references and they all makin' good."

"Oh, Mr. Grossman, you darling, you darling!" Tessie stopped in dismay, blushing scarlet, her hand over her mouth.

"You may go in the little room and tell her," said Mr. Grossman.

"Oh, thanks you—thank you!" cried Tessie, rushing away.—Chicago News.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

AUSTRALIA: THE "NEVER-NEVER" LAND

American Jack Turs in a discursive mood will find plenty to write home about Australia, the farthest point to be reached by the U. S. Fleet now on a friendship cruise of the South Seas. A bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society says:

"Although a "white" continent, peopled with English-speaking inhabitants and having every luxury and convenience of modern civilization, Australia is still the 'Never-Never' land, the lonely continent and the home of the weirdest of the earth's living flora and fauna. It is a land of extremes, of great deserts and dense forests, huge ranches and garden spots, of ferns as big as trees, and trees that shed their bark instead of their leaves.

"Out in the 'back blocks,' as the open country beyond civilization is known, is the kookooburra bird, the famous 'laughing jackass,' whose taunting cry drives the lonely bushmen insane. If they are lucky, too, the American 'gobs' may see the emu, Australia's national bird, perhaps looking a trifle self-conscious since the late cross-word puzzle craze.

"The American visitors, on this, the most ambitious cruise since the voyage of the round-the-world squadron under Admiral Evans in 1908, will find Brisbane, Sydney, Melbourne, Hobart and other ports in the Antipodes up-to-date and attractive cities.

"Sydney, on the west coast, is the metropolis of Australia. It resembles San Francisco. It is Americanized with its skyscrapers, its regular well paved streets and its abundance of American made automobiles. Sydney has one of the finest harbors in the world, experienced travellers comparing it for scenic beauty and extent, with Naples, Rio de Janeiro and Constantinople. The first dumping place of convicts from England, the city has grown and prospered until it is now, with a population of 905,000, the sixth city in size in the entire British Empire.

"A west coast stop that probably will be made is Brisbane, which lies not far south of the Great Barrier Reef, a chain of coral as long as from Chicago to New Orleans. Brisbane is another city that has experienced a mushroom growth. Fifty years ago it was a village of wooden huts. Today, with 270,000 people, it is the fourth city of the Commonwealth, and the capital of the progressive state of Queensland, Australia's 'Sugar Bowl.'

"The city proper is cut in two by the picturesque Brisbane River, which is wide and deep enough to be navigated by ocean vessels. The famous song about a banana shortage was certainly not written of Queensland, which has such a large export of the tropical fruit that it is sometimes referred to as the 'Banana State.'

"Melbourne, scheduled for the longest stop, is the present seat of government of the Commonwealth, as well as the capital of the State of Victoria. The former honor, however, is not expected to be long hers for a Federal district, such as our own District of Columbia, has been laid out in the mountains midway between Melbourne and Sydney and will soon be ready to take over the reins of government.

"Melbourne, like San Francisco (which began its modern development about the same time) owes its rapid growth largely to the discovery of gold in the nearby hills and the subsequent boom. Like San Francisco it soon passed the boom-stage and became a permanent city, to be prideFully referred today as 'Marvelous Melbourne.' It is built on generous lines, is slumless, and rich in beautiful parks and broad tree-lined streets and avenues. Attractive residential suburbs, connected with paved boulevards, sweep along the edge of the bay for 15 miles from the business center, while other homes cluster about the city in every direction. The servant problem, due to the democracy and wealth diffusion is so characteristic of the entire continent has brought into prominence another American institution, the 'flat' or apartment house.

"Those in the cruiser divisions will see, in Hobart, another striking city. The capital of Tasmania is an old-fashioned place, recently rejuvenated by hydro-electric power from the Great Lake of the island. Through the magic force of electricity and its marvelous harbor, second if not equal to Sydney's, Hobart is fast forging to the fore among cities of the British Empire. With a ship's anchorage more than 60 miles long and 40 feet deep at low tide, Hobart could easily take care of the fifty-five ships of the 'friendship' fleet, and several other squadrons of equal size at the same time. Mount Wellington, looming up like a huge skyscraper to the rear of the city, dominates the surroundings and is to the harbor, what Vesuvius is to the Bay of Naples.

"Perhaps while in Tasmania the American seaman may catch sight of that rarest of living things, the platypus. A description of it sounds like a conundrum. It has a bill like a duck, fur like a seal, a pouch like a kangaroo, is at home equally on land or water, lays eggs, and yet is a mammal, and suckles its young. They may see, too, the aborigines, a few scattered remnants of the natives found by the earliest explorers, and who are today probably the most backward members of the human race."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

This is the sixtieth birthday anniversary of Gifford Pinchot, present governor of Pennsylvania and a conspicuous figure in national politics. Governor Pinchot is a native of Connecticut who, after receiving his A. B. degree at Yale in 1889 decided to become a forestry expert. To this end he spent several years in study in France, Germany, and other European countries. Upon his return to America he began the first systematic forest work ever attempted in the United States on the Vanderbilt estate at Biltmore, N. C. His work attracted wide attention and led to his appointment as Chief Forester of the United States, a position which he held for a number of years. Early in his career Mr. Pinchot became interested in the subject of political reform and later drifted into practical politics. His nomination and election to the Pennsylvania governorship was accomplished in the face of bitter opposition on the part of the political organizations in that state.

SUFFERED TWO YEARS

Finally Relieved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Says Mrs. Anderson

Rangeley, Maine.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me greatly for pains in the sides and back, headaches and tired feelings. I suffered two years and it seemed as though I could not get my work done from one day to the next. After reading letters from others who had taken the Vegetable Compound I decided to try it and now I can do all kinds of work sewing, washing, ironing and sweeping. I live on a farm and have five in the family so am busy most of the time. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends and hope my letter will help some one to take your medicine."—Mrs. WALTER E. ANDERSON, Box 270, Rangeley, Maine.

Over 200,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?" 98 out of every 100 of the replies say "Yes," and because the Vegetable Compound has been helping other women it should help you. For sale by druggists everywhere.

John Ericsson, Inventor of the Moniter

In 1815 a 12 year old boy, so small he had to stand on a stool to look through surveying instruments, directed the work of six hundred soldiers in making part of the Gotha ship canal in Sweden. That boy, born in a manse, but had been put into the mines as soon as he could walk, and made a drudge. Wheels and pulleys fascinated him, and he made little machinery for toys—a sawmill, a pump and a windmill. He studied mechanical drawing and at 12 was actually able to direct men.

John Ericsson studied all his life. From drawing maps he was led to learn engraving, and made a new device for that work. He invented a fire-driven engine and competed with Stephenson in making the locomotive Ericsson's engine went at the then great speed of 30 miles an hour. In early life he invented 40 machines and 14 new devices. He spent years trying to make an engine that would be moved by solar heat. Failure never discouraged him. He kept on trying.

Ericsson devised the screw propeller for the marine engines that he made. Then, when the English would not adopt his plans, he sailed for the United States. Here he worked on the construction of the Monitor, an ironclad, revolving turret war vessel. In 1854 Napoleon III of France declined the offer of a monitor. Ericsson kept on. At a crisis in the Civil war the United States accepted his drawings. In one hundred days, working night and day, Ericsson had completed the new invention. On March 9, 1862, his Monitor vanquished the Confederate ram Merrimac and saved the Union from defeat.

Ericsson lived until 86, always modest and always trying to make something new and useful to the world. His entire aim in life had been to work, and to benefit the land in which he lived.

Check up on your balloon tire pressures—you may find that you have been riding on "high-pressure balloons" and losing the advantages of true low air pressure.

THE whole purpose of low pressure cushioning is defeated if your balloon tires are pumped up too hard.

Of course, it may be that the kind of balloons you are using must be run hard in order to protect the tires themselves.

If you find this is true, you will be glad to know the facts about U. S. Royal Balloons.

These tires provide all the comfort that balloon tires are intended to give, and yet you need have no fear about the life of the tires when run at proper cushioning pressure.

U.S. Royal Balloons are built to be run at true low air pressures.

They have the new flat "Low-Pressure Tread."

This tread has far greater area of road contact than a round tread, and distributes the weight evenly over the entire tread surface.

That is why U. S. Royal Balloons wear slowly, evenly and gracefully.

They have the further advantage of Latex-treated Web Cord construction—a U. S. Rubber Company invention that gives the ideal combination of strength and flexibility essential to real balloon cushioning.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Mrs. Timmy's House Hunting

Who soonest acts in time of need
Will be from worry soonest freed.
—Old Mother Nature

Little Mrs. Timmy the Flying Squirrel wastes very little time when she has made up her mind to do a thing. She had to find a new home. The storm had broken off the hollow limb in which her nest had been placed in a certain tall dead tree. Fortunately the nest had remained in the stub left when the branch broke. But it was open to the weather and there were five babies in that home—five babies who must be protected. So there was nothing for Mrs. Timmy to do but find a new home right away without any delay at all.

She jumped from the stump on which she was sitting as she talked to Peter to the foot of a tall tree. Up this she ran as only a Flying Squirrel can. Clear to the top she ran, and then she gave a mighty jump. Peter Rabbit sighed as he watched. "My," said he, "it must be fun to coast on the air like that!"

Down, down, down glided little Mrs. Timmy on a long slant. It was for all the world as if she were sliding down hill spread out as flat as she could be. Clear across the Laughing Brook she sailed, and then just before she reached the ground she shot up a little and landed on the trunk of a tree. Then for some little time Peter merely got glimpses of her as she hurried from one tree to another. He noticed that the only trees she climbed were trees in which somewhere, high up in the trunk or in one of the big branches were holes. By and by she came sailing back from the top of a tall tree on the other side of the Laughing Brook and landed on the old stump near Peter. "I think," said she, "I have found a house that will do. I guess it will have to do for a while. It is quite dry and there is an old bed in it which I suspect Timmy made there long ago. It isn't as good a home as this was before the accident, but I suppose I should be thankful to find a place so handy."

Peter looked across at those trees. "I'm glad you think it is handy," said he, "it doesn't look handy to me. If you have much of a family I don't see how under the sun you are ever going to get the whole family over there."

"I have five," said little Mrs. Timmy, "I have five of the dearest darlings in the world. Peter Rabbit, you never have seen such children. No, sir, you never have seen such children. Dear me, I must go to them at once. The poor dears probably are frightened half to death and wondering what has become of their mother. You see, they never have had even a peep out into the Great World, and now this sunlight is pouring in on them. That won't do at all. They're not used to it. The poor little things have been in the dark all their lives. It isn't time for them to come out in the light. This is why I felt that I must move them. You'll excuse me, Peter, won't you?"

Down, down, down glided little Mrs. Timmy in a long slant

"Of course," replied Peter. "Of course, I'll excuse you. Run along to those babies at once. I suppose you'll have to climb down with each one of them and after you have carried them across you will have to climb that tree on the other side with each of them."

Mrs. Timmy looked at Peter with such a funny expression on her face. "Well, Peter," said she, "I suppose that is the way you would do it. But I am afraid that if that was the way I had to do it my family would never be moved. If you want to see how to move a family in the quickest and easiest manner, you watch me."

With this little Mrs. Timmy started up the tree to her damaged home.

Stories That Recall Others

But Robert Will Learn

Little Robert, age three, and his mother were visiting his aunt. His mother was the fortunate possessor of an abundance of hair, but the aunt was not so fortunate. One evening Robert was in his aunt's room when she took her hair down (or rather off) for the night, and greatly excited he ran and called: "Oh, mama, come quick. Auntie's hair has all broken off."

An Old Story

Alice had learned the story of Columbus at school, and was telling it to her mother.

"An' his ships were named the Nina, the Pinta, and—and"—

"Santa Maria," prompted her mother.

"Yes, and the queen's name was—was—"

"Isabella," suggested the mother.

"Mother," demanded Alice, with sudden suspicion, "have you ever heard this story before?"

When you are in trouble most people who call to sympathize are only after the particulars.

FLY-TOX
Every Bottle GUARANTEED

FLY-TOX was developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by the Rex Fellowship. In a simple, easy and thoroughly effective way, FLY-TOX kills flies, moths, mosquitoes, fleas, ants, roaches and other insects. It's so convenient to saturate the air with clouds of FLY-TOX. Flies, by merely winging through the mist, become affected with the strange action of FLY-TOX, and die. This mist lingers just long enough to do its work. It then evaporates and leaves only a pleasant, clean odor. Wall paper or drapes are not stained. FLY-TOX is harmless to humans. Those stray, elusive flies that invade the most carefully screened homes, are quickly and easily eliminated with FLY-TOX.

WEDDING.

Beebe-Troland

Mrs. Elizabeth M. Troland, of Lebanon, announces the marriage of her daughter, Doris Eleanor and Revere Hanney Beebe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Beebe, of Uncasville. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. G. Littlefield Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock, at the Lebanon Baptist church.

The bride is a graduate of Windham High school, class of 1922, Willimantic Normal school, 1924, and has taught for the past year in the Franklin school. The groom is a graduate of New London Vocational school, class of 1918, working three years for the Connecticut Power Co., of New London. In 1921 he entered Connecticut State College at Storrs, taking up mechanical engineering, graduating this year. He will return to Storrs this coming year, where he will study for a master of science degree.

The church was effectively decorated with wild flowers and laurel. Three large arches adorned the altar, while at various places about the auditorium were baskets of zinnias, gladioli and hydrangeas. Prior to the arrival of the bridal party, O Promise Me was very beautifully sung by Miss Marjorie Palmer of New London accompanied by Catherine and Wellesley Hanney. The bridal party entered the church and proceeded to the altar as Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by cousins of the groom from East Lyme, Miss Catherine Lamphier at the piano, and Wellesley Hanney on the violin. The ring bearer, Clayton Lathrop of Franklin, in a white satin suite, carried the ring on a white satin pillow. The flower girl Stella Ingalls of Franklin, dressed in blue georgette, carried a basket of sweet peas and bachelor buttons and was followed by Mrs. Hazel Schofield in orchard georgette, a sister of the groom, as matron of honor, the bridesmaids were Miss Marjorie Palmer of New London, in peach color georgette, Miss Janie McQuillan of Willimantic in pale green georgette, Miss Charlotte Main of Noank in lemon color georgette. The bridesmaids carried walking sticks with huge bouquets at the top, the flowers matching the color scheme of their dresses. The bride was in white satin crepe with train wore a wreath of orange blossoms and carried a showgr bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley. The groom as matron of honor. The bridesfield of New York city and the ushers, William Maxon of New London, Wilton Hoxie of Lebanon and Henry Saunders of Storrs, met the bride at the altar. The bride was given in marriage by her mother, the double ring service being used.

After the ceremony the bridal party and guests assembled in the church parlors, where a reception was held, the room being decorated in white and gold. The bride and groom received the guests in an arch of white, caught in the center by a large marriage bell.

Guests were present from Norwich, New London, Storrs, Meriden, Middletown, New York City, East Lyme, Moodus, Hartford, Willimantic, Noank, Franklin and Lebanon. The bride received many beautiful gifts, including linen, cut glass, silver, china, money, etc. After an automobile trip along the New England coast, Mr. and Mrs. Beebe will be at home in Lebanon after Sept. 1.

FUNERALS

Mrs. James Kelley.

Funeral services for Mrs. James Kelley were held at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon from her late home, relatives and friends attending. There were many beautiful floral pieces, loving tributes from relatives and friends.

The service was conducted by Rev. Robert B. Day, rector of Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, who also read the committal service at the grave in the Hickory street cemetery.

Arrangements were by Henry Allen & Son Co.

Frederick J. Huntington

Funeral services for Frederick J. Huntington, were held Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock from his late home, No. 197 Broadway, many relatives and friends attending. The service was conducted by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church. Interment is to take place in the Huntington family plot in Yantic cemetery.

Arrangements were by Henry Allen & Son Co.

Joseph F. Stazenski

Funeral services for Joseph F. Stazenski were held Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock from his late home at 76 Fourth street followed at 9 o'clock by a requiem mass in St. Mary's Memorial church. Rev. Frederick M. Cohoian was celebrant of the mass and during the service Miss Elizabeth Malone was at the organ. For the offertory Mrs. T. J. Donovan sang Beautiful Land on High and for a recessional the choir sang Nearer, My God to Thee.

There was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the service, many coming from out of town. The floral tributes were most beautiful.

Burial was in the family lot in St. Joseph's cemetery where the committal service was read by Rev. Father Cohoian. The bearers were Raymond Harris, James Connell, Alfred Demuth, John Devins, Floyd Armstrong and Henry Kiecolt, all members of the Fraternal Order of Red Men.

Arrangements were by Hourigan Bros.

LEAVE THIS MORNING FOR 6,000 MILE AUTOMOBILE TOUR

Peter E. Flynn and wife of No. 294 Central avenue, accompanied by Mr. Flynn's father, Peter F. Flynn, of Thirteenth street, will leave early this (Tuesday) morning on an extensive automobile tour which will carry them over 6000 miles and through many of the states east of Ohio and into Canada. The party will also make lengthy stops en route, returning to Norwich sometime during September.

Upon leaving Norwich Mr. Flynn will drive to New York state and stop off at a number of cities while passing through towards Canada. Several cities in Canada are also included in the trip, after which the party will return to the United States, stopping at Niagara Falls and the Thousands Islands.

Continuing west the party will go to Cleveland, Ohio and Detroit, Michigan, visiting a number of automobile plants, before swinging back into Ohio to go to Akron, where the large rubber works are to be visited. Going to Youngstown, Ohio, the party will stop for a day and go through one of the large steel mills, then head for Allentown, Pa., where Mr. Flynn and party will go on a tour of inspection through the Mack Motor Truck Plant, Mr. Flynn representing the company in Norwich.

Heading towards the coast again Mr. Flynn will stop off at Wheeling, West Virginia, for a trip through the coal and oil fields in this region, then continue to Washington, D. C., where numerous points of interest are to be visited.

The return trip will be made through Baltimore, Md., and Philadelphia, Pa., from where the trip will be continued to New York city, where a stop of one week is to be made. The trip back to Norwich will be along the shore road.

NORWICH WOMAN HEADS BROWN FAMILY ASS'N

The descendents of Jehu and Deborah Bosworth Brown held their seventeenth annual reunion Aug. 8 in the Sprague Memorial house on Douglas Camp Ground, Douglas, Mass., under the supervision of William W. Brown and daughter Laura. This was the smallest gathering of its kind, only 43 being present. The oldest and youngest present were George Brown of Griswold, Conn., who will be 80 years old his next birthday and Francis W. Perkins, Jr., 18 months old son of Frankis W. and Ella Nye Perkins of Willimantic. Mrs. Eva Burdick has attended all the reunions since they started in 1909. Martin Brown and family of Staffordville, Conn., has attended all reunions until this year when ill health was the cause of his absence. William H. Brown, family of Jewett City, also was absent this year owing to serious sickness in the family. Those present sat down to heavily laden tables, after which the business meeting was opened with Mrs. Juliet Mills, president in the chair. After the Lord's prayer the meeting proceeded. Martin Brown sent a beautiful bouquet of flowers to grace the table, and it was his wish to have it laid on Helen Brown's grave, a deceased member. It was voted in behalf of the Brown reunion to send a letter of sympathy and regret to the above mentioned members who could not be there on account of sickness.

There was one ring given this year, to Mrs. Elizabeth Botharic of Plainfield, O. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Ella E. Weaver, Norwich; first vice president, Mrs. Hattie Brown, Norfolk; recording secretary, Miss Ruth M. Nye, Willimantic; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Eva Burdick, Mystic; treasurer, Frank Brown North Billerica, Mass., committee on sports, Henry Brown, Glastonbury and Frank Mills, No. Uxbridge, Mass., press correspondent, Mrs. Cora E. B Nye, Willimantic. An invitation was extended to meet with George Brown in Griswold, next year. There were 15 towns represented, as follows; Norwich, North Windham, Willimantic, Staffordville, Pachaug, Glastonbury, Mystic, Auburn, R. I., No. Billerica, Mass., Norfolk, Mass., Dorchester Mass., North Uxbridge, Mass., Linwood, Mass., Douglas, Mass. A number of the members remained over night returning home the next day.

SHOWER FOR MISS WOJTASIAK AT HOME OF MISS FRIESE

A miscellaneous shower was given in honor of Miss Sophia Wojtasiak, at the home of Miss Henrietta Friese, of 61 Bentley avenue, by the sewers and perchers of the American Woolen company, Thamesville, recently.

A chicken supper was served by Mrs. Adolph Friese, assisted by Mrs. Charles Gore and Miss Elsie Friese, at 7 o'clock. The long table was attractively decorated with rainbow colored streamers and huge bouquets.

The bride-to-be received many beautiful and useful gifts of linens, silverware, money and a beautiful electric table lamp from the overseers, sewers and perchers.

An enjoyable evening with music followed, with Miss Henrietta Friese at the piano and Miss Elsie Friese playing the banjo.

A duet by Mrs. Nellie McHale and Miss Gussie Lasky, accompanied by Mrs. Edna Bogner's whistling proved a novelty of the musical selections. Games and dancing followed.

Others present were Miss Henrietta Friese, Mrs. Irene Buckle, Agnes Gayeske, Mrs. Florence Champlin, Misses Lena and Margaret Shelley, Mrs. Palmia Yeitz, Miss Mabel Gallup, Miss Mae Donahy, Miss Sophia Furanick, Misses Rose and Louise Schoff and Miss Ethel O'Mara.

Miss Wojtasiak is soon to become the bride of Herman Yetkie, of Norwich Town.

FEAR WESTERLY CHAUFFEUR MAY HAVE BROKEN BACK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Aug. 10.—A chauffeur, Jack Milby, of Westerly, was taken to the hospital with what may prove to be serious injuries, yesterday morning about 9:30 o'clock, after a touring car skidded and overturned near Carolina, throwing out several of its six occupants and inflicting slight injuries on all who were in the car, except two children of Mr. and Mrs. James Hurst, of Potter Hill. In the car besides the driver, were Mr. and Mrs. Hurst, Dora F. Milby, of High street, Westerly, who owned the car, and the two Hurst children. Mr. Hurst was bruised and scratched, Mrs. Hurst received a cut on one leg, and it was thought that the driver, Jack Milby, was suffering from a probably broken back. The automobile was badly smashed and was towed to a Westerly garage, while the driver was quickly taken to a hospital by a passing autoist. State Trooper Hurley from the Wakefield barracks investigated the accident.

Geo. M. Cohan at Watch Hill.

George M. Cohan, noted actor, playwright and producer of Broadway successes, with Mrs. Cohan and two daughters, Misses Helen and Mary Cohan, is being entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Dennis F. O'Brien, of New York, at the Obrien's country estate, Sunnylands, on the Watch Hill road. Sunday morning at 10:30 the two families attended mass together at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, in Westerly.

Several of Mr. Cohan's successful stage productions, including Little Nellie Kelly and Mary, have been presented before local audiences.

Later this week Richard Barthelmess, the moving picture star, is expected to arrive from New York to spend a few days with Mr. and Mrs O'Brien, at Sunnylands.

No. Stonington Cow Killed.

William Miner, of North Stonington, lost a cow during the electrical storm of Monday morning. The animal was under a tree that was struck by a lightning bolt.

PETITION FOR RIGHT TO HOLD PARADES

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 10—A petition to have a right to hold parades restored was offered by the former operatives of the American Thread company at the meeting of the common council held Monday night. The request was made by Patrick Doyle on behalf of the strikers who had gathered in the town hall where the board of aldermen had adjourned, returning later to the council chamber to complete routine business. Edmund Dupant, one of the strike leaders, requested more active investigation of a complaint made by him to the local police to the effect that one of the truck drivers had made uncomplimentary gestures at a party of strike leaders. No action was taken on the request.

Mayor Hickey stated that the chief of police had acted for the best interests of preserving law and order. No action was taken on a resolution introduced by Alderman Lee to hold a public hearing on the strikers' parade question. During the regular session Martin Taylor of New York, a water system expert, gave a report of the investigations conducted by City Engineer Robert E. Mitchell and himself and recommended that the city purchase a duplicate water pump for the station house and lay a 14 inch line from the distributing reservoir to the city. The need of a filtration plant, additional chlorinating apparatus and another force main from the pumping station to the reservoir, which had generally been thought urgent, are not essential according to Mr. Taylor.

Thirty five analyses made of the local water supply have been labeled as satisfactory by the state board of health, his report showed. It was pointed out that at the present time several thousand gallons less of water are being consumed daily in the city as compared to previous years. Several thousand gallons are being saved by the recent adjustment of the sewer flushing system.

MONDAY MOST UNCOMFORTABLE DAY OF THE SUMMER

Monday was one of the most uncomfortable days of the summer. Although the mercury got only as high as 87, there were as many, if not more weather complaints, than there have been when the mercury has shot over the 90 mark. At 4 o'clock Monday morning the temperature reading was 73. Two hours later the reading was 70, a drop of three degrees.

The mercury remained at 70 until about 10 o'clock when it started to rise. At noon it was 74, two hours later it was 78, at 4 o'clock it was 82, at 5 o'clock it was 84, and at 6 o'clock it was 87, the highest point of the day. The temperature remained almost stationary until shortly after 7 o'clock when it started a backward movement and an hour later it was back to 80.

By midnight last night the mercury was down to 72 and at 2 A. M. this (Tuesday) morning the reading was 70.

NORWICH KLANSMEN AT WINDHAM CENTER MEET

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 10—About 200 Klansmen gathered on Miller Hill, Windham Center this evening, for the second Klan meeting to be held at that place within a month. Over 25 automobiles bearing people from Willimantic, Windham, Norwich and some from Massachusetts formed a circle at the summit of the hill, where an address was delivered by one of the Klan leaders. The regular Klan ritual was carried out with the burning of the fiery cross at 11 o'clock marking the closing of the meeting.

Several people from Windham and this city were present as guests. A weird and fascinating scene was presented as the cross became enveloped in the blaze. In the circle of automobiles the hooded members walked about preparing for the leave taking. At 11.15 the cross had burned and other than a heap of ashes no indication remained of the nocturnal meeting.

THINK MISSING MAN MAY BE IN NORWICH

The local police have received a letter from Mrs. Dorothy Wray asking them to assist her in finding her brother, John C. Jeffreys, 63, of 48 North street, Worcester, who may be residing in Norwich. According to the letter the man's mother is on her death bed and the absence of her son makes things much worse. Jeffreys is said to suffer from amnesia, having been ill for some time.

He is described as 63 years old, five feet nine inches in height, gray hair, light complexion, khaki pants, gray tweed coat, soft hat, silver rimmed glasses and very thick hair. He is a crockery patcher by trade.

His sister believes he is either in Norwich or at a place called Lathrops, in Glasgo. Any information about the missing man will be welcomed by Chief Linton as the man is wanted by his mother as soon as possible.

COAT OF TARVIA FOR WASHINGTON ST.

Under direction of Henry T. Gorman, supervisor of state roads, a long stretch of road leading north from the soldiers monument on Washington street, through Norwich Town, received a fresh coat of tarvia and sand Monday. During last week a large force of men swept the road and cleared out the gutters preparatory to spreading the tarvia.

ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF INDECENT EXPOSURE

About 3 o'clock Monday afternoon James Blackburn, deaf and dumb, was arrested in Thamesville on a charge of indecent exposure and was locked up at police headquarters. Officer Daniel O'Neil made the arrest. Blackburn will be presented in the city court this (Tuesday) morning.

HOME AFTER AUTO TOUR OF 3,500 MILES

Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Vergason, Miss Vergason and Miss Dorothy Vergason have returned from a month's tour, during which they covered 3,500 miles in fourteen states and Canada. The car was equipped with facilities for camping, a specially constructed feature of which was the running board kitchenette with centrally placed insulated sections for food, water and ice, adjoining which are end sections for the gasoline camp cookstove and utensils, an outer cover extending over the whole but in no way restricting opening of the doors.

Connecticut was traversed diagonally to the Litchfield Hills, the Berkshires passed, the state capitol at Albany visited, and the first camp made at Schenectady, where was found one of the most commodious and best appointed sites encountered, it being run in conjunction with the city park. Here it rained, the first night out, the only other rainy one occurring at next to the last camp made. The following day they proceeded through the Mohawk River valley to Syracuse, noting the gradual growth of farming interests, flattening out of the land, large herds of cattle, chiefly Holsteins, passing Lake Oneida on the right and viewing with interest the campus of Syracuse university where Darrow Vergason was graduated three years previously from the New York State Ranger school. Syracuse was home for the second night, camp being made in company with residents from many states as is usually the case in these public camps, it not being uncommon to find such diverse registrations as Florida, Louisiana, Texas Oklahoma, or California in proximity to those from such northern sections as Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois or Wisconsin.

Beyond Syracuse the way lay through orchards of cherries, apples, pears, fields of hay, curing and perfuming the air, and after ascending a succession of hills at Montezuma there appeared an immense flat of muck land, surprising by reason of its elevation, devoted to market gardening. This day fields of heavy-headed wheat appeared yellowed by the sun and maturity, all but ripened for the harvest. These wheat fields persisted as far west as they journeyed, no longer leaving room for question as to where material for bread can be found. This day real cherry pie was found to leave a satisfied feeling. LeRoy, N. Y., the home of "Jello," domiciled the party this night, adequate and attractive facilities being furnished gratis by the Townsend Oil Co. This was the only place where diligent mosquitoes appeared annoyingly. The scarcity of stones for fences was noted here and some states further on, this deficiency being overcome in some localities by the osage orange hedges regularly and symetrically trimmed. This will, if undisturbed, grow to be a tree of considerable size and bear a fruit the size of an ordinary orange which is not of value for food.

Sunday was passed at Niagara Falls, wandering among its grandeur and beauty, and camp made on foreign soil at the Falls View Touring Camp, conducted by a Canadian veteran of the World war in accordance with ideas as to equipment procured by his war experience. It is the only camp affording full view of both the American and Canadian Falls, and is directly over the observation platforms of the Michigan Central railroad, from which all passengers on their road are afforded opportunity to alight and view this one of the world's greatest natural wonders. At night colored lights are played upon the Falls, presenting at times the appearance of floods of liquid gold pouring into the abyss, at others red, angry flames of leaping fire, then great tumultous volumes of water irresistibly rushing down, following with the colors are interspersed and mingled in endless combinations.

FINES FOR TALMAN STREET TROUBLE MAKERS

A number of the guests of Manuel Santos of Talman street, who were at his home Saturday night and early Sunday morning, celebrating in Portuguese fashion, the arrival of a new baby in the family, appeared in the city court Monday morning, and as a result, paid fines and costs for a disturbance and breach of the peace.

Portuguese friends of Santos, from Norwich and surrounding towns were at his home Saturday night and about 3 o'clock Sunday morning, Officer Gunn, patrolling the beat near the Marquenaw, heard the sounds of trouble and sent for the patrol wagon and a squad of officers. When the house was reached only seven of the celebrators could be apprehended by the officers.

All pleaded not guilty in court Monday morning, but Officer Allen testified that Eneva Barber threw a razor at him when he tried to arrest him. Officer Gwiszdowski testified that the razor, which was partly opened, struck him on the arm. All the Portuguese testified that there had been no fight, excepting William Barbra, who said there had been very much of a fight, and that he had been the main target.

Judge Libby meted out the following fines and costs in the case: Eneva Barber and Manuel Santos, $15 and costs; Samuel Cikura and Joseph Mandarr, $10 and costs; William DePina, Louis Vincent and Manuel Carldozo discharged.

The case of John Kenney, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, also came up in court.

Kenney does not know how to run an automobile, but late Saturday night, he got into a machine owned by Henry Plante of Norwich and accidently put his foot on the starter according to the testimony causing the motor to turn and move the car ahead, by jumps, a distance of about 25 feet.

Upon suggestion of Judge Libby a new charge was drawn up, that of tampering with a motor vehicle. In making the change, Judge Libby announced, that if Kenney had not been intoxicated he would have charged him with taking a car without the owner's permission.

Under the new charge Judge Libby fined Kenney $50 and costs after a plea of guilty had been entered and Kenney paid $62.60.

Delaware Howard, colored, paid $25 and costs, $35.94, on being found guilty of breach of the peace, by assault and striking Annie Lopez, alias Silvey, alias Spanish Annie.

John J. Balgo, Jr., Joseph Fluett, Isadore Berkman and Joseph West paid $5 each for violation of the city ordinances.

Ordinary week end intoxication and breach of the peace cases brought the lengthy session to a close, the second long session of the court within as many court days.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER FOR CATHERINE CONEFREY

Monday evening at the home of Mrs. William Laltochelle, of 66 Myers avenue, a surprise miscellaneous shower was given by the Sunshine Sewing circle for Miss Catherine Conefrey, in honor of her approaching marriage to Cecil Maynard, of Norwich, which is to take place in the near future.

Many pretty and useful gifts were received by the bride-to-be and entertainment was provided by a number of the guests. Refreshments were served later in the evening by Mrs. LaRochelle, assisted by Mrs. Joseph Wargo. A pleasant evening was spent and the members of the circle extended wishes for a most happy future for Miss Conefrey.

Warriors Defeat Rosedales

Monday evening on the N. F. A. campus, the undefeated Warriors reaped another victory. The Greeneville Rosedales were the victims. Both teams emanated snap and dash in all the entire eight innings of play.

The Rosedales started off in slam bang fashion. Greeneville walloped the ball for a total of five hits in their first appearance at the elastic saucer. And so among the five of them they crossed the platter four times. In the Warriors half of first and second, the batsmen of the aforesaid were in a fog as far as Edwards delivery was concerned. Evidently the Warrior batsmen didn't like the Edwards blend for Eddie gave the home team two cases by the "hit-by-pitcher" route; these unfortunate incidents coupled with Swanton's error and Hamill's hit account in two runs for the Rosedales rivals.

At the end of the seventh the Warriors and Rosedales were in a 6-6 deadlock. In their half of last inning the Greeneville lads went out in one, two, three order, a grounder to Marchand, a beautifully judged fly to Kampff, and a fly to first. As the Warriors came to bat for their last time dusk was fast falling. Fenton connected with the second ball pitched for a long drive to left field. Swanton misjudged the ball and Fenton romped two bases. Thence the Warriors record leader dropped a pretty bunt down the third base line. Fenton reached third on the play. In endeavoring to get Tyrone at first, the ball went wild and both heads free with Fenton coming home with the eighth run and the ball game.

Assawaga Win From Millville

Danielson, Aug. 9—The fast traveling Assawaga team today went to grips with the Millville, Mass., boys in an extra inning tussle winning by one run. Flapper was back in the catcher's department today with his old time form behind the plate and Lemieux pitched air tight ball allowing only 3 hits. R. Foster made a great catch on Mullaly's foul in the ninth. Millville was the first to open scoring in the second, their lone tally in the first of the sixth inning. The Assawaga boys bunched some base hits in the fourth inning to take the lead. In the first of the tenth, Lynch flied out and Lemieux struck out Feeney and Gartland. The Assawaga boys came to bat full of the do or die spirit. Greenway was hit by a pitched ball. Brace ran for him. On H. Weaver's long drive to left field Baker overran second, Reese put out in trying to get home, Brace put out in trying to get back, Brace to centerfield. Lafleur walked. A. Dostaler batting for D. Weaver struck out. Watt threw in and O'Neil at bat with the crowd yelling for a hit McCabe walked O'Neil forcing in the winning run. The score:

ATHLETICS WIN UPHILL BATTLE FROM BROWNS

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 10.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics came from behind in the eighth inning of today's opening clash of the series with the St. Louis Browns to win by a score of 6 to 4. Until the eighth, Joe Bush had allowed but four hits and one run, but in the rallying round six hits and a sacrifice fly netted five runs. Mickey Cochrane's single scored Dykes and Lamar with the tying runs and Al Simmons followed with his nineteenth home run of the season, scoring Cochrane ahead of him.

Singles by Hale and Poole and Miller's sacrifice fly scored the fifth run of the inning. Score:

SCOTT HAS BETTER OF PITCHING DUEL WITH MEADOWS

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 10—(AP)—The Giants reduced Pittsburgh's lead in the National League to three and one half games by winning the first brush of a four-game series today before 23,000 fans, 2 to 1.

Jack Scott had the better of a pitching duel with Lee Meadows. He allowed eight hits, but kept them well scattered, doubles by Cuyler and Barnhart in the sixth giving the home team their only run.

The Giants bunched three of their five hits for a run in the first, while Young scored the winning tally in the fourth on an error, an infield out and a wild pitch. The game was interrupted for an hour and a half by rain.

DUNDEE CELEBRATES HIS 15TH ANNIVERSARY IN RING

NEW YORK, Aug. 10—Joseph Corsora, known to thousands of ring followers as Johnny Dundee, former world's featherweight and junior lightweight champion, celebrated the 15th anniversary of his entrance into the ring today. The little Italian battler now in his 33rd year, has fought more than 400 battles in his long career and has ambitions to run this number up to 500 before he finally hangs up his gloves and quits the ring.

Dundee fought his first bout August 10, 1910 at the old Sharkey A. C. with Skinny Bob as his opponent. He wants to put 20 years in the ring before he retires.

Dundee has told friends that Tex Rickard has promised him a crack at Louis (Kid) Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., world's featherweight champion, in the opening show at the garden in the event Kaplan is not beaten before then.

SPRINGFIELD BEATS ALBANY IN HARD FOUGHT GAME

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 10—Springfield defeated Albany 4 to 3 in a hard fought game today. Springfield knocked Vines out of the box in the fourth, in which inning the winning run was scored. The fielding of Christy featured. Score:

HARRY MILLS PITCHES FIRST NO-RUN, NO-HIT GAME IN TWILIGHT LEAGUE

Harry Mills, the East Ends' star right-hander, pitched his name into the Twilight League's Hall of Fame, Monday evening, when he set the Palace nine down without a hit or run in six innings.

Only two of the Palace batsmen succeeded in reaching first base and these were both the result of a pass, Simcox drawing a walk in the third, and Bugs Shahan one in the sixth. Both players reached second but that ended their short journey on the base paths.

Mills had his curve ball working to perfection and mixing this with fine speed and good control had the Palace hitters completely at his mercy. He fanned seven, three of which came in quick succession in the first inning, and personally assisted in retiring five more batsmen on grounders to the box. But two bases were hit out of the infield against Mills in the entire game and both of these were turned into easy putouts by Joubert, the East End centerfielder. An unusual feature of the contest was the fact that three of the East Ends made all of the 18 putouts, Tim Coughlin accounting for nine, Allard for seven, and Joubert for two.

While Mills was setting down the Palace, the East Enders were hitting Bugs Shahan with abandon, gathering a total of eight hits, five of which were doubles for eight runs. Shahan also had his usual difficulty in locating the plate, and no less than seven East Enders went to first as the result of passes.

The game marked Harry Mills fifth win of the year and puts the 1924 champions in undisputed possession of third place, and only one-half a game behind the E. C. P. who are in second place the runner-up position.

The East Ends got off to a whirlwind start in the initial frame, scoring six runs on three hits, four walks and several errors. Normandin led off with a two-bagger to left. Gaudette fanned, but Mills shot a fast grounder to short, and when Leo Morin threw wild over first, Normandin scored and Mills went to second. Harry then stole third, but when he attempted to come home while Courbois was chasing the ball, he was caught easily, Courbois to Dilworth. With two out, the East Enders started all over again, Austin walked and went to third on Jim Murphy's double to left, Noel then rolled to Courbois and when the latter threw bad to first, Austin scored and Murphy went to third. Noel took second on a wild pitch and Coughlin walked filling the bases, Shahan then passed Joubert forcing over a run, and when Allard singled to right, both Noel and Coughlin tallied. Allard stole second, and Joubert scored on the throw with the sixth run of the frame.

The only other scoring in the game came in the third when the East Ends scored two more runs on a walk and singles by Joubert and Allard.

With the East Ends batting in the first of the seventh inning, Umpire Morin called the game on account of darkness and the score and play reverted to the end of the sixth with the East Siders on the long end of an 8 to 0 score. The score:

East Ends	ab	h	po	a	e
Palace

Two base hits, Normandin, Murphy, Noel. Joubert. Struck out, by Mills 7, by Shahan 2. Bases on balls, off Mills 2, off Shahan 7.

Tonight's Game

While last night's game wasn't what one would call a good game the fans that were over to the field saw for the first time of the season a no run, no hit game and it was done by none other than Harry Mills. Harry deserves plenty of credit as he turned in as nice a game as has been pitched around here in a good many days, allowing no runs, no hits, two passes and striking out seven men. With Mills going the way he has in the last few games and his teammates hitting and fielding in the same manner, it began to look like a three cornered race for the pennant between the Centrals, E. C. P. and East Ends.

The Palace weren't up to their usual strength last night as Chip Dugas, Hamel and Mulcahy were missing which made a big hole in their playing strength.

Tonight's game between the Nuggets and Yantic will without a doubt make up for what was missing last night as both of these teams are playing great ball of late. The Yantic team last week put up the strongest opposition that the Centrals have met this season and until the last inning had them beat. Mgr Gaskell has done wonders with the up town boys, transforming them from a tail end team to a real dangerous one. It was this team that came back when they practically were down and out and started Hallville on the downpath after the Hallville had worked its way to a tie for first place.

The Nuggetts also lost a tough game last week to a top notch team, the E. S. P. nine after holding them to a 1 to 1 tie until the last inning when a break of the game gave the Power Co. the winning run. These two teams are capable of great things and are evenly matched and anyone that misses tonight's game will be sadly disappointed.

TheNuggets also lost a tough game Ashland team which has been cleaning up everything lately including Taftville and the Socony of New London. For the Nuggets either Leo Jarvis, Floyd Jarvis, or Lemorieu will pitch.

"Cannonball" Gill Jones will twirl for Yantic and Smith will catch, the remainder of their lineup will be the same as the one that faced the Centrals last week.

SNODGRASS AND WESTBROOK WIN DOUBLES TITLE

DETROIT, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Harvey Snodgrass, Los Angeles and Walter Westbrook also of Los Angeles, national courts doubles champions further established their supremacy at the Detroit Tennis Club this afternoon by winning the Western Clay court doubles championship from the Chicago pair, Lucien Williams and Walter T. Hayes, 6-3, 7-5, 6-4.

It was a day of triumph for Snodgrass, who prior to the doubles matches won the Western clay court singles title from his partner, Westbrook in a four set match, 3-6, 8-6, 7-5, 8-6.

COOK GETS DECISION OVER JOE STOESSEL

REVERE, Mass., Aug 10.—(AP)—George Cook, Australian heavyweight, was awarded the decision over Joe Stoessel of New York, at the end of a one-sided ten round bout tonight at the Revere Cycle Track. Cook was the aggressor throughout and won every round. He weighed 156 1-2 and Stoessel 159.

Tom Kirby of Roxbury, won a technical knock-out when the referee stepped in and saved Jack Elliot of England from taking more punishment in the second round of the semi-final. Tod Smoth of Canton, Ohio, was awarded the decision over Joe Jawson of Milwaukee.

Laurel Hill Horse-shoe Pitchers Win

The Laurel Hill horse-shoe pitching team went to the Lake street playgrounds Monday afternoon and returned victorious. It was mainly through the ability of the Hillies to toss in "ringers" that won for them both in the doubles and singles. The doubles resulted in a 2 to 1 victory for Flaherty and Marshall over Colletti and Connell. In the singles Flaherty beat Connell 2 to 1 and Colletti defeated Marshall 2 to 1.

DODGERS WIN TWO SLOW GAMES FROM REDS

CINCINNATI, Aug. 10—(A. P.)—Brooklyn took two listless games from Cincinnati today, 7 to 3 and 13 to 7. In the first game, Luque and Osborne went along at a fairly even pace until Luque was taken out in the eighth for a pinch hitter. Bleimiller was hit for three runs in the ninth. Score:

WOMEN'S TRIAL MATCHES TO BE PLAYED THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, Aug. 10—Members of the Davis cup selection committee, burdened with the task of naming the women's international team for the Wightman cup matches against the English team at Forest Hills, Friday and Saturday, decided today that two further trial matches will be necessary before the final selection of the team is definitely announced.

Miss Helen Wills of Berkeley, Cal., national champion was officially named No. 1. player with Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory of New York, former national champion as No. 2. The third member of the singles trip will be withheld until after the test match is held tomorrow at Forest Hills between Miss Mary K. Browne of Los Angeles, Calif., former national champion, and Miss Eleanor Goss of New York No. 4. player on the national ranking list. The winner will be named the No. 3. member of the team, members of the committee intimated following today's meeting.

The No. 1 team in the doubles will consist of Miss Wills and Miss Brown. The No. 2 team depends upon the outcome of the second trial match with Mrs. Mae Sutton Bundy of Los Angeles, Calif., a former national champion and Miss Eleanor Goss playing as a combination against Mrs. Mallory and Miss Marion Zinderstein, Jessup of Wilmington, Del. This contest will be held Wednesday after which the entire official team will be announced. Miss Browne was named captain of the American team.

The committee also considered the further task of naming the Davis cup team. The indecisive victory which William M. Johnson scored over Vincent Richards at Forest Hills Saturday has left the committee in a quandry as to the naming of the second singles player and it was decided to hold another test match between the pair Wednesday afternoon. the outcome to have a decided bearing on the selection of the No. 2 man.

TWO FRENCH TEAMS ENTERED IN NAT. DOUBLES

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 10—The entries of two French teams made up of Davis cup players of that nation here received today for the national tennis doubles which will open at Longwood the week of August 24. Rene La Coste and Jean Borotra will make up one team and Jacques Brugnon and Max Decugis the other.

W. T. Tilden, 2nd, national champion, has entered the tournament with A. L. Weiner as his teammate.

RECORD SUM PAID FOR YEARLING MARE

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 10.—(AP)—A record sum of $50,500 for a thoroughbred yearling was paid today by James Cox Brady in the purchase at auction of daughter of Man O'War, bred in Virginia by Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, former physician to Woodrow Wilson.

Mr. Brady entered racing last spring with establishment of the Hamilton Farms Stable, and last week purchased the Old Dixiana Stud in Kentucky, where he plans to breed thoroughbreds on an extensive scale.

Pirates Buy Oldham

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Barney Dreyfus, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, today announced the purchase of J. C. "Red" Oldham, left-handed pitcher now with Des Moines in the western league. Oldham will report here Wednesday. Dreyfus declined to state the purchase price. No other players figured in the deal.

Oldham formerly pitched for Detroit in the American League, but a few years ago was suspended for failure to report. Later he was sold to Gernon in the Pacific coast league and subsequently went to the Desmoines Club.

According to information received by Dreyfuss, Oldham has been pitching high class ball this year and has won his last six games. The Pirates, with the pennant bee buzzing in their bonnets, have been after another left hander to bolster up their pitching staff.

Valiants Want Games

The Valiants A. C. of Norwich would like to play Everreadies of Westerly at the Lake St. grounds on Saturday afternoon. Arrangements can be made through this paper. We would also like to play Camp Wa Wog, Sunday if they have not already arranged for a game.

Altar Boys Challenge

The Jewett City Altar Boys challenge the Valiants Juniors for a baseball game this Saturday at Jewett City. The Altar boys have not lost a game as yet, having defeated the Taftville Sluggers last Saturday by the score of 4 to 2 in 10 innings. If this challenge is accepted answer through this paper.

Sluggers Win

The Baltic Sluggers defeated the Valiants Juniors 10 to 3 Sunday afternoon at the Lake St. Playgrounds, Norwich.

Rosedales and Bearcats

The Jewett City All-Stars expect the Rosedales to appear in Jewett City this Saturday. The All-Stars will play the Bearcats Sunday at Jewett City if they will play. The manager desires the managers of the two teams to call Jewett City 34-12 tonight between 6 and 6:30 to arrange the details.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Baseball has become the most popular sport in the Philippines.

Pigeon racing is a popular sport in Australia.

The oldest yacht club in the British Isles is the Royal Cork Yacht Club, founded in 1720.

Joseph Hislop, celebrated operatic star, is an ardent golfer and a former amateur champion of Sweden.

Sunday baseball will be voted on by the people of Massachusetts at the state election in November, 1926.

The New England Amateur Rowing Association, which is now in its 40th year, will hold a Labor Day regatta at Boston.

Among the famous horses that have won the classic Saragota Special for two-year-olds, first run in 1901, have been Irish Lad, Sysonby and Morvich.

Forty thousand pigeons participated in a recent flying competition in England. Forty-two special railway cars were required to carry the pigeons to the starting point.

The stadium of the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills, L. I., which will be the scene of the national championships this year, can seat more than 20,000 spectators. It is the only concrete tennis stadium in the world, except the one at Wimbledon.

The first open air boxing show to be staged at Milwaukee under the commission rule of that city, will be brought off by the Badger State A. C. on the night of Aug. 14. Eddie "Kid" Wagner of Philadelphia will meet Billy Bartfield, the Western batter, in the main event.

The Travers Stake, one of the important fixtures of the Saratoga race meeting, is a classic of the American turf and it has been won by some of the greatest horses in the period between its inaugural running in 1864 and the present day. It was named in honor of William R. Travers, noted wit, financier and lover of the turf, who owned Kentucky, the winner of the first Travers Stake.

Among the many things that Japan borrowed from China was football, said to have been introduced as early as the middle of the seventh century. Emperor Toba II was an expert player and got up a club at his palace. The beginning of professionalism may be traced to an emperor and his court of whom it is told that in a time of poverty they earned a little extra money by teaching the art of football.

The strongest field ever to seek the women's tennis national tennis championship will begin play on the courts of the United States Lawn Tennis Association on Aug. 17. Stars of the past will mingle with stars of the future, champions of bygone years will battle with champions of the years ahead, and Miss Helen Wills the 19-years-old performer from California, will defend the title which she has won for two successive years.

Toronto, with 22 clubs, still retains its supremacy as the golfing centre of Canada, although the Montreal district, with 19 clubs, runs it a close second.

DOG OF A NEW LONDON BEACH COTTAGER IS PROVING AN EXPENSIVE PET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 10.—Harry Brightman, a Hartford resident at Ocean Beach, has discovered that a dog is an expensive pet to maintain, especially when the dog takes liberties with persons who pass the spot where he is harbored. Brightman was sued because he did not control his dog so that it would not be in any degree a menace to people at the beach. Brightman resented the attitude of his neighbors and has kept the dog. Today a case against him in the police court was nolled on his payment of the costs he had brought upon the court. He is understood to have been sued civilly by Etta Weimer, a Hartford resident at the beach, for $25,000 damages because the dog attacked her and jarred her nerves.

Judge Victor Prince, in the police court today gave a few sailors of the rowdy class to understand that he had no sympathy with the conduct of which they and many of their class have been guilty of in this city. A pair of them, C. R. Robinson and Leon Van Boon, were convicted of creating a disturbance on a trolley car Sunday. They were fined. On the car on which they were passengers they had a dog which had made their acquaintance on the street. The sailors took the dog to a restaurant and there fed it and then started off on a car. The conductor demanded fare for the dog, and this the sailors did not like. They began a discussion as to the lawfulness of the rule, but they paid. Then they espied a button on the coat of Conductor Jones which indicated that he had been honorably discharged from the navy. The fresh sailors demanded to know on what ships Jones had served and when they did not get the information they abused the conductor and finally got into a physical row with him. Van Deon tearing the coat so that the sleeve hung to the body of the garment. The conductor called a police officer and secured the arrest of the sailors and this morning appeared against them. In passing sentence upon the pair, Judge Prince told them they seemed to have a notion that they were a sort of Jack Dempsey and that they were hard-boiled. Then he warned them that they were not "tough" so to speak and cautioned them that the sooner they got rid of the notion that they were not amenable to law the quicker would they get useful information.

This was a day for drunks, beggars, idlers, etc., in court. There were more than twenty cases on the blotter. Most of the accused were found guilty and either sent to jail or fined, and when they could not pay they were landed in jail. They were of varying degrees of intoxication when found by the police. Some of the men were ugly while others were of the sleepy sort and good-naturedly intoxicated. One of the gang picked up had a notion that sailors had endeavored to rob him, but that notion was dissipated when he was questioned. He was too drunk to recall what anyone had attempted to do.

Ray Clark, suspected of having robbed the safe in Swift & Co.'s beef house, was charged with intoxication. He pleaded guilty and said he was drunk, but declared that he was absolutely innocent of any other charge. He went to jail. Another man was dancing drunk in front of the Salvation Army. He had picked a quarrel with a Filipino because he did not take kindly to that race. Policeman Corcoran saw what was going on from the opposite side of the street and started to subdue the warring sailor. He ran around the building and the officer endeavored to intercept him, but the sailor's companions notified the fugitive and he returned in the direction from which he started. Officer Corcoran was wise to the scheme so he waited till the sailor returned to the army building and then arrested him. His conduct brought a fine to the sailor.

Gus Govas successfully defended a case in which he was charged with having made an assault upon Sam Fern, the proprietor of the Star restaurant. Fern had declared that Govas attacked him, but Govas put the facts in a different light, when he convinced that Fern was provoked because Govas would not continue in a position he had occupied for six years. Govas declared that he simply went to the restaurant to seek his wages. Fern would not pay him, claiming that he had a contract with Govas by which the latter was never to quit during the season. It was not plain what the "season" was nor could it be established that any such arrangement was ever made. Govas declared that Fern sought to hold back a week's wages because the former had been allowed a vacation some time ago, with pay for a week. It is this week's pay that Fern now declares compensates Govas for the work he did. Govas was declared not guilty, and says he will now sue Fern for the money to which he is entitled.

Roland E. Allen, of Rogers avenue, Norwich, was fined $10 for operating an auto without possessing a license to do so. Allen was seen driving a car without lights. He was stopped and when asked to show his license was found to be without that necessary paper.

Serafin Fedeli, the possessor of an operating license during the past 18 months, had never taken the trouble to sign his name to it, as required by law. When he was in court for his negligence he said he never thought of signing, but just put the license in his pocket and kept it there. He was fined, as a reminder that he read the directions on his license and then conform to the requirements.

Charles A. Strickland, 61, a well-known truckman and a resident of New London practically his entire life, died Sunday at his residence, 44 Mahan street, after an illness of several weeks. Mr. Strickland, who was a member of Loyal Order of Moose, is survived by his wife and a daughter, Mrs. Quarrie, wife of Capt. Edward Quarrie.

Miss Hannah Shea, 38, died Sunday at her residence, 13 Richards street, after a lingering illness from heart trouble. Miss Shea, who was born in New London, was the daughter of the late Cornelius and Mary Shea. She is survived by four brothers, John Shea, Westerly; Donald Shea, New York, and Patrick and Cornelius Shea, this city, and by two sisters, Mrs. John Pender, this city, and Mary Shea, Westerly.

A sailor attached to the United States Coast Guard service at this port, was taken into custody this afternoon by Sergeant Samuel Hick, charged by Mrs. Minnie Kerson, colored, with assault. The sailor, it is alleged, went to the residence of Elisha Stanfield, colored, 207 North Bank street, late Sunday night and, it is alleged, forced open a door and attacked the Kerson woman, knocking her down and treating her roughly. This afternoon when the Kerson woman observed the sailor at the corner of North Bank and John streets, she pointed him out to Sergeant Hick as the man who attacked her and the fellow was arrested. He will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning.

O. E. Erickson, conservator of the estate of Adeline S. Dart, has sold a house and lot on Vauxhall street to Minnie M. Campbell.

Mrs. William Ewanyk and infant son, of Grand street; Miss Pauline Spiers, Oswegatchie; Waterford; Mrs William Treat and infant daughter, 239 Montauk avenue; Arthur Panciera, Mystic; Miss Marjorie Starr, 221 Hempstead street; Francis Brooks, 22 Starr street; Carl Rosen, Stonington; Frederick Crumb, Mystic; Nelson Rathbun, Noank; Marion Bonnaville, United States Coast Guard service, and L. R. Bowman, 89 Garfield avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

An automobile owned and driven by George R. McNamee, Brooklyn, N. Y., and a Connecticut company trolley car, were in collision this afternoon on Main street. The automobile was damaged.

An automobile owned and operated by Harry E. Squire, 4 Spring street, and a machine owned and driven by Leslie M. Beckwith, Niantic, collided this afternoon, corner of Main and Church streets. Both cars were damaged, but not seriously.

The only damage caused by the severe electrical storm of early this morning was at the residence of John McCraw, 235 Ocean avenue, where a bolt of lightning damaged a chimney.

Burtis Whittemore, 15, son of Merrill A. Whittemore, 425 Main street, who has absented himself from his home since June, and whose arrest the boy's father requested the New London authorities to attempt last Saturday, was taken into custody at Hartford this afternoon. The boy, it was understood Saturday, was located in Hartford and a telephone message to the Hartford authorities resulted in the boy's apprehension. Whittemore went to Hartford this afternoon to take charge of the boy.

Two hundred seventy-five youths from Camp Ofumipet, Shelter Island, came to New London late this afternoon on the specially chartered steamer "Ossint." They will remain aboard the steamer, which is moored at the north side of the municipal pier, over night. The youngsters enjoyed trips to the submarine base, Ocean Beach, and the numerous parks about the city, prior to their "turning in" about 9 o'clock.

BOOTLEGGER HAD THREE BARNS WHERE HE STORED HIS HOOCH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 10.—Prohibition Enforcement Agent Joseph F. Fitzpatrick conferred this morning with United States Commissioner Russell T. Corcoran, who issued the search warrants against places where Samuel Sanitella, 44 Shaw street, is alleged to have stored liquor with intent to sell. The alleged place of storage was raided in Center Groton last night, together with the seizing of a Cadillac touring car, containing a quantity of liquor. This afternoon the agent went to Hartford and conferred with United States Assistant District Attorney James Danaher, relative to the issuance of several warrants connected with Sunday night's seizure.

It is planned to secure a warrant for the arrest of Sanitella on several charges, among them conspiracy, while it is possible that the owners of three barns where it is claimed Sanitella kept his supply of liquor, will also be apprehended, together with George Librizzi, 135 Jefferson avenue, in whose name the seized touring car is registered. It is claimed by the federal agents that Librizzi is not the legitimate owner of the car, but that the machine is the property of Sanitella. Sanitella may also be prosecuted for violation of the automobile law, for it is alleged that he has several sets of markers for the same car.

Sanitella has not been located, although a search for him has not been made; but it is known that while he has not visited his home, he has communicated with his attorney, William T. Connor.

Sanitella, it is alleged, rented a barn on Shaw street, and another on Bayonet street for the storage of his liquor, but when the raiders visited these places, prior to going to Center Groton, no liquor whatever was found there. It is claimed that Sanitella either received a tip of the intended raids, or else surmised that action against his alleged liquor trafficking was to be attempted and the liquor was taken from the New London barns and placed elsewhere. It is also alleged that Sanitella's workers were in the act of transferring the liquor stored in the Center Groton garage, when the raiding force interrupted the Cadillac car leaving the place of storage. The car was heavily laden with liquor that had been "doctored," for it is declared that the so-called whiskey had been diluted to such an extent that a case of "whiskey" sold by Sanitella for $70 cost the distributor no more than $3.

Included in the seizure at Center Groton were two tubs alleged to have been used for doctoring the whiskey, several sets of labels, corks that had been especially prepared to represent a certain brand of whiskey, the name of the liquor being burned in the cork spurious government labels for sticking over the corks, non-refillable stoppers and phony cartons, besides made-to-order whiskey cases, all in sections and with the name of a popular brand of whiskey on the top cover to make the purchaser believe he was purchasing that particular brand, when in reality, he was purchasing booch.

The raiding of the trio of alleged places of Sanitella's was carefully arranged and it is said that the prohibition enforcement agents obtained their information from a former employe of Sanitella, who recently quit the latter's employ because of money matters.

COUNCIL TO SEND FLOWERS TO CAPT. C. A. PINNEY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 10—The city council, at its meeting this evening, instructed the clerk to extend to Capt. Charles A. Pinney of the police department the sympathy of that body in his illness. Councilor Scott moved and his motion was accepted that with the expression of sympathy should go a gift of flowers from the council. Capt. Pinney is now under treatment at Lawrence hospital and as soon as inflammation attending his malady is allayed an operation will be performed.

City Manager Holt notified the council that the receipt of rules and regulations prepared by Lieut. Putts and Sweeney of the New York police department for the government and procedure of discipline for the New London department. The document submitted has not yet been printed in individual copies for the several members of the council, but that work will be done by the next assembly of the council. The matter was referred to the committee on public safety.

Councilor Woodruff reported progress on several matter submitted to the committee on public welfare. Included in the report were the subjects sewer and water rates, zoning and flag decoration.

Stanley A. Goldsmith resigned from the planning board and his resignation was accepted unanimously.

Employes of the Southern New England Telephone company are to hold their annual outing at Ocean Beach on the 12th inst., and they asked the council to give them the use of the park at the beach for their athletic exercises and sports. The request was referred to the city manager and he was given the power to grant the request, if in his opinion it should be granted.

Lina Beckwith called the attention of the council to the fact that she had not been paid the $400 which the council last fall voted to pay her for land the city acquired from her. She asked the favor of meeting the mayor and two aldermen at the close of the meeting and she was granted this request.

Requests were made for the use of sidewalk for the display of fruit and vegetables and for the placing of a couple of signs in the city. These matters were referred to the city manager and he was given the power to grant or deny the requests.

—"this luncheon will cost you more, Bill!"

Bigger meals—better digestion

The Buyer had been at lunch with this Salesman many times before.

"This lunch will cost you more today, Bill," he said to his visitor.

"How is that?" the other smiled.

"Well, I've found a way to fix that old indigestion of mine—by eating Life Saver Pep-o-mints. They've certainly helped me a lot."

* * *

Indigestion is a miserable thing. So many people suffer this way. If they only knew that simple old method our grandfathers used—peppermint.

And now it is available in a new and really convenient form—Pep-o-mint Life Savers; the little candy mints with the hole.

It sounds very simple and old-fashioned. But Pep-o-mint Life Savers really do the trick. Try them after meals when that heavy, logy feeling comes over you—or to relieve that irritating distress of indigestion. Pep-o-mint is displayed at all good stores so you may help yourself; also Wint-o-green, Cinn-o-mon, Lic-o-rice, Cl-o-ve and Vi-o-let. Five cents a package.—Life Savers, Inc., Port Chester, N. Y.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

New York

Stocks irregular; Gen. Ry., Signal soars 11 1-4 to record top.

Bonds mixed: Poland 8s at new low.

Foreign exchanges steady; lira up 6 points.

Cotton lower; bearish crop reports.

Sugar easier; increased offerings of raws.

Coffee higher; firmer Brazilian market.

Chicago

Wheat barely steady; poor foreign demand.

Corn higher; bullish visible.

Cattle strong.

Hogs higher.

MARKET WAS STRONG

NEW YORK, Aug. 10—(A. P.)—Stock prices staged a remarkable comeback after an early period of weakness in today's market, which was featured by the buoyancy of high-priced industrial shares. Trading turned dull on the early decline, but picked up perceptibly in the late rally, the day's sales aggregating about one and one quarter million shares.

Heavy selling of the motors and oils, based on additional automobile and gasoline price cuts, took place soon after the market opened. Early declines of 1 to 3 1-3 points were recorded by Chandler Motors, Pierce-Arrow common and preferred, Mack Trucks, Marland, Standard Oil of California, Independent Oil and Gas, Texas company and several others, but in some cases the earlier losses were materially reduced. General Motors showed independent strength by touching a new record high at 94 5-8, in anticipation of an announcement of a special cash distribution on Thursday.

Sensational advances again took place in the so-called "rich men's stocks." General Railway Signal soared 12 1-4 points to a record top at 196 1-2; Jersey Central and International Shoe each jumped 7 points to 165 and 150 respectively, and American Can moved up over six points to a new high for all time at 234 1-2; Midvale Steel products preferred attained a new maximum at 147, but closed unchanged at 146.

Many of the standard industrials closed lower on the day. United States Steel common showed a small fractional recession at 122, the July tonnage statement, made public today, showing a decrease of 170,931 tons in unfilled orders, or about 20,000 tons more than Wall street expected. Baldwin fell back 1 1-2 points to 113 and lost fractions of a point or so were recorded by American Sugar Refing, Electric Storage Battery, Foundation company, International Harvester, National Lead, Stewart Warner Speedometer, United States Rubber, Western Union, Westinghouse Air Brake and Worthington Pump.

General strength was shown by a wide variety of industrial and public utilities issues including General Baking, Havana Electric, New York Air Brake, New York Shipbuilding, Pullman, Tobacco Products common, Utah Copper, Ward Baking B, and Woolworth.

Weakness of the Virginia-Carolina Chemical issues was based on the belief that the reorganization plan, which is expected this week, will leave little equity for the stocks.

Strength and activity of the Van Sweringen carriers was again the outstanding development of the rail group. Net gains of 1to nearly 3 points were recorded by Erie first and second preferred, "Nickel Plate" common and Chesapeake and Ohio common, the last named closing 2 1-2 points higher at 141 1-4 after having crossed 102 to a new high.

Call money ruled unchanged at 4 1-2 per cent. The time money and commercial paper markets were quiet with no change in rates.

Quotations on the foreign exchanges were extremely narrow and irregular, with the principal European rates disclosing a firm tone. Demand sterling ruled around $4.85 3-8 and French francs at 4.68 1-2 cents.

CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 10—(A. P.)—A sudden revival of activity and strength in American Rayon products, which scored an extreme gain of 5 1-2 points at 41 in apparent anticipation of an early inauguration of dividends, and another sensational gain of 12 1-2 points in American Light & Traction which touched a record top at 220, were the outstanding developments in today's irregularly lower curb market.

Oils were again reactionary on the announcements of additional gasoline price cuts. Red Bank broke 7 points to 28 and then rallied 2, while net losses of one to 2 points were recorded by Gulf of Pennsylvania, Humble, Ohio, Prairie Oil & Gas, Standard Oil of Kentucky and a few others.

Buying of the industrials was of a selective character. Fox film touched a record top at 61 1-2 on reports of high current earnings and Serv-El duplicated the year's high at 30 on buying influenced by the announcement that mportnt public utility interests had acquired a 50 per cent interest in the property. F. & W. Grand stores also reached new high ground in reflection of high current earnings.

Most of the public utilities fell back on profit taking, losses of a point or more being recorded by Commonwealtn Power, Electric Bond & Share, Power Corporation fo New York, Southeastern Power & Light, Middle West Utilities and a few others.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 10—(A. P.)—Bond prices moved irregularly lower in today's small volume of trading, fluctuations generally being confined to narrow limits, railroad liens, as a group, alone displayed an upward tendency, Chesapeake & Ohio convertible fives again forging ahead for a gain of three points to a new high at 112 3-4. Strength also was shown by Chicago & Alton 3 1-2s, St. Louis-San Francisco Income 6s, Illinois Central 5 1-2s ad Chicago & Great Western 4s, all of which advaced moderately. Union Pacific convertible 4s, Southern Railway general 4s and Southern Pacific refunding 4s receded fractionally.

Public utilities were heavy, Kansas City Power 5s, Public Service Corporation of New Jersey 6s and Public Service Electric Power & Light 6s showing small losses on the day.

Activity continued in Virginia-Carolina Chemical first mortgage 7s which have advanced nearly 3 points from the year's low in anticipation of favorable treatment in the forthcoming reorganization plan. International Mercantile Marine 6s moved up 1-2 and Bethlehem Steel 6s and also gained slightly. Further selling of Dodge Brothers 6s reflected the reported dissolution today of the offering syndicate.

Foreign bonds were mixed, city of Oslo 6s gaining 5-8 and Alton Jurgen 6s losing 1 1-2. Better demand for U. S. government loans resulted in fractional advances.

Public offering will be made tomorrow of $3,000,000 Laclede Gas Light company 6 1-2 per cent gold notes at prices to yield about 5.70 per cent.

Miss Ruth Selzer is at Pleasant View, R. I., for the remainder of the summer.

Levi Judson Leonard died suddenly Sunday at his home on South Second avenue. He had worked up until Saturday noon as an elevator operator for the Ponemah Mills, and his sudden death came as a shock to his many friends and to the community. Mr. Leonard was born in Cheshire, Mass., in 1870, the son of Charles Leonard and Sarah Woolworth Leonard. In 1907 he was united in marriage with Mrs. Albertine Bertha Benoit, who survives him with one daughter, Miss Isabelle Leonard. There is also a sister, Mrs. Cora Kern of Buffalo, N. Y., and two brothers, Frank, whose present address is unknown, and Arthur of North Adams, Mass. Mr. Leonard became a resident of the village in 1913, coming here from North Adams, Mass., where he followed the trade of a hostler. He was a member of no fraternal order or society, being a man who found his chief enjoyment in his home. Being a kind husband and father and a good friend, his loss will be keenly felt among his acquaintances.

Napoleon Phaneuf has returned to his home on South Second avenue, from a Hartford hospital, where he was being treated for eye trouble.

Miss Leona Fontaine of South Second avenue has returned after spending several weeks with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fontaine of Detroit, Michigan.

Mrs. Alfred Linderson and Wilfred Linderson of North Third avenue who are spending several weeks at their summer home in North Stonington, were at their home in town Monday. They were accompanied by Mrs. Linderson's mother, Mrs. Daniel Vergason of North Stonington.

BETTER LIGHT SIGNALS LESSEN DANGER AT RAIL CROSSINGS

Through the activities of the Eastern Connecticut Civic Association, better protection has been provided at railroad crossings at Jewett City, Plainfield, Moosup and other points in eastern Connecticut. The members of the association have long recognized the need of more protection for automobile drivers at these dangerous crossings where in the past few years a number of lives have been snuffed out by fast express trains.

The Eastern Connecticut Civic Association, during the session of the last legislature sent committees representing the various civic organizations of eastern Connecticut to Hartford in the interests of safety on the highways and in support of bills before the legislature to that end. They also appeared before the public utilities commission to call the attention of Commissioner C. C. Elwell and the engineer of the public utilities commission to the need of greater protection at the crossings.

They particularly called to mind the railroad crossing at Jewett City, station crossing at Plainfield, station crossing at Moosup, the crossing at Almyville, and the crossing at Sterling. They asked for better protection through the double flashlight system, an extra flagman and a new flood light at Jewett City all of which was granted by the commission and instructions given the officials of the N. Y. N. H., and Hartford railroad on the Providence and Willimantic and Norwich and Worcester divisions to see that these improvements are carried out.

Every one of the recommendations made by the Eastern Connecticut Civic Association's committee are now being put into effect. Obsolete signals that have done duty in the past are being removed and modern double flashlight systems being erected in their place.

The crossings at which these improvements are being carried out are extremely dangerous. Several of them have more or less blind approaches and it is difficult for drivers to see approaching trains until they are practically on the crossings. A number of lives have been lost in deplorable accidents at these crossings and machines have been reduced to wreckage by passenger and freight trains.

MAY HEAD STATE PROHIBITION FORCES

The report that Maj. Gen. John F. O'Ryan of New York city is a likely prohibition enforcement administrator for the New York-Connecticut district appears to be well founded, says a Washington despatch. The question seems to be not whether or not he can have the job but whether or not he will accept it. It is a delicate situation. General O'Ryan outranks General Andrews, the federal dry chief, on the retired list of the army.

General O'Ryan's name came to General Andrews as the answer to the latter's request of New York business men that they give him a suggestion. It is understood that Andrews looks upon the suggestion with favor, but that the hesitancy comes on the other side.

O'Ryan is considered a friend of prohibition and an able executive. During the war he was commanding officer of the Twenty-Seventh Division in France. He is also a lawyer. This combination of military and legal mind fits in exactly with what General Andrews is said to have been looking for for his 24 administrators. If he accepts the appointment Andrews, numerous friends of prohibition and others will be entirely satisfied.

It is hoped, however, that the boundaries of the New York-Connecticut district as announced a few weeks ago are not definite as yet. Not so long ago, it became known Monday, a suggestion by which New York city would be divorced from the rest of the district has been put up to Mr. Andrews. This would mean that Connecticut and part of eastern New York state would be made into a district and the probable location of the administrator's office would be New Haven. Consideration of this plan has gone so far that suggestions for the administrator of the district have been made. The man who is leading in the consideration, it is learned, is a New Englander and an army man. He has been connected with the enforcement organization under Commissioner Haynes for some time. It is quite impossible to secure his name for publication at this time, but it is generally known that he is one of the few higher officials among New England enforcement officers who is to have a good position under the reorganization.

In the first district, which includes all of New England except Connecticut, it transpires that Chief Stroup is still slated to be the new chief, but this only by the grace of Senator Butler. He is acceptable to some interests in Massachusetts but many enemies of him as prohibition administrator have been found in recent weeks.

No help for Director Putney of Connecticut has yet been found. Putney, according to all reports, has been slated to go from the start and is still headed in that direction. The Nutmeg State may become the headquarters for one of the new districts but the signs now point to a man from outside the state to become the administrator.

TO SHOW PAINTINGS AT CORCORAN GALLERY

The Lyme art association will have important representation in the Centennial Exhibition of the National Academy, which will open at the Corcoran Gallery in Washington and be brought to the Grand Central Galleries in New York in November.

Two canvasses now in the Lyme Exhibition will be shown in the centennial, "A May Morning," by Frank A. Bicknell and "The Red Barn" by Ernest Albert. Bruce Crane will be represented by "Golden Hills," Carleton Wiggins by "Holland Dunes," Will Howe Foote by "Gloucester Harbor," Ivan G. Olinsky by "Summer Time" and Guy Wiggins, whose work in the gallery this year is attracting interested attention as the most modernistic of all the canvasses, will exhibit his "Quiet Valley," which was awarded the Murphy Memorial prize and purchased by the Ranger Fund and presented to the Rhode Island School of Design. William S. Robinson, whose "Laurel" was awarded the Museum purchase prize this year, will have a landscape in the Academy exhibition as will George H. Bogert and Frank DuMond, and Robert Vonnoh will have a portrait. Only members and associates of the Academy will exhibit in the centennial.

Other important exhibitions in many parts of the country have secured works of Lyme painters for showing during the coming season. "Montana Mountains" one of the Guy Wiggins canvasses which has marked his departure into new technique and spirit, will be hung in the Pan-American Exhibition, which will open the new Art Museum in Los Angeles, Wilson Irvine and James Goodwin McManus will have place in the Art Institute in Chicago, as will others of the Lyme group, and Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Detroit and other cities will feature the work of various Lyme Association members in important art events.

The Happy Nine Pinochle club held their 4th outing Saturday. The members trolleyed to New London at 8.45 a. m. and then they took the sail to Greenport, L. I., on the "Shinnecock" and on the return from Greenport they went to Ocean Beach. The members all had a very pleasant trip and enjoyed the beautiful scenery along the sound. They had as their guest: Mrs. F. Stebbins of Jewett City and Mrs. Albert of this city. The members are: Mrs. K. Steinke, Mrs. C. Grebe, Mrs. J. Grochowski, Mrs. R. Gley, Mrs. H. Leipold, Mrs F. Rosseler, Mrs A. Sabinski, Mrs. J. Opitz, and Miss M. Opitz.

REGISTRATION CERTIFICATES ISSUED FOR CATTLE

Registration certificates for 4,040 head of cattle were issued by James M. Whittlesey, commissioner of domestic animals, during July. These included 228 in the accredited herd class, 1,324 officials tuberculin tested and 2,494 that were given first tests. Native cattle in 139 herds, totalling 2,264 head, were tested, 472 head being condemned and four ordered under quarantine. Retests were given 247 head of imported cattle for breeding and dairy purposes, all tests being favorable, with no reactors.

Twenty-three permits were issued for importation of horses, 132 coming into the state during the month. The number of chickens imported for immediate slaughter was 93,108, while 9,880 hogs and thirty-five sheep were also imported during the month.

Notice of the binding over to the superior court of Francis Antonlack and Charles Laskey by the Montville town court has been filed with the clerk of the superior court in this city. Antonlack and Laskey are the men charged with attacking Federal Officer Harry Avery in Montville some weeks ago. They will come up for trial in the criminal court this fall.

NORWICH TOWN

Miss Mary Flynn, of Yantic and Everett Friese of Norwich were united in marriage Monday morning at nine o'clock, by Rev. Charles W. Brennan the pastor, at the Sacred Heart rectory in Norwich Town. The bridesmaid was Miss Barbara Friese of Norwich, sister of the groom. The best man was Edward S. Flynn, brother of the bride. After the ceremony the bridal party returned to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Flynn of Yantic, where dinner was served to a large company. There were about 40 present, including friends and relatives from Norwich, New York, Hartford and South Manchester also Mr. and Mrs. Adams and infant from Florida. The bride wore a daintry white canton crepe dress and a white hat. She carried a bouquet of white asters. The maid of honor wore a dress of honey-dew tint with hat to match.

After the wedding dinner, Miss Barbara Friese played a number of selections on the piano, also there were popular numbers on the victrola. The bride presented her maid of honor a silver mesh-bag. The groom's gift to the best man was a pair of cuff-buttons. The groom's present to the bride was a string of pearls.

Mr. and Mrs. Fishbone of Yantic with neighborly kindness drove the bridal couple to the rectory where they were married.

The bride received many beautiful gifts of silver, cut glass, china, linen, gold pieces and a piano. Mr. and Mrs. Friese left on a honeymoon trip to Buffalo, New York; also will visit Niagara Falls. On there return they are to reside on Asylum street, Norwich.

In his sermon at the Sunday morning worship at the First Methodist Episcopal church, the pastor, Rev. James B. Aldrich, preached from Psalms 92:15. To shew that the Lord is upright: He is my rock, and there is no unrighteousness in Him. Millard Manning was leader of the Young People's Christian Endeavor service in the evening. The topic was The Benefits of Wholesome Play. Mark 6:31,32; Luke 2:52. Owing to Willimantic Camp meeting there will be no services at the Methodist church, for two weeks, Sunday, Aug. 16th and Sunday, Aug. 23rd. The last Sunday of the month services will be resumed.

"Mary," Luke 10:38-42, is the topic assigned to the mid-week service for conference and prayer, of the Congregational church, Thursday evening.

The annual picnic of the First Congregational Sunday school was held Friday at Ocean Beach, instead of Thursday, as was at first scheduled owing to unfavorable weather conditions. About sixty went by special trolley car, leaving the chapel about 9:25. Several went by automobile. The luncheon and bathing were special features of the day. The party reached Norwich about 6 o'clock, on the return trip.

Miss Rose Matassa, of Town street, left Monday morning to pass a week at Marblehead, Mass., where she will be joined by her sister, Miss Susie Matassa, R. N., of Boston. Before returning home, Miss Rose Matassa will go to Rocky Hill, Conn., where she will be the guest, for a week, of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Sherwood (Dorothy Rawson), formerly of Norwich.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Smith, of Brooklyn, Conn., spent Sunday at the home of Mr. Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan L. Smith, 30 Town street. Their son Albert, returned home with them after a visit of a week at the home of his grandparents.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. House, Mrs. Elizabeth R. Kinney and son William, of Town street, motored to Westerly Monday evening to call on Mrs. Kinney's nephew, Charles Lamphere and family, of Oklahoma, who have been guests for the past ten days of Mr. Lamphere's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Mooney.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Thompson and daughter, Dorothy Thompson, of Hartford, were guests recently of Mrs. A. Maud Smith, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Smith. Returning with the Thompson family was Mrs. Smith's daughter, Beatrice Smith, who has been their guest for the past week or more.

The household goods of Miss Mary H. Paddock, were moved last week from Washington street, where Miss Paddock has resided the last few years, to the storage rooms of N. S. Gilbert & Sons.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rowley and William Veedy have returned to New York, following a visit of two weeks with Mrs. Rowley's aunt, Miss Mary Ann McGarry, of Town street. Mrs. Rowley is a sister of Miss Nellie McGarry, of Washington street.

After a vacation of fifteen days, Letter Carrier Frank E. Sterry, of Lee avenue, resumed his route through the Norwich Town section, Monday morning.

PROGRAMME FOR THE LEGION CONVENTION

The programme for the annual state convention of the American Legion to be held at New London Aug. 27, 28 and 29, has been announced by Col. Henry S. Dorsey, who has been directing the arrangements for the convention.

Preceding the opening of the convention, a final meeting of the state executive committee will be held at the Mohican hotel August 26. Registration of delegates will begin at 9 o'clock the following morning at convention headquarters in the state armory. Between 9 and 10 o'clock the convention will be called to order by Department Commander Edward L. White of New Haven. Rev. Daniel Manning, of Waterbury, department chaplain, will then offer an invocation, which will be followed by an address of welcome by Mayor Waldo E. Clarke.

Business of the morning session will include the announcement of the committee on credentials, rules, constitution and by-laws. The district caucuses will select their district chairmen and convention committeemen. When this has been completed announcement will be made of the various convention committees. Recess for luncheon will be declared at 12 o'clock.

The afternoon session will be called to order at 2 o'clock. Convention committee meetings will then be held. The most important feature of this session will be the assembly of district caucuses to elect a state executive committee. Prior to adjournment there will be a meeting of the state fund chairman. The evening will be devoted to a smoker and entertainment to delegates at the state armory.

At 9.30 o'clock the morning of August 28, the second day of the convention will be opened with a series of reports by the convention committee, department commander, department adjutant, department treasurer and by the standing department committees. Recess will be taken at 12 o'clock.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the grand voiture 40 and 9 convention will be opened. Grand Chief de Gare Harold T. Dyson of Hartford will preside. Other officers in attendance will be Grand Chief de Train John H. Cruise of New London, Cheminot National Harry J. Fisher of New Haven and Grand Conductor J. R. Sullivan of Waterbury. Voiture officers urge that those desiring admittance make application through their post officers before the convention in order to save last minute confusion.

The annual golf tourney of the state department will be held at the Shennecossett Country club links, Eastern Point, at 2.30 o'clock. This tourney is open to all Legionaires. A sail either up the Thames or across the sound to Fishers Island is being arranged for 3 o'clock. The boat will leave the municipal pier at the foot of State street and all Legionaires will be accommodated.

At 7.30 o'clock in the evening the Grande Voiture promenade will ebe held, following which the initiation ceremony will be held at the state armory. The line of march will be as follows: Formation on Washington street opposite the armory: Washington to Truman; Truman to Blinman; Blinman to Bank; Bank to State; around the soldiers' and sailors' monument up State to Huntington and back to the convention hall. Those who do not attend the voiture initiations may enjoy themselves at dancing or night bathing at Ocean Beach.

The final session of the convention will open at 9 o'clock August 29 with the reading of committee reports. This will be followed by the election of department officers. James A. Drain, national commander, and Major General Clarence L. Edwards are among noted guests who will address the convention Saturday morning. A mammoth street parade over the line of march already described will be held at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

DECREASE IN NUMBER OF CONNECTICUT BIRTHS

Reports of 2,371 births were received for May as compared with 2,751 for the corresponding month in 1924, a decrease of 380 says the monthly bulletin issued by the state department of health.

The mean number of births over the period of 1920 to 1924 is 2,774. The number of births reported for 1925, 2,371, is 403 below this mean. It must be borne in mind that the sample analysis is small. However, the variation of the month from the mean is significant. The mathematical discussion, while indicating the significance of the variation, in no way points out the cause or causes of the decrease.

An increased number of births were reported from only 14 out of 47 towns over 5,000 in population and of these 14 only 3 reported increases of 10 or more. These towns are the following, in each case the numbers immediately following the town being the increase: Bridgeport 20; New Haven 19; Windham 13.

During the month reports of 102 stillbirths were received an increase of 12 over the number reported in 1924, namely, 90. If the births and stillbirths be combined, and the monthly stillbirth rate per 1,000 be calculated, there will result for 1925 a rate of 41.3 and for 1924 a rate of 33.5. The difference in these rates is 7.8 showing, as might have been suspected, that the increase is not significant.

Deaths

The deaths reported for the month numbered 1,485, an increase of 143 over 1,342 reported in 1924 for May. If the death rate be figured as monthly death rates per 1,000 population a rate of 6.96 appears for 1925 as compared with a rate of 6.90 for 1924.

Williams, both of Hartford, representing the Connecticut Humane society on different occasions last week visited, Norwich, New London and other places in this section of the state, in the interests of the society.

TOOK PART IN C. E. MEETING AT LEBANON

Rev. Edward Huntington Smith who preached at the First Congregational church, Sunday morning was scheduled to have a part in the Young People's Christian Endeavor service, at Lebanon Congregational church, Sunday evening.

Eitel Friedrich, second son of ex-Emperor William II, calls himself farmer in the new city directory of Potsdam. He omits the long list of military and hereditary titles which the Hohenzollerns have thus far added to their names in the city and telephone directories. The designation of prince is part of his name under post-revolutionary German law, and not a title.

POETRY

MORNING IN AUGUST.

Fragrant odor of the dawn,
Sweet incense to waking souls,
While the fresh dew spreads the law.
And your spirit day controls,
Let me, underneath this tree
Standing, be possessed of thee.

See the robin in a dream
Poising on a grassy bank;
Hear, beneath, the singing stream,
In a meadow dewy-dank;
See the mother-pearly tips
Of the pink-white sorrel's lips.

Now adown the hilly slope,
Like a father, steps the sun,
And the pretty blossoms ope
Wide their eyelids, one by one;
And they seem to stir and say
Lisped prayers unto the day.

He who sleeps at dawn indeed
To more wonders than he knows;
Let me forth and softly tread
Where the sun's water flows,
Where the cool of dewy dawn
Flings his shadow down the lawn.

Let me feel, and yet be still;
Let me take, and yet not keep;
Drink, till I have drunk my fill;
Then anew go forth and live.
Man has little honeyed pleasure
Unmixed in his manhood's measure.

KALEIDOSCOPE

The seaweeds of the Sargasso sea are floating perennials which by continuous growth replace decaying parts and perpetuate themselves vegetatively rather than by forming any sort of fruit or flower.

North Dakota, with 14.1 per cent of its population under five years of age, has more babies to 100 inhabitants than any other state in the union, while the District of Columbia, with only 7 per cent, has the fewest.

It is said that the northeastern United States within a line drawn from Boston to Buffalo to Pittsburgh and to Philadelphia is the only region in the whole western hemisphere that compares in density of population with China, India, and central and southern Europe.

The breaking of an egg on the wedding day is still common among some peoples. The practice was generally observed in France as late as the seventeenth century, when a bride, in order to be happy in her marriage, trod upon and broke an egg when she entered her new home after the marriage ceremony.

Noise and turmoil affect the health and well being of babies as well as grown people, according to a report of the London representative of the American Medical Association. St. Andrews Institute for clinical research in a survey of 457 infants found that certain children brought up in noisy and unrestful surroundings failed to thrive in spite of the most careful regulation of diet. With quiet and peace, the youngsters recovered and developed normally.

Men's hats of olden days afforded the Berlin public much amusement during an exhibit of clothing, held to contrast the styles of the last 100 years with the styles of today. High hats, much taller than those worn today, and as shaggy as a Newfoundland dog, appeared in the windows of many haberdashers. Curious straw hats lent by museums also produced broad smiles among the throngs which gathered about show windows. Many of these were shaped like old-fashioned silk hats, and were made of bambo and oriental grasses.

ALL UNION COAL MINERS TO CONSOLIDATE IN DEMANDS

United Mine Workers to Contend That in Case of Government Intervention the 500,000 Soft Coal Miners Must Be Considered Jointly With the 185,000 Anthracite Miners —Operators Have Maintained That Union Strategy Sought Redress of Wrongs in Soft Coal Fields Through Hard Coal Pressure Upon Public Authorities—Miners Have Denied the Contention.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 11.—(By the Associated Press)—It was [illegible] today from an authority high [illegible] confidence that the [illegible] policy of the United Mine [illegible] of America is to demand that government intervention in the [illegible] industry take into account the agreement in soft coal.

From now on, it was said, wage [illegible] conditions affecting 175,000 [illegible] miners and 500,000 soft coal [illegible] must be considered jointly by [illegible] as the mediator to gain co[illegible] from the miners' union.

While the operators recently asked relief that the key to the [illegible] strategy this summer was a [illegible] to win redress of alleged wrongs in soft coal fields [illegible] pressure upon public [illegible]

United Mine Workers deny they now assume it is stated [illegible] breaking off of negotiations Aug. [illegible] from that, pledge to the [illegible] to be signed [illegible] provisions divorced [illegible]

Any intervention now, it was said, would seek to heal rifts [illegible] break, [illegible] shortage in coal, [illegible] suspension should also [illegible] of wage cutting and re[illegible] the Jacksonville con[illegible] in union bituminous [illegible] President John L. [illegible] his associates.

An alternative to rejection [illegible] condition would be [illegible] continued. Conditions in [illegible] industry were described as [illegible] of flux so that a policy [illegible] prompted by the union now [illegible] to be changed if [illegible] urged later. The chance [illegible] said to be against [illegible] [illegible] official indication has [illegible] here as to what [illegible] developed since June 30 [illegible] President Lewis gave his assent [illegible] Tri-district Anthracite [illegible] Scranton.

"The Jacksonville agreement has [illegible] and I am calling the [illegible] government and of [illegible] people today to this [illegible] avoid the instances and [illegible] the names of the men [illegible] this action, and if this [illegible] continues it may be necessary later on to authorize a national [illegible] of the mines of this country [illegible] government and the coal [illegible] and the representatives of [illegible] miners discuss the question [illegible] the Jacksonville agreement [illegible] to be carried out."

The situation continued" until [illegible] two weeks ago in the adjudication [illegible] United Mine Workers was [illegible] John Van A. Bittner, chief union organizer in West Virginia, regarding Mr. Lewis' warning, in telegrams to Secretary of Commerce Hoover and Secretary of Labor [illegible]

[illegible] to them has yet been received either Secretary Hoover [illegible] Davis according to union [illegible] It is open talk in miners' [illegible] that it was because of Secretary Hoover's silence in this regard [illegible] Murray, international union [illegible] president, was unable to attend the conference Mr. Hoover called [illegible] the capital last week to discuss [illegible] reorganization of the bureau of mines. Mr. Murray sent in his place an aide [illegible] said to be sufficiently out of touch with deeper details of union [illegible] to prevent his discussing them [illegible] if the subject arose.

To further contradiction of the operators' statement that Mr. Lewis was seeking to "embroil" hard and soft coal as a means of creating a national [illegible] which would force the government to validate the Jacksonville agreement, the union officials were said to defend the linking of the two [illegible] coal problem on moral grounds [illegible] government intervention in hard coal. [illegible] position was quoted, would be [illegible] quasi-judicial in character. It [illegible] be considered equivalent to setting up a sort of "coal court" on a [illegible] issue and that issue, the best [illegible] costs of hard coal consumers.

However, such a "court," according the union, could not claim jurisdiction in good faith without being willing to consider all reasonable issues. The union accordingly was prepared to insist, it was said, that the "victimizing" of a half million union soft coal diggers as a result of wholesale scrapping of the Jacksonville agreement was essentially a reasonable issue. Further, it was said, the union would insist that, in point of time, if [illegible] no other reason, it was also a senior issue. The union would ask, and for that matter has asked, that the Jacksonville agreement precede a hard coal suspension on any such calendar.

The probable imminence of some [illegible] climax in the soft coal labor situation is apparent even to outsiders here in the amount of attention President Lewis is seen to be giving to the question. Hardly had hard coal operators and union leaders gone their way after the wreck of their conference last week than soft coal operators and representatives of the union began to arrive. Continuous conferences have been the day's business at the Lewis headquarters at the Hotel Ambassador ever since.

The actual merits of the controversy over the Jacksonville pact vary meanwhile with the side stating them.

Union bituminous coal mine owners who are alleged to have broken the agreement after once signing it, explain that competition of West Virginia non-union fields, where lower wages prevail, has made the higher scale set by the present union agreement impossible to pay. They say it has become just a question whether union miners want to accept a wage reduction commensurate with the scale in West Virginia fields, or whether they wish to insist upon the Jacksonville scale and remain idle.

To which miners return that there is a fixed market for a fixed amount of union soft coal, that wage reduction would not affect the amount of that tonnage, and that, therefore, any cut would be reflected in reduced miners' income exclusively.

The union further asserts that the Jacksonville agreement was originally sponsored, not by the union, but by the United States government itself, in the person of Secretary Hoover. It is the government's place, then, the union says, to rectify any inequalities. That is why the government would be asked to consider this matter if it in turn asked the mine union to accept its auspices for reconsideration of a hard coal walkout.

Until the government does take action in soft coal, however, according to the union's position, the union considers a contract a contract, and contract breaking to be contract breaking and holds violators correspondingly liable.

SIXTH ANNIVERSARY OF GERMAN CONSTITUTION

BERLIN, Aug. 11.—(AP)—Strong pleas for national unity and stirring appeals to the individual citizen for unselfish service in the cause of the German republic constituted the keynote of today's official utterances on the occasion of the sixth anniversary of the adoption of the constitution of Weimar.

For the first time since the formal observance of the anniversary, members of the German nationalist party, which is made up of die-hard monarchists, took formal part in the ceremonies in the Reichstag chamber. The ceremonies were given added significance through the presence of President Von Hindenburg, who heartily joined in the lusty cheers for the republic proposed by Chancellor Luther, and also in signing "Deutschland Uber Alles."

Dr. Hermann Platz, professor of French history at Bonn university, in his oration in the Reichstag, said he believed republican convictions still were a bit lukewarm in many German breasts. He told his auditors that Germany was not entirely at the mercy of destiny, but that the nation's salvation rested in the hands of each individual.

"German youth and the German Rhine are the sources from which we must draw renewed faith," Dr. Platz asserted, and then incidentally added: "We must emancipate ourselves from this mad tendency to permit our national life to become Americanized; we must find out way back to the German soul."

HELD FOR DEATH OF JOHN ANDERSON, JR., OF COVENTRY

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 11.—(AP)—Alfred C. Clouet, of this city, was held criminally responsible for the death of John Anderson, Jr., of Coventry, who was killed in an automobile accident in East Haven Sunday morning, in a finding handed down today by Coroner Eli Mix. Coroner Mix found that Clouet was intoxicated at the time of the accident.

Anderson, a paper maker, together with his brother-in-law, Alfred Schmedding, stopped on Main street, East Haven, to repair a tire on their automobile. As they were preparing to leave, the machine operated by Clouet struck Schmedding who was injured, and hit Anderson with such force that he died a few hours later in the hospital.

OBITUARY

John T. Taggart

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—(AP)—John T. "Bull" Taggart, a dominating figure in the building trades labor affairs for many years business agent of the Metallic Leathers Union, died today in the union offices of a heart attack.

Although he occupied a commanding position in building trade union affairs for years, Taggart's name was virtually unknown outside the industry until the Lockwood committee began its investigation in 1920. Then it appeared that he was one of the closest friends and advisers of Robert P. Brindell, the acknowledged boss of the building trade unions.

So close was this connection that Samuel Untermyer, special counsel for the committee, sought to subpoena him. Process servers attempted for almost a year but failed to serve their papers. Later, when Brindell was lodged in Sing Sing for extortion, Taggart was one of his most frequent visitors and it was in his automobile that Brindell's family sat when the deposed leader was caught holding clandestine meetings outside the prison walls. During the Lockwood investigation, Mr. Untermyer brought out the fact that the Metallic Lathers' Union had voted Taggart a life contract as business agent. This contract was later revoked by the union under presure from the committee.

RULING ON TAXATION OF MONEY IN BANK

HARTFORD, Aug. 11.—(AP)—Money on deposit in Connecticut, which forms a part of the estate of any person who was the resident of another state, should not be subject to a tax here, providing similar reciprocal taxing procedure is maintained in the other state, Attorney General Frank E. Healy rules in an opinion given Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett.

The attorney general declares that in construing the reciprocal non-resident tax act passed by the 1923 general assembly a broad interpretation should be given the words "tangible personal property." He finds that it was the evident intention that these words should include "moneys on deposit," within their meaning, in the list of properties non-taxible under the act.

New York Mayoralty Grows More Complex

Republican Citizens' Ticket to Meet With Contest in Primaries.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—(AP)—New York's mayoralty campaign, already spluttering with the fireworks of internal dissension in the democratic camp, became further kaleidoscopic today when it was announced that the republican-citizens' ticket, also will be contested in the primaries.

Although Frank D. Waterman, fountain pen manufacturer, was virtually the unanimous choice of republican leaders to head their ticket, William M. Bennett, defeated republican candidate in the election of 1917, today announced that he would oppose the nomination. He said that he had obtained the necessary signatures to enter the primaries and would conduct a strong campaign throughout the city. Mr. Bennett said that he would run alone and would not contest the rest of the ticket named yesterday. He declined to give any reasons for entering the fight.

Announcement of Mr. Bennett's intentions, however, was met with little concern by republican leaders who expressed the opinion that he could muster only a small following against Mr. Waterman.

Mr. Bennett captured the republican nomination for mayor in the primaries of 1917 when he opposed the renomination of the late Mayor John Purroy Mitchel who died the next year in an airplane accident while in the United States aviation service. In the election, however, Mr. Bennett was overwhelmingly defeated by Mayor Hylan.

Meanwhile the fight for the democratic nomination between adherents of Mayor Hylan and State Senator James J. Walker, grew hotter today and at length entered the board of estimate where Tammany leaders accused the mayor of making primary speeches. In the midst of a bus hearing, in which Mayor Hylan had denounced the "traction interests," Joseph Johnson, commissioner of public works for Manhattan, said: "If you are going to turn the board of estimate into a political meeting, I can do the same." Thereupon he asserted that Senator Walker had champioined the five cent fare all his public life, while the mayor vainly rapped for order.

Mayor Hylan finally retorted that both the republican-citizens' and the Walker slate were part of a "traction oligarchy."

Tammany's fear that Mayor Hylan might enter the election on his own ticket in case the primaries went against him, was allayed today when John H. McCooey, Brooklyn leader, and chief of Hylan campaign forces, announced that his faction would abide by the primary results.

GENERAL BUILDING STRIKE THREATENS NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 11.—(AP)—At a meeting of striking laborers, and plasterers' helpers today, it was decided to give local contractors until five o'clock tomorrow afternoon to yield to the men's demands of an increase in pay. If the increase was not granted, it was said at the meeting that practically the entire building operations in New Haven would be curtailed, involving work estimated to cost $2,000,000. It was declared that all allied building unions were in sympathy with the laborers and that practically all of the unions except the bricklayers would call a strike in sympathy if the master builders did not concede to the demands.

The strikers have been out since July 28, when the contractors refused to grant an increase of ten cents an hour to the laborers and twenty cents an hour to the plasterers' helpers.

It was reported at the meeting that the plumbers, electricians, carpenters, roofers and others were ready to act in sympathy with those now on strike. The claim also was made that Mayor Fitzgerald had attempted to arrange a meeting of the master builders in an attempt to arrange for arbitration of the dispute but that the contractors refused. It was announced tonight, however, that a meeting of the master builders will be held tomorrow at which time a decision will be reached with regards to the demands of the men.

EARL OF YPRES LEFT ESTATE TO SOLICITOR

LONDON, Aug. 11.—(AP)—Some surprise was caused today when the will of the late Field Marshall the Earl of Ypres was filed for probate it was found that the had left his entire estate of 25,161 pounds to Edward Geoffrey Cox, his solicitor, and that the last testament, which consisted of only eight lines, did not mention the earl's widow nor his two sons and a daughter.

The bequest of the earl did not come as a surprise to his widow. However, she said tonight that she and her children had been informed of the field marshal's intentions some time ago.

"We have known about the will for some time," the countess declared. "There was no secret about it. I always knew my husband intended leaving his money to Mr. Cox, who was his life-long friend."

Friends of the late earl asserted that they had understood he made personal gifts of money to his wife and children. They added that he had been possessed of a larger fortune than that mentioned in his will.

The countess of Ypres has a somewhat large private fortune.

The present earl and his mother will vacate the Ypres family house in London, which is part of the late earl's estate and will go to Mr. Cox.

FRENCH AVIATOR HAS ARRIVED IN MOSCOW

PARIS, Aug. 11.—(AP)—The French aviator, Captain Arrachart, who is attempting to make an air tour of Europe in three days, arrived in Moscow this afternoon from Constantinople. He flew from Paris to the Turkish city yesterday at an average speed of 127.3 miles an hour. The third leg of the flight will be back to Paris tomorrow.

MIXED JURY SELECTED TO TRY DOROTHY ELLINGSON

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.—A jury composed of six men and six women was selected today to try Dorothy Ellingson, 17 year old matricide, on a charge of murder. The girl confessed to shooting her mother to death on the morning of January 13, but later repudiated the written statement she gave the police.

Adoption of Mary Louise Spas Annulled

Girl Fails to Display Affection For Her Former Benefactor.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—(AP)—An order annulling the adoption of Mary Louise Spas by Edward W. Browning was entered today in the surrogate's court of Queens county, formally closing the romantic episode which began a week ago when she was selected from 12,000 applicants to be his foster daughter.

An agreement to the revocation signed by both principals and by Mary's father and mother, was placed on record by Surrogate Noble. Under its provisions the girl waived all claims to the Browning fortune, and with her relatives agreed never to bring legal action on the basis of the adoption. There was no cash settlement of any kind, Browning declared.

With unusual stoicism the girl signed the agreement. But she failed to display the affection that previously characterized her attitude toward her former benefactor when they appeared in public. Declining his offer of the use of his limousine, as they left the courthouse Mary and her parents entered a taxi. Browning leaving the court house directed the driver to drive to his hotel.

"A farefell dinner" was held in Browning's hotel suite from which reporters were excluded. Later the Spas family left for their home in Astoria, which was reported to have been sold today. Mary told reporters she intended to enter a convent.

"I am disillusioned," she cried, "and I want to go some where to forget everything. My life has been ruined."

Mary Louise's appearance had undergone a pronounced change since she went into hiding Sunday. The Mary Pickford curls had been done up in an elaborate coiffure. She wore one of the coats Browning had given her, though the pearls and other jewelry were not in evidence.

"As far as I am concerned the entire matter is closed," Mr. Browning announced. "What the girl intends to do is outside of my jurisdiction. I have made absolutely no financial provisions for her. She told me she planned to enter a convent, though her parents later informed me she was not in favor of it."

INTIMATION THAT SEC'Y WEEKS IS TO RESIGN IN FALL

SWAMSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 11—(AP)—An intimation was given here today by Secretary Weeks after a conference with President Coolidge that he might not return to his post in the fall.

Leaving his residence alone for the first time since he was stricken seriously ill in Washington early in the spring, the war secretary motored to [illegible] court late today and conferred for a half hour with the president. He described the visit as social.

Mr. Weeks declared later his return to Washington hinged considerably on his complete recovery by heaton. He added he had many things he wished to do while at his summer home. Although looking well, he said under physicians' care and is spending his time entirely in resting.

President Coolidge visited Mr. Weeks at his residence at Gloucester, Mass., several weeks ago and announced then that he expected the cabinet member to resume his post in the fall. This plan now appears uncertain. The secretary will leave his Gloucester home on Thursday to go to his summer residence at Manchester, N. H.

As a result of the serious illness of the secretary and the probability of his retirement several names have been mentioned as a possible successor, including Charles D. Hilles, Republican National Committeeman from New York, and Dwight Davis of Missouri, now acting secretary. Mr. Hilles conferred here with the president earlier in the summer.

POMOLOGICAL SOCIETY AND DAIRYMEN TO MEET

FIRST DEBT PROPOSAL BY BELGIUM NOT ACCEPTABLE

Members of the Debt Commissions Declined to Discuss the Terms Which the Belgians Proposed—It is Generally Regarded That the Initial Proposal Becomes Merely the Working Bases From Which the Negotiations Proceed —The Two Commissions Will Meet Again Today to Resume Their Negotiations.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11—(By the Associated Press)—Belgium's first proposal for the refunding of its $480,000,000 war debt to the United States was found unacceptable today by the American commission.

The two commissions will meet again tomorrow to resume their discussions in an effort to arrive at terms that will be acceptable to both sides.

Some officials said it was not at all surprising that the commissions were unable to agree on the first proposition put forward; that usually this becomes merely the working basis from which the negotiations proceed.

Attention was called that an identic situation arose at the outset of the parleys between the British and American commissions and thereafter a speedy agreement was reached. Some of those participating expressed the opinion that the present negotiation might be concluded by the end of the week.

In compliance with an understanding reached at the outset, members of the commission declined to discuss the terms which the Belgians had proposed nor would they confirm reports that a moratorium had been included in the proposal.

The Belgian proffer of settlement was made at a joint session held in the day. The Americans took it under advisement, and at a separate meeting later they decided that the proposal was not such as might be expected to meet with the approval of congress.

The Belgians were informed of this decision at a second joint session, and then adjournment was taken until tomorrow so the visitors might consider the answer of the Americans.

MISS HARRISON AGAIN TO ATTEMPT CHANNEL SWIM

BOULOGNE, France, Aug. 11—Lillian Harrison may use woman's prerogative and change her mind and again attempt this year to swim the English channel.

The Argentine girl, who on Monday night was taken from the channel in a semi-conscious condition after a swim from Cape Gris to a point about eight miles off Dover, was examined today by a physician, who pronounced her fit to try again if she so desired. Later she said she thought she would have another try at the goal which four times she already has missed.

In the opinion of Dr Dessen who examined Miss Harrison, she had been in[illegible] exposed for Monday's swim and [illegible] had no suspicion of sufficient [illegible] before starting.

Grief-stricken came into Boulogne late afternoon on a shopping tour. She said she had not decided whether she would again start training tomorrow or Thursday. She hopes to make her attempt to swim the channel some time around August 17, when tidal conditions probably will be good.

BRIAND AND CHAMBERLAIN DISCUSSING SECURITY PACT

LONDON, Aug. 11—(A. P.)—The conversations between Aristide Briand, the French foreign minister, and Austen Chamberlain the British foreign secretary, dealing with a security pact with Germany, "are proceeding satisfactorily."

This was the laconic announcement made in a communication issued by the German office tonight. It tended to confirm the impression prevailing unofficially that everything thus far is moving smoothly between the French and British statesmen with regard to a [illegible] of their governments to Germany's last note on the security proposals.

M. Briand received the newspapermen at the conclusion of today's conference, while he declined to answer questions in any detail, he said he was very much satisfied with the progress that had been made. He and Mr. Chamberlain had gone over the proposed French reply to the German note word by word, but they had not yet finished their task.

"But we hope to do so tomorrow," M. Briand added. "I expect to leave for Paris on Thursday."

$250,000 WORTH NARCOTICS CONCEALED IN CACHE

CHICAGO, Aug. 11—(A. P.)—Reports that Colonel Will Gray Beach, veteran chief of narcotics agents here, who was arrested yesterday with three of his agents, had revealed a secret cache where $250,000 worth of narcotics were stored were denied tonight by federal officials.

Patrick Roche, of the intelligence unit of the internal revenue bureau who directed the arrest of Beach and his operatives on charges of trading narcotics to peddlers for stolen merchandise, said that Colonel Beach had "made damaging admissions" but had not told of a narcotic cache or made any written confession.

The 53-year-old deposed chief, a native of Tennessee, and for thirty years in the government service, was closely guarded during the day after he had hinted that he might attempt suicide.

While government agents reported that Colonel Beach said he had the narcotic cache and also admitted that several thousand dollars worth of merchandise found in his rooms may have been stolen, he denied that he had given narcotics to peddlers in exchange for the stolen merchandise.

BOY'S SKULL FRACTURED WHEN HIT BY TRUCK

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 11—(A. P.)—Theodore Durkin, 12 years old, died at St. Raphael's hospital tonight from a fractured skull which he sustained at noon today when he was struck by a truck operated by John Payne, of Hamden. Payne was taken to the office of Coroner Eli Mix, who is making an investigation.

Payne was driving in Perry street when an ice wagon passed in front of his truck. As Payne was about to cross the intersection of Fox street, the boy is said to have jumped off the rear of the ice wagon in the path of the truck.

WOMAN KILLED WHEN AUTOMOBILE HIT TREE

PLAINVILLE, Aug. 11—(A. P.)—Miss Rose Minone, 21 years old, of this place, was killed in Pine street here tonight when an automobile operated by Louis Riccio, of Bristol, in which she was riding, struck a tree. She was thrown out and her jugular vein was cut by flying glass. After the accident she ran 800 feet to her own home where she collapsed, dying fifteen minutes later. Riccio claims that he was blinded by the lights of a passing trolley car and an automobile.

The police are investigating and are not holding Riccio.

FATALITIES AND DAMAGE BY TORNADO IN HOLLAND

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 11—(A. P.)—Several were killed, many injured and an immense amount of damage done by a storm of tornado violence, seldom experienced in Holland, which struck the country yesterday evening.

Accounts still are fragmentary because of the destruction of communication but isolated dispatches state that a terrific rain accompanied by violent lightning, thunder and hail, swept across the provinces of Brabant, Gelderland, and Overyssel from the southwest to the northeast.

It first struck the important railway junction of Roosendaal where the entire glass roof of the big station was ripped off.

The cities are increased in violence over Breda. In one village six were killed, many injured and sixty houses destroyed.

The commune of Dorpelo has fared worse than any other district from which reports have been received, it being estimated that the damage there will reach 1,000,000 florins, (about $400,000). Much damage also is reported from the important industrial and textile regions of Overyssel, but details are lacking.

The center of the storm was in Enschede, which has 5,000 inhabitants. Two thousand of them are homeless; the rest are living in the ruins of their houses.

The governor of the province of Gelderland has arrived at Roosendaal and the roads being impassable for vehicles because of fallen trees.

Queen Wilhelmina has sent a message to inquire regarding the extent of the disaster and public subscriptions have been opened for the victims many of whom carried no insurance [illegible] storm of such magnitude.

15 MEN HELD FOR RIOTING AT KU KLUX KLAN MEETING

FRAMINGHAM, Mass., Aug. [illegible] (AP)—Alonzo Fo[illegible] most seriously injured of the five East Sudbury shooting [illegible] said to be in [illegible] condition at the Framingham [illegible] surgeons will probe for [illegible] and which still [illegible] less complicated [illegible] over. It was said.

William Bl[illegible] the disorder which followed the Klan meeting, is rapidly recovering from two facial wounds at the hospital. Two other three wounded were also receiving comfortably at their homes.

Today 60 of the 75 men arrested last night after the shooting broke up the klan meeting on an East Sudbury farm, were released after Captain Parker of the state constabulary and state police ended their investigation. The other 15 were held in $200 bail for appearance on August 19 when they were arraigned today before Judge Blodgett in the first district court here on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon.

One of those held was Perley W. Libby, upon whose farm the klan meeting was held. It was in Libby's house that the Klansmen took shelter when, they claimed, stones were hurled at them by watchers along the road. Libby was arrested on August 2 in Dedham following riot at a klan meeting in Westwood at which five were injured. He was then charged with carrying concealed weapons.

Bail was provided for all by J. Walton Tuttle, a Worcester attorney, who, it was said, was acting for the klan.

Captain Parker refused to comment on the statement made by Charles W. Wag, chairman of the Sudbury board of selectmen, that he notified the state officer yesterday that trouble was brewing. Several klan meetings, Chairman Way said, had been held on Libby's farm, and threats had been made to "clean up the klan if it met again there.

Examination has disclosed that the as serious as had been feared but his as se rious as had been feared but his tonsils were found to be in oad condition and they will be removed.

WILLIMANTIC

Among rejections made at the common council meeting Monday night, positive to the request of the former operatives of the American Thread company to have their privilege of parading restored, was a proposed ordinance introduced by Alderman Buck Vesting the police chief the authority to grant permission for parades in which more than twenty-five persons were to participate. The ordinance further provided that a license to hold such a parade be secured from the city clerk and a fee of $5 be paid for each parade. An exception to the latter provision was made for veterans' and soldiers' parades, police and civic parades. The ordinance was voted down by Aldermen Lee and Flynn, Democrats, and Charles H. Reeve and William [illegible], Republicans.

ELK WAS NON-UNION MAN, BUT GOT HIS CARD PRO TEM

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 11—A joke is going the rounds today with P. D. Donahue, chairman of the building committee of Willimantic Lodge B. P. O. E., as the good-natured butt.

After all plans had been prepared for the laying of the cornerstone of the Elks' new home Mr. Donahue received a business-like looking letter signed by Selcfried Peterson, a brother Elk and the head of the local Building Trades' Council, in which objection was made to having a non-union man (viz: P. D. Donahue) use the trowel in laying the cornerstone. This communication rather perturbed the building chairman who had visions of a clean fifty-dollar bill flying off on wings for the initiation fee into the council. He consulted with Mr. Peterson and it was seriously arranged that the chairman be given a card making him an honorary member of the Council for the laying of the cornerstone. Mr. Donahue received his card and had it on his person while carrying out his part of the ritual at the new home Monday evening. He became aware of the hoax Tuesday.

DOG, DOGHOUSE AND A V FIGURE IN DONOR'S TROUBLES

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 11.—Ill luck followed James Sheehan, of this city, in a controversy which he had with Walter H. Spink, of Ash street, Mansfield, over a dog, a dog house and a five dollar bill. Sheehan is now minus the dog, the house, the five dollars and an additional $20.97 which he had to pay in the Mansfield town court, Tuesday morning, for breach of the peace. The trouble apparently started through a generous act on the part of Sheehan. The man was recently presented a dog and he in turn handed the animal over to his old friend and neighbor, Walter Spink, giving him at the same time the use of a dog house which he owned. The other day Sheehan received another dog as a gift and after thinking matters over he decided that he could now use the dog house which was in Spink's possession. Accordingly he made a trip to the Spink home Monday afternoon and asked Spink's father-in-law for the house. The latter refused to hand it over as he understood that the dog house had been given and not loaned. After a conference Sheehan handed Wood five dollars for the dog house. Later he came to this city and told some of his friends about the deal and they derided him as being a "big fish." He sought legal advice and employing the services of Carol Watson, was driven to the Spink home where he met Spink himself and asked for a return of the five spot. This was refused and an argument followed, in which Spink claimed that Sheehan called him a d— swamp Yankee. The local temporary police barracks were notified and State Policeman Zimmerman placed Sheehan under arrest for intoxication and breach of the peace. When Grand Juror Frank W. Millard read the charges Sheehan pleaded not guilty and after the introduction of evidence the charge of intoxication was nolled, but Justice of the Peace George H. Andrews imposed a fine of $5 and costs for breach of the peace.

The following notice has been issued:

Child Health Series No. 1.

Children cannot be trusted to select their own food. Given a free choice they gravitate toward sweet things—candies, cakes, pastries or toward spiced things like pickles and relishes, just as a magnet picks up iron filings. For endless ages the jam pot and the cooky jar have been pictured as tempting temptors of childhood. Many a downfall has been laid to their door for are they not ever just beyond reach. Now cookies and jams play a part in the child's diet if they are not used to excess. Cookies, if simply made, are just a glorified breadstuff, and jams if not too sweet, but an intensified fruit. As a part of the regular meal they are an excellent source of nourishment, but there are other foods which, by virtue of their more bland flavor do not make so high an appeal to the child, though they rank of higher importance in the diet. Such foods are milk, cereals and bread and butter. Then there is the family of vegetables, so essential to health, but which often startle the child by their garish display of color. Children make up their mind to dislike them before the taste is registered. Mothers must come to the rescue during this growing period and select the foods that are the best for children. All sweets will not build a strong child. There must be a proper balance between those foods which have a homely though important part to play, and those which glorify the whole by an appealing taste only. A generous supply of milk, a plentiful supply of breadstuffs in the form of whole grain breakfast cereals and dark breads, a free use of butter, a variety of vegetables, an abundance of fruit—these are fundamental to good health. It is for the mother to guide the child down this pathway with a firm but sympathetic hand, meanwhile attempting to build up confidence in these foods so that they may become to the child the mainstay, in which sweets only occasionally intermingle, and tea and coffee are given no place. Mothers are learning what an important part food plays in the health of their children by attending the Well Child Conference held monthly in Colchester in charge of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health. The August Conference will be held Thursday afternoon, the 13th at Grange hall, from 2 to 4 o'clock.

"This is my idea of a fine motor car"

All talk about the new 1926 Chandler reveals a warmth of enthusiasm seldom encountered in discussions of automobiles.

The public is impressed with Chandler's new beauty—won to admiration by the style and good taste of its design.

People are singling it out on the streets with admiring eyes—recognizing and remembering it by its distinctive new radiator design.

People who previously owned higher priced cars—people who previously owned lower priced cars—people who perhaps never before considered Chandler are today swelling Chandler sales.

The fine ease or handling—quiet, effortless shifting of gears—smoothness—the great mountain-taming power of its Pikes Peak Motor—everything about the car makes the owner glad he owns it!

COURT TO DECIDE MONEY VALUE OF WATER POWER

BRIDGEPORT, Aug. 11.—(AP)—The money value of water power used to operate the underwear mill of the Charles E. Radcliff and Sons company, Easton, is to be determined by a superior court committee which started hearing at the county building today.

With the erection of a reservoir dam by the Bridgeport Hydraulic company the Radcliff seven acre tract will be deprived of two thirds of the present water supply obtained from the east and west branches of the Pequonnock river.

None of the land or buildings will be affected by the reservoir improvements, the committee being concerned only with what loss the underwear company will suffer when most of the water power is diverted.

Judge John R. Booth, superior court, has declared the hydraulic company improvements to be a public necessity, and has designated Attorney W. Parker Seeley, Bridgeport, Fred Carstesen, Nichols, and George Beers, Nichols, a committee to submit an estimate of just damages.

James J. Mapes, of Boston, Mass., son of Victor Mapes, American playwright, died of pneumonia in the American hospital in Paris.

HELP FOR NERVOUS WOMEN

It has often been said that only a woman can understand what nervous women endure. Most cases of nervousness, sleeplessness, mental depression, headaches, backache, fretting and worrying have their origin in some feminine ailment that will readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a simple remedy made from roots and herbs, which for over forty years has been restoring women of America to health and strength. Merit alone could have stood such a test.

POETRY

HUSH!

Hush! Hush! Hush!
Tell the wind it mustn't blow,
And ask the chattering squirrels there
To whisper very low.
And send a message, please,
To that bluejay by the trees,
Hush! Hush! Hush!
Oh he mustn't chatter so!

Hush now! Hush!
Tell the mole he'd better creep,
And ask the brownies over there
Not to pry and peep.
And tell the peony that to
As still as still must keep.
Hush! Hush! Hush!
For Baby's gone to sleep!

THE WATCHMAN.

The watchman walked the little streets
With slow and steady tread,
He slung his lantern as he went—
"All's well," the watchman said.

Behind close blinds a woman sat
Who had no more to sell,
The watchman paused before her door—
"All's well!" he cried. "All's well!"

An old man shivered in the dark
Who had no bread to eat;
Echoed the watchman's cry, "All's well,"
Along the empty street.

The watchman passed a silent house
Wherein a child had died;
A candle burned against the pane—
"All's well," the watchman cried.

And through the night the watchman passed
With slow and steady tread;
And ever to the little streets
"All's well," the watchman said.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Wife—I suppose you've had a hard day at the bank?

Third vice president—Yes, dear. I heard three stories I'd heard before. —American Legion Weekly.

What are you doing these days?
I'm t-t-tuning p-p-p-pianos.
And what's your brother doing?
He's t-t-tuning p-p-p—Why, didn't you ask what we were b-b-both doing?—Judge.

"Never had an accident, you say," murmured the doctor to the man he was examining for life insurance. "What about the time a bull tossed you over the hedge?"

"That wasn't an accident," replied the other, "He did it on purpose." —Yorkshire Evening Argus.

Famous Doctor Loses Eighth Finger By X-Ray

UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD, N. Y.

Undaunted by the 71 surgical operations he has undergone as a result of his work with the X-ray, Dr. Frederick Henry Baetjer, Roentgenologist of Johns Hopkins Hospital and Medical School, Baltimore, has just announced after the amputation of a finger that he will continue his work in the cause of science and suffering humanity. The operation leaves the X-ray pioneer with but a single finger and a single thumb, and he has also lost an eye from same cause.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Of general interest throughout the county is the action taken by the executive board of the Windham County League of Women Voters in planning a Citizenship school, to be held in Thompson August 25. "Our County Government" is to be the subject of study. A detailed program for this school is being worked and will be presented in ample time for all interested to know about it and make their plans to attend the school, if they so desire.

It is not likely that Danielson will realize its ambition to have a hospital as Wo[illegible] is about to have, for years to come, much as this is to be desired. At present and for many years past, Danielson has depended on Putnam, Worcester, Norwich and Providence for the greater part of the hospital service its people have required. This is true of many other communities hereabouts. The Day Kimball hospital at Putnam has served this community particularly well and on numberless occasions, and still does. However, one often hears voiced here the desire that Danielson might have a hospital of its own, a thought that is now being new and modern hospital at Westerly next week.

WOONSOCKET GOLDEN WEDDING OF INTEREST IN BOROUGH

DANIELSON, Aug. 11—At Woonsocket the past week end, Mr. and Mrs. Honore Duval observed their golden wedding anniversary. Mrs. Duval was born in Danielson in 1857, a daughter of Joseph and Emelie Roy Deforge and lived here during her girlhood.

Every pew in Precious Blood church at Woonsocket was filled with relatives and friends representing many towns and cities in New England and in Canada Saturday morning, when Mr. and Mrs. Duval moved down the center aisle to attend a thanksgiving mass at which their marriage vows were renewed.

A reception followed the solemn high mass and then a party of 50 relatives enjoyed a dinner at the Duval home, 630 Grove street. Saturday evening there was a general reception at the Elks' home, and hundreds extended greetings to Mr. and Mrs. Duval.

Mr. Duval is a native of Contrecoeur, P. Q., and a son of Joseph and Victoria Dupre Duval. He came with his parents to Blackstone when he was seven. For the past sixty years he has been a resident of Woonsocket. It was during the 60's that Mrs. Duval went from Danielson to Woonsocket with her parents to make her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Duval were married in Woonsocket, at the Precious Blood church, August 3, 1875.

Mr. Duval is well known in Woonsocket as a bandsman. In 1864 he became a member of the Woonsocket Cornet band, this shortly after the organization. Since then he has been continuously identified with bands in Woonsocket, having been a member of the Social Brass band, of which he was the first leader, the Eagle band and the present Woonsocket Cornet band, to which he still belongs.

He is a member of Council No. 2, Union St. John Baptist and of the Order of United Workmen.

Mr. and Mrs. Duval have three sons —Leon L., plumbing inspector for the city of Woonsocket; Alfred A., and Wilfred L., both of Pawtucket. They have 14 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

At his home in Brooklyn, Tuesday afternoon, funeral services for Harold C. Stone were conducted by Rev. John R. Pratt of the Congregational church at Brooklyn. Burial was in the South Cemetery, Brooklyn. Relatives acted as bearers. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

REV. W. B. WILLIAMS LEAVING TO GO TO CALIFORNIA

DANIELSON, Aug. 11.—Many people here, including members of the church, were surprised Tuesday afternoon upon hearing the announcement that Rev. Walter B. Williams, pastor of the Westfield Congregational church is to assume the pastorate, during the Fall of the North Congregational church at Berkeley, Cal. It has not been indicated up to Tuesday that Rev. Mr. Williams was considering leaving Danielson. At present he is at Canaan, N. H. for a holiday. He has been pastor of the Congregational church here for about ten years succeeding the late Rev. Clarence H. Barber and has been very successful in his pastorate. During the time that he has been here the church property has been greatly improved and a fine parish house constructed.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE WOULD IMPROVE PARKING

PUTNAM, Aug. 11—At the meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce last evening at Putnam Inn, Charles Sedar and Walter J. Bartlett were named a committee to look into the congested conditions of automobile parking on the business streets and to present recommendations to the next meeting as to how to improve them.

This action was taken after a general discussion of the parking situation. It was admitted by everyone that conditions were bad and growing worse, that it is becoming more difficult for out-of-town people who come here to trade to find a place where they can leave their cars for a short time.

Just the best and most practical ways of improving the situation will require much consideration, but that some improvement is necessary is apparent.

President deCoudres announced the appointment of the Merchants committee as follows:

C. M. Elliott, Leon S. Walker, W. J. Bartlett, Willis Carroll, Charles Seder, W. W. Averill, Otto E. Wulf, Miss Katherine Byrne, F. O. Marion, Alex Gilman.

Walter N. King, Omer J. Milot and George L. Padgett were named an entertainment committee.

JEWETT CITY

There is a new pet down to the Captain Culver farm, in the south part of the town. The other night the boys around the place heard the house dogs barking and making a great commotion in the nearby woods. All hands hurried in the direction of the uproar, to find a little fawn, but a few weeks old, receiving rough treatment from the dogs. The doe was no where to be seen, probably between the dogs and the boys she had found just cause to flee. The fawn was taken home, its injured foot was dressed and Deputy Game Warden W. R. Palmer was notified. The little chap is becoming a handsome pet and will eat from one's hand or drink milk from a bottle. When his foot gets well, he may be a present to some local park.

The dahlia "Freckles," to be seen among a collection in Carey's, was grown by Deputy Game Warden William R. Palmer. It is a top liner among the new decorative sorts.

Thomas Gray, of Ashland street, has a cat that takes a day off now and then for the purpose of going snake hunting. Monday she appeared with a striped field snake, 18 inches long, which was proudly being drawn along, and trailing out some distance behind. Arriving at the walk near the house, Mrs. Cat pawed his snakeship up into a little heap, then lay down upon her quarry and dozed seemingly thinking over the adventures of the chase.

A special to the Boston Herald from Worcester last week was as follows and is of general interest in Jewett City:

David Hale Fanning, "corset king," president and organizer of the Royal Worcester Corset Company celebrated his 95th birthday today.

He is the oldest active manufacturer in New England and one of the oldest in the United States. Every day Mr. Fanning puts in five hours at his desk and he made no exception to this practice today.

Mr. Fanning was born in Jewett City, Conn., Aug. 4, 1830 and left home when 18, walking 20 miles to Danielson, Conn. From there he journeyed to Worcester, but failed to find work and went to Clinton where he obtained a job in a factory. After two years he returned to Worcester and became an apprentice in the machinist trade. Later he bought a country store at Groton Junction, and then became a traveling salesman. In 1861 he started the manufacture of corsets. From that point the immense business of which he is now the head, steadily grew.

Mr. Fanning presented the city of Worcester with David H. Fanning Trade school for girls, also presented his native town a park which they named after him.

Merchants are reporting receiving bushels peaches of a better grade than for several years. Tomatoes are finding ready sale, at 2 pounds for a quarter. The John Baer and Earliana are on the market, with the Stone and Champion still green.

Twenty-five years ago, during the time that Mrs. F. C. Whiting was president of the Ladies' Aid Society, "The Choir Master's Troubles" was put on in the Baptist vestry.

It is of interest to note the characters as taken from the bill, then, considering the changes which have been brought about by the little scantily clad chap with the bow and arrow. Charles R. Carlyle was Prof. Longhair; Susie Mayflower, his maid, Miss Emma Babcock; Solomon Levi (anxious to show his musical ability) William T. Crumb. Madam Padderruski, (a highly recommended organist), Miss Gertrude J. Prior. Johnathan Nutmeg, (a down-east Yankee) E. H. Hiscox, Jennie Highvoice, (a soprano of note), Miss Alice D. Phillips. James Terrible (a very high tenor. Don' cher know.), Benjamin R. Gardner. The Misses Lullaby, (two timid altos), Mrs. Carlyle and Miss Ivah M. Payne. John J. Heavyvoice (A member of the Pumpkinville male quartette.) George H. Prior. Hans Oscar Schmidt, (who thinks he could sing if he set his mind to it), F. C. Whiting. Bridget Mulane, (who has a "swate" voice), Miss Carrie Chesebro. George Washington Possum, (a Southern warbler), Bert Phillips.

A typographical error in the account of a birthday party at the Gilbert cottage eliminated a very important part of the story. Mrs. Gilbert received a console set and a gold piece from her friends who spent the week-end there.

Miss Margaret E. McDonald, of North Adams, is visiting her cousin, Miss Bessie McCluggage.

Mrs. Charles Webster and Miss Charlotte Webster, of Willimantic, are guests at Mrs. Grace Webster's.

Cuba's happy conspiracy

(The plot culminates in 1925)

Here is why 1925 is the best year of all to change to Blackstone cigars. The Havana filler used in the 1925 Blackstone is the best tobacco which Cuba has grown in many years. Mother Nature fairly outdid herself in conspiring with both Cuban soil and Cuban climate to produce her very best tobacco for this year's Blackstones.

This superlatively fragrant tobacco now awaits you at the nearest cigar counter. As you smoke your first Blackstone remember this: no filler tobacco grown in Cuba costs more per pound than the 100% Havana filler in your Blackstone.

By smoking only Blackstones for a few days you will learn how invariably good-tasting and free-drawing they are. For foil-wrapped, factory-fresh smoking ask for the Blackstone Pocket Package of 5 or 10 cigars.

Blackstone was a fine cigar 52 years ago. It was even finer 10 years ago. It is at its very finest in this year of 1925!

COMMERCIAL AIR SERVICE

The commercial use of the airplane and dirigibles has been developed so [illegible] abroad that the United States appears very much of a laggard in this line of endeavor. It is the plan of a newly organized company [illegible],000,000 of capital in [illegible] this condition and [illegible] commercial air service into [illegible] it should occupy by linking up the great cities of the United States with air service by dirigibles. [illegible] experimenting sought by asking the government to lease the Los Angeles to the company as a trial ship to show what can be done in the line of regular air service between New York and Chicago on a schedule of [illegible] hours for the trip either way. [illegible] that the Los Angeles, [illegible] inspected by naval officials, [illegible] as trial flights would [illegible] upon the fact [illegible] dirigibles faster and roomier than the Los Angeles, which is deficient both in size and [illegible] according to the ideas of the company's officials. Dirigibles large enough to carry 100 passengers with baggage and 10 tons of freight of a [illegible] are in the project for this commercial air service.

As the official status of this government airship is one of peace, no [illegible] would seem to be no [illegible] objection to her transfer [illegible] guards to a private [illegible] for the purpose indicated. It is to be hoped that something practical will come of this proposal. Already two cities, Chicago and Omaha, have offered to build mooring masts for commercial air service. Other cities will doubtless be ready to do the same. The dirigible of the Zeppelin type has nowhere yet been [illegible] to its highest commercial possibilities. American enterprise [illegible] make a demonstration of these possibilities, not by occasional voyages but by a carefully devised [illegible] usefulness can be [illegible] confined to [illegible] government cooperation.

MAKING A BUDGET

General Herbert M. Lord, director of the budget, is no stranger to the fact that it is one thing to make a budget and another thing to have it stand up to when it meets the opposition of many departments to having their appropriations cut down and the effect this opposition may have upon congressional action. At any rate, he has estimated that a total [illegible],050,000,000, will be enough to run the government next year. If that stands, our national expenditures for the year will be the lowest since the world war.

Director Lord's budget figure is reported to have had the tentative endorsement of President Coolidge who has been working towards a budget of an even three billion dollars. Then the sum recommended by the [illegible] measuring close to the Coolidge figure will be a gratification to the president and will tend to confirm him in his belief that he had not set the mark too low. Not enough in the way of financial economy will be accomplished in governmental executive departments according to a quoted statement from Director Lord, but there should be a great increase in efficiency through the reorganization which has been proposed. The total budget estimates [illegible] some about $200,000,000 less than those proposed last year.

It is expected the surplus at the end of the present year will be about $300,000,000 which will warrant a tax reduction in the appreciable amount of $300,000,000. The final battles on the budget remain to be fought. There [illegible] a real struggle over the elimination of the last $20,000,000 chopped off by General Lord, most of which comes from the appropriations asked by the army and the navy. These two services are not without friends in their contention that the military appropriations have already been whittled below the danger point.

MR. BRYAN'S WILL

The characteristics of its author are to be seen in the document disposing of the estate of William Jennings Bryan. In it were mingled the dreams of practicality and idealism, oratorical flourishes and solemn declarations of faith familiar to all who have read or heard his words.

That he died worth upwards of a million dollars was not surprising to those who knew of his activities within his last years. The great Commoner who led so many crusades against wealth, who once declared that no man could honestly make a million dollars, learned his mistake. Given certain conditions the acquisition of wealth is inevitable. Without industry, foresight or striving, Mr. Bryan found his fortune growing far beyond his dreams.

His silver tongue brought him substantial rewards and he made oratory pay. His pen added to his income for he early became a "syndicate writer" and no small part of his hold upon his followers came from those who read his words instead of hearing them spoken. He did not make a large sum of money out of The Commoner, but he was practical in business affairs and did not let his enthusiasm for causes lead him to risk his savings in doubtful business ventures.

Like many others Mr. Bryan made most of his money in Florida, but he was not a speculator and his fortunate investments in Florida real estate were made long before the beginning of the tremendous boom that has proved such a bonanza. And having accumulated what in these days must be considered a modest sum for a man of such prominence, Mr. Bryan disposed of it in ways that reflect the character of the man. His first concern was for his family, but he did not forget those concerns which engaged his interest in his later days, and his purpose to entwine "the spiritual with the intellectual" in Christian education was in keeping with the last dramatic fight he made for the faith in which he lived and in which he died.

WORLD WHEAT SURVEY

Nature has a way of balancing her bounty among nations over a period of years. This is well illustrated by a survey of wheat conditions the world over for 1925 as compared with the year before. In 1924 there were short wheat crops in the countries of Europe that are accustomed to grow a part of all of their breadstuffs. The same was true of other countries which export wheat, with the exception of the United States, which had a bountiful yield. This year the conditions in the United States are entirely different for the wheat crop promises to be 200,000,000 bushels below that of 1924. In no sense will the United States be the emergency reservoir which it was last year, for there will be comparatively little wheat for export, probably not more than 50,000,000 bushels.

If the remainder of the earth had done no better this season than last the outlook would not be reassuring, but here is where the balance of nature works in. Europe's production prospects range from good to excellent. Russia, on a domestic basis as to consumption a year ago, is likely to be able to spare 75,000,000 bushels of wheat and some rye. On the North American continent, Canada, always an exporter, but much less so in 1924 than in the previous season, may be able to send 100,000,000 bushels abroad. A normal yield is predicted from the Argentine and Australia, so that well considered current estimates are for a world production of 2,749,000,000 bushels, compared with 2,592,000,000 bushels in 1924 and 2,925,000,000 bushels in 1923.

There is thus neither feast nor famine and the situation is not unsatisfactory all around. One factor that will be watched closely by Americans is the effect of the considerable retirement for the season of the United States from the wheat export market. Our exports of wheat and flour last year amounted to about two-thirds of our favorable trade balance, only cotton exceeding wheat and the wheat products in value. Since we are on, or near, a domestic basis as to wheat now, nothing like that is to be expected this fiscal year. The decrease, if it is offset, will have to be offset in other commodities.

CONTEMPLATING COLLEGE

Boys and girls who will begin four years of college within a few weeks would be benefitted if they could talk with those who were graduated this year and who are just as far from knowing what they are going to do in life as they were when they were freshmen. The bachelor of arts who has no position and no vocation is to be pitied. He is not wholly to blame. He is usually the product of an indifferent system of education and indulgent parents who think that after college is early enough for him to think about what he is going to do. The graduate realizes only too well that instead of fitting a man or woman for life college can easily unfit him. Its effect may be to turn him out needing an income of $5,000 a year with an earning capacity of $1,000? Boys were more fortunate in the days when they fully expected to go at once into a business, a law office, or to teacher's desk, and begin at the beginning to earn a competence and work their way towards the top. They did no driving with the top down, either actually or figuratively. To defer a choice of vocation until after the college course is likely to be fatal. A boy should know when he begins just about where the road is leading and should work toward a place in life rather than toward commencement day. The vocational guidance departments are good, but they are not enough. What is needed is a fearless facing of the youth's problem when he is eighteen. Twenty-two may be too late.

CARELESS HUSBANDS

"When are you going to get a new suit, George?" began the determined wife. "Whenever I want you to go any place you say you can't because your clothes are all shiny or they need to be pressed or the collar nap is wearing off, and I'm tired of it. You ought to order two suits right away!"

"Huh?" said the careless husband.

"I mean it!" the determined wife proceeded. "Any one would think that getting a suit of clothes was torture. If it were going to the dentist's I could understand the manner in which you balk and shy and run to cover and never have time.

"There are a lot of places I want you to go with me, and I'm not going to have you get out of it on the plea that your clothes don't look right! I do believe that is one reason you stick to your old clothes! Why, the other night when the Gilpacks called I was so ashamed of you when you ambled up from the basement, where you had been puttering around that work bench! You had sawdust in your hair and you had laid your coat down on the dusty floor from the way it looked! You never in the world would dare to treat new clothes so."

"You bet I wouldn't!" agreed the careless husband with deep feeling. "Plagued nuisance wearing new clothes! Never can be comfortable! These I have on are pretty good!"

The determined wife moaned. "I don't see why men have to be this way!" she addressed the air. "Mrs. Spare says that by the time she has shoved Arthur into a tailor shop and barred the door and later dragged him into a hattery and jammed a new hat on his head by main force and led him firmly up to pictures of spring overcoats and said in awful tones, 'This kind is what you want,' and kept guard over him so he can't use the telephone to cancel the orders, she is utterly exhausted, and I am beginning to understand why!

"Before you got married you had more clothes than Solomon and now look at you! I wish the magazines and papers would publish in large black type warnings to husbands that some day they are going home to find a note pinned onto the pin cushion and it will all be due to the fact that Maria grew so impossibly tired of viewing their shabby old clothes, rundown slippers, tousled hair and their crying need of a shave!

"Any husband who needs a shave and sits around that way rouses a wife to real fury. A man with a horrid old prickly-pear face is just about as alluring as a cannibal with his front teeth knocked out and a polished bone speared crosswise through his nose!

"I should think it would be perfectly thrilling to get one of those lovely stiff suit boxes from the tailor with a perfectly pressed and gorgeously fitting suit inside! Instead of which you won't even bother to take it out of the box unless I make you! And getting you to put it on for the first time is an achievement which ranks with expeditions over Himalaya mountain passes!

"Also when you do get a new suit you always invariably order blue, and I wish you'd make a change. Blue is all right, but I should think it would get on your nerves to have a closet filled with drab blue suits, ranging from the quite wornouts up through the partly worns to the everydays and the best! It shows a complete lack of imagination! There are light gray and dark gray, stripes of all kinds and mixtures with pin threads of colors that are spiffy! Why, the tailors' windows are filled with bolts and bolts of goods, every bolt different from the rest, and all these years you have acted as though the dye manufactories had all been wiped out except those dealing in indigo! You ought to get a suit!"

"Well," the careless husband broke in complacently, "for once I've got ahead of you! I ordered three suits yesterday, all of my own accord!"

"George!" the determined wife cried rapturously. "How perfectly wonderful! I begin to have hopes of you! I can hardly wait to see them! What are they? Did you bring along samples so I could see the colors?"

The careless husband appeared a bit guilty and coughed a trifle. "Well," he said as he made tracks for the door, "you see, they are—well, they are all three a sort of a blue, Mary!"

"I might have known there was a catch in it!" the determined wife said hopelessly.—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. William E. Gye, whose researches and discoveries in connection with the cancer germ have attracted worldwide attention has only recently arrived at his fortieth birthday. Despite his comparative youth, Dr. Gye has already made several valuable contributions to medical science. Some years ago he made a noteworthy discovery in diseases of the nervous system and a little later he came into notice by researches into the poisonous effect of various kinds of dust. The most of Dr. Gye's work has been done in connection with the National Institute for Medical Research, with which he has been connected for several years. He is the son of an English railway laborer, and he himself worked as a railway porter to earn money for his education at the university of Edinburgh. During the war he served with the British medical corps in France and Italy.

From Small Beginnings

Charles Frohman, a Great Manager of Theaters

The people of New York city were shocked by the sad tidings that among the passengers drowned when the Lusitania sank was the genial theatrical manager, Charles Frohman. Little by little the American public had associated with his name clean and interesting plays, brilliant presentations and the names of great actresses like Maude Adams, Julia Marlowe and Ethel Barrymore. People thought of Charles Frohman as one who gave pleasure; they found it distressing to associate him with one of the greatest tragedies in human history.

Charles Frohman worked his way to a commanding position in the American theatrical world. From the time when he was a small boy he had been obliged to be self-reliant. No one smoothed the way before him at any time. He worked hard, long and patiently for everything that he gained. The necessity of earning money made him leave school without gaining the advantages of high school or college education. Even in the years when he did attend school he had to work in the evenings in a newspaper office. In spite of the fact that the world, in many respects, was against him, he continued to work day after night. Finally, from a job as ticket seller in a small theater in Brooklyn, he became manager of a company of players. He was then only 21 years old. His success with the first company led to his gaining a similar place as manager for a more important company. The new work took him into every part of the United States, and even to Europe. Thus he gained a full knowledge of the theatrical world and of the taste of the public.

Charles Frohman was only 28 when he made his great success with the famous play, Shenandoah. From that success he moved quickly to a commanding position in the theater. He gained control of some of the best theaters in New York and organized an all-powerful theatrical syndicate. He encouraged good plays and good acting and contributed much that was good to American play producing. His tragic death was a great loss to the American public and to the stage.

Stories That Recall Others

Not the Oldest

It was little Flossie's first day at school. Her name had been registered, and the teacher asked, "Have you any brothers or sisters?"

"Yes, ma'am," answered Flossie.

"Are you the oldest one of the family?"

"Oh, no, ma'am," returned Flossie, "father and mother's both older'n me."

His Line

The wives of two traveling salesmen were introduced. They settled down for a comfortable talk. Servants, the weather and children were discussed, and then one wife inquired: "And what is your husband's line?" The other wife considered before she replied: "I'm not entirely sure, but he is always talking about a dotted line so I suppose that's it, don't you?"

CHILD TRAINING

TEACHING BY THE ASSOCIATION OF IDEAS

George F. Lumb

At the time when my son was about three years old, I happened to read a book on Psychology which gave me a new interest in my boy's development. In the evening I would take him on my knee and tell him a story purposely designed to impart to his child mind some facts that would interest and at the same time instruct him.

For example I would start off like this:

"Once upon a time there was a kind farmer. He had two little boys, Jackie and Tommie. One day the farmer took his little boys out to the apple tree that grew near the barn and he said, 'Now you have been good boys and I am going to give you the apples that are on this tree.' There were five apples on the tree and the farmer picked them all. He gave three apples to Jackie and he gave—let me see, three and two are five—he gave the other two apples to Tommie."

After a few weeks of telling often the same story, I would be more deliberate in making my calculation, and the response would come from my little boy.

I remember the thrill I felt one evening when I was telling him about a farmer who had three mules and four horses—I had used the same combination in a squirrel story. This farmer wanted to build a new stable, I said. "Now let me see, how many stalls did he need to have for three mules and four horses?" and in a moment a little voice piped up, "Seven, Daddy." He had applied his knowledge!

So I proceeded from one story to another. I told him about the oceans, about the millions of yellow people who live in China, about Washington, Grant and Lincoln, and it was a delight and satisfaction to see the hungry little mind drink in the fact of life and of nature. Unconsciously he learned Arithmetic, History and Geography.

He is fourteen now, a senior in High school, has just been elected Class Historian and for two years past has not brought home a mark below $0.

I wish I could tell every young parent of the joy and satisfaction that come from this practice of which I have spoken. The daily confidential intercourse establishes a bond between parent and child which is invaluable, and the mind of the child is greatly enriched, making the school lessons easier to grasp because of the breadth of vision acquired.

One of my son's teachers told me the other day that she had never seen a pupil who could absorb knowledge so easily. I feel quite sure his progress has been due to our stories and talks rather than to any special native ability.

SHOT DEAD BY FEDERAL AGENTS IN THE HIGHWAY

COOPERSVILLE, N. Y., Aug. 11—Otto William Eske, of New York City, was shot and killed by federal agents on the highway near here today. The agents said he was driving one of three cars containing liquor and that 55 cases of Canadian ale were found in his machine. He continued on his way for two miles after being shot, then collapsed at the wheel.

The Chinese have learned from recent strikes that the foreign element in China can get along without their services, said Father George B. Wiseman of Philadelphia on returning from Canton.

Mrs. Timmy Moves Her Family.

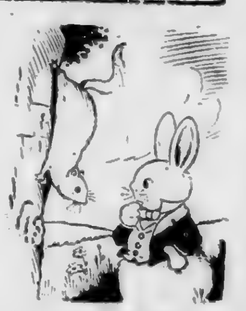
A mother will no effort spare
To give her babies loving care.
—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit sat in the Green Forest with his head tilted back starting up at the broken home of Mrs. Timmy the Flying Squirrel way up near the top of a tall tree. He saw Mrs. Timmy climb that tree and disappear in the end of the stub of a broken limb. In a minute she came out. Peter stared harder than ever.

"Mrs. Timmy looks funny," said he. "Yes, sir, she certainly looks funny. Why, I do believe she has one of those babies in her mouth. Yes, sir, that's it."

Peter was right. Mrs. Timmy did have a baby Squirrel. She was carrying it in her teeth. But if Peter could have seen clearly from down there the way in which she was carrying that baby he would have been more surprised than he was. She wasn't carrying it as a cat carries a kitten or a dog carries a puppy. No, sir, she wasn't carrying it that way at all. The little Squirrel seemed to be rolled up in a little ball and was clinging fast to his mother's neck while she held him in her teenth tightly by the loose skin. She was carrying him in such a way that he didn't interfere with her movements. She could climb and she could run and she could jump with him, which she couldn't have done had she been carrying him as a cat carries a kitten.

Peter was watching for her to come down the tree with the baby and hoped she would give him a chance to see just what that little baby looked like. So perhaps you can guess how surprised Peter was when suddenly Mrs. Timmy jumped from way up where she was and went sailing out and down, down, down, across the Laughing Brook, just as she had sailed when she had jumped without a baby. Peter was so surprised that he stared after her with his mouth open. He saw her glide down, down, and then alight gently on the front of a certain tree. At once she began to climb that tree, still carrying that baby, who had had its first experience in flying without wings. She didn't run up that tree as fast as she had run up before, but still she went up at a pretty lively rate. From where he sat Peter could see that little baby Flying Squirrel like a little fur ball, at his mother's throat.



"I don't see how you dared do it," exclaimed Peter.

When Mrs. Timmy reached a certain hole high up in the tree she disappeared inside. A moment late she was out, but this time she wasn't carrying the baby. The baby was in his new home. Back came Mrs. Timmy, sliding down the air to alight on the old stump near Peter.

"There's one of them over there," said she.

"I don't see how you dared do it!" exclaimed Peter.

Little Mrs. Timmy looked puzzled. She was a little puzzled. "What is it you don't see how I dared do?" she asked.

"I don't see how you dared make such a dreadful jump when you are carrying a baby in your mouth," said he. "Just supposing you had dropped it."

"Hah!" exclaimed Mrs. Timmy. "don't you worry about me dropping one of my babies. That is something that just couldn't happen. But even if it could and did happen that I let go, that baby wouldn't be dropped. You have no idea how tightly those babies cling to my neck. He certainly would cling until I could get hold of him again. Well, I've got to get four more of them over there, so I mustn't waste any more time."

With this she once more climbed the old home tree and a few minutes later went sailing across the Laughing Brook with another baby. Peter stayed right there until the last one was safely in the new home. Then Peter hurried away as fast as his legs could take him that he might tell every one he met of the wonderful thing he had seen.

BATHERS FOUND BEES CLUSTERED ABOUT CLOTHES

STORRS, Aug. 11.—A prominent professor of the Connecticut Agricultural college here, wife and family, went swimming yesterday in the Fenton river, a short distance from here, and when provided the setting for an amusing story now going the rounds at Storrs. Returning after finishing their swim, the party was dismayed to find a swarm of bees clustered about their clothes, and the air nearby swarming with the insects. After maneuvering about for the better part of an hour, the "Prof." was finally able to rescue the clothes and leave the bees in complete possession of the spot.

Today the "Prof" demonstrated his ability to make the incident yield him a financial return for armed with the required equipment he returned to the spot of yesterday's encounter, fixed the swarm and carried it back to his home. Now he is looking forward to an abundant supply of honey next summer.

WORK ON MAIN STREET HILL IS PROGRESSING

Under the direction of Street Commissioner John C. Donovan the new pavement being laid on the Main street hill from Market street to Washington street is well under way. The space between the trolley tracks has been completed to the foot of the hill at Washington square, and one-half of the street is practically completed to Washington square.

Meanwhile traffic west on Main street, which is a one way street, is being routed through Market and Water streets. The street is open to trolley traffic but it will be several days yet before it will be open to vehicular traffic.

OBITUARY

Lorenzo Richard Sparrow

Lorenzo Richard Sparrow died at his home in Tolland Sunday evening after an illness of more than nine months. Mr. Sparrow was born in Tolland in 1848, the son of Charles H. and Lucretia Pease Sparrow of Tolland and was educated in the public schools of the town. In 1870 he married Jennie Seaver Gifford of Sturbridge, and lived in Manchester for two years. Returning to Tolland in 1871, he settled in the River District and was engaged in general farming for eighteen years. Moving then to Rockville when he bought a milk farm, Mr. Sparrow remained in that town for twenty years.

Fifteen years ago he returned to Tolland and worked his farm until his last illness. He was town constable, and for three years, first selectman of the town. He was a member of the Congregational church, the Tolland Grange, and for thirty years a member of Fayette Lodge, A. F. & A. M. of Rockville.

Mr. Sparrow leaves one son, Myron Gifford Sparrow, of Tolland, and two grandchildren, Helen A. and Leon E. Sparrow of Tolland; a sister, Miss Minnie Sparrow of Hartford. Mr. and Mrs. Sparrow celebrated their golden wedding in 1920.

FUNERALS

Mrs. George A. Lathrop

Funeral services for Carrie E. Curtis widow of George A. Lathrop were held at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon from her late home No. 116 Laurel Hill avenue, many relatives and friends attending. There was a wealth of beautiful floral tributes, sent in memory of a loved one.

The service was conducted by Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church. The body has been taken in charge of C. A. Gager, and will be conveyed to Hinsdale, N. H., today, Wednesday, for burial in the family lot.

Mrs. William Walker

Relatives and friends of Mrs. William Walker, paid a final tribute to her memory Tuesday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock when services were held from the parlors of Hourigan Brothers, Main street. There were many pretty floral pieces. The service was conducted by Rev. Robert B. Day, rector of the Grace Episcopal church, Yantic. The bearers were William Walker, Joseph Quinn, Eugene Wood and James Hourigan. Burial was in Washington, R. I.

Mrs. Alfred Rouleau

Funeral services for Mrs. Alfred Rouleau, were held Tuesday morning at 8:30 o'clock from her late home, No. 333 Main street, many relatives and friends attending. There were many beautiful floral tributes. Solemn requiem mass was celebrated at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Memorial church by Rev. William A. Keefe, rector, assisted by Rev. Henri F. Chagnon as deacon and Rev. John Malley as subdeacon.

Miss Elizabeth Malone was at the organ during the mass and at the offertory Mrs. Timothy Donovan sang De Profundis. For a waiting hymn she sang Beautiful Land on High and for the recessional Nearer, My God to Thee.

Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Father Koefe. The bearers were Joseph Barr of Fall River, Mass., Pierre Rouleau of New Bedford, Arthur Jansen of Haverhill, Mass., Patrick H. McNally, John P. Corcoran and Wilfred Larivicre, all of Norwich.

Arrangements were by Hourigan Bros.

BISHOP SCHOOL WILL BE READY FOR OPENING OF FALL TERM

Following the regular monthly business meeting of the town school board Tuesday evening at the office of Superintendent of Schools Edward J. Graham, court house, announcement was made that the new Bishop school will be ready for occupancy with the opening of the school year. It was also announced that the schools of the town will open Tuesday morning, September 8th.

The meeting was opened at 8 o'clock and the usual bills acted upon and routine business transacted. Miss Pearl V. Palmer was appointed a teacher and named principal of the Long Society school. She will teach the fifth and sixth grades at that school. General plans for the opening of the schools of the town were discussed and September 8th set as the opening day.

VAUDEVILLE SHOW AT ELIZABETH ST. GROUNDS

On Tuesday evening at the Elizabeth Playgrounds a most successful entertainment was staged by the children of the Thamesville and Elizabeth street play centers. A most enthusiastic audience, including members of the city recreation commission and parents and friends of the children gathered on the green at the side of the new school where the Greeneville Harmonizers opened the program with an overture of popular selections. The orchestra, composed entirely of Greeneville playground children, under the instructors, Edward Sullivan and Miss Celine Bowen, played several selections.

Following the orchestra selections, the Grand Baby show was held in which the proud "mothers" of the Thamesville center, under Miss Eleanor Counihan, exhibited their darlings to the audience. Each "mother" was sure her baby deserved the prize and the three little judges were sore perplexed when it came to making a choice. However, the prize was at last awarded to little Miss Carolyn Hamil, whose mama doll was exquisitely dressed in pink silk and white net. Mrs. Elizabeth E. Drew of the recreation commission, acted as official judge after the performance was over, while Walter Brown, Ravenna Guman and Clifford Hamil took the parts of the judges very realistically and deserve credit for their fine work.

The children of the Elizabeth street grounds, under Instructors Kathleen Sheridan and Margaret Shugrue, then put on their vaudeville performance. The first act was an acrobatic act, called The King's Jesters, or Dumpling Brothers. The "brothers," dressed in clown suits, came rolling onto the stage in leap-frog fashion and attempted the most marvelous feats, but owing to too much plum-pudding for dinner got no further than their attempts. This was a pleasing act and caused much laughter from the audience.

The next act, "A Boy's Troubles," was very well performed by Thomas Fogarty as Willie Hopper, who was always in trouble, and Grace LaRochelle as Sister Susie, who never had a whipping yet. Little Tom Fogarty showed more than ordinary talent in interpreting his lines and was easily the star of the evening, while Grace LaRochelle very cleverly portrayed her role.

The last act was a playlet entitled Mrs. Grundy's Calendar and was well enacted by all those taking part. In this act the bulk of the work fell on Helen Hoffman and Grace LaRochelle who received much well-merited applause for their fine work, while Bessie Shanker was very skillful as Mrs. Grundy to whom all are more or less slaves.

The whole entertainment, which was staged under the supervision of Miss Catherine P. Dodd, dramatic instructor was decidedly different from anything previously attempted by the playgrounds and was indeed deserving of the generous applause it received.

The cast for the evening's entertainment was as follows:

Leaders, William Ryan and Ruth March, ukes; Dorothy McGinnerty and Katherine Kelly, ukes; Kazios, John Crowe, leader. Anna Comeau, Charles Bielick, William McNicholl, William Fuller, Lucille Bowen, Edward Keenan, Edward Moran, James Kilcollum, Anna Pietrowski, Helen Rydjecki.

Baby Show: Judges, Walter Brown Raymond Gilman, Clifford Hamil; Mothers, Caroline Hamil, Esther Johnson, Marguerite Valliquette, Kathleen Valliquette, Catherine Brown, Muriel Chalmers, Sophie Ascin, Mary Ascin, Mary Whitaker, Elizabeth McGuinness, Katherine Toth, Louise Yashinsky, Helen Carlin, Isabelle Della, Donalda Rail.

Vaudeville: Acrobatic Act—Dumpling Brothers, Henry Riordan, Patsy Buonnono, George Lambert, Morton Curley.

A Boy's Troubles: Willie Hopper, Thomas Fogarty; Susie Hopper, Grace LaRochelle.

Mrs. Grundy's Calendar: A Boy, Helen Hoffman; a Girl, Grace LaRochelle; Mrs. Grundy, Bessie Shanker; Her Husband, Julius Segal; a Neighbor, Marianna Buonnano; Another Neighbor, Margaret Whalen.

NEW PAVEMENT IS ABOUT HALF COMPLETED

The work of laying the new pavement on the short section of road between the bridge over the New Haven road tracks and Preston bridge, near the Marguerite building is progressing satisfactorily. One-half of the short stretch of road has been completed and will soon be thrown open to traffic. Meanwhile traffic both ways is using the south side of that section of the street. The improvement will be welcomed by motor vehicle drivers as that particular section has been very rough and full of holes in the past.

ARCANUM CLUB TO HOLD OUTING AT GARDNER LAKE

The Arcanum club has completed plans for its annual outing which will be held this year at Brown's Grove, Gardner Lake, Thursday afternoon, August 20th. The members will assemble at the club house on Main street and will leave at 12:30 o'clock for the lake, making the trip by automobile. A special dinner and a programme of sports are included in the plans. It is expected that there will be a large turnout of the members for the outing.

MORE AUTO DRIVERS FOR CITY COURT

An even half dozen automobile drivers were "red tagged" by the police Tuesday for violations of the local traffic regulations. Their cases will be disposed of at the city court session this (Wednesday) morning.

Were Guests At Franklin

Recent guests of Mrs. Myron Smith of Franklin included Charles Stearns and Miss Vera Stearns of Hartford, also Mr. and Mrs. Parker Stearns of Minneapolis, Minn. Mr. and Mrs. Stearns have been in London and Paris since the last of May.

Condition Remains the Same

The condition of Charles Mumford, of No. 120 North Main street, a patient at the Backus hospital, remains about the same as twenty-fours hours earlier. He was restless early in the night but rested more comfortably early this (Wednesday) morning.

NORWICH TOURISTS PAID VISIT TO FORD PLANT

Regretfully leaving Niagara Falls, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Vergason and daughters who have just returned from a 3,500 mile automobile tour through 14 states and Canada, turned with interest to note their impressions of Ontario through which they traveled for 250 miles.

It was obvious that brick houses predominated. There appeared to be much similarity in crops to those on the opposite side of Lake Erie, and a prevalent air of neatness. Sweet cherries were plentifully displayed for sale and found not merely appealing to the eye but deep-meated and luscious. The roads were well marked and excellent as far as London (too, on the Thames), but the remaining sixty miles over sometime laid gravel was rough, and a flour-like powdery alkaline dust was very pervasive and penetrating. Manuals list camp sites with their various facilities as water, stoves, fuel, lights, sanitation, amusements if any, police protection, whether free or charges made, etc. Usually it seems that where there is a charge made the general air of tidiness is better. Not being in the vicinity of such at this time it was necessary to adventure and permission was secured to use the grounds adjoining the town house at Adelaide, Ontario, where abounded room, quiet and fresh air, eggs were secured just from the nest at 25c per dozen, and milk and berries correspondingly. The following morning the remainder of the trip to Sarnia was completed. This is the point from which the ferry is taken to Pt. Huron, Michigan, and the good old United States again. Immigration and emigration formalities were very simple. During this portion of the journey, through the much advertised non-prohibition Canada, not a disorderly person was seen due to liquor. This was true, too, of the whole round trip. The inference was that one usually finds what one looks for. Before leaving the subject of liquids, surprise had been occasioned by a charge for gasoline at the rate of 35c per gallon in Hamilton, Ont., but it has since been recalled that a British gallon equals one and one-fifth U. S. gallons. It is perhaps interesting in passing to know that U. S. and Canadian money are freely interchangeable at par along the border.

From Pt. Huron the next objective was Detroit, with its suburbs now numbering 1,250,000 and ranking fourth in population among our cities. It has some distinctive features, having had for the past three years daily air service between it and Cleveland, the largest dry dock on the great lakes, an unequalled park at Belle Isle, and undoubtedly is the most important automobile manufacturing city in the world, having thus employed 140,000 men and an output valued annually at $850,000,000. The regulation trip through the Ford plant with its 55,000 well paid workers was made. Proceeding hence hastily towards Ann Arbor to make camp for the night, with a shower threatening, a tire blew out necessitating unpacking luggage and exchanging shoes, causing some tense moments—save one the only untoward performance of the car for the entire trip. Passing the campus of the university arrangements for the night were made at last and sleep soon began its restoration. The feature of the following day was the trip through the Kellogg cereal factory at Battle Creek where are produced daily 3,500,000 packages or 60 carloads of cereals. The general air of cleanliness, ingenious and efficient devices, and courtesies extended created a favorable impression, strengthened later by the tasty samples presented. From this plant on to Kalamazoo where family stores were replenished and enough prime celery bought for a quarter to last an entire family a week, land then to camp at Pawpaw, Michigan. Here the party was advised, center thousands of acres of vineyards some of which were passed by on the way out the following morning. Also hereabouts were seen acres of mint and the question naturally arose if this might not be a source of Wrigley supply.

A pleasant call at the South Bend plant of the Studebaker factory as made where the usual gracious attention was accorded. Continuing from here to Wheaton, Illinois, a residential section of and beyond Chicago entertainment was generously provided for some days by relatives. Side trips were made from here for several days,—to the Field Museum, a rival for third place among the world's museums, the Chicago university, the Art museum, the stock yards, the board of trade, the C. N. & W. and new union stations, the latter project involving with its approaches an outlay of $55,000,000, the Michigan avenue and Sheridan Road drives along the lake front, the finest menagerie of wild animals the party has ever seen, picnicking, etc. One day was given over to a drive, picnicking by the way to Joliet, chiefly to call upon N. V. Porter, a former Norwich business man, now estimator for a concern in a similar line of business there. His acquaintance was renewed and that of the present Mrs. Porter made. He is justly proud of the city's new high school. During the entire course of the trip the great interest being taken in schools was repeatedly manifested by the many modern school buildings seen. Return from Joliet was made via Aurora near which a swim in the out-door pool 165x320 feet located on the grounds of the Kane county fair grounds was indulged in. This pool is in the open, exposed to the sun, the water constantly aerated and changed and mildly chlorinated, safeguarded from contamination, wire-fenced from intrusion, and all needed accompaniments in the way of showers, lockers, towels and bath houses provided. After dinner, the party attended the recently completed theatre which reminded them by its newness and pipe organ of Norwich. Leaving Chicago and its environs a two-hundred mile run was made through the thriving Illinois and Wisconsin cities and country, such as Elgin, nationally known for its influence in control of butter prices, watch factories, and automobile road races, Rockford, Beloit, Janesville, Fort Atkinson, Watertown to Fond du Lac, charmingly situated at the south end of Lake Winnebago. Here they were again delightfully entertained by relatives, at times in their town home and at others in their commodious cottage at Winnebago Park. One evening was given to a violin and cello recital in the home by a daughter-in-law and her sister, professionals, an occasion affording much delight. From Fond du Lac a journey of two hundred additional miles during the course of which many log structures, forcible reminders of pioneer days, some of them yet occupied, were passed. Every day the wild flowers had stood quietly or waved their appeal, at times the blue of the chicory coming to the front, or the orange of the infrequently hereabouts seen but at times, en route, plentiful butterfly weed, or perchance the golden rod, or bouncing bet, but on this day and in this northern Wisconsin section there appeared, sparingly at first, then increasingly, and at last literally by the acres, a flower called by residents "Rosebay." Its stalk is several feet long, its head a spike of pinkish lavender blossoms. The magnitude and beauty of its display will never be forgotten. Home here was made for two nights with original pioneers who located with four other families thirty-five miles from a railroad and cut their path the last five miles of their way to their claim through the virgin forest fifty years ago. Their stories would make interesting reading. Raspberries such as are cultivated by us grow wild there in the pastures, porcupines and bears and deer still make their occasional appearances, and some of the original timber still stands. The locality was the scene of some of the French and Indian wars as is attested by a large silver English medal bearing a 1700 date and musket barrel found on the place. It is near Iron Mountain, said to have the deepest iron mine in the world. The roads hereabouts are red as if composed of iron dust.

GOV. TRUMBULL WILL ATTEND COUNTY FAIR

The opening day of the New London County fair, will be known as Governor's Day. Governor John H. Trumbull has written to Secretary Edwin V. Ross of the local society, stating that he would be in Norwich and attend the fair on Sept. 17th.

Early in February, Secretary Ross wrote to the governor and extended him an invitation to attend the New London county fair this year. He received a reply that the invitation would be kept in mind, but that it was too early to definitely promise attendance.

Some days ago Mr. Ross again wrote and after an exchange of letters, in which Mr. Ross mentioned the fact that Norwich had not been honored by a visit of the governor for nine years, a reply came from Governor Trumbull that he would be in Norwich on Thursday, Sept. 17th.

The letter received by Secretary Ross is as follows:

EXECUTIVE OFFICE.
State Capitol.
Hartford, Conn.

My Dear Mr. Ross:

Replying to your letter of the sixth I have since come across a copy of my letter to you of Feb. 24 which you have returned to me. This was written from my Plainville office, hence I had no record of it here.

I am setting aside Thursday, Sept. 17, to attend the fair in Norwich.

Yours very truly,
JOHN H. TRUMBULL.

Aug. 10th, 1925.

Frederic Bonneville, performing the ceremony and Rev. Roy Leroux celebrating the nuptial mass. The couple were attended by Miss Irene Godette, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid and Leo St. Marie, brother of the groom, as best man.

The bride was gowned in white georgette trimmed with lace and orange blossoms and her tulle veil was caught up with orange blossoms. Her shower bouquet was of bridal roses and orange blossoms. The bridemaid wore an embroidered gown of peach net over peach charmeuse, with picture hat to match.

Following the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride, about 85 guests in attendance. The bride and bridegroom were assisted in receiving by the bride's mother, who was gowned in black silk, with which she wore a corsage bouquet of pansies. The season's flowers were used in decorating the home.

The gift of the bride to the bridesmaid was a green gold ring set with a sapphire and the best man received white gold cuff links from the groom.

On their return from a honeymoon trip to be spent in Providence, Woonsocket and Boston, Mr. and Mrs. St. Marie will reside at 147 School street, Chicopee. Traveling the bride wore blonde canton crepe with hat and wrap to match, and a neck piece of red fox.

Guests present at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Leo St. Marie and Mr. and Mrs. Rodrigue St. Marie of Taftville and Mr. and Mrs. William Ilinion of Boston.

The bridegroom has been employed at the Taylor-Bramley company at Chicopee Falls and the bride has been in the employ of the Writing Paper company of Holyoke.

Marthers-Yerrington

Miss Nyra Arline Yerrington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erastus Yerrington of 14 Second avenue, Taftville, and George S. Marthers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Marthers of 435 Boswell avenue were united in marriage Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Edwin Crowdis, pastor of the Taftville Congregational church in the presence of relatives and friends of the couple.

Charles Alfred Marthers, brother of the groom was best man and Miss Sadie Newton, intimate friend of the bride, was bridesmaid. During the service Mrs. Harold Linderson, sister of the bride, played Mendelssohn's wedding march.

The bride was prettily gowned in blue crepe, hand-painted, over honey dew satin, and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses. The maid of honor was also charmingly gowned and her shower bouquet was of yellow gladioli.

Following the ceremony a reception was held, over 50 guests being present. A buffet luncheon was served. The house was tastefully decorated in gladioli, ferns and palms.

The bride received many beautiful and useful gifts including cut glass, linen, silverware and substantial purses of money. Following a wedding tour to Niagara Falls, N. Y., and a weeks' visit at Fishers Island, Mr. and Mrs. Marthers will reside in a newly furnished apartment on Tenth street, Greeneville.

The bride is a graduate of the Norwich Free Academy, class of 1921, and the groom a graduate of the Norwich Business college, being employed as cost accountant at the Hygienic Fiber Mills, in Versailles.

NUGGETS BEAT YANTIC TEAM IN GAME FEATURED BY HARD HITTING

In a see-saw game featured by fast fielding and heavy hitting, George Madden's Nuggets defeated the Yantic Mills outfit, Tuesday evening 6 to 3. The game marked the Yantic team's second straight reverse and puts them but one-half a game in front of the seventh place Nuggets.

Leo Jarvis started on the mound for the Nuggets but with the score tied at two all, retired in the fifth in favor of Johnny Greene. Greene twirled the remainder of the game and gets credit for the victory. Yantic made a total of twelve hits off the combined offerings of Jarvis and Greene, but fast fielding, including two fast double plays by the Nugget infield kept the score down.

Gil Jones pitched for the up-town nine and was hit freely. Madden's team collecting nine hits, all singles for a total of six runs.

Neither team scored in the first, but in the next frame, the Nuggets got off to a one-run lead on Raille's single to right, a passed ball and Ray Jarvis' one-base hit to right. In the third, they added one more. Guillet went all the way to third. Benjamin then shot a single to center scoring Guillet.

Yantic's first counter came in the fourth when Big Boy Sweet connected with one of Jarvis' shoots for a home-run over the left field fence. This hit was the second home of its kind up-to-date, McKiernan, also of the Yantic team being responsible for the other one.

In the fifth, Yantic went into the lead, scoring two runs. Burns opened the frame with a double to left. Ainsworth then shot a liner to center, and when the ball took a bad hop past Raille, Burns scored and Ainsworth went all the way to third. At this point Johnny Greene went into the box for the Nuggets and stopped the first batter to face him on an easy pop fly to Leo Jarvis, playing third. E. Hoxie however, came through with a crashing two-bagger to right field, and Ainsworth scored. Sweet walked and when Smith got an infield hit to short, the bases were filled. Gil Jones then had a chance to win his own game but hit into a fast double play, Benjamin to Guillet to Lloyd Jarvis.

Yantic's lead, however was short-lived, as in the very next stanza, the Nuggets scored three more counters giving them a two-run margin. Lloyd Jarvis singled to left as a starter and went to third on Raille's one-base hit to right. Bill Liberty shot a grounder to Smith and when the latter fumbled the ball, Jarvis scored, and Liberty went to second, and Liberty was safe at first. Lesseman came through at this critical time with a sharp single to center, and when E. Hoxie let the ball go through him, both Raille and Liberty tallied, and Lesseman took third. He was stranded there however as Ray Jarvis fanned for the third out. In the final inning, Madden's outfit added another marker on two errors, and Lloyd Jarvis second hit, a single to left.

The Nugget sinfield play in last night's game was sensational, the combination of Benjamin at second and Guillet at short being especially brilliant. Lloyd Jarvis also featured at first, a new position for him as a twilight leaguer, with his all-around play. The score:

Tonight's Game

As was predicted last night's game between the Nuggets and Yantic was one of the best played games of the season, every inning filled with thrills galore. The game was featured by nice hitting, fast fielding and good pitching. A game like last night's while a hard one to lose was no disgrace to any team and although Yantic lost they deserve credit for the fast putting up a great game against the undefeated team the Nuggets now have on the field.

As the league schedule received a great shakeup this week tonight was off as an open week for Mgr. Olney and Morin got their heads together and the Palace and St. Joseph team will play off a postponed game.

The Saints haven't played for two weeks but in the meanwhile have done some tall strengthening and Mgr. Olney will send a mean team against the Palace boys tonight. The Saints at the present are decorating the cellar but coming in every while they may land on the pennant, they surely will get into the first division and give the other teams a hard run for that fifty dollar prize for the team winning the most games in the second half.

The Palace team on Monday night against the East Ends weren't up to fighting strength owing to the absence of some of their best men, but everyone will be on hand tonight to stop the Saints in their drive to get out of the cellar.

For the Saints either "Spike" Libby, Zemske or Duker will pitch and White will catch, while either Morin or Gero will pitch and Dilworth will catch for the Palace.

Danielson Team After Games

Having made a good record of late, the Danielson baseball team, through its manager, Albert Lagace, is looking for games with such teams as North Grosvernordale, Ashland A. A., Taftville A. A., and the J. B. Martin team of Taftville. Danielson's most recent victory was won at the expense of the Brooklyn team, which was basking in the success attendant on a run of five straight victories. This game was arranged hurriedly last Sunday, when games that Brooklyn and Danielson had arranged to play with other teams had to be postponed. The contest went but six innings and ended with a 9-2 score in favor of Danielson, Brooklyn was let down with one hit. Vadis and Perreault did the pitching for Danielson.

Rosedales vs. J. C. All Stars.

The Greeneville Rosedales will play the Jewett City All Stars Saturday at Jewett City. The Rosedales in their first encounter with this club were beaten 4 to 3 in a hard fought game. Tennant or Lemorey will pitch for the Rosedales with Goldblatt behind the bat. Stanley, who pitched the All Stars to victory over Taftvills this week will be on the mound for the All Stars.

HENRY LOUGHRAN GIVES WARNING TO J. C. CLUB

Sports Editor:

My answer to, Jewett City or any semi-pro team in this section of eastern Connecticut is, that as manager of the Moosup town team and 1924 undisputed champions of eastern Connecticut, that I am ready to back up my statement that we are ready to go out within the next eight Sunday afternoons and prove that we are going to retain the eastern Connecticut semi-pro baseball championship for 1925. Come on, Jewett City, I call your bluff. I am not looking for any of your baseball material that you have on that present outfit, a so-called baseball team. All you have to worry about, "Bill" Liberty, is that you have started something that you can not finish. My same invitation is extended to the Riverview baseball club, also the J. B. Martin Co. baseball club.

To the fans of eastern Connecticut: I will do my best to give you the same brand of baseball and games that I put on last fall here in Moosup, again this present fall. Besides the three above-mentioned teams that I intend to put through the sausage machine, I am negotiating with, Southbridge, Mass., and the crack St. Joseph, of Webster, Mass. Checkered Cabs and Dilboy Post, both of Boston Twilight league, St. Mathew's, R. I., state, Twilight league champs, the Phil. Colored Giants.

I will announce to you at a later date my lineup and also the teams that will play here on the Carpet Grounds at Moosup this fall. I am also negotiating for a barn-storming trip for my Moosup baseball club.

Yours for good sports,
HENRY H. LOUGHRAN,
Mgr. Moosup B. B. C.

HILLIES SPLIT EVEN WITH WORCESTER CLUB

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Aug. 11.—(AP)—Worcester and Pittsfield broke even in a double header here today, the locals winning the first game, 1 to 0 and the visitors taking the second, 5 to 2.

Douglas and Woosh, the opposing pitchers in the first game, each allowed three hits but Manager Collins' single followed Thomas' double in the fifth inning and produced the only tally of the game.

Miles Benedict, a Great Barrington boy, made his Eastern league debut on the mound for Pittsfield in the second game and although de Lesuer nine passes, he held the visitors scoreless for the first five innings. He weakened in the sixth. Anderson received Duggan in the sixth and allowed only two hits. Scores:

First game:

Two base hits, Rodriguez, Thomas, Ceuger.

Second game;

Two base hits, H. Thomas, Collins, Moriarity.

MISS ASHER WINS MEDAL PLAY AT MADISON

MADISON, Aug. 11.—(AP)—Miss K. Asher, of the Race Brook Country club with a 90 for the 18-hole medal play in the fourth of the seven one-day tournaments being held this summer by the Connecticut Women's Golf association, turned in the best gross score of the 68 women who played over the course at the Madison Country club here today.

The best net score was turned in by Miss Dorothy Mintie, of Waterbury, a member of the Madison Country club, whose gross was 101. Playing under a handicap of 20 her net for the 18 holes was 81.

In the approaching and putting contest during the afternoon, Mrs. J. M. Barr, of the Madison Country club, won first prize with a nine for three ball play. Mrs. Barr won in a three corner tie play-off from Mrs. H. E. Sloan, of the Hartford Country club, and Mrs. Potter, of the Pine Orchard Country club. The three tied with nine for three ball play. In the play-off Mrs. Sloan took 11 for the three ball play and won second prize.

MAID-AT-ARMS WINS $12,500 ALABAMA STAKES

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 11.—(AP)—Maid-at-Arms, a chestnut filly carrying the silks of the Glen Riddle farm, won the forty-first renewal of the $12,500 Alabama stakes at Saratoga, today, finishing six lengths ahead of W. M. Jefford's Lightship. Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Briar filly, Sun Tess, finished third.

The winner, a daughter of Man o' War, with Johnson up, won with great ease, taking the pole at the first turn and never relinquishing the lead.

Walter J. Salmon's Primrose, a 9 to 5 favorite, showed little speed in the first part of the race and was never closer than fourth. Follies also disappointed a host of her admirers. Florence Nightingale, the only other starter, was coupled with Lizaship, the Jefford entry. The winner was quoted at 5 to 2 at post time. The time for the mile and a quarter was 2:07.

NORWICH TENNIS TEAM BEATS MONTVILLE CLUB

Tuesday afternoon at the Norwich Golf club courts the Norwich tennis team won all five of the singles matches with the Montville tennis stars. The Norwich team captured four of the singles matches in straight sets while the fifth went the limit. A large gallery, in fact the largest of the season, witnessed the match and saw some very fast tennis. This match is the first of a series of matches in which the local team will engage, having scheduled matches with the Sub Base team, Watch Hill, New London and Old Lyme. A doubles match will be played at the Montville courts on Aug. 18th. The results of yesterday's matches:

Powers beat Birs, 6-2, 6-0.
Harwood beat Angeles, 6-4, 6-0.
Disco beat Beckwith, 6-1, 6-4.
Rountree beat Craven, 6-3, 6-4.
Clapp beat McInness, 6-1, 2-6, 6-2.

SIKI MUST LEAVE COUNTRY SAYS NEW YORK BOXING COMMISSION

NEW YORK, Aug. 11—(A. P.)—Mickey Walker world's welterweight champion, will be indefinitely suspended by the state athletic commission at its meeting Friday unless he or his manager definitely signs contracts and posts a bond for a title match with Dave Shade of California at that time. The commission so ruled at its meeting today.

The welterweight king, who was given a license to box Harry Greb, middleweight champion, at the Italian Hospital Fund matches upon assurance from him that he would meet Shade on or before August 15, has consistently refused to sign for the match despite a $10,000 bond posted for him by Humbert J. Fugazy, promoter of the Italian Hospital Fund bout, binding the match. The commission intimated that the bond will likely be forfeited unless the match is closed by Friday.

Battling Siki, Sengalese heavyweight, whose antics in a match against Joe Silvani at a local club last Saturday night resulted in his disqualification by the referee, appeared before the commission with his manager, Robert Levy, today and was given a suspended sentence by the commission upon Levy's word that Siki would leave the country inside of 30 days.

"He will never be allowed to fight in New York state again," Chairman Farley said. "He has consistently been in trouble but we did not want to suspend him as it would prohibit him from fighting in South America or France where Manager Levy intimated he would send him.

"When he came to this country he was forced to sign a bond that he would remain but 30 days but he has been here a year and I understand that Henry H. Curran, commissioner of immigration at Ellis Island, has given him 30 days in which to depart."

Jack Burke, Pittsburgh, Pa., heavyweight, who was recently suspended for failing to go through with a match at a local club, was reinstated upon assurance from him that he would fulfill the contract. Sid Marks, England featherweight, was suspended for 30 days for failure to fulfill a contract to fight at the Monticello A. C.

The commission sanctioned the postponement of the fight card scheduled for the Coney Island A. C. for Thursday night owing to the fact that Knockout Sampson, scheduled to meet Jack Delaney is not a licensed boxer in this state and because of an injury to Carl Carter, Cuban heavyweight, who was contracted to meet Jack Renault.

Permission was also granted to Tex Rickard to hold 41 rounds of boxing in connection with the Jack Delaney-Paul Berlenbach world's light heavyweight title fight at the Yankee Stadium, Aug. 28. It was also announced that Jimmy Slattery would fulfill his contract to fight Maxie Rosenbloom at the Coney Island stadium, Aug. 21.

22,000 FANS SEE PIRATES BEAT GIANTS

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 11—(A. P.)—Pittsburgh evened up the series with New York today by winning the second game, 7 to 4. The Pirates got to Dean in the eighth and scored five runs on doubles by Carey, Barnhart and Moore, passes to Cuyler and Gooch and Morrison's single. Kremer started for the Pirates but was relieved in the seventh when a pinch hitter batted for him and Johnny Morrison took up the burden.

Dean pitched well until the eighth, Glenn Wright's home run in the second inning being the only damaging clout obtained off his delivery prior to the disastrous eighth. A crowd of 22,000 witnessed the game. The score:

RUFFING BESTS COLLINS IN PITCHING BATTLE

BOSTON, Aug. 11—(A. P.)—A pitchers' battle between Ruffing and Collin was won by the former today giving Boston a 1 to 0 win over the Detroit Tigers. The run came in the second inning after two were out through a triple by Rogell followed by Lee's single. Two of the Tigers were thrown out at the plate. The win was Boston's first against Detroit here this season. Score:

EAST ENDS TO PLAY TAFTVILLE A. A. TONIGHT

The East Ends of the Norwich Twilight league will clash with the Taftville A. A. in an effort to see which is the better team this evening. The first game resulted in a 6 to 6 tie score and according to the spectators the breaks all went against the East Siders, who should have won. The East Ends will use Harry Mills, who recently pitched a no-hit game in the Twilight league. Either Allard or Joe Belair will do the catching with the following to make up the team: Coughlin, Jimmy Murphy, Normandin, Hamil, Noel, Bill Austin, Gaudette and several others. Either Lloyd Jarvis or Lefty Dugas will take the mound against the Easterners. The game is for the benefit of the Sacred Heart parish bazaar.

KEARNS WILL ATTEND N. Y. COMMISSION MEETING

NEW YORK, Aug. 11—(A. P.)—Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey and Mickey Walker, announced on his arrival here today that he would attend the meeting of the New York State Commission Friday and definitely sign contracts for a Wills-Dempsey match and a Walker-Shade contest.

Yantic Single Men Win.

In the second game of the series between the married men of Yantic and the single boys the latter won an overwhelming victory, 14 to 4, Monday evening. The game was full of thrills for the large crowd that witnessed the slaughter.

BRAVES HOLD BATTING BEE AT CUBS' EXPENSE

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—(AP)—Boston went on a batting rampage today and defeated Chicago 9 to 2 in the final game of the series, thereby gaining an even break in the four-game set. Larry Benton was in fine form and let the Cubs down with four hits, two of which came in the eighth inning with a couple bases on balls which gave the locals their only runs. In the first inning two of the visitors, Mann and Felix, batted out of turn but the error was not discovered until after the side had been retired and the three runs registered. In the second inning High, who had batted in the first round, righted the batting order by leading off as Mann, who preceded him in the regular batting order, had batted after him in the first inning. LOWLY YANKEES LOSE FIFTH STRAIGHT GAME

NEW YORK, Aug. 11—(A. P.)—Chicago defeated New York today, 15 to 2, marking the fifth straight defeat for the Yankees. The White Sox made 13 hits off four Yankee twirlers, scoring seven runs in the seventh. Hooper led the batting attack against the Yankees with five hits, including a triple, in five times at bat. Every man on the White Sox team with the exception of Grabowski, hit one or more times, Falk getting two triples and Blankenship a home run with two on base.

Blankenship went the route for the Sox, allowing ten scattered hits, the only extra base clouts being a homer by Gehrig, his 13th of the season, and a double by Combs. The Yanks fielded raggedly. The score:

MISS GOSS BEATS MISS BROWNE IN TEST MATCH

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 11—Eleanor Goss of New York today defeated K. Browne of Los Angeles, California, in a test match to aid in the selection of a third singles player on the American team which will compete against English women players for the Wightman cup, Friday and Saturday. The set scores were 6-3 and 7-5.

Helen Wills, national women's singles champion, and Mrs. Molla B. Mallory, former champion, have already been chosen by the Davis cup selection committee to fill first and second singles positions on the team. Miss Goss's victory today will probably win her the remaining singles place.

The defeat of Miss Browne will not eliminate her from the international series. As the partner of Miss Wills, she has already been chosen to play on the first doubles team. The second doubles team will be selected after a match tomorrow in

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

Norwich 75 years ago was feeling the heat of the summer and very little was done by her citizens that created news. There were two deaths of prominent men of Norwich, one in New York and the other in this city. There was also the drowning of a local boy in Gates' pond, in Preston, where the boy had been fishing. Announcement was made of the celebration of the anniversary of the battle of Stonington which was fought in August, 1814.

Extracts from the files of 1850 follow:

Tuesday, Aug. 6, 1850.—At a meeting of the court of common council held Monday evening 154 persons were appointed to serve as jurors for the ensuing year. John Breed, Wolcott Huntington and Elijah Dyer were appointed to act as a committee on health.

Andrew C. Lippitt was on Saturday elected mayor of New London in place of Mr. Mather, who resigned recently. Mr. Lippitt seems to have been nominated and supported without regard to party politics.

The latest report from Washington is that Henry S. Geyer of Missouri has been appointed secretary of interior in place of Mr. Bates, who refused to accept the appointment.

Professor Haddock of Dartmouth college is reported to be about to resign his place in that institution for a foreign appointment. His resignation would be a serious loss to the college for he has excellent qualifications for any office of diplomacy, and in that sphere he would do equal honor to himself and to the country.

The citizens of Stonington are to celebrate with becoming ceremonies the anniversary of the attack on Stonington borough by the British and its gallant defense by the inhabitants in August, 1814. The celebration is to take place on Tuesday on the 13th inst., and if we are to judge from the names of the highly respected gentlemen who in character of committee of arrangements have taken the matter in hand, we doubt not it will be a spirited affair. Many of our citizens will unquestionably avail themselves of the occasion to visit Stonington and revive associations and recollections with the event to be commemorated.

Thursday, Aug. 8, 1850.—Benjamin Huntington, who died in New York on the 3d inst. at the advanced age of 93, was first mayor of Norwich. Mr. Huntington was one of four brothers, sons of Benoni Huntington of Norwich who represented the state in the old Continental congress. Mr. Huntington married, some forty years since, a daughter of General Jedidiah Huntington of New London, an officer of the Revolution, one of his children is Huntington, the famous artist. Gurdon Huntington, one of the four brothers mentioned above, was a carriage maker many years in this town and removed to Rome, N. Y., about 1812, where he died.

We are pained to announce the sudden death of one of our oldest physicians, Dr. Chauncey Burgess, of this city. He died about noon today after a short illness.

Commodore Jacob Jones died at his residence on Bainbridge on Saturday last. He was born in 1770, served with Bainbridge in the war with Tripoli and was taken prisoner and confined twenty months among the barbarians. He stood third on the list of commodores.

In a recent letter from California we find recorded the following deaths: Capt. John H. Butler of New London, George Perrin of Killingly, A. Olmstead of Hartford, Stephen Blackman, S. M. Potter and Charles A. Heaton, all residents of this state.

Saturday, Aug. 10.—A young man of this city, Darius Sackett, was drowned Thursday afternoon in Gates' pond in Preston. He in company with another young man, named Carroll, also of this city, were at the pond fishing. They had anchored their boat with a stone and, having finished fishing, they in attempting to draw up the anchor, carelessly stepped too far on one side of the boat and capsized it. Both started to swim to the shore and Carroll, after swimming a short distance, looked around, but could not see Sackett. Carroll climbed aboard the overturned boat and was later rescued. The body of Sackett was found yesterday morning in about 15 feet of water. Upon bringing the body to the surface, the clinched hands were filled with the course grass which grows at the bottom of the lake.

About 400 persons connected with the Methodist church and Sunday school of Norwich went to Hartford yesterday, where, in company with the teachers and scholars of the Methodist church in that city, they visited Charter Oak, the historical rooms and other places of interest.

It is stated that several mills in Rhode Island have recently determined to suspend operations, among which are the Compton mills, 10,000 spindles; Union Steam mill, 10,000 spindles, and the Newport Steam mill. These mills all manufacture print cloths.

Benjamin C. Simmons of Ashford, Henry Hammond of Pomfret and Comfort S. Hyde of Canterbury have been appointed county commissioners for Windham county.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

Broadway theatre entertainment is the standard of the city. If it is just a picture programme or a combination of Keith vaudeville and pictures you are certain of the best. There will be no exception to this rule when you see the fine B. F. Keith vaudeville acts and the Paramount picture which opens tomorrow.

Another film treat in store for native picture-goers is Paramount's smashing society drama, "Any Woman" comes highly recommended. Henry King, one of the most expert directors in the business produced it from an original screen story by Arthur Somers Roche, famous short story writer.

Lovely Alice Terry is featured in the principal role and is supported by a big cast, including such screen favorites as Henry Walker, Lawson Butt, James Neil and Margarita Fischer. Ernest Gillen, a new cinema "find" and Thelma Morgan, prominent society beauty, have important parts in the production.

Palace.

Glenn Tryon, who is Hal Roach's featured comedian in "The White Sheep," at the Palace theatre this week, while relatively new on the screen, has a crowded theatrical life back of his twenty-five years on earth. He was born in the wild and wooly west. His first memory is that his father refusing to open a safe for the late and impulsive Jesse James. Whether or not this event set fire to the dramatic fuse in his mind may never be known but shortly after this child of the frontier begun to have leanings toward the melodramatic theatre that flourished about this time.

His father's barn was soon transformed, the hay loft became the seat of the Gallery Gods, an old quilt the art curtain and the rough hewn posts that supported the roof, the proscenium arch, of this embryonic temple of Thespius.

Tryon's first professional appearance was in Spokane, Wash., then a career as billposter, property boy, usher, candy butcher and versatile actor in Great Falls, Montana. Later Broadway called and followed a hectic series of ups and downs, mostly downs. At nineteen he played an old man of seventy in "Maytime." He appeared in New York as well as on the road in the successful production of "Bab."

Hal Roach saw him, realizing the possibilities and starred him in "The Battling Orioles." It went over with a smash and Tryon took his place among the bright stars of the film firmament.

Palace.

In "Shackled Lightning," Frank Merrill's starring-vehicle which is coming to the Palace theatre Thursday next, thrilling use of the radio has been made. This story deals with the exposure of a dope-selling plot and the rescue of a persecuted girl—both achieved through the marvels of the radio and the ingenuity and fighting spirit of Frank Merrill, who plays the hero as Patrolman Frank Brady.

"Shackled Lightning" is a different story, not only because the radio is such a feature in it, but on account of a fresh new plot which was devised by Bruce Mitchell, who also directed. Frank Merrill will win a host of new friends through his supremely fine acting in this film.

Breed Theater

One of the most novel and intensely interesting pictures of the season is the new William Fox comedy feature Darwin Was Right, scheduled as the big attraction of a double feature bill which will open a two day run at the Breed theater today. This new special features Max, Moritz and Pep the three chimpanzee actors that have created a furore in comedy circles.

The remarkable success of the pictures in which these monkey stars have appeared recently prompted Mr Fox to cast them in a full-length feature. Edward Moran wrote the story and prepared the scenario for this comedy special, treating the Darwinian theory in a manner that is at once original, unique and full of comedy.

Lewis Seiler, the man who directed nearly all of the Imperial comedies in which the monkeys appeared, has guided the animal actors in what is a real humorous epic.

The story concerns the experiments of a scientist who is seeking the elixir of youth. He finds what he believes to be the great restorative, and, in order to convince his family and his friends, tries it on himself, the gardener and a negro butler.

Through a series of humorous incidents the family is led to believe the three men have taken so much of the youth restorer that at first they become childish, then revert to baby hood and finally revert to the state which Darwin claims for our ancestors.

Darwin Was Right is one of the outstanding comedy features of the season.

Thrills, emotion and suspense are promised by Playthings of Desire, the new H. F. Jans production, which is the second attraction on this program. The story, adapted from the novel by J. Wesley Putnam, tells of a sensational divorce, with a society woman, her financier-husband, and a French-Indian guide, as the principal characters. The life of Broadway, of Long Island society and of a rich man's hunting lodge in the North Woods are said to be faithfully pictured. The cast includes Estelle Taylor, Dagmar Godowsky, Edmund Breese, Mahlon Hamilton, Mary Thurman, Walter Miller and Lawford Davidson. The picture was directed by Burton King.

Real Estate Sold

Through the Norwich Land Title & Insurance Company Agency, Henry G. Montle has sold to Leon E. and Elizabeth M. Taylor, a new modern six-room cottage on Summit street, in Thamesville. The new owner makes this purchase as a permanent home.

HICKEY WILL CONTINUE AS DEPUTY SHERIFF

Edward J. Hickey, formerly detective for New London county, is a deputy sheriff and will continue in that office after he has ceased to be county detective, he said Tuesday. Hickey was at one time Central Vermont railroad inspector and later county detective for New London county, and present county detective of Hartford county and chief investigator for State Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn of that county, who refused to become a member of the state police force in accordance with the stipulation of Governor Trumbull, who has ruled that all county detectives should be enrolled. As such he will continue to make investigations for State Attorney Alcorn, who has led the opposition to the order of the governor. As deputy sheriff, Mr. Hickey would be paid by fees rather than salary.

ARNOLD REGATTA AT GROTON LONG POINT

Several hundred lined the boardwalk and sands of the Groton Long Point beach Saturday afternoon to watch the annual regatta staged by the Groton Long Point Association. Fancy water and land events of all sorts made up the program and the contestants were the young residents of the beach. In connection with the regatta, a tag day was held for the benefit of the association. The judges of the events were Preston C. Miller, Charles MacNamara, Paul F. Sauter, Joseph Gould and Ralph Capp.

The events and the winners were as follows: Four-oared race for boys, Gordon Hoops, Jr. and Robert Harley; four-oared race for girls, Beth Houston and Edith Foote; 20-yard race for boys under 10, Robert Dempsey; single rowboat race for boys, James Ringland; single rowboat race for girls, Beth Houston; handicap power boat race, Douglas Elliot; outbuoy motor race, Howard Edgerton; canoe race for girls, Ruth Codwise and Ruth Welburn, canoe race for boys, Frank Allen and Joseph Morrise; 50-yard swim for girls, Ruth Codwise; 50-yard swim for boys, Robert Harley; 50-yard swim for boys, Gordon Hoops Jr.; rowboat watermelon race for girls, Katherine Houton; rowboat watermelon race for boys, Frank Allen.

The highest number of points for boys went to Gordon Hoops, Jr., and the highest number for girls went to Beth Houston.

WESTERLY

A contest for membership on the Board of Engineers of the Westerly Fire department promises to develop, at the annual meeting of Westerly Fire District the last Wednesday evening in August, which will be Aug. 26.

At the January session of the 1925 legislature for the State of Rhode Island approved April 23, 1925, House Bill No. 960, introduced by Representative Clifford W. Campbell, of the Second Westerly Voting district, beside enlarging the boundaries of the Westerly Fire district to include a Central Park area, Avondale, Beach street, [illegible] Avenue and Franklin street and an additional High street area had the following:

"Sec. 3. The annual meeting of said corporation shall be held on the last Wednesday in August in each year, and unless otherwise provided in the call therefore, shall be held in the town hall in said town of Westerly."

It has been stated that Fire Chief George E. Egger will probably be unopposed and the contests will be for the positions of First, Second and Third Engineers. The present holders of these offices are:

First Assistant Engineer, Robert Bonnen, who in the annual meeting Dec. 3, 1924, defeated Moses Payne, Jr., by a vote of 56 to 48. The vacancy was caused by the resignation of First Assistant Engineer John Lynch Dec. 1, 1923, his election being on the annual meeting, Dec. 5, 1923, and who resigned because as a letter carrier he was in Federal service.

At the bi-ennial election of fire district officers in 1923, George A. McKenzie was elected Second Assistant and Columbus Passetti, Third Assistant. It is reported that considerable electioneering in a quiet way has been going on by the present office holders and by Howard D. McFarland, Morris Ewing and Herbert Hoadley who have been reported as among the receptive [illegible] Westerly who would not [illegible] Board membership.

Records of real estate transfers at the office of the Westerly town clerk show:

Aug. 10—Charles L. Fontana et als to Pasquale Nardone, a parcel of land, Lot No. 15, Plat of Property of Charles L. Fontana and others at Pleasant View.

Albert H. Langworthy to Pasquale Di Placido, a certain tract of land No. 7 Plan of Fairview Park, Sec. B.

Aug. 11—Alexander C. Thompson to Idamay Prout a lot of land on the east side of Beach street.

Howard E. Thorp to Carl V. Brucker a tract of land on north side of Atlantic avenue, between Pleasant View Casino and Weekapaug Breachway.

Charles L. Fontana et al to Guiseppe Turco a certain parcel of land on Plat of Property of Charles L. Fontana and others, at Pleasant View.

Mrs. Ralph L. Segar of the Calvary Baptist World Wide Guild entertained a beach party of the members at her summer home at Pleasant View, Tuesday evening.

Some hundred members of the Pawcatuck Seventh-day Baptist church and Sabbath school attended the annual picnic at the Atlantic Beach Casino, Tuesday afternoon and evening. Samuel H. Davis, superintendent of the Sabbath school was chairman of the committee in charge.

During the recent severe thunderstorm the house of Charles L. Fontana, corner of Railroad avenue and High street was struck by a bolt of lightning, when a part of the hip of the roof was torn. The branches and leaves of adjoining trees were blackened where the bolt passed through to the ground.

Workmen in the employ of the New Haven railroad have been engaged the past few days in rebuilding and repairing the fence along the embankment between the railroad property and Railroad avenue, between the West street and High street dry bridges, over the railroad tracks. Wide board pickets have been used in replacing the wornout and broken pickets.

The lathing of the High street front of the New Park hotel is nearly completed, above the recently installed copper and plate glass store fronts. When the lathing is finished, stucco will be used to cover the second and third floor fronts to the jet below the French roof.

Window sashes of the second floor front of the new United Theatres building on Canal street are in place and the work of carrying up the brick walls between them is progressing. As the excavation at the rear of the block has progressed more iron work at the rear of the building has been finished and that section of the roof is being put in place.

Mrs. Henry A. Stahle and daughter, Miss Julia of the West Side, are on a trip to New York. The return to their home in Pawcatuck will be made in the speed boat of Dr. Harry Lamb.

Mrs. Othniel P. Nichols of Brooklyn, N. Y., after a short visit with friends in Westerly and Watchaug, left Westerly the first of the week to be the guest of Newport relatives.

Mrs. L. Gourlay McLaren of Westerly is acting as chaperone for a house party at Pleasant View Beach.

EMANUEL TRAGGIS DROPS DEAD WHILE AT HIS WORK

(Special to the Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Aug. 11.—Emanuel Traggis, 29, a candymaker at the Westerly Candy Kitchen, dropped dead Tuesday morning about 11 o'clock at the Westerly Candy Kitchen, in the Potter block on Pawcatuck River bridge. Mr. Traggis, who was born in Metelene, Greece, son of the late Demetros Traggis, was a brother of John D. Traggis, proprietor of the Westerly Candy Kitchen and the St. Clair store, in Westerly.

It was said that Mr. Traggis never had a day's illness for which it was necessary to summon a physician. When the serious nature of his condition was discovered Tuesday, an effort was made to secure a doctor and Drs. Michael H. Scanlon and Samuel C. Webster were called. Death was due to heart dialation, as reported.

Word was sent to Medical Examiner Gray at Mystic, who was not at home, so authority was delegated to Medical Examiner Scanlon of Westerly who directed the removal of the body.

SMALLER HAY CROP ON NEW ENGLAND FARMS

WAKEFIELD, Mass., Aug. 11—(A. P.)—A slightly smaller hay crop than that of last year is indicated in reports from New England farmers to the New England crop reporting service here. The estimated crop of tame hay this year is 4,340,000 tons compared with 4,432,000 harvested last year and 4,127,000 the five year average.

"It is a big crop in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont but below last year and average in the other three states," a bulletin issued by the statistician here said. "Wet weather has hindered harvesting considerably, but will make the Rowen crop come forward rapidly.

Prospective production this year and the average of the past five years were given by states as follows:

Maine 1,472,000 and 1,544,000; New Hampshire 545,000 and 513,000; Vermont 1,334,000 and 1,231,000; Massachusetts 551,000 and 563,000; Rhode Island 56,000 and 55,200; Connecticut 382,000 and 413,000.

CONFESSION OF MURDER BY OHIO HIGH SCHOOL BOY

GARDEN CITY, Kansas, Aug. 11—(A. P.)—Fred Jordan, 17 year old Ohio high school boy, confessed late today that he killed Aden R. Clawson of L. I., N. Y., near Jefferson City, Mo., August 1 to obtain Clawson's automobile.

Clawson, who was driving to Colorado Springs, Colo., picked the youth up a few miles near Jefferson City. At some later, reading by the youth's confession he shot Clawson. Driving down a little traversed road, Jordan's confession continued, he threw the body into a ditch or small creek near a culvert. He told authorities the body would be found somewhere between Jefferson City and California, Mo.

The confession was obtained by County Attorney Roy B. Cullihan, after the youth had persistently denied any knowledge of Clawson and said he purchased the automobile at Terre Haute, Indiana.

Jordan was editor-in-chief of the freshman year and a basketball captain in an Ohio high school last year.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

BEEF CATTLE OUTLOOK ENCOURAGING

Beef cattle are in a stronger position than a year ago and with prospects for a scarcity of fed steers this fall, higher prices are anticipated according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, United States Department of Agriculture, in its beef cattle outlook report released recently. A large supply of corn at reasonable prices and a material reduction in the supply of hogs are also in prospect. This should result in an active demand for feeder cattle.

No material change in the domestic demand for beef is expected during the remainder of the year, but the smaller supply of hogs as compared with the past year should be a sustaining factor for beef. The European demand for meats increased during the past year, but so far as beef is concerned most of the European trade is supplied from Argentina, and it seems likely that this will continue. As long as European markets absorb the Argentine surplus it is unlikely that there will be any considerable movement of beef from that country to the United States.

POULTRY PARALYSIS

Poultry paralysis has been reported in several flocks of one-half to two-thirds grown pullets. Affected birds may show only a dragging wing or halting step the first day. The second day they have difficulty in getting around; and the third day are unable to walk, at all. Such birds lose color, lose flesh, and gradually waste away. A post-mortem examination on most of these birds shows a very severe irritation in the digestive tract—but worms are not usually present, as has generally been the case in previous epidemics. The birds continue to have a good appetite, but apparently starve to death because of their inability to assimilate the food that passes through the digestive tract. Very little is known about this disease at present, but some authorities seem to be quite certain that it is a disorder of the nervous system. There does seem to be considerable evidence that worm infection has little or nothing to do with the presence of the disease.

Pearl's Tonic and the Douglas mixture is the only treatment that has given anything like satisfactory results. This is being given to correct the digestive disorder rather than for treatment of the nervous system.

Pearl's Tonic is—Pulverized gentian 1 lb; pulverized ginger, 1-4 lb, pulverized salterpeter; 1-4 lb; and pulverized iron sulphate 1-2 lb; use 1 pint to each 100 lbs of dry mash.

Douglas mixture is—Sulphate of iron, 1-2 lbs; and sulphuric acid 1 ounce. Pour two gallons of hot water over the sulphate of iron crystals; then add the sulphuric acid. Use one cupful to each six gallons of drinking water. This stock solution should be kept in wood, earthenware, or glass containers; but when diluted in the drinking water, it can be given in galvanized iron dishes. Continue the above treatment for 10 days or 2 weeks. A careful sanitary program should be carried along with this treatment. Thoroughly clean and disinfect the houses and move houses and pullets onto clean ground if possible. If not possible, cultivate all ground around the houses that is not already in good sod.

GIPSY MOTH PARASITES

Control work against the gipsy moth by means of introducing foreign parasites is being continued this season. Eight distinct species of gipsy moth parasites have been established in the moth-infested area in New England by entomologists of the United States Department of Agriculture. This year three different species of parasites not yet established were liberated in the region.

Seven strong colonies of adults of one of the European tachinid parasites of the gipsy moth, each containing more than 1,000 fertilized females, were liberated at strategic points. These parasites were obtained from several parts of Europe last summer and were successfully hibernated in the hibernating cages in the laboratory yard at Melrose Highlands, Mass.

One small colony of mated adults of another gipsy moth larval parasite also was liberated this spring. These flies were obtained by collecting the cocoons of the pine sawfly, one of the hibernating hosts of the species in southern Poland early this spring. The cocoons were taken to Bremen, Germany, where the parasites were reared and shipped to the Melrose laboratory as puparia. A strong colony of about 1,500 adults of a small wasplike parasite has also been liberated in an area which is badly infested by the gipsy moth this season. These parasites were obtained by men sent to southern Poland and parts of Czechoslovakia, where they were very abundant this year.

The spring colonization of the Anastatus parasite of gipsy moth eggs, which is well established in the inside moth-infested territory, has been completed. More than 2,350,000 of these parasites were liberated during the spring outside the area where the species is now common.

POULTRY CO-OPERATIVE THRIVE

Co-operative marketing of eggs and poultry in the United States has undergone great development in the last 15 years. One hundred and eighty-three farmers' business organizations report handling eggs or poultry or both during 1924. They sold more than 70,000,000 dozens of eggs for approximately $22,000,000. Although only 21 of the 183 organizations were of the truly co-operative type, these 21 handled 50 per cent of the business done in eggs.

Formerly practically all poultry products were sold on a flat price basis. Eggs brought the same price regardless of quality. Poultry, which was usually sold alive, was paid for on the pound basis with little regard to its age or condition. This method besides offering no inducement to producers to improve the quality of their poultry and eggs, brought about seasonal gluts and shortages.

Great improvement was made when poultry producers in various parts of the country adopted co-operative methods of marketing eggs and poultry. Considerable attention has been given in the last two or three years to the co-operative method of marketing poultry in Maine, New Hampshire Connecticut, New York, Ohio, Indiana, Idaho, Minnesota, Missouri, Utah, Texas, New Mexico, Idaho Alabama, Kentucky and Virginia.

CLUB-WORK LEADS TO COLLEGE

A noteworthy by-products of the participation in agricultural club work by farm boys and girls is the incentive it gives them to reach out for a higher education. More than 8,600 former members of 4-H clubs, as these agricultural clubs are known, enrolled in colleges last year, according to reports gathered by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Some of these young people would have entered college in any event, but a large number had found from their experiences in trying to perform some farm or homemaking enterprise in a better way than was usually done in their communities, that knowledge and training are to be highly prized. A larger number have gone to college as a result of the stimulation derived from club work.

Meeting the desire for more education often has required some years of hard work and planning. Frequently the enterprise which was started during clubwork days has paid all or a good share of the college expenses as well as furnishing the incentive to obtain more education.

EGG PRODUCTION SHOWS DECREASE AT STORRS

Egg production dropped during the fortieth week of the Storrs laying contest. The total for the week was 4729 eggs or a yield of over forty-eight per cent. With the exception of one pen of Reds from Massachusetts, the Leghorns had the entire honor roll to themselves. Both the first and second places were a tie. Hanson's Leghorn Farm from Corvallis, Ore., and J. C. Patton's pen of Leghorns from Charlotte, N. C., laid 57 eggs each. Hillton Farm's pen of Leghorns from Suffield, Conn., and F. S. Chapin's pen of Rhode Island Reds each came through with 55 eggs. St. John's Poultry Farm from Oronogo, Mo., made third place with a lay of 53 eggs for the week and Otto Ruehle & Sons' pen of White Leghorns from Pleasant Valley, N. Y., followed in fourth place with only one egg less or 52 eggs for the week.

Farmers' Week has been in full swing these last few days. A very successful poultry banquet was held at the college dining hall. Many prominent poultry breeders attended this banquet and numerous poultry meetings, later visiting the contest plant. The staff and workers at the plant welcomed the visit of these breeders but some of the birds seemed to take another attitude. They failed to produce quite as many eggs as during the previous week, which is possibly due to the unaccustomed sight of so many strange faces. Now the excitement is over and the birds should settle down to their old pace again.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

BRITAIN'S VALUE OF HER DEFENSE ROUTES TO INDIA

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 11.—(AP)—Gibraltar and Eden, rather than the Suez Canal, are regarded by Great Britain as strategically vital for the defense of her routes to India from flank attack, Sir Frederick Maurice, chief of operations of the British general staff during the war, said at an open conference of the institute of politics tonight.

Sir Frederick repeated his former assertion that the Suez Canal was no longer a vital artery from the point of view of British strategy. Great Britain learned in the war that the Cape route could be used, he said, and the difference between that and the Mediterranean route to India was only 2,000 miles, not including the delay encountered in going through the canal. The canal route was still a highly important and valuable trade route, however, and the cheapest economically from the viewpoint of Australia and New Zealand, he said.

PROBE OF GASOLINE PRICES IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 11—(A. P.)—An exhaustive investigation of the price of gasoline in this city was formally launched tonight by the board of governors of the Automobile Club of New Haven County, at a meeting held prior to the annual shore dinner of about 300 members at Wilcox's Pier.

Secretary Donald A. Adams stated that he had received a number of letters from prominent members of the club, among them being Harris Whittemore, jr., of Naugatuck, suggesting that some action be taken by the club to determine whether the price of gasoline in this locality is a fair one. Mr. Adams stated that all of these letters asked whether the wholesale price of gasoline is the same here as in other cities, notably in Hartford where gasoline sells for two cents less than in this city.

The information sought by the club, it was agreed by the governors, could best be obtained from the wholesaling sources and it is to these sources that the club governors will apply for the facts.

Ernest N. Smith of Washington, D. C., general manager of the American Automobile Association, was the speaker at the dinner.

SAILOR AT NEW LONDON SQUEALS ON HENRY GAVITT, BOOTLEGGER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 11.—William Gross, a sailor in the coast guard service, secured the arrest of Henry Gavitt as a bootlegger this morning and the latter will appear in the police court Wednesday morning to take the legal medicine that will be administered to him. Gross had a busy time of it after he came here from the coast guard chasing boat on which he is a member of the crew. He proceeded to buy some alleged whiskey from Gavitt and when he had drank it he said he didn't realize what he did or where he was. He got into a house on Church street where Minnie Kerson, a colored woman has been employed and he made things so exciting for Minnie that she ran into the street and called for help. But Gross had then got far away. Minnie said the sailor struck the door of her room like a cyclone and the door went from the hinges into the room. Then Gross came in like a whirlwind, grabbed her up in his arms and threw her upon the floor. Minnie is wiry, so she managed to squirm out of the embrace of Gross for he held her when he threw her so she got after help.

Later Gross was seen on North Bank street, a course that is followed by many sailors, and the woman called Sergeant Huck. Gross was identified by the woman and that led to his arraignment in court today, where he was fined $20. He couldn't pay so he went to jail. But before he was incarcerated he "threw up," as he termed it and told where he bought the liquor. He went as far as to declare that he could buy more where he procured his supply yesterday. He was as good as his promise for he hunted up Gavitt and bought from him two half-pints. This he turned over to the officers who were at hand waiting for Gross to produce the goods. The officers saw Gross approach Gavitt and witnessed the bargaining and they saw Gavitt go into the repository for liquor and come out and supply the sailor man. That made the transaction complete and furnished the evidence on which Gavitt will be prosecuted. The law now provides a pretty stiff fine for selling liquor, in recent cases the penalty being $200 and costs.

Raymond Smith, a bus driver, was fined $5 in the police court this morning for failing to give way to a touring car, operated by Domenick Sutara, and which drove out of Golden street as the bus was going down Bank street from State street. The touring car was on the right and by the rules of the road should have been given clear passage. Sutara claimed he extended his arm to show that he was to cross and also that he yelled at Smith to convince him that he was entitled to the road, but Smith kept on and the bus bumped in to the pleasure car and damaged it. A big crowd collected that those in it might ascertain what the accident was, so there was abundance of witnesses as to what happened. But Smith pleaded guilty and willingly paid the penalty that was imposed on him. Sutara will now look for damages in that he will expect the injury to his car to be repaired.

Mrs. Elizabeth Murphy, about 40, of 42 Garfield avenue, widow of James Murphy, a former supernumerary police officer, died late yesterday at the Lawrence hospital, where she had been under treatment but a short time. Mrs. Murphy is survived by two sons, James and Joseph Murphy and by three daughters, Misses Ethel, Mildred and Elizabeth Murphy. A sister, Mrs. Florence Casey, also survives.

Nicholas Callahan, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Callahan, died this morning at the residence of his parents, 306 Main street.

Manuel Perry, 68, died this morning at his home, 38 Denison avenue, after a lingering illness. Mr. Perry was a fisherman and was well known. He is survived by his wife, six daughters, Mrs. Joseph Amelia, Mrs. Manuel Sizer, Mrs. Clyde Ingram, Mrs. George Brown, Mrs. Almond and Mrs. Bertram Ramus, and by a son, Sebastian Perry. A sister, Miss Mary Perry and two brothers, Joseph and Sebastian Perry, also survive.

The funeral of Charles A. Strickland was held this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at his residence, 44 Mahan street and was attended by a large number of mourners, including delegations of members of Loyal Order of Moose. The services were conducted by Rev. C. F. Spaulding, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. The bearers were members of Loyal Order of Moose and that organization conducted the committal service in Jordan cemetery.

The funeral of Miss Hannah Shea was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by many mourners. A solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Raymond O'Callahan, with Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley, deacon, and Rev. William J. Fox, of Groton, sub-deacon. The bearers were Harold, Stephen, Michael and Thomas Shea, all of Westerly, nephews of Miss Shea. Burial was in Westerly.

Antonio Bacci, et al., have sold a house and lot on Ocean avenue to George B. F. June.

William T. May and Charles A. Gallup have hold a dwelling and parcel of land, corner of Blackhall and West Colt streets, to James N. Snow.

Mary E. Silvia has sold a dwelling on Lincoln court to Antonio Impelletteri.

Mrs. Ada R. Hoxsie, 42, wife of William H. Hoxsie, died late yesterday at her residence, 11 Walden avenue, after an illness of several weeks. Besides her husband, Mrs. Hoxsie is survived by two children.

Mrs. Harry Rakowsky, of 64 Colt street, reported to the police this afternoon that while her automobile was parked in front of her home last evening a thief stole a blue and white beaded bag in which there was $1.75.

Night fishing from the municipal pier is a popular diversion for many men and boys. The variety of fish caught includes eels, flatfish and cunners, and occasionally a bass is caught. The fish run in to good size, too, especially the eels.

There have been more outing parties, and larger in number, this season, than ever known before. The Y. M. C. A. has had a camp in progress during the entire summer. The boys were first to go out and they remained for five weeks. Now the older "boys" are in Camp Mohegan, at Mystic. The boys had Camp Terrehegan at the same place and when they left it the men succeeded them. The steamer Ossining brought 300 boys here yesterday and departed for New York today.

Niagara Engine company will soon celebrate its 75th birthday anniversary. Only one fire department in the city ante-dates the Niagaras, that is the Nameaug company, which was organized as the Royal Blues and then took the name of Nameaugs, after the Indians that inhabited this section at one time. The Niagara company has some of the staid business men of the city in its membership which runs well into the hundreds. Their celebration of three-quarters of a century of existence will doubtless be made a notable event.

Beach patronage has been heavy this week, for the weather has been such as to attract people to the shore. Still the number of persons at the beach by no means compared with the patronage of Saturdays and Sundays—what the concession holders term the "big" days of the week. Last Sunday there was the noisest and roughest throng of the year at the beach. The police took in number of the boisterous ones, who were sailors, into custody and they paid the penalty in the police court Monday. There is no longer any question as to whether an increased number of police officers is needed at the Beach Sunday. That seems to be the day when the roughest of the patrons assemble. An arrangement by which the police on regularly on duty at the beach could call by telephone for additional officers would be a wise precaution. Last Sunday the couple of policemen there were forced to send for several officers to control reasonably the lawless element that gathered. It was a tussle for the additional force to control the sailors who were there in ugly mood and with liquor enough in to make them disposed to resist authority.

It is understood to be a settled plan by the members of the city council now holding office to widen Bank street in the fall. The purpose is understood to be to take about two feet from the sidewalk on both the east and the west sides of the street and in this way the space thus obtained for the highway, making space for double tracks from State street to Lake street. Below Lake street there are double tracks now. Above Lake street is where the additional space is to be gained. The change will necessitate the removal of poles that carry telephone and telegraph wires, but it is understood the companies owning the poles are quite agreeable to that change. The undertaking is to be an expensive one, but it is said to be one the city council has many that all that is necessary is for some arrangements to be pretended. The widening was in view, it is declared, when the survey of the street was made some time ago and damages and benefits were fixed against each owner, in the event of a change being made. The benefits and damages, strangely enough, were fixed at exactly similar sums. But the courts will pass upon these matters, the property owners on Bank street declare, for the owners assert that a more unreasonable adjustment of benefits and damages could not have been arrived at. Appeal from any award made in this direction will be to the superior court, and that tribunal will pass upon the matter in due season. It is a subject of comment that the city last fall laid sidewalks on the lower end of Bank street to a width of ten feet or so, when the attention of the council was called to the matter of saving a lot of expense by narrowing the walks and widening the street at a time when the walks were all torn up and when the expense would have been minimized. It is rumored that the telephone company then objected to removing their poles because of the expense that would be entailed and the city council backed down for the corporation, and for the Connecticut Power company, which also owns many of the poles which carry the wires of that corporation.

The county jail in this city has more prisoners now than it has had in a long time. They are chiefly men who have been committed for intoxication or for trivial offenses. Last Monday a half dozen or more were committed while today added but one to the list. It is likely that there will be no committals Wednesday.

E. F. Nugent, St. Louis insurance broker and a summer resident at Eastern Point, was arrested by Traffic Officer William Corcoran charged with violation of the automobile laws in not possessing a driver's license. Nugent explained his act, stating that his license was in his own car and that the car he was operating was owned by a friend.

The annual convention of the state police association will be held at New Haven tomorrow. Acting Captain James C. Sullivan, and Patrolmen John Foley and John Clifford will be the delegates to attend from the New London department. The department will be in charge of Acting Captain William Babcock tomorrow.

Mrs. Marie Condon of Tilley street, is spending a few days in New York.

Mrs. Alfred W. Stoll, 19 Bellevue place, is in New York for a brief stay.

James Foley, formerly of New London, now residing in Providence is in this city, where he will remain ten days.

Officers at the state pier have made complaint to the police because of girls loitering about the approach to the pier to meet sailors. As a result of the complaint a girl was taken into custody this evening by Patrolman William W. Graham when she was found loitering there. The girl was allowed to go to her home in Easton.

Earl Green, a sailor attached to U. S. S. 20, stationed at the submarine base, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital tonight, suffering from bruises and scratches about the body sustained this afternoon, when the automobile he was driving collided with a tree on Huntington street, near the corner of Stony Hill. The car was wrecked and was towed to a garage for repairs. It is understood that the steering gear became disabled while the car was traveling at a fast rate of speed. Before Green could reduce the speed of the machine to any extent, he climbed upon the sidewalk and crashed against the tree.

The circulators of the petition for the purpose of requesting the city council to call a special election, that the voters may cast their ballots as to whether the city shall continue to be operated under the present city manager form of government, or return to the special charter of municipal government, having very generally signed by taxpayers and voters according to the circulators and those most interested in the proposition. The circulators claim that about half the 2100 signatures considered necessary to make it mandatory that a special election take place, have affixed their names to the petition and it is believed that the necessary number of signatures will have been obtained by next Monday night, to present the petition at the regular meeting of the council.

M. H. DONOHUE ANNOYED BY OCEAN BEACH RACKET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 11—M. H. Donohue, of Baltic, whose summer cottage is 18 Boswell Ocean Beach, complained to the police [illegible] of the frequent disturbances that occurs after midnight at the dance resort.

Mr. Donohue stated that the talk of automobile drivers was loud and continuous and that he and others were frequently caused much annoyance.

CASE OF SAM SANTINELLI IS CONTINUED TO AUG. 21ST

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 11—Sam Santinelli, 14 Shaw street, and two barns in New London and another in Center Groton raided by federal officers and state police Sunday night. Only at the Center Groton place was any liquor found, together with a Cadillac touring car containing liquor. The accused was turned over to the federal authorities by his attorney, William T. Connor, this afternoon.

Santinelli was immediately presented before United States Commissioner Russell T. Corcoran at the customs house charged with violation of the prohibition law in keeping liquor with intent to sell and transporting. The case was continued to the 21st inst and Santinelli was held in bail of $500, which amount he furnished. The amount of the bail is the maximum that can be imposed upon Santinelli under the law made and provided for the offense alleged, but there is a possibility that by the time the case is tried additional charges may be made against Santinelli.

NOMINATING PETITIONS FOR SCHOOL VISITORS FILED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 11—This afternoon there were filed at the office of City Clerk Julian D. Moran five nominating petitions of taxpayers who desire to hold public office. Two of the petitions were for the office of member of city council and the other three were for the office of board of school visitors. The petitions for member of city council are for James A. May and Mrs. Emily Spiers. Mr. May's petition was circulated by Charles J. Ducy and Mrs. Spiers' petitions was filed by Mrs. Jessie Horton, of Willetts avenue.

The petitions for school visitors nominate P. Leffoy Harwood, Clifford H. Belden and Nathan Belcher. They were circulated by Mrs. Rosemary O Anderson. So far as is known there are no other nominating petitions in circulation, although there are three members of the present city council whose term of office will expire Oct 1st. The nominating petitions must all be in the hands of the city clerk by Aug. 15th, so that but a few days more remain before the time limit passes for the reception of petitions.

With gasoline retailing at seven filling stations about New Haven at 23 cents a gallon, a new low level for this summer has been reached.

Although little less than a week has lapsed since he was laid to rest, friends of William Jennings Bryan are considering the erection of a suitable monument to replace the wooden slab that now marks his grave in Arlington National cemetery.

Schwartz Bros. Inc.

Supreme August Furniture Sale

There are many good reasons why you should buy your Furniture at

Schwartz Bros., Inc.

Here are a few of the Principal Reasons:

1.—Because at this particular time during our August Sale of Furniture, we are offering most substantial savings.

2.—Because all prestige and power of this great furniture institution makes it possible to select from unquestionably the largest and most complete assortment.

3.—Because quality furniture is absolutely our first consideraiton. It must be the kind that will give our patrons the lasting satisfaction they have a right to expect.

4.—Because after our Furniture goes into your home, our interest in the purchase does not cease. Schwartz Bros.' liberal guarantee to rectify any error which may occur, is always at your service for adjustment.

5.—Because you can select the finest Furniture that America's master cabinet-makers produce, or you select modest Furniture at surprisingly low prices—it's all honestly made and guaranteed to give satisfaction.

6.—Because it is an absolute fact that you can get more and better Furniture, for your money here than anywhere we know of.

7.—Because your savings are from 20 to 50% off our Regular Prices.

8.—Because our gradual payment service which is based on honest, square business principles, makes it possible to buy now and reap our August Sale Savings while paying for it on gradual payments that will prove a pleasure and not a hardship.

9.—Because here is an entire building of floor space devoted to the display of Furniture where everybody is welcome to roam about at will with that perfect freedom and assurance they will not be haggled to buy.

MARKET FLUCTUATED

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—(AP)—Violent fluctuations in high priced industrial shares overshadowed all other developments in today's irregular stock market. Trading was in larger volume than the day's sales aggregating one million and one half million.

Irregularness was mixed in character. Coupled the announcement of a cut in the price of a barrel in Pennsylvania crude, the extension of recent crude price cuts and a moderate offering in lead and copper prices served to send selling at the highest levels of the day.

General Railway Signal was the outstanding feature, soaring 44 3-4 points to a record high of 300 and then reacting ten points from the top realizing. Buying of this stock, which started on the "big board" at 9144 a share two months ago, was in response to the publication of semi-annual report showing net earnings in excess of $17 a share on the common in the first six months, double those of the corresponding period in 1924.

Quotations of the so-called "rich man's stocks" dictated speculative interest in the wheat futures, which broke 4 to 8 cents a bushel in reflection of government reports showing a larger probable 1925 yield of wheat in the United States and Canada than has recently been expected.

A sharp run-up of over ten points in American Can, which attained a new record peak at 234 3-4, revived rumors of an early split-up of the stock, but these lacked official verification and the stock closed slightly more than two points from the top. General Electric jumped over eight points to a new top at 316 3-8, or within 4 points of the maximum established before the segregation of the electric bond and share holdings. Westinghouse Air Brake closed 5 1-4 points higher at 119 1-4 after attaining a new high at 119 3-4. General Baking also showed an extreme gain of over seven points at 111 1-2 and then eased to 172 7-8.

Fresh weakness developed in the oil shares. Atlantic Refining broke four points on unconfirmed rumors that the common dividend would not be resumed and the Pan-American issues each closed about 3 1-2 points lower. Declines of a point or more were recorded by Colorado Fuel, Houston, Independent Oil & Gas, Pacific and a few others in that group.

Renewal of selling pressure against the automotive issues was inspired by additional automobile price cuts and the publication of relatively poor second quarter earnings statements by some of the accessory companies. Hedges Bros. house three points and American Bosch Magneto, Fisher Body, Mullins steel products preferred fell three points. Mack Trucks and Hudson showed comparative strength.

Further liquidation of the public utilities was inspired by the statement of Samuel Insull public utility magnate that many of those stocks were selling too high. Havana Electric lost 4 1-4 points lower at 133 1-2 and met losses of 2 to 3 points were recorded by American Water Works, American Foreign Power, Electric Power & Light certificates Montana Power and International Telephone.

United States Steel common reacted about 1-2 points to 120 5-8. Wall street appeared to be having difficulty in appraising the Virginia-Carolina chemical reorganizing plan, the common closing 5-8 higher at 3 1-8 after fluctuating erratically between 2 1-2 and 3 7-8 and the preferred showing a net gain of 3 1-4 at 12 1-4 after selling between 9 7-8 and 14.

Call money held steady at 4 1-4 per cent, time money and commercial paper markets were unchanged with 4 to 4 1-4 per cent. the ruling rates.

Except for the brisk rallies in the Swedish and Danish currencies, which moved around 18.55 and 22.55 cents respectively, there were few signs of importance in the foreign exchanges. Around $4.85 1-2 and French francs held fairly steady around 4.65 cents.

NORWICH, CONN., WEDNESDAY, AUG. 12, 1925

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Wednesday, August 12, 1925

THE WEATHER.

Conditions.

The northeastern disturbance is now central over the Gulf of St. Lawrence with a trough extending southwestward to the Virginia border. Pressure is relatively high off the south Atlantic coast, and from Hudson Bay southward over the Lake region.

There have been thundershowers within the last 24 hours at scattered points in the Atlantic states. The temperature has fallen slightly almost generally from the Missouri valley eastward to the north Atlantic coast.

A western disturbance over Kansas will continue to move eastward and it will be attended with general showers in middle and northern sections east of the Mississippi river, within the next thirty-six to forty-eight hours.

The weather will remain fair, now- ers on Wednesday in the north Atlantic states. The temperature will not change materially during the next two days although it will be somewhat lower Wednesday along the north Atlantic coast.

Winds.

Nantucket Sandy Hook: Moderate to fresh westerly northwest and weather Wednesday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Moderate to fresh southwest and north winds and generally fair weather Wednesday.

Forecast.

For Southern New England: Fair, cooler tonight; Wednesday showers.

Observations.

Bigelow's observations show the following changes in temperature and barometric pressure Tuesday:

	Ther.	Bar.
8 a. m.	70	29.90
2 p. m.	78	30.00
8 p. m.	70	29.90

Highest, 88.

Comparisons.

Warmer than Tuesday: Last night.

Warmer than predicted: As predicted.

CONFERENCE TO DISCUSS PROBLEMS OF NEW ENGLAND

Proposed by the Executive Committee of the New England Governors' Commission in Session at Boston Yesterday —Proposal is That a Conference, Modeled Similiar to the New England Town Meeting, Be Held Somewhere in New England in the Fall.

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—(AP)—A conference to be held somewhere in New England in the fall, modelled on the New England town meeting, and at which certain problems of this section could be discussed, was proposed today by the executive committee of the New England governors' commission appointed as a result of action by the executives of the six New England states attending the governors' conference, at Poland Spring, Maine.

After the meeting of the committee today John S. Lawrence, of Boston, chairman, said that the committee, composed of three representatives from each state, "were satisfied that New England has certain real and important problems needing the prompt attention and popular support of a general policy—not a super-imposed policy, but one adopted by the people for themselves individually for New England collectively added:

"The delegates do not advise any new organization, but something akin to the old fashioned town meeting, which we all have in our blood, to which the larger industrial, agricultural and trade organizations will send delegates and debate whether certain specific problems, such as power, agricultural and marketing are real New England problems and if they are, set up a council of 72 men representing all the states and the major activities of New England, to give concrete expression to a solution of some of these problems.

"The council will stimulate and coordinate the thoughts of agricultural, commercial and trade bodies of New England along similar lines in the expectation of better and more quickly securing results. With this in mind a conference will be called somewhere in New England this fall. Each state delegation will act as a committee on invitations and credentials for the organizations within their state."

Among the delegates present were Governor B. Chandler and Charles L. Wilson H. Lee, of New Haven, Conn.

PREDICTS THE ENTRY OF GERMANY INTO THE L. OF N.

JAMESTOWN, Mass., Aug. 12—Baron von Maltzan, German ambassador, who arrived here today to address the Institute of Politics, in a statement to newspapermen predicted the entry of Germany into the League of Nations as a result of negotiations now going on in London between Germany and Great Britain. He said that Germany will never again sign a document which declares her sole war guilt.

Referring to despatches from London to the effect of British insistance that French troops be allowed to cross the German border except under the supervision of the League of Nations, the ambassador said this was not true that an arrangement between France and Great Britain, also satisfactory to Germany, might be expected.

Baron Von Maltzan said the two main obstacles to Germany entering the League were Article 16 of the League of Nations covenant and the clause in the Versailles treaty placing the responsibility for the war on Germany. He asserted that Article 16 as applied by German statesmen permitted passage of troops across German territory which Germany could not refuse. He added that Germany had no evil intentions but was seeking revision of hte peace treaty in regard to the eastern frontier.

WATERBURY FIREMEN HAD NARROW ESCAPE

WATERBURY, Aug. 12—A company of firemen narrowly escaped death today. They were blown down a flight of stairs by an explosion of gasoline vapor, which fire swept the three story tenement wooden house at Willow and Putnam streets at a loss of about $7,000 shortly after 9 o'clock this morning.

Starting in the cellar of the house owned and partly occupied by Samuel Adams, the blaze mounted the enclosed porches in the rear of the structure, spread through the first floor tenement and descended to the second story. The third floor, which was completely gutted, was occupied by Julius Adams, brother of the owner, who occupied the owner's home on the first floor. The latter was badly damaged by fire and water.

Those injured were Sergeant William J. Brick and Patrolmen Edward L. Brick, brothers, John Cunningham, Jr., and John P. Dwyer, of the Engine company 7, the nearest station to the fire, were carried down into the rear of the building as a blast occurred on the second floor. The window of the third floor room was blown out, glass flying in all directions. The firemen were hurled down the stairs into the yard but immediately fought their way back into the blaze.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

An additional proposal for funding the British debt was rejected.

Labor Department moved to expedite the departure of Battling Siki.

An appeal for clemency on behalf of Governor McCray of Indiana was presented.

Germany in a note to state department pressed for return of property seized during the war.

The Interstate Commerce Commission acted to make soft coal available as domestic fuel in the east.

DESTROYERS TO ESCORT JAPANESE CRUISER TAMA

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—(AP)—The destroyers William Jones and Mc-Cawley will act as escort to the Japanese cruiser Tama when it arrives at San Francisco Aug. 26 with the body of American Ambassador Bancroft.

The reception and ceremonies afloat will be in charge of Captain J. T. Hopkins, commander of the submarine divisions of the battle fleet. His temporary flagship will be the supply ship Procyon.

FOREST FIRE SITUATION IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 12.—(AP)—With cloudy weather general and rain forecast for almost all districts in British Columbia, the forest fire situation had improved measurably today.

A serious fire is still burning at Heath Bay, north of Vancouver, and has caused camps and equipment of a logging company.

TO ENDEAVOR TO FLY FROM NEW YORK TO PARIS

PARIS, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Lieutenant Georges Kirsch, one of France's prominent aviators, left for New York today to endeavor to fly from New York to Paris.

MACMILLAN PLANES SPOT AN INTERMEDIATE BASE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—(A. P.)—Covering in a few hours territory which explorers a few years ago might have labored over for months, the airplanes of the MacMillan Arctic Expedition have spotted a likely location for an intermediate base between Etah, Greenland, and Cape Thomas Hubbard.

Two trips over the icy mountains of Ellesmere Island in weather that chilled to the bone were necessary to find the landing place. The first of these trips, last Saturday, carried the planes over rugged country never before traversed by civilized man.

The second journey, yesterday, although made difficult by low lying clouds, was successful in disclosing at Beitstad Fjord, 100 miles from Etha, what appeared to be a suitable location, and the planes were scheduled to move to that point late last night.

The necessity for working rapidly was explained here as due to the rapid approach of colder weather in the region where the planes are to do their exploring. Little more than two weeks of the fairly good weather remains for this purpose before winter begins to tighten its frigid grip on the arctic.

COAL MINERS DECLINE TO DISCUSS THEIR POLICY

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 12.—(AP)—Comment was received here from various parts of the American coal industry regarding today's disclosure through the Associated Press of the policy the United Mine Workers of America would probably follow in event of government intervention to prevent or shorten an anthracite suspension September 1.

John L. Lewis, president of the union, declined to discuss the statement that if the government sought to deal with the hard coal breach between the miners and operators the union would first ask its attitude toward repudiations of the Jacksonville agreement as it alleges in bituminous coal territory.

W. W. Inglis, president of the Glen Alden Coal company of Scranton, Pa., and chairman of the anthracite operators' scale committee in the recent negotiations here, confirmed the previous announcement that anthracite mine owners had anticipated such a disposition on the part of the miners' union.

VINDICATIONS IN CASE OF PICKWICK CLUB COLLAPSE

BOSTON, Aug. 12—(A. P.)—James J. Hendrick, city building inspector, and Lawrence Perkins, foreman of a construction company, charged with manslaughter in connection withe the collapse of the Pickwick club building July 4, in which 44 persons lost their lives, were found not guilty by a jury in Suffolk superior court late today.

The jury returned the verdict after three quarters of an hour deliberation.

Ten defendants were placed on trial four weeks ago after the grand jury had returned manslaughter indictments. Eight were discharged on directed verdicts in the course of the trial.

The Pickwick club building collapsed while a dance was in progress early on July 4. The indictments charged the defendants with manslaughter in causing the death of Patrolman Paul Halloran, one of the victims. Witnesses for the state that the building was in a weakened condition as the result of a fire in April. Major General George W. Goethals, who testified as an expert for the defense yesterday, said the fall of the building was due to the weakness of one of the piers which formed the underpinning.

STATISTICS OF PROVISIONS NOW IN COLD STORAGE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—(AP)—The monthly report of cold storage holdings issued today by the department of agriculture showed that 109,041,000 pounds of creamery butter was in cold storage Aug. 1, compared with 134,118,000 pounds on the same date last year.

American cheese holdings were reported at 66,661,000 pounds compared with 65,864,000; case eggs, 10,020,000 cases compared with 9,267,000; frozen eggs, 42,956,000 pounds compared with 35,184,000; frozen poultry, 53,505,000 pounds compared with 33,604,000; meats, 792,464,000 pounds compared with 930,589,000; and lard, 146,270,000 pounds compared with 149,672,000.

GALE PREVENTED SAILORS RETURNING TO SHIPS

AUCKLAND, N. Z., Aug. 13—A fierce gale last night prevented some 2,00 Americans on the visiting warships from returning to their vessels. They slept in hotels at the Y. M. C. A., and some even on the floors of the wharf shed. All of them took the situation philosophically.

Tammany's Attitude Aggravates Hylan

Mayor of New York Declares He Will Not Submit to "Bargaining Politicians."

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Today's political developments brought serious threats of open conflict in the ranks of Hylan adherents over questions of policy in carrying the fight into the local tickets of Manhattan and the Bronx. According to a "gentlemen's agreement" between the five borough leaders, the fight was to be restricted to the city ticket with each faction free to settle its own borough nominations.

Today, however, Mayor Hylan said that he would not be bound by any agreement made by "bargaining politicians" and would attack Tammany in its own stronghold. He charged that the supporters of State Senator James J. Walker, Tammany's candidate have already broken the agreement in Richmond, leaving him free to follow suit.

This announcement brought immediate warning from John H. McCooey, Brooklyn leader, and Mayor Hylan's chief sponsor, that he would not violate the original agreement.

"I shall advise the mayor," said Mr. McCooey, "that a gentlemen's agreement was made not to carry the fight below the three top officers, I shall tell him that so far as I am concerned, I shall not be a party to breaking this agreement under any consideration."

His stand, however, was not followed by leaders in Richmond and Queens, who announced that they would support the mayor's attitude. Tammany, they said, has fomented trouble in their own boroughs and if they were in favor of an immediate counter-offensive.

The internal discussion in Richmond over Mayor Hylan's designation was intensified tonight when Congressman Anning S. Prall of Staten Island, one of the leaders in the county, announced that he would support Senator Walker's candidacy. Mr. Prall asserted that the issue was between Governor Smith, who is Senator Walker's sponsor, and Mayor Hylan.

Frank D. Waterman, Republican-Citizen candidate for mayor, getting his own campaign under way, announced that his platform would be "subways, schools and safety." William M. Bennett defeated Republican candidate for mayor in 1917, who announced yesterday that he intends to oppose Mr. Waterman in the primaries, also opened his campaign today.

His chief attack was against Mr. Waterman's regularity as a Republican.

GERMAN TARIFF BILL PASSED THIRD READING

BERLIN, Aug. 12.—(AP)—The government's tariff bill, which passed its third reading in the Reichstag today without amendment but after one of the stormiest debates in German parliamentary history, provided conspicuously high duties for foodstuffs and various categories of industrial products.

While the new duties will tend to hamper American exports to Germany it is indicated in official quarters that the tariffs represent maximums which are to constitute the basis for subsequent negotiations with other nations. In the case of food duties, for instance, it is pointed out that the ministry of agriculture is empowered to alter these in order to secure reciprocal treatment from nations which have not yet concluded treaties with Germany.

As the United States has a "most favored nation" agreement with Germany it is assumed that there will be no occasion for disagreement between the two countries on account of the level o fthe Maximum Tariffs.

The new schedules provide for the following duties on foodstuffs, the unit in each case being a double hundredweight; wheat, 3.5 marks; oats, 3 marks; bacon, 24 marks; lard and other fats, 6 marks; butter, 22.5 marks; tinned meat, 40 marks; tinned milk, 40 marks.

BUILDING TROUBLE IN NEW HAVEN AT CRISIS

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 12—Unless an eleventh hour settlement is arrived at between the master builders association and the striking laborers and hod carriers union, it is expected that all building trades unions here, except the bricklayers, will obey the rules of their unions and go on strike tomorrow morning. This would affect 3,000 men. It was reported tonight that the master builders would not grant the demands of the hod carriers for an increase in wages. When this information was conveyed to Patrick F. O'Meara, president of the Connecticut branch of the American Federation of Labor, he replied that the only course of action would be to call a general strike.

The bricklayers, it was reported tonight, have made an agreement with contractors to participate in no labor trouble for a period of approximately two years.

Contractors said tonight that work would continue on several large projects despite any strike action by the union men.

GERMANY PRESSES FOR THE RETURN OF SEIZED PROPERTY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—(AP)—A formal communication pressing for the return of German property seized by the United States during the war was presented to Secretary Kellogg by the German ambassador.

No comment was available at the state department beyond admission that such a communication had been received and was being considered. The text has not been made public, but the memorandum is understood to point out that, in view of the status of the operations of the Dawes reparations plan and the benefit to be derived from those payments by the United States, the time appears appropriate to take up for settlement the question of German properties still held by the Washington government.

Many Persons Killed By Chinese Guards

Guards Fired Into a Big Crowd at Tientsin, China —300 Arrests Followed.

TIENTSIN, China, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Many persons were killed or wounded and 300 were arrested as a result of Chinese guards firing today on a big crowd which had gathered at the scene where yesterday Chinese police fired on a number of striking mill workers.

The Chinese authorities had dispatched strong reinforcements to arrest the ring leaders of the mob and dispose of the rioters, most of whom were employes of the several mills in the locality, along with a number of students and villagers.

When the reinforcements arrived the mob was attacking the mill guards with iron rods, sticks and stones. Attempts were made to snatch the arms of the guards and kidnap their officers. The guards used the butts of their rifles on the rioters without effect and finally opened fire. The authorities tonight admitted the situation was worse, but were taking the utmost precautions to prevent further outbreaks. A scheduled meeting of students and strikers was forbidden within the city.

No further trouble occurred today at the Paocheng mill, scene of yesterday's disturbance, but strikers overnight broke into adjacent Yuto Sino Japanese mill after the guards had been withdrawn, destroying the mill's machinery, doing damage estimated at $500,000.

A number of Japanese were assaulted at different points in the countryside. One was taken to a hospital, seriously injured.

Klansmen and Antis Battle at Reading, Mass.

READING, Mass., Aug. 12—Opposing forces of the Ku Klux Klan members and anti-Klansmen estimated to total between 1,000 and 1,500 men, nearly evenly divided, clashed in rioting here last night and early today. Shots were fired, stones and clubs were used and tear gas bombs were hurled, witnesses asserted. More than a score were injured by stones and clubs.

Local police rushed hurried calls for assistance from three neighboring towns and the state police here summoned patrols quartered at two other barracks. After some jeering and stone throwing, suddenly several shots were fired.

The lights of the Klan machines illuminating the field were switched off and, it was reported, several missles that appeared to be tear gas bombs, fell in the crowd. By this time the state police forces from nearby barracks had reached the scene and a score of regular and local police were estimated to be on hand to quell the rioting which was expected to begin when the Klansmen attempted to leave the field.

Shortly after midnight a score of persons had been injured by clubs and flying rocks. Injuries were apparently evenly divided between the two factions. Unofficial reports placed the crowd opposing the Klansmen at 1,000.

The Reading police rushed calls for assistance to the police of Wakefield, Winchester and Woburn, while the state police called out reserves from their barracks at Concord and Rowley.

Nine Klan motorcycles followed by a number of automobiles dashed out of the field. There were several collisions as the crowd surrounded the machines. Waving his pistol, Patrolman Patrick Scanlon, of Reading drove back the crowd as it attempted to pull the occupant from one automobile, and allowed the car to be driven to safety.

One man, said to be Henry Morask, of Groveland, an alleged Klansman, was arrested for assaulting an officer with a piece of steel cable.

The klan forces again withdrew, remaining within the field while the opposition hovered on the outskirts, the situation becoming a state of seige while the police guarded against further clashes.

YESTERDAY WAS QUIET FOR PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 12.—(AP)—Spending one of the quietest days since his arrival here just seven weeks ago, President Coolidge was able to clear up his desk considerably preparatory to his departure this week-end for his father's home at Plymouth, Vt.

Michael Gallagher of Cleveland, a bituminous operator, visited for a few minutes with the executive at White Court on his way through here for a vacation. On leaving White Court Mr. Gallagher declined to discuss either the anthracite situation or the charges of the United Mine Workers' officials that some bituminous operators are violating the Jacksonville agreement. Mr. Gallagher added he had not discussed coal affairs with the president.

George H. Fairchild of Manila, P. I., also called at White Court, extending the greetings of Governor General Wood of the Islands. Although he did not take up Philippine questions in detail with the executive, Mr. Fairchild later declared strongly against the giving of independence to the Islands, a proposition which he argued was in the power of congress to permit. Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Richardson, of Washington, were luncheon guests. No definite date has been set for the president's departure for Plymouth but it is considered likely he will leave on Friday.

It is uncertain also whether he will travel by train or motor.

TWO GUARDS, ONE PRISONER KILLED IN RIOT AT SALEM, ORE.

SALEM, Ore., Aug. 12—Prisoners at the state penitentiary rioted late today. Two guards and one prisoner were killed. The state militia was called out. The prisoners made a rush and broke into the arsenal at six o'clock. Three prisoners are known to have escaped.

Italy hopes that the total of her war debts to the United States will be made a variable sum, somewhat similar to German reparations reparations under the Dawes plan, according to statements in the press.

AMERICANS AND BELGIANS FAR APART IN DEBT PARLEY

Each Side Has Rejected the First Proposal Put Forward by the Other—Americans Will Meet Early Today For Further Consideration and Then Again Go Into Joint Session With the Belgians in an Effort to Reach an Accord—Principle of a Moratorium Has Been Agreed Upon.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Each side having rejected the first proposal put forward by the other, the American and Belgian debt commissions found themselves tonight in the position of having to seek new ground upon which to renew tomorrow the negotiations looking to the refunding of Belgium's war debt to the United States.

There was no official statement as to how wide a gulf had been developed in the presentation of the Belgian offer and the American counter-proposal, but events of the day indicated clearly that the commissions were quite far apart in their viewpoints.

While there was no expression of pessimism at the conclusion of the day's conversations, [illegible] the show of optimism [illegible] the second day of the negotiations. AMERICAN BLUEJACKETS AT WELLINGTON, NEW ZEALAND

Wellington, New Zealand, Aug. 12—(A. P.)—American bluejackets swarmed through the city today and captured it completely. Sailors from the American visiting fleet made a great run on the restaurants, which were almost entirely cleared of food.

The parade of units of the fleet through the decorated and crowded streets this morning was a spectacular pageant. General Sir Charles Fergusson, governor-general of New Zealand, and Admiral Robert E. Coontz commanding the American fleet, took the salute from the steps of the parliament building. With them were Prime Minister Massey and New Zealand officials.

The prime minister entertained Admiral Coontz and his officers at luncheon today at the town hall.

The American commander and his officers received a tremendous ovation last night when they were the guests of honor at a reception given by the city at the town hall. Prime Minister Massey tendered them New Zealand's hearty welcome, and assured the visitors that there was a feeling of good will toward them in every New Zealand home. He expressed the view that the fleet's visit would result in the best of feeling between the English-speaking countries.

Admiral Coontz' response was vociferously cheered.

KLANSMEN SENTENCED TO HOUSE OF CORRECTION

DEDHAM, Mass., August 12.—(AP)—Sentences of a year in the house of correction were imposed today in district court here on Percy W. Libbey of Sudbury and Leroy B. Hall of South Sudbury, who were arrested after a Ku Klux Klan meeting at Islington, August 2, charged with having a dangerous weapon in a vehicle. They appealed and were admitted to bail in $6,500 each.

Libbey is one of 15 men, alleged members of the Ku Klux Klan, held in connection with rioting which followed a meeting of the organization on his farm at Sudbury Monday night. Four men were shot in the disturbances which resulted, it was said from an attempt to break up the Klan meeting. The fifteen are charged with assault with a dangerous weapon.

Five witnesses at today's hearing testified that a rifle, a pistol and 47 cartridges were found in an automobile occupied by Libbey and Hall when they were arrested at Dedham after the Islington Klan meeting. The defense offered no testimony.

VISITORS HIGHLY PRAISE PARKS IN WATERBURY

WATERBURY, Aug. 12—Waterbury parks were highly praised by more than 50 park supervisors of New England who met in this city today and inspected the city parks. Mayor Francis P. Guilfoile welcomed the visitors to the city in the opening meeting at the city hall at 10 o'clock. The tour of the city parks started at 10.15 and continued until 2 o'clock. A business meeting and discussion followed the tour.

OBITUARY

Rev. Leonard Smith.

MANSFIELD, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Rev. Leonard Smith, investigator for the Mansfield State Hospital and Training school since 1920, and for 23 years, prior to 1912, pastor of the Spring Hill Baptist church, died at his home in Spring Hill today. He was in his 73rd year and had been ill for the past three months.

At the time of his death Mr. Smith was a member of the board of assessors here, and for 20 years, 13 of which he was chairman, he was a member of the Mansfield school board. In 1917 he was a member of the state legislature.

Mr. Smith was born in Staffordshire, England, on Jan. 21, 1852. He is survived by one daughter, Miss Ebba Smith.

Funeral services will be held Friday and burial will take place in Hillside cemetery.

Richard J. Kinsella.

HARTFORD, Aug. 12. — (AP)—Richard J. Kinsella, mayor of Hartford for two terms, 1918-20 and 1922-24, and for more than forty years a leader in Hartford Democratic politics, died this morning after an long illness. The strain of his last year in office brought on successive relapses from which he could not recover.

Mr. Kinsella was born in Hartford Oct. 5, 1857 and lived here all his life. For the past thirty-nine years he has been engaged in the butter and egg business. He was the Democratic nominee for mayor five times, 1915 to 1924. Last year he was a first district delegate to the Democratic national convention in New York and he has led several city delegations to state conventions. He was keenly interested in school affairs and in the continuation of Hartford's district school system. For nearly twenty years he had been a member of the South district school committee. A new school, to be opened this fall, has been named for him.

He leaves four sons and three daughters.

FATALITY FROM GAS POISONING IN WELL

DERBY, Aug. 12.—(AP) — John Florio, 55 years old, of 57 Frank street, New Haven, died from gas poisoning in a well on the Howard farm on the Ansonia-Derby town line this afternoon and two others were taken from the well unconscious following the failure of a charge of blasting powder to explode. It is believed that all three were overcome by gas from the burning fuse.

Fred Mantino, 44 years old, of 173 Adeline street, New Haven, is in Griffith hospital in a critical condition. Joseph Croseno, 30 years old, of 173 Frank street, New Haven, was given medical treatment and then was able to go to his home.

The three men, with another worker, were blasting the well and one of the charges of blasting powder failed to explode after the fuse had been lighted. Mantino went down into the well to investigate and when he failed to reappear, Florio descended into the well to discover what the trouble was. He found Mantino unconscious.

CONVICTED BOOTLEGGER SIGNED PAUPER'S OATH

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 12.—(AP)—Morris Sweetwood, convicted New York bootlegger was permitted to sign a pauper's oath before a United States commissioner today and later gained his freedom from the Atlanta federal prison.

Sweetwood completed a two year term a month ago and an additional 30 days that he sought since the paupers oath would escape payment of a fine of $10,000.

District Attorney G. W. Hooper contended that Sweetwood was not a pauper but had deposited $[illegible]30.94 in New York banks in October 1924.

CHICAGO DRUG ADDICTS APPLIED FOR RELIEF

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Half a hundred narcotics addicts whose supply of narcotics has been cut off as the result of raids last Monday night in the Chinese quarter today applied at the federal building for relief, seeking to be sent to state or federal institutions for cure.

Meanwhile the police patrolled Chinatown after being warned that a fresh outbreak of tong war is likely. All the narcotic resorts raided were those of On Leong members and this tong charges that its rivals, the Hip Sings, supplied the government agents with the information that resulted in the raids.

DENIED LICENSE TO MARRY SON-IN-LAW

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 12—Because she intended to marry her son-in-law, Mrs. Joseph Blankenburg, 45, of this city, was refused a marriage license by City Clerk Frederick H. Burke at the city hall today. She explained that son after her daughter's death on July 9 last James W. Hartley, 30, her son-in-law, asked her to marry him so she could care for her grandchildren.

City Clerk Burke based his refusal to issue a license on Chapter 207 of the general laws of Massachusetts which states that a woman cannot marry her daughter's husband.

Hartley declared tonight that he and Mrs. Blankenburg will establish a residence in a state where such a marriage is legal and have the ceremony performed there.

WILLIMANTIC

Two automobiles, a Hudson Coach and a Chevrolet truck, and the two car garage in which they were stored and which is owned by Carl R. Alford of 108 Windham street were destroyed by fire about five o'clock Wednesday morning. Mr. Alford estimates his loss at $4,000, partly covered by insurance. The origin of the fire has not been determined. The blaze was discovered by Mrs. Alford and she telephoned to the Bank Street Engine House and five minutes later two bell alarms, one from Box 17 and the other from Box 23 were rounded. The heat from the burning garage and automobiles was terrific and the firemen in charge of Fire Chief Henry J. Kelly fought hard to halt a spread of the flames. This was Chief Kelley's first opportunity to supervise the fighting of a fire of any consequence, and he conducted himself with great efficiency. Three streams of water were played on the building. The garage was a mass of flames upon the arrival of the firemen. It was a 20 by 30 foot structure and had burned to the ground in three-quarters of an hour.

With Postmaster Walter R. King as a witness, Federal Prohibition Enforcement Agents William S. Congdon and Stanton L. Briggs were engaged Wednesday morning in the destruction of nearly one hundred gallons of alcohol, some of which is said to have been of very fine grain, while a smaller portion was ranked as the rankest. The "hooch" had been stored in the rock vault constructed in the basement of the postoffice building for the safekeeping of contraband liquor by federal agents, since the enactment of the Volstead Act. The gauging of the alcohol down the trap door leading into the sewer left the vault practically empty of seized liquor. A few stills, one an impressive fifty-gallon one taken in Hebron and small quantities of moonshine and some wine make up the remainder of the evidence on hand.

Cars owned and driven by Frank DeMarchi and George Hornberger, both local young men, were wrecked and the drivers were slightly injured in a collision in Franklin, on the Norwich-Willimantic highway, Tuesday night. DeMarchi was operating a Studebaker car and he claimed that he had to run his machine off the shoulder of the road, in an attempt to avoid the collision. With him were three friends. Hornberger's machine crashed into the left front wheel of the Studebaker, causing a terrific crash. DeMarchi's car was turned completely around, shot across to the left of the road and down the embankment. The Ford also turned around in the road before coming to a stop. DeMarchi suffered the loss of one tooth and Hornberger was cut on the lip. Hornberger in turn lays the blame for the collision to DeMarchi and it is expected that the matter will come before the court for settlement. The local temporary barracks of the state police were notified and in turn Hornberger notified the Groton state police barracks. The cars were hauled to this city for repairs.

Diego Zagaro was charged with non-support of his family, in the police court Wednesday morning. In accordance with a previous order of the court Zagaro had been paying $10 a week to the family but when the specified time expired he quit payments. He agreed to continue the payments and at the suggestion of Prosecuting Attorney Harry S. Gaucher, Judge Frank H. Foss continued the case one month.

Patrick Albert O'Toole of Boston, a truck driver, was in police court Wednesday morning on three charges, operating an overloaded auto-truck, failure to display minimum and maximum figures of the capacity of the truck and failure to have a special permit for a load in transportation. The case was continued to Friday morning. O'Toole was arrested about 1:30 o'clock Wednesday by State Policeman Comstock, on Main street, while driving a six-ton auto-truck bearing Massachusetts numbers. The total weight of the truck and the contents, iron castings, was in excess of 25,000 pounds, the maximum allowance under the Connecticut state law. When placed on the scales the outfit totalled 28,300 pounds. The truck was on its way from Hartford to Providence. It is alleged that the truck had been in commission in Connecticut, with Massachusetts markers, for a period longer than fifteen days and that the driver had failed to secure a Connecticut registration. This complaint is in the hands of the state police headquarters in Hartford.

Ex-Mayor Oscar O'Tanner entertained at his home Wednesday, at Maplehurst, on West Main street, "Steve" Mahoney, his wife and daughter, of Boston. "Steve" is well known by old time sportsmen of this city, having been widely recognized as a baseball player and boxer of note. For several years he has been sporting editor and sports writer for a Boston newspaper. Mahoney and James (Flag) Doyle of this city, both then in the lightweight class, had a bout on St. Patrick's Day night, March 17, 1893, thirty-two years ago in Washburn hall. The bout went eight rounds when Doyle took the count in answer to a right swing to his jaw. While with the Jeffersons, of Chelsea, Mass., Mahoney came here several times in 1894 to engage in baseball encounters with Mayor Tanner's Willimantic team, which was in the Connecticut League at that time.

Funeral services for Charles C. Carpenter were held at one o'clock Wednesday afternoon at 62 North street, Rev. John H. Knott of Windham officiated. Burial was in Exeter cemetery. The bearers were Lee Gardner, Ernest Sullard, Harry Brousseau and Kenneth Cummings. Avery and VanZandt had charge of the arrangements.

REV. LEONARD SMITH DIES AT HOME ON SPRING HILL

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 12.—Rev. Leonard Smith, 73, former pastor of Spring Hill Baptist church and resident of Mansfield, died at his home on Spring Hill about two o'clock Wednesday morning. The news of his death surprised his many friends in this city. He had been ill about thirteen weeks but this fact was unknown to many local acquaintances.

Rev. Mr. Smith was born in Staffordshire, England, January 21, 1852, a son of Jabez S mith nILS, a son of Jabez Smith. In 1899 he came to Mansfield from Clinton as pastor of the Spring Hill Baptist church continuing there for twenty-three years. He resigned about thirteen years ago. His interest in his community had kept him in constant contact with the population and he commanded the highest respect of all, regardless of creed or nationality. He was a member of the Mansfield town school committee for twenty years and its chairman for thirteen years.

He represented his town in the state legislature in 1917, in pre-prohibition days he held an official position with the Connecticut Prohibition Society. Rev. Mr Smith was a member of Urial Lodge, A. F. and A. M. of Morrow being a past master and past chaplain of that lodge.

At the time of his death he was engaged as an investigator for the Mansfield State Training School and Hospital. Surviving him are his daughter, Miss Ebba E. Smith, of Spring Hill and a sister, Miss E. Elizabeth Smith, of England.

RIVER FISH GET LIT UP ON ALCOHOL DESTROYED

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 12.—Drunken suckers were being hauled ashore by residents of Lower Village near the Horse Shoe bridge, Wednesday afternoon. The suckers and a variety of other fish became inebriated, after swimming about in the Natchaug river near the outlet of the city sewers down which nearly one hundred gallons of powerful alcohol had been poured in the forenoon by Federal Agents William F. Congdon and Stanton L. Briggs. Unlike many humans, several of the fish endeavored to keep the pledge and floundered ashore in an attempt to escape the alcohol "splits."

BLACK PT.

FACTS

NEVER has there been wildcat speculation in Connecticut shore property. Never has there been a boom. Never, therefore, will there be a set back such as always follows a boom. The rise in values has been steadily going on and will continue to do so. You can invest in shore property with assurance of profit.

Jas. Jay Smith

BLACK PT. has everything, everything a magnificent shore property could have. Beyond all the necessary improvements, it has a splendid location, far out in the water, high, cool and sightly, it's over 60 feet above the sound. Then, too, there is a good beach, a snug harbor, an attractive Club House, beautiful homes and—well, you must see BLACK PT.—there is nothing like it on the whole Connecticut shore.

A good lot will cost you less than $500 and you have 4 years in which to pay for it.

Same Fine Studebaker Coach

—but at a new low One-Profit price

BECAUSE all Studebaker cars are manufactured on the one-profit basis, we have been able to reduce the price of the Standard Six Coach without sacrificing any of the equipment or quality which made it a big seller at a higher price.

Scientific design, better materials, and finer workmanship distinguish it. And the following self-evident superiorities make it more up-to-date than the newest "yearly models":

Excess Power—According to the rating of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce this is the most powerful car of its size and weight.

Abundant Room—Room to stretch your legs—room to enter or leave without disturbing occupant of folding seat.

Sturdy Body Construction—Fine northern ash and hard maple are used. We pay a premium to get the best quality steel.

Full-size Balloon Tires—for which the steering gear, fenders and even the body lines are specially designed.

Automatic Spark Control—eliminating the usual spark lever on steering wheel.

Safety Lighting Control—on the steering wheel.

Instruments—including 8-day clock, gasoline gauge, speedometer, oil-pressure gauge and ammeter, in single grouping under glass, on beautiful silver-faced dial.

Improved One-piece Windshield—automatic windshield cleaner, weather-proof visor, rear-view mirror, cowl lights and cowl ventilator.

Coincidental Lock—to ignition and steering wheel, which serves to reduce the theft insurance rate on Studebaker cars.

New-type Cowl Ventilator—foot operated.

There are only two cars manufactured on the one-profit basis—the Studebaker in the fine-car field, and the Ford in the low-price field. Only in these two cases does one company in its own plants and with its own centralized organization make all bodies, all engines, all clutches, steering gears, differentials, springs, gear sets, grey iron castings, and drop forgings.

Studebaker has no "yearly models," but instead keeps its cars constantly up to date. Therefore this Standard Six Coach is ahead of the newest "yearly model," yet owners are protected from the artificial depreciation which has cut millions of dollars from the resale value of many makes during the past 30 days.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

As to "Where do all the old automobiles go?"—a question often asked—answers may be found in Danielson, as elsewhere. In town there is a junk outlet for old cars, a place where they are dissembled, the parts carefully sorted and put away in orderly fashion against a time when a demand will come for this or that part to go into some machine of the same kind that is still in service. The chassis of most old cars appears to be as of little value as any part of them, yet they contain much good metal. The big demand from the junk auto dealer is for bearings, springs, generators, gears and scores of other small parts. The old tires are worth money, too, just now, they were a drug on the market a year ago. There is a surprisingly large demand for parts from old cars.

A fire department expense that likely will come within a year will be for new tires and new paint on the big motor pumper. Time flies. Few realize that it is seven years since this splendid piece of apparatus was added to the Danielson department. Mechanically, the big pumper is in A 1 condition and capable of the most strenuous service. Its tires are worn, however, especially on the rear wheels and the paint is dulled.

Wednesday afternoon, the funeral of Pauline Alice Tourde was held from the home of her parents in Wauregan, with services at the Sacred Heart church in that place at 3:30, Rev. J. C. Mathieu officiating. Burial was in Sacred Heart cemetery. The child, four weeks old, had been ill about 10 days. Martin T. Burns was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Wednesday morning, the funeral of James Jackson was held from his home on the Goodyear road, with services at St. Joseph's church, Dayville. Rev. Ignatius Kost was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery. The bearers were John Conway, Edward Kulzniff, Joseph Barber, Mitchell Fisher, Frank Kirman and Samuel Columbus. L. T. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

The announcement that Rev. Walter B. Williams plans to begin a pastorate in the North Congregational church in Berkeley, Cal., in the fall, closing his work at the Westfield Congregational church in Danielson directs attention to the fourth of the pastorates at the local church. This church seldom experiences a change of pastors, the pastorate of Rev. Mr. Williams—about ten years—being comparatively brief compared as service at this church has gone in the past 30 years or more.

A traffic officer now goes on duty at the corner of Franklin and Water streets, Sunday mornings, as congregations are leaving St. James' church and there is a jam of motor cars and people at this point and great confusion of movement, at which heavy through traffic on the Danielson-Norwich route might be involved.

So abundant is the supply of blueberries of excellent quality in this territory this month that prices as low as 15 cents a box-set in crate lots has been quoted. Quantities of the berries are being taken for preserving.

Officials warn that fishermen should keep their licenses on their persons when they go fishing. Supervision of fishing is more complete than ever before and a call to see a license may come from a warden at any time.

Rev. Sarah A. Dixon, pastor of the congregational church at Hyannis, Mass., is to preach at the Westfield congregational church here the coming two Sundays.

A suggestion is heard that Stearns street be improved that it may serve as an optional route in getting onto the Providence highway and off that junk line, in order that the heavy traffic in Reynolds street be somewhat relieved.

Men in the building trades continue to be busy in Danielson, where a number of dwellings are under construction and various alterations and improvements are being made to property.

Mrs. Nellie Brown, of Furnace street, has returned from a visit of a few days in New York.

A number of Danielson people will be at Williamantic the coming week for the camp meeting and Epworth league institute, which each year attracts attendance from this section of the county.

John C. Leahman of Providence was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Wednesday.

Over 1,000 motor vehicles are owned in the town of Killingly, this being about one machine for every nine inhabitants.

Members here of the Connecticut League of Women Voters will be at Hartford November 4-5, for the annual convention of the organization.

Recent reductions in the selling prices of new automobiles has brought a corresponding shrinkage in the value of used cars, something that will be reflected in the town tax list this fall.

Courtland Greene of North street has been spending a vacation at Block Island.

Rev. C. Gregson of Framingham was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Wednesday.

Miss Lucy Elizabeth LaFantasie, of South Killingly, and Howard L. Wood of Foster were united in marriage at the bride's home in South Killingly, by Judge W. Fenner Woodward, acting as a justice of the peace.

Paul Gaudreau, in the employ of the A. T. and T. company for a number of years, has been spending a vacation with relatives on the West Side, coming here from Buffalo.

Numbers of cards and letters coming from the large delegation of Danielson people who are touring in various parts of Canada, attest the pleasure they are having on their holiday.

An outdoor carnival next week is being planned at Goodyear.

Of interest to woolen workers in the surrounding territory are the advertisements that are appearing for woolen mill help in various sections of southern New England and notice of an advance in wages at a plant in Clinton, Mass. This is taken as indicating that business prospects are at least some brighter in the woolen manufacturing industry.

The exodus from this town today (Thursday) for the Windham county legislative outing at Rocky Point will start soon after the noon hour. The delegations from this town will be a sizeable one.

Mrs. Frederick Miller of Middletown, formerly of Danielson and Dayville, was a visitor here Wednesday.

Shoppers will recall that today (Thursday) brings another half-holiday and that many of the borough's stores will close at noon for the day.

Attorney and Mrs. A. G. Bill have an outing planned for tomorrow (Friday) in observance of an anniversary.

One case was disposed of at Wednesday morning's session of the town court, Judge W. Fenner Woodward presiding.

G. F. Berry of Providence, formerly of Brooklyn, was a visitor with friends in Danielson Wednesday.

Dancing attracted many to the pavilion at Wildwood park Wednesday evening.

I. C. Witter was at Norwich Wednesday conducting an auction sale.

Summer colds are a hardship for an unusually large number of persons in Danielson and vicinity.

Sisters of St. Joseph who have been at Hartford during the summer vacation period are to return here this week end.

MIGHT GET THE HOOK HIMSELF SOME PEOPLE BELIEVE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Aug. 12—The assertion of Prof. East at the Institute of Politics, in Williamstown, that 25 per cent of America's population is undesirable aroused interest here. Many agree with him.

The difficulty appears to be over picking out the 25 per cent—people differ in opinion so as to the value of other people. Some pickers might give Prof. East the hook.

ANNUAL FIELD DAY OF COUNTY FARMERS' ASS'N.

MECHANICSVILLE MILL WORKING DAY AND NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Aug. 12—The Beachmont Worsted Company at Mechanicsville, a mile north of Putnam, has put on a night shift in order to take care of a volume of rush orders. This extra shift is working in nearly every department of the mill.

OLD BRIDGE SOUND, THOUGH USED FOR 40 YEARS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Aug. 12—The bridge over the Quinebaug river at Pomfret street which is being used by Charles A. Haggerty of Worcester in dismantling to make way for the Memorial bridge, was erected forty years ago. Although the three contractors that his men are taking out are still sound there is abundant evidence of the heavy strain that the structure has had to carry in the past few years, due to the continuously increasing number of automobiles and heavy freight trucks.

The first bridge at this point was built by Captain John Sabin, of Pomfret, an ancestor of John P. Sabin, of this city, in 1722. Bayles' History of Windham county has the following reference to it:

"Captain John Sabin, a most influential character of Putnam at the period of his first living over the Quinebaug, below the High Falls, in 1722. For more than twenty years Pete Aspinwall had brought the Assembly for liberty to build a bridge at this point, stating that the want of such a convenience had been a grievous calamity and a hindrance to travelers and himself, for many years exceeding a thousand pounds and not always forthcoming.

"Local citizens of Pomfret reiterated their complaint that the Quinebaug at certain seasons was impassable, and that some persons had endangered their lives in trying to pass, but the Assembly turned a deaf ear to all petitions for relief. Captain Sabin, with his usual energy, threw himself into the breach, and with his sons' aid built a good substantial bridge costing 120 pounds, and then called upon the government for reimbursement.

"The committee sent to inspect reported the bridge built in a suitable place, out of danger of being carried away by floods or ice, the height of the bridge being above any flood yet known by any man living there. They thought it would be unreasonable on a great part of the government in traveling to Boston, being at least ten miles the nearest way, according to their judgment. Three hundred acres of land on the east side of the Quinebaug river were accordingly granted on condition of keeping the bridge in repair 'fourteen years next coming.'"

JEWETT CITY

The board of warden and burgesses at a meeting held Wednesday evening, appointed Daniel F. Finn third member of the board of electric light commissioners. The board now stands, George Mueller, Lloyd G. Buckingham and Daniel F. Finn.

At the Ross homestead, in Lisbon, there has been a ruby throated humming bird all summer. He is very fond of the fox glove, the delphinium and the bee balm in Mrs. Ross' flower garden.

He is very tame, does not fly away unless a person comes very near him. The female, in her very modest dress, is not seen.

Dr. Jennings a few years ago saw a humming bird's nest on a large limb of a maple tree over the road near this flower garden. It is thought the same birds come back every year. There are about sixty kinds of humming birds but we have only the ruby throated in this state.

The lawn social at Pachaug church Tuesday evening was very well attended, and a good sum was realized. The committee, Mrs. Benjamin Goldstein, Mrs. Leon Young, Mrs. Harold Dunbar, Mrs. Victor Campbell, Mrs. William Edmond and Mrs. LeRoy Holmes, had arranged an entertainment and sold cake and ice cream. There were piano solos by Iss Halko, of New York, and Stella Glowacki, of Jewett City; readings by Mrs. Herbert Salisbury and Mrs. Harold Geer of Griswold. Miss Ellen Brown, of New York, and Miss Gladys Young, of Voluntown, and recitations by Emma Manchini, of Griswold. Community singing was led by W. B. Montgomery and Miss Blanche Montgomery.

Tennis fans are watching the singles tournament being played for two weeks on the McNicol court. To date, two out of three victories have been gained by William Dealkrey over Chester Dudkowski, J. J. Tyler over Bernard Wechsler, Andrew McNicol over Leslie Hyde, Earl Hiscox over Edward Blake, G. Keene Gray over James Dolan and H. Gordon Willis over Herbert Thompson.

At the meeting of Pachaug Grange held Thursday evening, Aug. 6, it was decided to present the traveling gavel to Plainfield Grange on Tuesday evening, Aug. 18. A committee was appointed by Worthy Master Kinnie to arrange for a grange picnic Saturday Aug. 29. The lecturer's program included songs by the grange, readings by Miss Edith Tift and Miss Clara Hyde, a solo by Walter Hyde and a "Cake Story" which was much enjoyed. Worthy Master Kinnie announced that the essay contest on Pachaug would close at the date of the next meeting, Aug. 19, the prize for the best essay having been increased to $10 by William McNicol. The contest is open to any member of Pachaug Grange.

E. F. Burleson and J. H. Tracy, both members of the old Jewett City band, happened to be listening in on their radios on the same station, Tuesday evening, and heard two trombone solos broadcasted by Arthur E. Swift, of Providence, a former member of the band. He is now solo trombone with Palestine Commandery band of Providence, which was broadcasting from Dutee Flint's (WDWF) station.

William Mazel has returned from Putnam to Jewett City.

Attended Washington Parade.

(Contributed.)

Charles Palmer and party returned Tuesday night from Washington, D. C., where they attended the Ku Klux Klan parade and ceremonials in Washington and Arlington, Va. The party made the trip south by automobile, going through New York city, Newark, Trenton, Philadelphia, Baltimore into Washington, and returning by way of Fredricksburg, Gettysburg, York, Reading, Allentown, Hackettstown and Newburg, crossing the Hudson over Pow Mt. bridge, via the Storm King highway. Several others from this locality and points north made the trip by automobile, while others went by train and boat. The total distance driven was 1256 miles, and was covered in 37 driving hours. All were highly pleased with the trip and the enthusiastic reception given them all along the route and especially in Washington, where the city was virtually given over to the visiting Klansmen and Klanswomen. While the event attracted nearly 450,000 Klansmen to Washington it was merely an invitational meeting of the Klans of Virginia, West Virginia, New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Ohio, New York and the New England states. It was voted that the next event, which will be a national assembly of the order, will be held in Boston during the summer of 1926, and it will probably be the largest gathering of any fraternal order ever held in the United States, as it will bring the Klans from every state and county in the United States.

EARTHQUAKES AS SAFETY VALVES FOR THE WORLD

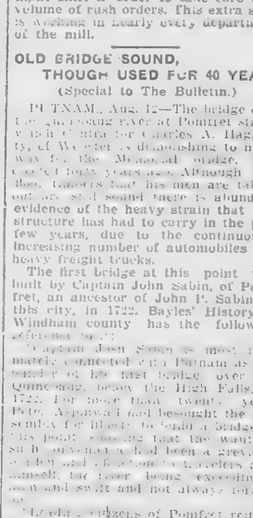
Minor earthquakes should be welcomed as the true world's safety valves," [illegible] disturbances, if bottled up, would result in devastating catastrophe, is the theory advanced by Watson Davis in the Current History Magazine. Mr. Davis credits this theory to government seismologists at Washington. These experts are of the opinion, he writes, that the shocks or outbreaks prevent, or at least retard greater quakes which would have widespread.

Taking as a basis the disturbance at Santa Barbara, Cal., last year, Mr. Davis proceeds to an analytical discussion of earthquake phenomena. He writes:

"Eight to ten thousand earthquakes are recorded every year in various parts of the world, and probably four times as many more occur, but far from being alarming this is a very reassuring fact, according to Dr. William Bowie, of the United States coast geodetic survey." Were it not for these "safety valves," Mr. Davis holds, the strain would grow until finally produced an eruption more violent than ever and perhaps sufficient to wipe out all the works of man."

A wide variation in New England's apple crop is reported in a bulletin issued by the New England crop reporting service. On August 1 the total commercial crop forecast was 3,635,000 barrels, about 66.2 per cent normal.

Evolution Springs Up Anew In Nation's Capital



UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD, N. Y.

Loren H. Wittner, an employee of the Bureau of Internal Revenue Washington, has filed suit as a taxpayer, in the courts of the District of Columbia, to prevent the United States Treasury from paying salaries to teachers in the public schools, who, he claims, are teaching the theory of evolution in violation of a provision of the annual Appropriation Bill, which directs that funds shall be withheld from any one teaching disrespect of the Bible. The immediate result of the suit was an order by Justice Frederick L. Siddons to Treasury officials to show cause why they should not be prevented from paying the salaries in question to Dr. Frank W. Ballou, Superintendent of Schools and others.

Loungy Roominess—Finest Equipment—More Beautiful than Ever—and Built for Action!

The New Paige Landau Sedan $2395

Drawing-room luxury! Streamline beauty and smartness! These are the outstanding qualities in this beautiful new Landau Sedan—built by Paige.

And what an accomplishment it is! Your first glance will tell you that here is substantial—lasting beauty. Done in a brilliant two-tone color effect that you'll never tire of. And streamlined, rear to radiator, with a smart double belt molding.

Individual!

Folks who drive this car will be called that. For there's nothing like it on the road.

Inside—beauty vies with utility. The very finest mohair velour covers its wide seats. It's like sinking into the soft luxury of your favorite easy chair. With every driving and riding convenience you could possibly wish for—at your finger tips.

And there's room to stretch out—more leg room—greater comfort both front and rear.

In comparing values consider this necessary equipment included in the Paige price for which you must pay extra elsewhere—five balloon cord tires, trunk, bumpers, snubbers, motometer, automatic windshield wiper, rear view mirror, electric clock, gasoline gauge on dash, combination stop and tail light, heater—all included at $2395 f. o. b. Detroit, tax extra.

Paige-hydraulic 4-wheel brakes included at this price.

It's Built for Action!

You never drove a car that takes to action as this car does. Keenly alive to the slightest touch of your toe in traffic. The agility of an open roadster. And it levels hills as if they didn't exist. A car you can drive all day at speeds that tax most cars. Because it has a motor big enough to do a he-man job—and keep on doing it for years.

Take any road in this big Paige. The rougher you find them—the greater your appreciation of Paige's matchless riding ease.

That's because of long wheelbase—131 inches, new type rear springs—61 inches, and snubbers and full size balloon tires—33 x 6.75.

And Paige Motor—Refined!

A chassis that holds five world records—refined! Paige's big 70 h. p. motor now carries a new counterbalanced crankshaft. A new air cleaner keeps road dust and grit out of the cylinders. Extreme quiet—greater smoothness—longer life are the results.

Consider the recognized high quality of this big Paige. Then find out—not how many hundreds but how many thousands you'll have to pay to buy an equal in looks—in action. It's almost at open-car price.

There isn't a luxurious big motor car in the market today that offers more satisfaction—more beauty—more economy—than Paige's new Landau Sedan at $2395.

RUBBER "DISCOVERY"

A report of special agents of the government has just been made pub... lic stating that there are 1,500,000 acres of land in the Philippines suit... able for the production of Para rub... ber and that "this land ... could produce 500,000 tons annually. There is nothing new in this discov... ery. For the greater of a century we ... the islands, the possibilities ... growing rubber there have been ... recognized by scientists, ... but nothing has been done about it.

Great Britain controls about 80 per cent. of the world's rubber supply and the United States consumes something like 75 per cent. of that supply. Under the recent restrictions placed upon the output of rubber by the British, it is estimated that we, who are the largest users of rubber, are paying about $300,000,000 a year increase to the foreign rubber inter... ests. At this rate we would in ten years pay to Great Britain almost as much as her war debt to us. Nor does this tell the whole story, for Secre... tary Hoover has recently pointed out that an actual rubber shortage, which will arise between 1928 and 1930 is developing because of the falling off of new plantings and the tremendous increase in the use of rubber. This is serious, for there are still thou... sands of people in the United States who have not yet bought an automo... bile or will want the new ones. Those who have bought tires recently have an idea what it means to pay tribute to foreign interests controlling the rubber supply.

These considerations are responsible for the latest report on the pos... sibility of rubber production in the Philippines. That report points out many difficulties in the way. The present land laws will have to be changed and it will take time to de... velop the industry, but it will be well worth while. To be exact, it will be worth not less than $300,000,000 a year.

DEMOCRATS AND THE WEST

Chairman William A. Oldfield of the democratic national congressional committee has rightly sensed the nec... essity that interest in the party be revived in the west, if it is to remain a great national political party and he proposes to make an effort to stir the democrats of the states beyond the Mississippi to unified action once again.

The democratic strategy which practically abandoned the western states to the LaFollette-Wheeler forces in 1924 had the effect of al... most wiping out the democratic party as a national organization in the the west. With the exception of 1912 and 1916 when support in the west gave material aid and comfort to the democrats, that section has, for the most part, been faithful to the re... publican party and its policies. It can be anticipated that the democrats will have a hard row to hoe in the west, where the party organization has been allowed to dwindle and the crops this year give wonderful promise. In his formal announcement of his itinerary the democratic chairman says he has been told the farmers are "disgusted with the administration, with its pro... tective tariff, which protects only the rich; with its unfulfilled promises of agricultural and general prosperity; with its false claim of economy and its flat declaration to the farmers to work out their own salvation. A dem... ocratic congress would correct these evils." But other reports from the west differ greatly from these prog... nostications full of gloom for the re... publicans. The farmer, instead of be... ing resentful of the protective tariff, is reported to be reaping the benefit at last from this system of taxation. His products are protected, while nearly everything he has to buy, ex... cept clothes, is on the free list, as in the case of harness and agricultural implements.

The implication of Mr. Oldfield's statement is that if a democratic con... gress is elected next year it will pro... ceed by legislative action to solve the farmers' problem. This is a rash statement for anyone to make. The agricultural problem was acute for several years in the post-war depres... sion, but it is not recalled that any of the democratic statesmen came prominently forward with a cure for the farmers' ills. Such legislation as has been enacted to improve cred... facilities, protect the farmers' prod... uce, etc., in recent years has been of republican origin. Mr. Oldfield com... plains that the farmer has been left to work out his own salvation. In a large measure the farmer has done just that thing, and as he continues to help himself so will his condition improve. Direct government aid to any interest or group of interests would only be followed by demands for similar aid from other interests and groups in times of stress, and would mark a dangerous precedent.

THE SEWING CIRCLE.

"That Mrs. Corliss is sort of queer," said the fluffy-haired blond.

She continued to hemstitch rapidly on a linen cuff, but the others paused in their sewing to regard her with in... terest.

"Just what d' you mean, queer?" de... manded the young matron with the auburn wave, speaking for the group.

"Well, nothing critical, certainly," said the fluffy-haired blond. "I ad... mire the woman enormously. She puzzles me, that's all. She—well, she can do the most extraordinary things and get away with them more abso... lutely than any other mortal I've ever known."

The young matron nodded in agree... ment.

"We were lunching together in a party at the Flagstone the other day," went on the fluffy haired blond, "and Mrs. Corliss' hat bothered her. It was too small in the head size, she said, and uncomfortable. So she took it off and hung it on the back of her chair as calmly as if she were alone on the desert, and the waiter removed it with a positively awed deference to a safer location.

"Of course it was a small thing, and not unusual in a way; you see lots of people making a bluff at the indi... vidualist stuff—it's quite a popular pose these days—but their self-con... sciousness always gives them away. Not so Mrs. Corliss.

"And the things she wears!" The puzzlement on the speaker's face grew as she continued. "You all saw her the other afternoon at that club mu... sicale, in a navy blue tailored suit, with a pleated skirt and a white blouse, such as no one else has worn for three years."

"Beginning to wear 'em again in Paris and London," murmured the young matron.

"Maybe they are, dear," agreed the fluffy-haired blond. "But you know perfectly well that's not the reason Mrs. Corliss does. She simply hap... pens to like beautifully tailored suits, and from her point of view that's that. And you'll not deny that for some absurdly subtle reason she look... ed like the best dressed woman in the room. 'Distinguished' is the word, I guess. And since it's plain to the weakest intellect that she never makes the least effort to be different or no... ticed in any way, will you tell me how she does it?"

"Well," said the young matron, thoughtfully, "I think, myself, it's the funny plain way she does her hair, and the cool, quiet look in her eyes."

"Oh, I don't," disagreed the new... est member. "I think it's the way she holds she chin and the set of her shoulders."

The black-headed member, who had made no previous comment, laughed suddenly: "You all are right, as far as you go," she said, "but you don't go far enough. I've known Mary Corliss all my life, so I could tell you a lot about her. she doesn't 'do it' at all, in the sense you mean. The reason she isn't self-conscious is be... cause she seldom thinks of herself, I imagine. She seems to see so much in the world that she considers more interesting and important."

The black-headed member paused. "Of course," she admitted, "the type is a little more emphasized in Mary Corliss by her looks and her wealth, not unusual in a way; you see lots but, do you know, girls, I suspect there are a whole lot of women who are nice and distinguished inside, in the same way. Just regular women, you know, good American mothers and good Christians. I can't always make the grade myself," she added, wistful... ly, "but I hope my daughters will grow up to be like that."

"I bet they will, too!" said the fluffy-haired blond, simply. "Here, drink your tea while it's hot. I put in an extra lump of sugar."—Ex... change.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Signs of the Times

Mr. Editor: "The people sat down to eat and drink and rose up to play." In order to provide amusement men will often indulge in questionable and dangerous entertainments, or pleasures, so-called.

This has been brought forcibly to our attention by the account in our papers of a recent meeting, held by a prominent business men's club, in a nearby town. I was certainly amaz... ed to read of the supposedly funny antics, which were absolutely unethi... cal and absolutely anti-Bible.

We have had mock marriages and mock trials aplenty, but never have I heard of a "Mock Judgment Days." "Be not deceived; God is not Mocked" (Gal. 6:7). When a person loves and respects the "God-breathed" Scriptures, (the record of God's Son I John 5:10) he can only tremble as he thinks of the harmful influence broadcasted through such antics.

At the meeting in question a church hymn was played and the following characters appeared on the stage: Fa... ther Time—Guardian angel—devil. Cer... tain men were "judged" and then al... lotted by Father Time to either the devil or the guardian angel, according to accounts in the newspapers. When we read the declaration of Scripture, which says, (Hebrews 9:27, 28) "As it is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment"—how can people indulge in hilarity about things of eternal destiny?

For many years I was a devotee of the theatre, and a ready reader of cheap magazines, and thus under the influence of Satanic—inspired jibes and jokes about Bible incidents, such as:—Adam and Eve—Noah—Jonah—the devil—hell—heaven—angels—etc., etc. But God a few years ago opened my eyes. "It is hard to keep our mouth shut when our eyes have been opened," as someone has said. That is why I write now, with the hope that I may warn and help others. For many years we have had higher criticism, and now we have lower witticism. "Let the Re... deemed of the Lord say so" (Psalm 107:2) I love His word. Who is on the Lord's side? "God is not mocked."

R. E. MARTIN.

From Small Beginnings

Comenius, the Orphan, the Great Educator

The first man who ever published a picture book for children was Johann Amos Comenius, whose illustrated book, in 1658, led the way to all our beautiful books for the young.

Johann Comenius had been an or... phan boy, and had had to struggle from the very start. Having gained a little education he studied further in the University of Heidelberg, became a minister, and then a teacher of Lat... in. The Great Thirty Years War had robbed him of all he possessed, and he had been obliged to flee to the mountains and ultimately to Poland.

He saw that education is the very foundation of human society, and so he devoted his energy to doing all he could to improve the art of learn... ing. He taught that education is not the memorizing of facts, but the de... velopment of power to think. He said that a child should first see, and then learn.

He gave us the great democratic doctrine that all, rich and poor alike, should be educated in order to make a land a fit land in which to live. He advocated the education of women, and thus led the way to our modern co-education and our modern women's colleges.

One of his great books attacked ... memorizing and urged ... wholeness. He advocated training in science and in arts and crafts, and he outlined a grade system such as we have today.

During his 70 years of life he suffer... ed many misfortunes, was once an exile, lived in poverty, saw his ... burned, books and manuscripts de... stroyed by war. In spite of this he was a wise, romantic gentle soul and kind.

Every child who finds his school... books made delightful by pictures owes much to Comenius, the great educator who said that we must entice the young into right thinking, rather than drive them.

Citizens of other Aus... tralian cities are constantly chiding Sydnians with having become 'Am... ericanized.'

"Specifically, Sydney is most often compared with San Francisco. The similarity begins at the harbor mouth where the 'Sydney Heads' stand in place of the Golden Gate, marking the doorway to a great landlocked bay with a huge city climbing the hills from its shores. The streets of Syd... ney, however, are neither so broad nor so steep as those of the Golden Gate city. Another point of similarity be... tween Sydney and San Francisco is the existence of thriving suburban communities across the bay and the busy shuttling of ferries back and forth.

"Its excellent harbor has been one of the big factors in making Sydney, with its population of about a mil... lion, the great city which it is to... day. The Heads stand about a mile apart—great, pink sandstone cliffs, one 240 and the other 270 feet high. From The Heads the harbor winds inland for 13 miles, varying in width from a quarter to two miles. Its impor... tance is greatly enhanced by the ex... istence of innumerable arms and bays and caves, nearly all with deep wa... ter to the shore, making them admir... able for the handling of shipping. The harbor has been compared to a huge fern leaf with its many convolutions. Nearly 200 miles of water front is available in Sydney harbor. The peo... ple of Sydney insist that theirs is the best harbor in the world; and cer... tainly it is among the finest.

"Most of the peninsulas and points are wooded and stand high above the water and have been used as sites for handsome villas and more modest bun... galows.

"The city had its birth on Sydney Cove, four miles inside The Heads on the southern shore of the harbor. There Governor Phillip, the father of Australia, landed in January, 1788, and about this cove the city, small and great, has ever since centered. Along the shore of the cove is the well known Circular Quay on which pas... sengers from the great ocean liners land, and to and from which most of the ferries ply.

"On the land side, the chief streets lead from the Circular Quay. The street of streets is Pitt. On it and George, Elizabeth and Castlereagh Streets near-by are shops that bear comparison with the best in London or New York, the principal theaters, banking houses and insurance offices. The older buildings in Sydney are of British architecture, but the newer business buildings are built with the steel frame construction so popular in America, and are, in fact, modest 'sky... scrapers.' Since early days the height of buildings has been limited to 150 feet, and the limit is strictly adhered to.

"Sydney is approximately in the lat... itude to Santa Barbara, California. The climate is delightful and Sydnians are enthusiastic out-door advocates. Most of the residences are provided with sleeping porches used the year round. The provisions for sports and recreations are abundant. Three fine beaches open to the ocean are in easy reach, and almost in the city is a race track. The larger parks are provid... ed with golf links, football fields, cricket 'pitches,' and tennis courts, while small parks in the heart of the city make available bowling greens, covered bowling alleys, and croquet grounds.

"Sydney is growing faster than most of the large cities of the world. With... in the past year it is believed to have passed the million mark. Already one-sixth of the population of the huge Australian continent is concentrated in Sydney and its growth goes rapidly on."

Timmy Is Much Upset

Instead of finding out things first, Always fear suspects the worst.
—Old Mother Nature

Since the arrival of the five babies in the home of Timmy the Flying Squirrel Timmy had been living else... where. There had been no room for him in that home. So Timmy had made a new home for himself a short distance away, but near enough for him to see how Mrs. Timmy and the babies were getting along whenever he happened to think of it. The night before the storm which had ruined the old home by breaking off the hol... low limb in which the nest had been placed Timmy had been out all night. He had gone to bed just before the storm. Of course, he had heard the thunder and had felt the wind, but he hadn't thought much about them and had gone to sleep as soon as the storm was over. He hadn't even looked outside.

All day long Timmy had slept. It wasn't until the Black Shadows came creeping through the Green Forest that Timmy awoke. For a while he sat with his head out of his doorway looking about. Then he decided he would go over and see how Mrs. Tim... my and the babies were getting along. Away he went, gliding from tree to tree, until finally he alighted on the bottom of the tree in which had been the old home. Up the tree he scam... pered until he reached the place where there should have been a big hollow limb. All that remained was a short stub. So surprised was Timmy that he squealed right out. He could see that the old nest was still in what re... mained of that broken limb. Hastily he peeped in. It was empty. Never in all his life had Timmy the Flying Squirrel been so upset. He looked down. He could see the broken limb lying on the ground. With a quick jump he glided down. From piece to piece of that broken limb he hurried. He didn't know just what he expected to find, but he knew that he was afraid of what he might find. He was afraid he might find some of those babies killed. But he didn't find any... thing.

Once more he climbed the tree clear up to the stub of the broken branch. For a long time he simply sat there. Where was Mrs. Timmy? Where were those five babies? Would he ever see them again? Where should he look for them? If they hadn't been killed by the accident they might have been caught by enemies who had found their home open to the light of day. Timmy didn't know where to go or what to do. For once in his life he had lost his appetite. He forgot to t... he had started out to get something to eat. All he could think about was his lost family. Presently he started to look for them. At first he just wandered about aimlessly. Then he began to realize how foolish this was. Of course, ... to himself, ... they have moved they have found ... new home. The first thing Mrs. Tim... my would do would be to look for ... new home. The thing for me to do is to visit all the empty houses ... know of. If I don't find them in one of these I'll know that something dreadful has happened.

Now, Timmy knew a ... holes in trees for some distance around. First he visited all the nearby holes on the side of the Laughing Brook. Of course he didn't find his family. Then he went across the Laughing Brook and began searching the trees over there. Quite suddenly it popped into ... head that there was a certain tree over there in which he had once lived before he met Mrs. Timmy. There was a very good hole in that tree for the ... himself, and Timmy ... decided ... his bed.

No sooner did Timmy decide ... than he started straight for it. As he started to climb he heard the scratch of little claws scratching on wood and looking up he saw little Mrs. Timmy looking down at him. Perhaps you can guess how happy Timmy was and how he hurried up that tree to find out if all the babies were safe.

SAVED FRIEND FROM HOSPITAL

Mrs. Heckman Decided to Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Note Results—

Council Bluffs, Iowa.—"I had pains in my back and sides and headaches, so that I could not do my work. Once in a while I would be sick a week. A friend told me that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had kept her out of the hospital, so I thought I would try it, as I had tried a number of other medicines. Now I feel like a different person and am telling my friends about the Vegetable Compound helping me, hoping they will let it help them, too."—Mrs. ETHEL HECKMAN, Box 21, R. F. D. No. 1, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Saved From An Operation

Monessen, Pa.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a serious case of female trouble. The worst pain I had was in my right side and back with swelling in my side so that I was unable to walk at one time. I was ordered to go to the hospital, but here I am, still without an operation. I saw your advertisement and have taken the Vegetable Compound with splendid results."—Mrs. J. NELSON, 842 Donner Ave., Monessen, Pa.

Wheaton; color bearer, one, Hope Greenhalgh; color bearer, two, Helen Padelford; color bearer, three, Priscilla Russell; color bearer, four, Florence I. Sloan; musician, Cora Remington.

The officers of the tent were duly installed by National Junior Vice President McCoy and staff of officers who accompanied her from Massachusetts, after, which Comrade Sheern presented the tent with a substantial check; Sister Mabel L. Greenhalgh, with a state flag in honor of her daughter, and in memory of her husband, and Comrade Dunham presented the tent an altar flag.

It was voted that meetings be held in Moose hall on the second and fourth Fridays of each month.

Following the afternoon meeting a delightful banquet was enjoyed and business was resumed at 7:30 o'clock when candidates were initiated and the visiting comrades were given the obligation of the order. The meeting came to a close with the salute to the flag and the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

GIBBS BROS. AGAIN VICTORIOUS AT REGINA

Thomas Gibbs just received an interesting account of the test between his nephews, the Gibbs Brothers, Belgians, Barne and Jumbo, weighing 6952 pounds, against the University of Saskatchewan's dynometer at the Regina Exhibition held at Regina, Sas.

The dynometer was set at 3300 pounds and they hauled the full distance of 27 1-2 feet, representing starting a load of 22.3 tons on rock pavement and in an exhibition pull 10 minutes later pulled 3800 pounds a distance of 27 feet in nine seconds.

The demonstration from the grand stand was a if one man pose and the cheering was long and loud.

It is the second victory the Gibbs Brothers of Lansdale, have won in two years, as Gen. Belgians pulled 200 pounds more than the world's record pull made by R. B. McLeod's team of Percherons setting a new mark by a margin of 150 pounds.

Professor Hardy of the University of Saskatchewan who was judge of the dynometer competitions, said the Belgians were well handled and pulled magnificently, and added that the drivers are learning how to make their horses pull together and the animals themselves are learning to walk into the load better. The value of holding these pulling contests is clearly shown in the greater pulls recorded at this year's exhibition and just how long the present record will stand as hard to say.

The Gibbs Brothers have on their ranch over 100 head of horses and quite a few as good as the pair that set the world's record.

ENTERTAINED THURSDAY AFTERNOON PINOCHLE CLUB

Mrs. William S. Murray of 70 Prospect street entertained the Thursday Afternoon Pinochle club, at her home, Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Carl Geib was the guest of honor, the party being given as a farewell to Mrs. Geib, who with her husband and son, Ellsworth Geib, expect to leave Norwich Sunday, August 16th, for Washington, D. C., where they are to make their home.

In behalf of the club, Mrs. John O. Peckham presented Mrs. Geib a bed-spread set.

At the close of the play, Mrs. Murray served salad, rolls, cake and coffee.

Following cremation at Springfield, Tuesday, Mr. Huntington's ashes was buried Wednesday in the Huntington

COURT RESTRAINS COLCHESTER MAN FROM CUTTING WOOD

On petition of the Federal Land Bank of Springfield, Mass., Judge Christopher L. Avery of the superior court for this country has issued a temporary injunction against Fred E. Clark of Colchester, restraining him from cutting any wood, timber or lumber of a certain land in Franklin and Lebanon, or from removing any of the wood which he has already cut from the premises under penalty of $2,500 fine.

The temporary injunction was sought by the Federal Land Bank in connection with a suit which it has brought in the superior court against Mr. Clark.

The plaintiff claims in its complaint that on Oct. 24, 1924, the defendant mortgaged to the plaintiff land partly in Lebanon and Franklin. By the terms of the mortgage deed the defendant convenanted and agreed not to cut or remove wood or timber from the premise sexcept for domestic use, and not to permit or suffer any stipulation or waste of the granted premises.

It is alleged that in spite of the covenant, Clark has placed or allowed to be placed upon said premises a saw mill, and has set, or allowed to be cut upon said premises a gang of workmen with axes and cutting instruments, who are stripping said land of the timber and is thus causing irreparable damage to the plaintiff.

The plaintiff claims a temporary injunction restraining the defendant, his servants and agents from cutting or removing any of the wood, timber or lumber located on the premises, or from selling or removing any of the wood, timber, or lumber which has been cut from said premises and belonging to him now located in the state of Connecticut, and also a permanent injunction.

NORWICH MUSICIANS GUESTS OF NOTABLES IN GERMANY

Most interesting letters come from Charles J. Dyer of Sachem street, and Henry J. LaFontaine, organist of St. Mary's Memorial Church, who, since early in June have been traveling abroad. The latest greetings are from Baden-Baden and recount incidents of their tour, including happenings in England, visits to Cologne with its marvelous cathedral, its famed picture gallery, etc. From Cologne the travelers went by Rhine steamer to Mainz, later crossed the river to Wiesbaden, having tea and dinner with some friends of Mr. Dyer.

From that point they continued by train to Baden-Baden, where other friends met them and they were entertained at a magnificent home of brown stone, in a fine estate, a mansion with every comfort even to a great swimming pool, all sorts of electric devices and the like. One feature is a grand church organ, with pipes running to the upper story. Mr. LaFontaine played on this fine instrument several times. The huge house where they had their beautiful sleeping rooms, is built as a guest house for men guests of the family. One sees from the estate not a single house—just the hills of the estate, covered with evergreen trees, the property is diversified by little lakes, flower-beds, etc.

The main house is a walk of about two minutes from their "little castle." As Mr. Dyer wrote, a gentle rain was falling, to the great relief of all, since the air had been a bit oppressive.

The following week—the letter was dated July 16th, their host and hostess, with Mr. Dyer and Mr. LaFontaine were to motor to Bayreuth, where the Norwich travelers were to remain for a week, Siegfried Wagner had already welcomed them by a postcard.

Referring to another interesting friend whom he had visited, Mr. Dyer writes: "The house where I took tea yesterday is where I've visited so many happy times; where my old hostess, Frau von Klauher died about a year ago—through not having had enough to eat during the war. The widow of her son—he was murdered a month after the armistice,—now lives there. It was a very sad meeting, but I think we enjoyed it as we ever spoke about the only ones left who knew the house [illegible]

"When I came back, Chaliapin, the great Russian singer, was here spending a few hours. We were all photographed together.

"As I am writing, Mr. LaFontaine is playing the organ in the hall, he is enjoying the visit and fits in everywhere. Other old friends are dining with us tonight. Everything is being done for us in this absolutely perfect place (35 men to keep the lawns, hothouses, flower-beds, groves, etc. in order.)

"Yesterday, at luncheon the guests were 'Excellenz' and Frau von [illegible] he has been an envoy to the U. S.; now minister to Tokio. I must make three more calls here on Monday at Tuesday we motor to Bayreuth."

Writing from Bayreuth on July 17th Mr. Dyer says: "We left Baden-Baden Tuesday the 21st, stopping at Heidelberg, where H. went to the castle, I waiting in the shady gardens for him to explore the ruins, which I had seen so often. After dinner, we packed ourselves comfortably in the seven-seated "Benz," setting out for Wittenberg. At 7:30 the next day we were off for Bayreuth; arrived at 11:45a. A friend had engaged a beautiful big room in a private house for us only about eight minutes from the Wagner Theatre, on a hill surrounded with trees. We walk there through the woods.

We have been twice to the Siegfried Wagners'—his father's old home, built for Wagner by King Ludwig. Though Frau Cosima is still living, she is too feeble to see anyone but the family. We have called at the Countess Gravina's (Frau Wagner's second daughter, who lives with her sister Eva—Mrs. Chamberlain, whose husband is a celebrated author.) While there, we met all sorts of titled people—Prince and Princess Hohenlohe (she is a sister of Queen Marie of Roumania) and several others.

"The ex-King of Bulgaria is visiting the performances at the theatre as is also the Kaiser's third son, August Wilhelm. We have the opera Siegfried today (having had Meistersinger, Parsifal, Rheingold, Walkure). Wednesday comes Gotterdamerung; on Thursday we go by Nuremberg and Rottenburg to Munich, to more old friends, more music. You can think how much I am enjoying myself seeing so many old friends, and finding myself still so well remembered. He is enjoying it all and profiting by it all."

The post cards sent home by Mr. Dyer are of most interesting buildings and places, adding to the realistic accounts of the tourists' exceptional experiences.

Mr. Dyer had planned to call on a cousin of his neighbor, Henry G. Peck, of Sachem street, but they had missed each other up to the time of his latest letters home.

COUNTY HOME CHILDREN HAVE BEACH OUTING

A delightful outing was arranged by the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women for the family at the New London County Home, Wednesday afternoon. The children were entertained at Ocean Beach and given a most enjoyable time. Refreshments of ice cream, lolly pops, candy and pop corn were enjoyed as well as rides on the merry-go-round. Each child was presented with a pail and shovel. Those who so kindly contributed to the outing were the Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, Rev. William A. Keefe, Mrs. H. B. Davenport, Mrs. Thomas McVeigh, W. H. Hasted, and the American Thermos Bottle Co., Mrs. Frank Dison, Miss Eleanor Barnes and James P. Sheridan. The committee was headed by Mrs. Thomas O'Rourke and Miss Mary Coughlin.

ROTARY CLUB MEETS AT NORWICH GOLF CLUB

Members of the Norwich Rotary club were the guests of the Norwich Golf club Wednesday noon at a delightful luncheon which was followed by an equally delightful afternoon of golf over the new 18 hole course. President J. Nelson Weymouth presided at the luncheon with Joseph C. Worth as song leader and Lion Lionel P. Ethier at the piano.

There was no business transacted at the luncheon other than the brief consideration of the proposed re-location of the Norwich-Danielson highway which is sponsored by the Norwich Council, United Commercial Travelers. President Weymouth spoke briefly on the proposed plan telling how it would eliminate several bad curves and grade crossings. There was no discussion of the plan from the floor and it was voted to refer the plan to the board of directors for consideration and recommendation. The plan will come up for discussion at a later meeting.

There were several communications read from boys at Camp Tippecan at Beach pond telling of the delightful camp life. A letter from Rotarian Henry J. LaFontaine who is at Baden-Baden, Germany, studying voice.

Among the guests present was Declarence Thompson, a member of the Norwich Lions club, who rendered a very pleasing solo, about Dear Old Dad. The sentiment and the expressive rendering of the solo were very effective.

At the conclusion of the meeting the golf playing members of the club entered a driving contest in which Frank Davis was the winner.

After the driving contest three foursomes were organized to play over the new course. This course is fast becoming one of the best of the 18 hole courses in Connecticut and all who have played over it remark on its natural beauty and the excellent condition in which it is kept by Greenkeeper William M. Skelly. One of the guests playing around the course for the first time remarked that he had heard of the new Norwich course at his club in New Jersey where a fellow member had told him not to miss the local course if he came to Connecticut. The course is without doubt one of the most attractive and best in Connecticut which is especially remarkable as it was laid out less than a year ago.

The prizes golf balls donated by William G. Peck and F. Russell Smith were won by Charles A. Saxton with a 75 for a low net score. Russell A. Olson and E. Luther Bliven tied with 76. W. G. Peck had low gross with 80. The scores follow:

CARS IN CRASH ON WILLIMANTIC HIGHWAY

A Studebaker six touring car owned and operated by Frank DeMarsh of Willimantic and a Ford roadster owned and operated in George Hornbeger, also of Willimantic figured in an accident Tuesday night, north of Voluntown, both cars being damaged and both drivers receiving slight injuries.

Hornberger was headed toward Norwich and DeMarsh towards Willimantic and it is charged that Hornberger crowded the Studebaker off the road, the left front wheel of the Ford hooking into the left front wheel of the Studebaker, the heavier car working along and running down an embankment on the south side of the highway while the Ford car was spun about on the highway.

DeMarsh sustained slight injuries and lost a tooth, while Hornberger had his lip cut. Both men blamed the other for the accident and DeMarsh reported to the state police at Willimantic and Hornberger to the State police at Groton.

HOME AFTER ATTENDING K. OF C. CONVENTION

Mr. and Mrs. Francis T. Diggins of 32 Church street arrived home Wednesday after a delightful trip of twelve days, taken to several western states, with a long day stop of July 21 at Los Angeles, where Mr. Diggins attended the National convention of the Knights of Columbus as delegate from the state of Connecticut.

Mr. and Mrs. Diggins left Norwich on July 9th, going to Worcester, Mass., where they boarded the Massachusetts special, which conveyed delegates and convention guests to Buffalo. Here a two hour stop was most enjoyable, they being entertained in the parks. The party then boarded a sail through the Great Lakes, which was described as a delightful sail, and stops at Buffalo and Cleveland before returning home. Mr. Diggins will render a report of the convention at the meeting of White Cross Council, K. of C. to be held in September.

CENTRAL BAPTIST PICNIC AT VOLUNTOWN TODAY

Members of the Central Baptist church will hold their annual picnic at Pine lodge, Voluntown, today (Thursday) the summer home of Dr. and Mrs. David A. Pitt. The trip will be made in private automobiles, the party to leave the city at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon, while a few will remain to take the 1:45 p. m. Jewett City trolley, to be met at Jewett City, by automobiles, which will carry them to Voluntown.

During the afternoon there will be games, luncheon and the usual good time. The picnic and meeting takes the place of the usual mid-week service at the Central Baptist church, which is held on Thursday evening, and will close with a vesper service led by Rev. Dr. Pitt.

PROBATE JUDGES MET AT NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 13.—(AP)—At the mid-summer meeting of the probate judges held today at the Mohegan inn, State Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett, who is a member of the bar of Litchfield county, attacked the proposal that the federal government be given exclusive authority to lay and collect all taxes on inheritances, speculating back to the states their distributive shares of the levy. Characterizing the plan as a further usurpation of the rights of sovereign states, he defended the present Connecticut inheritance tax statute, drawn under the supervision of his office, as being not only fair and equitable, but entirely acceptable to the bench, the bar and the entire people of the state.

Under its terms, he said, the probate courts had effectually co-operated with his department, and he gave out for the first time the amounts paid into the treasury of the state under their decrees. From the tax on inheritances a total for the year ending July 1, 1925, of $2,800,000 was actually received which, he said, was a high water mark in the history of the commonwealth. In addition to this, more than $250,000 additional was received in penalty taxes, incurred for failure to include in annual tax returns to the assessors, during the life time of the descendants, all of their personal property actually subject to taxation.

Other speakers included former Commissioner Holcomb, Attorney Farwell Knapp of Hartford, his successor, and Judge John L. Gilson, who welcomed the judges and responded for Windham county, Judge R. F. Gaffney, dean of the probate judges, speaking for Hartford county, endorsed the attitude of the tax commissioner on the question of possible federal interference, and praising the state administration of this department. Other responses included Judge Floyd Bertram, of Stamford, for Fairfield county; Judge Frances Hinckley, of Stonington for New London county; Judge Curtiss C. Bacon, of Middletown, for Middlesex county; Judge John Fay, of Rockville, for Tolland county; and Judge John H. Hubbard, of Litchfield, for Litchfield county.

SMALL BOY HURT BY TRUCK ON THAMES ST.

Joseph Batula, five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Josef Batula of 44 Sumbat street, was painfully injured about 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, when struck by one of the Eaton-Chase delivery trucks, on Thames street. The boy ran out from behind a truck backed up the curb, endeavoring to get to his mother who was across the street and in doing so darted directly in the path of the Eaton-Chase truck. The driver made every effort to stop but could not do so before hitting the child.

He was hushed to the police station and then to the Backus hospital where four stitches were taken to close a wound on the back of his head, also to treat minor bruises. The child will remain at the hospital for several days.

The wedding is to take place in September.

UROGEN for RHEUMATISM, NEURITIS, ECZEMA.

Does UROGEN pay in dollars and cents for the people, who have work to do in the world, families dependent upon them?

New London Proof:

On your recommendation, I purchased a bottle of UROGEN. I had been suffering from NEURITIS in the heel, and hated to put my foot to the ground. I had tried a number of remedies, and it was without faith, I started UROGEN. In less than a week, the NEURITIS had left me. What is more, I had been suffering with DRY ECZEMA, every joint in my right hand cracked open. At the end of the week's treatment, much to my surprise, my hand was entirely free from Eczema the doctors called it GOUTY Eczema.

You may safely add the cure of Eczema to your UROGEN list. F. A. B. (Name on request.)

Superfluous Hair Rid FOREVER —or No Cost

Why tolerate unsightly hair on your face, neck, arms or legs when it can be removed quickly and safely—roots and all? Don't use expensive electric treatments, nor be a slave to a razor or ordinary depilatories which merely burn off surface hairs, and often strengthen the hair roots. A marvelous new magnetic balsam, which is applied almost as easily as cold cream, loosens every unsightly hair and gently lifts it out, root and all, leaving the skin healthy, clear and beautiful. No mess, no odor, no discomfort. Absolutely harmless. Try it on this guarantee—that it will absolutely rid you of superfluous hair forever—or no cost. Karma, as the new discovery is called, may be purchased at all good dealers.

DEMPSEY BACKS FITZSIMMOUS AND REFUSES TO FIGHT IN NEW YORK STATE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 12—Jack Dempsey threw his weight behind Floyd Fitzsimmons' efforts to obtain the right to stage a Dempsey-Wills fight for the heavyweight championship with two declarations made here late today. The first was:

"Fitzsimmons has made me a better offer than any likely to come from any other promoter and he has my signature to a contract."

The second statement, given with an air of finality that seemed to eliminate all chances of Tex Rickard staging the bout in New York was brief and unqualified:

"I will not fight in New York state."

A third remark concerning statement by Jack Kearns that he still had managerial power over Dempsey's engagements and that he intended to sign for a Dempsey-Wills fight, also was brief and unqualified. It was: "I'll do my own signing. Let Kearns sign if he wants to, but what good will it do him?"

Dempsey closed the announcements by saying that he was open to consider any offers to fight Wills, no matter whence they came except for any bout in New York.

BRASSCOS CELEBRATE BY BEATING PONIES TWICE

WATERBURY, Aug. 12—Waterbury celebrated pennant day by winning both games of a double header with Springfield here this afternoon by scores of 2 to 1, and 8 to 1. The first game was a pitchers' battle between Brenton and Keefe until the ninth when Donahue led off with a hit and came home with the winning run all the way from first base when the Springfield pitcher threw Yordy's sacrifice bunt into right field. The Brasscos were outhit by the Ponies in the second contest but made good use of their eight hits by mixing them with Saunders' seven passes and Springfield's five errors.

The pennant raising took place between the games. The players of both teams, headed by Mayor Francis P. Guilfoile, ex-Governor Charles A. Templeton, President Dan O'Neil of the Eastern league and President Herman J. Weisman of the Brasscos, marched behind a band to the new flag pole in the center field where Mayor Guilfoile raised the 1924 pennant. On the return the parade was halted at home plate and Manager Kitty Bransfield of the champions was presented with a traveling bag, the gift of his friends in this city. Score:

POOR BASE RUNNING IS CAUSE OF GIANTS DEFEAT

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 12—Headless base running cost the Giants today's game with the Pirates by a score of 5 to 3. They made twelve hits off Emil Yde but were guilty of frightful blundering on the bases, so that their hits, for the most part, were wasted. Virgil Barnes and Fred Fitzsimmons split up the pitching for the Giants.

In the fourth inning, during one of the Giants' mix-ups on the base paths Kelly and Traynor swung at each other but no damage was done. The score:

BRILLIANT FIELDING AND TIMELY HITTING BEATS BROWNS

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 12—The Philadelphia Athletics won their third straight game from the St. Louis Browns here today by a score of 5 to 2. Though outbatted, the Athletics gave Jack Quinn brilliant support at critical moments and by spectacular fielding held the Browns in check from start to finish. The Mackmen made all their hits count. PENNOCK HOLDS CHICAGO SCORELESS WITH TWO HITS

NEW YORK, Aug. 12—Southpaw Herb Pennock snapped the Yankees' five-game losing streak by blanking the White Sox, today, 2 to 0, limiting the visitors to two hits. The only safe bingles off Pennock were a single by Mostil in the sixth and a scratch hit by Collins in the ninth. No Chicago player was able to get any further than second base.

It was Ray Schalk's 33rd birthday but he failed to do anything to celebrate the event.

RIXEY UNABLE TO HOLD DODGERS WHO WIN

CINCINNATI, Aug. 12—Brooklyn took three out of four games from Cincinnati by beating them today 5 to 1. BREAKS HALF-MILE MARK FOR TWO-YEAR OLDS

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 12—Roland N. Harriman's Peter Maltby, a Brown Colt by Peter Volo, out of Guy Axworthy, broke the world's half mile track record for two year olds at the summer meeting of the Orange county driving park association on the historic track here today.

The colt's time of 2:10 3-4 was made in the second heat of the two-year-old trot. The time is better by two and three quarters seconds than the world record established by the same colt two weeks ago at Endicott, when he finished on a wet half mile track there in 2:13 1-2.

He was driven in both records making performances by William K. Dickerman, trainer of the Arden homestead stable of Goshen.

Guy Ozark, a Brown gelding by Walnut Hall, out of Guy Axworthy, held the world's record for three-year-olds, made by Trumpet in 1923, in the second heat of the three-year-old [illegible]. Guy Ozark, driven by Dickerson, made the mile in 2:09 1-4.

Drivers Gus Kunz of Flushing, L. I., and Clyde C. Lanmlein of Louisville, Ky., were injured in a spill that occurred when Peter Volo, driven by Munz, stepped into a wheel of Lamolein's sulky. Neither drivers nor horses were seriously hurt.

FIELDING MISHAPS AID RED SOX TO BEAT TIGERS

BOSTON, Aug. 12—Erratic fielding by Detroit coupled by steady Boston pitching resulted in the Red Sox making it two straight over the Tigers 7 to 2, today. Ross was forced to retire in the fifth inning as the result of a hurt hand from a line drive off Woodall's bat. Catches by Rothermel and Mahush and Prothro's steal of home in the fifth inning were plays that stood out. The score:

HARTFORD WINS SLUGGING CONTEST FROM HILLIES

HARTFORD, Aug. 12—Hartford defeated Pittsfield in an endurance contest here this afternoon, 9 to 1. The Senators collected 18 hits off the combined deliveries of Mills and Johnson, while the Hillies gained fourteen safe blows from James. The run scored off James was the second to cross the plate off the local southpaw in 43 innings. Score:

ELEVEN PLAYERS "SEEDED" IN NATIONAL TOURNEY

NEW YORK, Aug. 12—Eleven players, including six American and five British stars, were "seeded" today in the draw for the national women's tennis championships starting play Monday at the West Side club, Forest Hills.

The list of sixty four entries is headed by Miss Elizabeth Ryan of California and England, who is seeded No. 1, in the upper half, and Miss Helen Wills, national titleholder, who tops the lower half.

Seeded in the same quarter with Miss Ryan are Miss Kathleen McKane and Miss E. H. Harvey, two members of the British international team. Miss Wills' chief opponents in her quarter are Miss Joan Fry, runner-up to Suzanne Lenglen at Wimbledon this year, and Miss Mary K. Browne, No. 2, in the national ranking.

The other seeded players are Mrs. Molla B. Mallory, former champion, and Miss Velyn Colyer of England, both in the second quarter; Miss Eleanor Goss of New York and Mrs. Lambert Chambers, captain of the British team, both in the fourth quarter.

NEW HAVEN TAKES BOTH ENDS OF DOUBLE HEADER

NEW HAVEN Aug. 12—New Haven took both games of the double header today with Albany 2 to 0, and 4 t o2. Nichols pitched perfect ball in opener, allowing five hits and only two men to reach second base. Nichols now has pitched 26 consecutive scoreless innings. The Profs won the game in the eighth on two hits and two walks. Snover was hit hard in the second inning of the final game, two singles, a double and a triple giving the locals three runs. Mayer hit a homer in the seventh. Scores:

First game:

Lake Street Midgets Win

In a hotly contested game the Elizabeth street Midgets gamely met defeat at the hands of the peppy Lake Street aggregation. Elizabeth street got off to an early start but it was soon out down. Lake Street had a big inning in the sixth when they scored seven runs and put the game on ice. The fielding stars of the day were Kisker and Lambert. Billy Connell's pitching was of a high order and the West Side boys could do little with his fast breaking curve. Score by innings:

Airlie vs. Clerks

The Airlie Baseball team of Hanover will play the Baltic Clerks team in the 3rd game of the series this evening at Hanover. The Clerks, who have lost two straight games are out to clean up and will send up a strong line up. Bouchard and Jack Papineau will be the battery for Airlie. For the Clerks Ridgeway is expected to be in the box with a new catcher and some other new players in their lineup.

DARKNESS HALTS PALACE-SAINTS GAME WITH SCORE DEADLOCKED AT 5 ALL

In a hectic six-inning contest, the Palace nine battled to a 5 to 5 tie with St. Joseph's Wednesday evening. With one out in the Saints' half of the sixth inning, and the score tied, Umpire Morin called the game on account of darkness which left the teams in a deadlock. At the time the Saints had a man on third, and their chances of scoring the winning counter looked especially good. Morin, however, could do nothing else, as it was undoubtedly too dark to continue the contest, and as the two teams were tied, it was the fairest way to terminate the game. Where "Hunk" made his mistake was in not calling the game at the end of the fifth frame. It was plenty dark enough at that time, and had the game been called then, the Palace nine would have been returned victors, 4 to 3.

Each team scored once in the first inning, the Palace on a walk, a sacrifice and Mulholland's single while the Saints got theirs on two walks, and Oney's single to right.M.

In the second, Mike Morin's outfit went to the fore to the extent of three runs. With one out, Joe Jackson singled to right and stole second. Simcox grounded to Robinson, and Jackson took third. Zip Gero then shot a single through the box, scoring Jackson. Keenan kept up the attack with a hard liner to right, and when Brokowski let the ball go through him, Gero scored, and Keenan went to second. Keenan tallied on Courbois' double to right. Mulholland then ended the frame with a fly to short.

The next score came in the fourth when the Saints made a run on a walk, two errors and an infield out.

In the fifth Manager Oney's team came up to within a single counter of the Palace. Nap Liberty led off in this frame with a crashing double off the rocks in right field, and when Spike Liberty scratched a hit to Gero, went to third. Oney lifted a high fly to Shea, and Nap scored after the catch, Spike taking third. With only one out and men on second and third, things looked bad for the Palace, but a fancy stop by Leo Morin prevented the Saints from scoring further. Hoffman shot a low liner toward second, and Morin falling in front of the ball, recovered in time to catch Liberty going into the plate. Keller then fanned for the third out.

After the Palace had added another counter in the sixth, the Saints proceeded to tie up the game. With one away, Gilbert singled to left, and when Robinson doubled to right, went to third. Paul then scratched a hit to Mike Morin, and both Gilbert and Robinson scored. With Nap Liberty at bat Umpire Morin called the game, leaving the two teams tied at five runs apiece.

It was a night of considerable hitting, Gero twirling for the Palace, being touched for eight hits, while the combination of Kozlowski and Spike Liberty, the Saint Joseph pitchers, were touched for ten safeties.

Tonights Game

Another game like last nights and it will be necessary to have the Combat train, Battery B, and also a little help from outside to hold down the crowd. To appreciate the game one had to be there as it was blood from start to finish, neither team allowing a thing and even after the game was over the crowd refused to go home, hunching up and arguing what should of happened, what did happen and what might have happened. It is not exaggerating a bit to say that a policeman had to lead the teams off the field, so tense was the situation. It can be seen that every team is in for blood because last night's game didn't effect the standing of either club but still they battled as if the championship itself was at stake and if the umpire hadn't called the game when it was a six to six tie and almost pitch dark both teams would probably be still over at the Duwell field trying to put something over on the other. While the Saints are in the cellar everyone is convinced that they are a scrappy bunch and are playing harder than any team ever did that was behind like they are.

Where in most places they would be classed as a lowly team, in Norwich from now on everyone will speak of them as the fighting Saints.

Tonight those that missed the game last night will have an opportunity of seeing the same fighting Saints in action against Hallville, and for the benefit of those in doubt it would be safe to say that tonight's affair will be good, as Oney and his squad are primed to a high pitch and should furnish some real fireworks before dusk settles over the Duwell field.

Hallville is also coming up with the intentions of cutting up a bit, with many new faces in their lineup. Mgr. getting together what he considers a getting together what he considers a real team from the start, for a while it appeared as if he was all set but his bunch from New London quit him and left him as bad off as he was in the beginning, so now he has gone up Hanover way and signed up more new men. Who they are no one but himself knows and according to his story won't know until they have performed tonight.

When asked to give out some information about his team Mgr. Oney, said not ever last nights affair turned down even his friends saying that perhaps they might have got away with a fast game last night but its going to be far different tonight.

GOV. TRUMBULL APPROVES NEW BOXING RULES

NEW LONDON, Aug. 12—Governor Trumbull has approved the new state boxing rules submitted by Athletic Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue and they will go into effect at once. Among the chief changes are those governing differences in weights and number of days that must elapse between fights for boxers in main and semi-final bouts. The new rules call for forfeits from all boxers, provide for thorough examination before bouts and covers other details. One of the rules of interest to newspapermen is the one providing for a permanent pass to all boxing shows in the state to every sports editor in Connectic

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Whenever Frank Merrill is announced as the leading craracter, lovers of red-blood action and thrills are sure to be found at the Palace Theatre in large numbers. He is now appearing there in "Shackled Lightning," a story in which the muscular Frank calls upon the Radio to effect a rescue and "turn up" a gang of dope peddlers.

Merrill's progress in the acting field is one of the "seven wonders" of the motion picture business. A year or so ago he was unknown except as a world champion athlete. Today he is acclaimed the world over as the greatest athlete now appearing on the screen. He has achieved this stellar position by hard, devoted work, combined with a mental equipment of the highest order.

HUGE EXPANSION PROGRAM BEGUN BY DODGE BROTHERS

The largest expansion program in the history of Dodge Brothers, Inc., is now in progress.

Continually oversold since the business boom, particularly oversold [illegible] in spite of the fact that production has been consistently in excess of 1,000 cars a day, the management is determined to take extraordinary measures to meet the requirements of its dealers in full.

Five large new buildings are already under construction and three others will begin immediately, it is announced by F. J. Haynes, president and general manager.

The total floor area of the eight new buildings will exceed 3-4 of a million square feet and will afford employment for several thousand additional men. The cost of the expansion will be at approximately eight million dollars.

When the present construction program is completed, on January 1, 1926, Dodge Brothers Inc., will have a capacity of 1,500 cars a day. The present plan is to go into full production with this as the moment the new facilities are available.

The Dodge Brothers construction department has erected every building in the company's history and similarly will be responsible for every detail of the present program. It is estimated that fully 1,000 additional men will be employed the rest of the year in the expansion project now underway.

When Dodge Brothers factory began operations late in 1914, it consisted of [illegible] with a total floor area of [illegible] acres. Today it consists of [illegible] acres and the addition of the five new buildings will increase it to [illegible].

Well-nigh Dodge Brothers one of the largest factories in the world.

A complete series of new buildings, as large in itself as many factories is already under construction on Lynch Road. One building, 75x300 feet, will house the heat treat department; another, also 75x300, the heavy hammer shop; another, 65x300, the light hammer shop. A die shop, 100x312 will also be erected. To supply power for these enormous new units a large and thoroughly modern power house will be built. Dozens of new railway tracks are already being laid, hundreds of workmen being employed in this project alone.

The largest of the additions to the main plant will be a six-story extension of assembly plant No. 2, 100x162 feet in dimensions. This addition alone will have a floor area of 282,000 square feet.

The new forge department on Lynch Road replaces a similar department in the main factory and the buildings which formerly housed it will make way for a huge five-story building, 205x100. This building will be for machining and storage proposes. What will be known as main plant No. 4, measuring 75x475, will join the machining and storage plant. It will also be five stories and will complete an enormous L shaped unit.

Dodge Brothers factory is one of the most compact in the world and the new buildings fit perfectly into the vast system of production. Flanking a series of main buildings on one side are the huge warehouses, where the raw materials are received and fed out into the various machining departments.

On the other side of the main buildings are the great assembly plants into which machining departments feed their finished parts.

"The reputation of Dodge Brothers motor car and the character of Dodge Brothers dealer organization, plus our determination to make a good car continually better, leaves no possible doubt as to our future market," said President Haynes. "Our only fear is that even 1,500 cars a day will be insufficient for the requires of 1926."

Broadway Theatre

There is nothing better than a well balanced program and when you see the B. F. Keith vaudeville show and Paramount picture at the Broadway theatre starting today, you will admit it lacks nothing and that is a wonderful summer program.

Fred Gray & Co. offer a bit of fun in a humorous oddity entitled "It Happened in Spain."

Pris and Pat in a "Nursery Frolic" have a neat little novelty for you.

Fenner and Charland are comedy acrobats.

Snyder and McCormick in "Songs and Artistic Whistling" give a good account of themselves.

You are going to laugh as you never laughed before when you see "Funology" with Marty Collins and Harry Peterson.

Henry King, the directorial genius who has to his credit such film successes as "Romola," "The White Sister," "Tol'able David" and others, has added to his laurels with his latest Paramount photoplay "Any Woman," now showing at the Broadway theatre.

The picture, which was adapted from Arthur Somers Roche's absorbing story of the same name, is an entertaining mixture of tense drama, suspense, thrills and heart appeal. The production has been extravagantly mounted, has many luxurious settings and backgrounds, contains several rather unusual features, including "the treasure hunt," society's newest fad, and has a line-up of players, who acquit themselves most creditably and in some cases, with considerable distinction.

Alice Terry, who needs no introduction to the millions of movie-goers, has the principal role, that of a beautiful, well-educated society debutante, who is forced to go to work when her millionaire father suffers a physical and financial breakdown.

Breed Theater

There have been few pictures shown here that succeeded in arousing so much interest and creating so much comment as the William Fox production, Darwin Was Right, which closes a successful engagement at the Breed theater tonight. Novelties abound in every reel of this feature and it is as near unlike any screen entertainment offered here in many moons as it would seem possible to conceive. Although the cast is capable and the introduction of three chimpanzee actors is unique, the great point of appeal in this photoplay is its hilariously humorous treatment of a subject in which everybody is deeply interested, namely: the origin of man. The direction of Lewis Seiler has been such as to focus attention on some of the frailties of mankind in such a good-natured way as to cause a most wholesome laughter throughout.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS MORE PREVALANT THIS YEAR

That poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) is more prevalent this year than last throughout the country is indicated by figures recently made available by the U. S. public health service says the weekly health bulletin issued by the state department of health.

Thus comparing cases reported from 32 states for the 7-week period ending July 18, 1925 with reports for the corresponding period of 1924 it is shown that this year 462 cases were reported as against 121 last year. Among the states showing a marked increase are California with 154 cases this year against 8 last year, Minnesota with 46 this year against 3 last year, and New Jersey with 35 this year against 2 last year. Illinois showed an increase from 9 to 20 cases for this 7-week period and New York increased from 41 to 66, while Massachusetts dropped from 9 to 8 and Connecticut dropped from 7 to 2.

Connecticut has been fortunate in not sharing the increased incidence in poliomyelitis noted in the country as a whole. The total number of cases reported in Connecticut for the first 6 months of 1925 is 8 compared to 11 for the first 6 months of last year. During July there have been 8 cases reported as against 12 for July of last year. As this is the beginning of the poliomyelitis season reports of a larger number of cases may be expected during the next three months. Last year 36 cases were reported in August 34 in September and 19 in October. In November, the cases reported dropped to 3, and to 2 in December.

Fatty and Skinny both left out—

Eat refined foods if you like—but feed your children Nature's way—for normal weight and healthy growth

Here is Nature's best food—as it comes from Nature—whole wheat—now in a delicious breakfast flake

Ages ago children lived on Nature's foods. They ate it as it came—as Nature intended it to be eaten—unrefined, untampered. And they thrived. The "diet problems" of today were unknown.

Nature's most perfect food for children is wheat—wheat as it was intended to be eaten—whole wheat. Authorities agree on this.

And in this new breakfast flake we offer you Nature's best food—in its most delicious form.

The name is Wheaties—made from the whole of specially selected wheat. All of the body-building Vitamines and natural Mineral salts are retained. Here is Nature's way to keep your children in normal weight and healthy growth!

Correct weight and normal growth

So many "refined" foods only supply energy. It is not enough. Overweight or underweight may result. Children must have "building" nourishment also.

Wheaties meet this double need. First—they supply both energy and building elements. Second—in the right proportions to keep up normal weight and healthy growth.

Wheaties awaken sluggish appetite. Build strong digestions. Their natural bran prevents constipation! They keep growing bodies healthy and normal!

Make this test, mothers—at our risk

No need to urge children to eat Wheaties. A tempting new wheaty flavor they all adore. Crisp, sparkling flakes—stay crisp until the bowl is emptied.

Authorities highly recommend this natural food. So for the good of your child try Wheaties. At our risk. If you are not entirely satisfied, your grocer will give back full price you paid.

No mother should miss this opportunity. Phone your grocer for a package today.

STATE GAVE AID TO OVER 3,000 NEEDY

Connecticut aided 2,337 needy persons who have no legal residence in this state, through financial relief and institutional treatment, during the year ended June 30, according to the annual report of State Agent Raymond L. Gates, submitted to State Treasurer Ernest E. Rogers of New London. In addition 721 widows and 2,132 children were beneficiaries of assistance extended by the state through the widows' aid division of the department of state agencies and institutions.

Disbursements for this work included $395,493.26 for widows' aid, $79,666 as reimbursements to towns, approximately $66,200 for institutional care and $58,565 for salaries and investigation expenses.

Collections by the department for the year amounted to $1,212,927.14, an increase of $61,174.99 from the previous year. These included receipts from support of inmates in state institutions, receipts from commitment fees, reimbursements made by former paupers and miscellaneous collections.

In the state aid division, 1,967 persons applied for assistance from the state during the year. Included in these were 134 cases transferred to other jurisdiction, 61 who have been deported and 19 strictly federal cases. During the year there were 879 cases receiving aid in the form of outdoor relief and 816 others receiving institutional care.

In the latter classification cases were enumerated as follows: Insane hospitals, 543; feeble minded or epileptic, 56; tuberculosis sanatoria, 78; general hospitals, 85; municipal hospitals, 28; almshouses, 41.

Employes of the division made 6,735 investigations and visits during the year. "That immigration is still a vital question may be realized," the report says, "when the applications received disclose that the individuals involved represented 38 known nationalities.

At the close of the year the division of institutions had on its records 3,998 active individual accounts in addition to 377 municipal accounts involving 3,065 persons. During the year there were 186 other accounts involving commitment fees with collections of 2,383, and 15 reimbursement cases whereby the state regained $8,909 for support and treatment given individuals formerly classified as paupers, but investigations revealing that chargeable relatives were financially able to contribute or the paupers themselves had available funds.

Thirty-nine soldier cases were in state institutions, under the United States Veterans' Bureau and thirty-five other soldier cases were cared for by the soldier's hospital board in state institutions other than the home for soldiers at Noroton.

The widows aid division had 721 cases, with 2,132 children as active beneficiaries at the close of the period. This is an increase of sixty-seven cases and 261 beneficiaries. This aid has been in effect since 1919 and during the six years 1,057 cases have been assisted.

"Aside from the weekly financial allowance," the report says, "it is the aim of the department to assist and guide the various homes in many perplexing matters and often wholesome advice is given in the management in the home, the purchase and standardizing of food, and the prevention of child delinquency and the procuring of family needs of environment. It is indeed encouraging and gratifying to note upon what fertile soils such suggestions fall and how the real family spirit and pride, once grasping the situation, strive valiantly to eradicate the retarding and destroying weeds."

"Aid was discontinued in fifty-seven cases during the past year because of the fact that the family spirit had been aroused to the point of cooperation, the normal replacing subnormal conditions and the aid being no longer needed."

"During the past year $8,411.65 was awarded for illness allowances and $96.74 for funeral and burial expenses. That the aid is working for the conservation of health is supported by the fact that the illness expenditures for the year have averaged only $12.02 per family, considering the entire number of families aided, while according to the United States labor statistics the average illness expenditure per year throughout the entire country amounts to $45 per family. The total sums granted for aid during the year amounted to $95,193.26 and the individual family allowances have ranged from $2 to $24.75 per week, the determination of the amount of the weekly aid in each case conforming to the working family needs. The total disbursements include an addition of $27,000 made to the original appropriations by the board of control to meet the demands for this aid this extra sum having been transferred under the statutes from sums appropriated to the department for other relief and not so utilized."

PLAINFIELD FORESTERS TO OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

Several hundred members and their families of the Franco-American Foresters will attend the big field day that the court Hormisdas Dion of Plainfield, will have on the 30th to celebrate the first anniversary of the founding at Plainfield of that court.

The visitors will arrive there by special trolleys, special busses and trains.

It will be a big event and it will take place on the baseball grounds of the Lawton Mills Corporation. All the different societies have been invited and the principal officers of the order have promised their cooperation.

A special mass for the members will be celebrated by Rev. Father Morrissey, chaplain of the court and the contests of strength and skill will take place in the afternoon.

One of the most important will be a baseball game between two teams of the Foresters, franco-American, one of them from Baltic and the other from Putnam. It will be a surprise to all, because the players are very [illegible] and it will be very interesting.

A long list of sporting events has been arranged and the committee appointed for this celebration is as follows:

President, Emile Dupere and John E. Mercier, secretary, Philippe Roy, treasurer, Wilfrid Ledoux, Mrs Georges Rousseli, Mrs. Joseph Savignac, Mrs. Alma Gobeil, Mrs. Anna Dubois, Mrs. Theophile Methier, Alphonse Lebeau, Joseph Savigny, Ernest Bourry, Benoit Landois, Napoleon Hebert, Misses Royer. The principal speaker of the day will be Arsland Gelinas, editor of the "Franco-American" of Marlboro, Mass. A very important contest is taking place just now between Miss Alma Gobeil and Mrs. Alma Dupere and the results will be known on the field. Wilfrid D. Mathieu, of Woonsocket, supreme financial secretary will preside at the events of the day.

The courts of F. F. A. of Willimantic, Putnam, Baltic, Danielson have already accepted the invitation to be present for this event and the committee in charge of the celebration is more and more enthusiastic about the proportions that the observation of this anniversary is taking.

AUTOMOBILE PULLED GAS TANK OVER

A lengthy section of pipe, hanging from the gasoline pump in front of Goldberg's Tire Shop on Franklin street, caused an accident Wednesday afternoon, and resulted in the pump being pulled over by an automobile which was passing close to the curb.

The Texico company had been notified by the owner of the pump that the hose was too long and another shorter section was to be installed. Repairs were made to the pump and the driver of the automobile was not held responsible for the accident.

Coe Family Reunion.

At Durham, the 28th annual reunion of the William C. Coe family was held at the Coe homestead, Saturday. A dinner was served under the maple trees, on the lawn.

After the dinner, which was relished by the 63 present, the life president of the reunion, Clifford W. Coe, gave a hearty address of welcome.

The secretary read the minutes of the last meeting and they were finally accepted and ordered placed in the records of the William C. Coe [illegible].

The historian, Mrs. Frank W. Doane, read her report.

Nettie Mae Bryan, daughter of Dr. Kathryn Bryan of the state hospital was operated on Tuesday noon for appendicitis and is doing well.

WESTERLY

D. C. Arnold of 210 West 77th street, New York, is reported to have been the operator of the automobile, the property of Edward A. Williams of 456 Wayland avenue, Providence, president of the Kingston Varnish company. Arnold was accompanied by Fred C. Hill of Narragansett Pier, and their car collided late Sunday night near Clark's place on a curve in the Boston Post road 300 yards east of Charlestown, wit hthe Chandler sedan, 6884 Conn., of J. F. McCarthy, 113 Pequot avenue, New London. Mr. McCarthy was accompanied by his wife and two others. Arnold was brought to Westerly Wednesday morning by Rhode Island State Troopers, No. 43 and No. 46, for arraignment in Third District court.

The complaint was said to have charged the leaving of the scene of an automobile accident. Identification of the automobile was said to have been made when the Marmon roadster 70-952 R. I., with a broken hub cap was picked up in East Greenwich by representatives of the Wakefield state barracks. At the time the desire of catching the midnight express from Providence to New York was alleged to have been the reason of the haste. Damage to the sedan was a broken front fender, headlight, mudguard and later the front whel caem off, but the occupants of both cars escaped injury.

The Rhode Island state police were accommodated by Chief of Police Thomas D. Brown of Westerly, when he accompanied the parties to Point Judith where arrangement could be made before Third District Court Clerk M. Walter Flynn Jr., who was at the pond in attendance at the annual picnic and outing of Westerly Lodge, No. 678, B. P. O. E.

The new Westerly Hospital Tuesday afternoon and evening attracted even larger crowds for inspection than on Monday afternoon and evening. Thousands of men, women and children were conducted through the institution by a reception committee of women. From 2 to 5 and again 7 to 9, the hours set aside for public inspection, a steady stream poured through the main building and the Sarah Alexander Champion Home for Nurses.

Police officers stationed at the foot of Wells street also on the hospital grounds kept traffic moving in an orderly manner, with the result that congestion was reduced to a minimum in spite of the enormous crowd of motorists and pedestrians.

During the days prior to the opening of the hospital to patients on Aug. 17, the rooms will undergo a finishing process.

Stating first that he was there "fishing" and next that in the large hole which he dug in the coal pile at the rear of the gas house of the South County Public Service Co. "was buried a friend of his," James T. Duffy, alleged drug addict, was reported to Westerly police by the power plant night man on Tuesday morning early. Duffy, who became a conspicuous character here at the time of the double murder at the lively stable on Coggeshall street, May 31, 1924, when the lives of Fred E. Pierce and George L. Wilkinson, Jr., of North Stonington were taken the motive being robbery, paid a visit to Westerly Monday and later passed several hours at the Westerly police station.

Duffy was held by the authorities of Connecticut following the shooting tragedy, but was released after the trial of Marcus Thomas Bower of Asbury Park, N. J., at the superior court at which Baker confessed to the crime.

Duffy was picked up on the local streets Monday and was given medical attention at a local physicians. Late Tuesday he was taken charge of by the police and is to leave early [illegible]

[illegible] the office of the Westerly Hotel Company has the following transfers:

Ann H. Gardner Perry deed to Heavenly Rest, et al five lots of land with all improvements, Lots Nos. 49 and 50, Replat of Liberty Hill, also Lots Nos. 59, 60 and 61, Replat of Liberty Park.

Mary W. Kenyon (wife of Susan Grace Crandall) to Nora S. Stanton, a lot of land with all the improvements thereon on Central street.

GEORGE LABRIZZI, OF NEW LONDON, TO EXPLAIN ABOUT BOOZE CAR TODAY

(Special to the Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 12.—George Librizzi, 138 Jefferson avenue, Public service operator, will be presented before United States Commissioner Russell T. Corcoran at the customs house tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock charged with violation of the prohibition law in the alleged keeping for sale and transportation of liquor. It was intended to arraign Librizzi jointly with Sam Santinella, 44 Shaw street, who was before Commissioner Corcoran yesterday, at which time Santinella was held in bail of $50 for hearing the 21st inst., but because of the alleged representation that Librizzi was absent from the city, his arraignment was deferred until tomorrow because of the promise of his attorney that the accused would present himself for hearing Thursday.

The arraignment of Librizzi is the result of a Cadillac touring car, which is registered in his name, being seized last Sunday night by federal officers and state police at Center Groton, while loaded with booze, when the officers were about to raid the alleged place of storage of the liquor, a barn claimed to have been hired by Santinella. Librizzi claims that the automobile was stolen from the garage of Samuel Katz, 632 Bank street, the afternoon of the day of the raid, Librizzi so reporting the theft to the police Sunday midnight. The prohibition enforcement agents however, declare that the car is owned by Santinella, who caused registration to be made in Librizzi's name, so as to allege that the car had been stolen, in the event of the machine being seized with liquor in it.

Henry Gavitt was today fined $150 in the police court, for the sale of two half-pints of whiskey to a sailor from the coast guard. The sailor is William M. Gross, and he seems to have been hunting rum on shore as well as on the sea. Gross declared the stuff he bought for booze was so concocted that he was crazed by it and that he came close to being paralyzed by drinking it. He was so incensed because of the effect of the liquor upon him that he offered to take police officers to the place and point out the man who sold him the liquor. That proposal was accepted by the police department and Gross struck a bee line, so to speak, for 23 Golden street, a vacant store, found Gavitt there and bought from him two half-pints, for which he paid $3. Then Gavitt was arrested and Gross accused him in the presence of Police Sergeant Cavanaugh and Patrolman Graham, who accommodated Gross to the Gavitt place and stood near while the transaction was being consummated. The officers saw Gross go into the place and they waited to see Gavitt go to the upper portion of the building in which the store is located and then back. Gross immediately appeared with the liquor he alleged Gavitt supplied him with. The arrest of Gavitt followed. The officers then went and searched the vacant store, but they failed to find any liquor. They said they didn't expect to find any, but were made the search nevertheless. Gavitt's defense was that he did not sell any liquor, but made the statement that Gross had sought liquor from him and failed to obtain it. Gavitt volunteered the information that Gross was intoxicated when he met him on the street, Sunday. Judge Prince decided that the evidence of sale was conclusive and found Gavitt guilty as alleged. Gavitt appealed and furnished a bond of $500 for appearance in the court of common pleas.

Harry Knecht, a sailor in the coast guard service was fined in the police court this morning for misconduct at Ocean Beach, where he was arrested by Patrolman Carl Selmanzki. Knecht's offense was an aggravated one for he threw into the street traffic signs that had been placed for a useful purpose. The sailor did not offer any extenuating reason for what he did but contented himself with saying that he "just did it" as the notion seized him. Judge Prince handed out some advice of a wholesome sort to the jack tar. He told the sailor that he was very much inclined to send him to jail, where he belonged. Then he rebuked the sailor of any opinion that he with others of his sort could come ashore and conduct themselves in a manner that was disgraceful to themselves and annoying to others.

Robert Collins, another sailor of the coast guard, was penalized for intoxication. He was with Knecht at the beach, but he was less wilful in his conduct than was Knecht.

John McQueen, a carpenter who said he had not been employed of late, was charged with intoxication, having been picked up helpless on Bank street. McQueen had stayed away from the court about two years, so he was shown the leniency that brought a suspended sentence.

Donald de Otte, a United States navy lieutenant, was charged with violation of the parking ordinance, but the fact that the traffic signs on Bank street might be confusing at the point opposite the Allen Hook and Ladder house led the court to suspend judgment.

E. F. Nugent, an insurance company representative, was found operating an automobile without having a license in his possession yesterday. His case was nolled on payment of $5.

The United States Housing Corporation has sold 13 parcels of land, together with several dwellings on the housing corporation plot, off Jefferson avenue to John Mondelci, a local contractor.

Thomas F. Dorsey, Jr., has sold the former Peter Dorsey residence, corner of Federal and Prospect streets, to Attorney Max Boyer. The price paid was $12,000 and the deed transferring the real estate was filed for record in the office of the city clerk today.

Police Sergeant Samuel Hick was unable to perform duty this afternoon and tonight, being confined to his home, Elydenburg avenue, because of indisposition.

The funeral of Elizabeth, widow of James Murphy, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Raymond O'Callahan. The bearers were Farrell Smith, Patrick Hawkins, John Kiley, Daniel Kelliher, Cornelius Murphy and Joseph Herbis. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The condition of Captain of Police Charles A. Pisney, who is under treatment at Lawrence-Memorial hospital is reported at the institution today as not being favorable as was the case the past few days. The endeavors of the attending physicians to reduce inflamed conditions have not been so successful as was hoped and until the inflammation practically is eliminated it will not be advisable to perform an operation.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B Stoeckel today caused the operator's license of Mrs. Frieda Wallace 39 Summer street, recently suspended following the car being in collision with another auto, to be returned to the owner. Commissioner Stoeckel also caused the operator's license of John Fierara, 32 Truman street to be suspended. The car Fierara was operating several days ago was in collision with a machine, corner of Jefferson avenue and West Coit street.

Patrolman Clarence Martin observed an Oakland touring car parked on Bostor street, several hours last night with the motor unlocked. As a matter of precaution against the theft of the machine, it was removed to a garage. This morning Frank Silva, 165 Main street, appeared at the police station to report his car stolen and it was then revealed that the parked car was owned by him. The car was later claimed at the garage.

Capt. John Stanners, who served the city of New London about 25 years as chief of the fire department, had one hot over on him this afternoon and is wondering how it occurred. Mr. Stanners was walking along Main street shortly before 4 o'clock when he noticed a cloud of smoke issuing from beneath an automobile at the corner of Main and Church streets. The operator of the car had started the engine and had absented himself from the car, but he had also allowed the flow of gasoline to continue and that a dense cloud of smoke arose from beneath the rear of the machine. Believing that the automobile was afire, Mr. Stanners hurried to the fire alarm box, corner of Main and Federal streets and rung in an alarm. The sounding of the alarm caused a half dozen of the city's fire fighting pieces of apparatus to respond, but the call proved a needless one as the operator of the automobile quickly appeared and drove the car away.

The sounding of the alarm also brought out a condition that it has long been pointed would occur on Bank street and which might result in one of seriousness unless steps are taken to prevent such conditions. When the Allen Hook and Ladder and Niantic hose company apparatus approached Golden street they were held up several minutes because of traffic congestion being headed southward with an automobile parked on both sides of the street, which prevented the fire trucks progress. Traffic Officer John Courtney, who was on duty at the corner of State and Bank Sts. finally caused the cars to manouever so that the fire apparatus was able to continue. It has long been pointed out that a blaze was likely to occur in the vicinity of State street the heart of the business section, and that unless measures were taken to prevent congestion of traffic on Bank street, serious consequences were liable to arise by fire apparatus being stalled.

Thomas Dickey, 11 rewer street, formerly of Niantic, was arrested this afternoon by State Police Officer Giles Watson, from the Groton barracks, on a warrant charging Dickey with non-support. Dickey is being held a prisoner at the New London police station in default of a surety on his bond for his appearance in a justice court at Niantic tomorrow forenoon. Dickey's wife, from whom he has been estranged some time, is residing at Niantic, and she alleges that although Dickey works regularly, he fails to contribute toward her support.

Mrs. George Abernathy and infant son, of 33 Elizabeth street; Arleen Pelletier, Easterly Pl., Ocean Beach; James and Anastasia Dardimus, Westerly; Arthur Gorman, Tenth Street; Fred Stebalore, Groton, Frederick Crumb, Mystic; William Atwood; United States Coast guard destroyer Steele; Earl Greene, U. S. S. 20, submarine base; Mrs. George McCulley and infant son, 84 Maple avenue; Michael Motto, 58 Dwight place, New Britain; Cornelius Kurtibais, United States coast guard service, and Charles Richards, Jr., 148 Poquonoc road, Groton, patients at Lawrence hospital, were dismissed today.

Mrs. Manuel Costa of Groton, and Mrs. Eliza Liniviga of New York were patients discharged at Home Memorial hospital today.

Two burglaries occurred in Groton last night but the plunder of a trivial nature was obtained. Thieves entered the grain store of P. Schwartz & Co., Thames street by forcing a rear window and took a pay telephone. The money in the coin depository, it is understood was only a dollar or two. The crooks also visited the home of Frank W. Hewes, Jr., also of Thames street, out nothing was taken from the place, although a kit of tools was stolen from Hewes' automobile, parked at the rear of the house.

Youths with thieving instincts caused the police considerable trouble tonight for they visited several cars that were parked in the vicinity of the corner of Meridian and Church streets and stole several articles, none of which were of great value. Patrolman Clarence Martin was assigned to maintain a watch of the place where the cars were pilfered but as soon as the officer left the locality the boys would return to cars and renew the thefts.

Nathan Wein of Westerly, has sold a house and lot on Moore avenue to Louis Lomsky.

Rock Zekas, who has a long police record for various violations of the law, mostly breach of the peace and intoxication, was taken into custody late this afternoon by Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray on a charge of breach of the peace, made by Zekas' wife, Zekas, it is alleged, went to his home 132 Winthrop street, at the conclusion of his day's work and created such a disturbance that the police were summoned to place Zekas under restraint.

Samuel Katz, proprietor of a garage, 632 Bank street, complained to the police late this afternoon that during the past few days his place of business had been entered and that quantities of gasoline had been the chief plunder taken.

Thelma Fennal, 78 Petersville Road, New Rochelle, N. Y., was ordered to appear in the police court tomorrow morning, by Motorcycle Office; Augustus Ray, as a result of a complaint against the young woman of reckless driving made by Edward Benson, a Hobson street businessman.

NEW LONDON, Aug. 12—John Saxson, a soldier at Camp Trumbull, Niantic, in riding a spirited horse at the camp this afternoon, was thrown from the animal and sustained a fractured left arm. Saxson was brought to New London and taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital for treatment.

SANITELLA, IN TEARS, ACCUSES PROHIBITION COP

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 12—Sam Santinella, 44 Shaw street, arrested yesterday as a result of the raid upon a barn in Center Groton, where it is alleged he kept liquor for sale, appeared at the police station this evening with his wife and niece and lodged complaint against Prohibition Officer Joseph Fitzpatrick, who Santinella declared, is humiliating him and endeavoring to "frame" him. Santinella was most demonstrative and so forceful, was his accusation against Fitzpatrick that Santinella burst into tears as he beat his fist on the rail of the police station office and yelled his tirade of criticism of the prohibition enforcement agent. He declared that he would consult his attorney Thursday and cause steps to be taken to prevent Fitzpatrick's hounding of the complainant.

Santinella claimed to have started for a ride with his wife and niece, about 8 o'clock and when on Denison avenue, he declares that he stopped his machine to permit Mrs. Santinella and an acquaintance to engage in conversation. While the car was motionless, Santinella alleges that Fitzpatrick drove up in a machine and demanded that the occupants of Santinella's car alight, that a search of the latter machine could be made. He also alleges that Fitzpatrick applied vile names to him, besides seizing him by the throat, attempting to get a revolver from the prohibition agent's pocket.

MAN AND WIFE FROM BOSTON CHEATED HOTEL OUT OF $100

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 12.—A couple registering as Mr. and Mrs. J. Cereleo, Boston, arrived at the Hotel Mohican about two weeks ago and this forenoon it was discovered that the man and woman had departed from the hotel leaving an unpaid board bill of $100. Manager Frank B. Walker reported the fraud to the police.

URGES NATION-WIDE SAFETY SIGNAL SYSTEM

Nationwide adoption of uniform and standard signals for highway traffic control grade crossings was urged by the American Automobile association, at Washington as one of the practical means of reducing the toll of death and injury at these virtually unguarded death-traps.

Thomas P. Henry, president of the association, has called upon the Hoover conference on street and highway safety, of which the A. A. A. is an organization member, to put the question of protecting grade crossing on primary highways in the forefront of the conference.

During 1924 it was pointed out, there were in the United States 246,181 grade crossings used by automobiles and of these 206,-138 were wholly unprotected by signals, automatic gates or gatemen. For the period the casualty list at these places was 2,149 people killed and 7,523 injured and eighty per cent of the total involved automobiles.

"No attempt has ever been made to secure standardization of grade crossing signals and yet here is a practical field where little effort on the part of safety forces will save hundreds of lives each year," president Henry declared.

"I believe," he said, "that the establishment of a well worked out standard system of signals together with the standard fixed warning and caution signs which the joint committee of the Bureau of Public Roads and State Highway officials are developing would prove the most effective means, other than separating the grades, of reducing the hazard to public safety."

The A. A. A. program provides for four distinct phases of activity in regard to grade crossings, as follows:

First, standard signals for traffic control and watchmen wherever possible.

Second, smoothening out the approaches to crossings so as to do away with steep grades and sharp inclines that endanger operation of motor vehicles at crucial moments.

Third, improving the physical condition of the actual crossing itself so as to prevent stalling of machines and to permit the operator to watch for approaching trains.

Fourth, the development of a plan by states, towns and communities whereby in cooperation with the railroads, grade crossings, at least the most dangerous of them, will be ultimately eliminated.

President Henry severely criticizes the attitude of those who contend that the elimination of crossings is so gigantic a problem that it cannot be undertaken.

He said:

"If we concede that the only ultimate way to avoid grade crossing accidents is to separate the grades, then a start should at once be made on the most dangerous of them. We are constantly told that it will take nineteen billion dollars, or some such huge sum, to separate all the grades. Of course we realize that it will take time and money but the constant prating about the size of the task is one reason why so little progress is being made in elimination and why more grades are being constructed yearly than are eliminated.

"I am convinced that after a survey of the situation it will be found that even one billion dollars would do away with at least 50 per cent of the present hazard. What is needed is a comprehensive program which would proceed with the highways where a given sum will accomplish the most. I know of one small city in Indiana, Michigan city, where six dangerous grades were eliminated in a short time through community efforts and many lives saved in consequence. The sooner we get from behind the smokescreen and stop speaking about nineteen billion dollars, the sooner we will begin to make real progress in this national undertaking.

"One of the things we can do immediately is to attract the attention of motorists to grade crossing danger by the most effective method and to make that method uniform for the country. To secure uniform signals it will be necessary to get the cooperation of the American Railway association, the Interstate Commerce Commission State Utility Commissions and State Highway Commissioners.

"The American Railway association has drafted what are called standard specifications for signals. Some states provide that these be installed when replacements are necessary. On the other hand many states have laid down their own legal specifications. At the moment Pennsylvania has under consideration a new system which I understand is not the system in use in New York. This is illustrative of the situation throughout the country.

"As a result there is at the present a regrettable widespread lack of understanding as to the significance of the varied and numerous devices now used at grade crossings. The psychological effect of uniform signal on every crossing of primary highways in every state would of itself prove very beneficial in educating the motorists of the country to watch out for this lurking danger in their path."

TO HOLD WELL CHILD CONFERENCE AT MOOSUP

Children cannot be trusted to select their own food, says a child health article issued by the state department of health. Given a free choice gravitate toward sweet things—candies, cakes, pastries, or toward spiced things like pickles and relishes just as a magnet picks up iron filings. For endless ages the jam pot and the cookie jar have been pictured as the pantry tempters of childhood. Many a downfall has been laid to their door, for are they not ever just beyond reach?

Now cookies and jams play a part in the child's diet if they are not used to excess. Cookies, if simply made, are a glorified breadstuff, and jams if not too sweet, but an intensified fruit. As a part of the regular meal they are an excellent source of nourishment, but there are other foods which, by virtue of their more bland flavor, do not make so high an appeal to the child, though they rank of higher importance in the diet. Such foods are milk, and cereals and bread and butter. Then there is the family of vegetables, so essential to health, but which often startle the child by their garrish display of color. Children make up their mind to dislike them before the taste is registered.

Mothers must come to the rescue during this growing period and select the foods that are best for children. "All play and no work makes Jack a dull boy." So with food—all sweets will not build a strong child. There must be a proper balance between those foods which have a homely though important part to play, and those which glorify the whole by an appealing taste only. A generous supply of milk, a plentiful supply of breadstuffs in the form of whole grain breakfast cereals and dark breads, a free use of butter, a variety of vegetables, an abundance of fruit—these are fundamental to good health. It is for the mother to guide the child down that pathway with a firm but sympathetic hand, meanwhile attempting to build up confidence in these foods so that they may become to the child the mainstay, in which sweets only occasionally intermingle, and tea and coffee are given no place.

Mothers are learning what an important part food plays in the health of their children by attending the well child conference held monthly in Moosup.

The August conference will be held on Friday afternoon, August 21st, in Franco-American Hall, from 2 to 4 o'clock.

TWINS SING IN JEWETT CITY CHOIRS

Of special interest to Jewett City is the following article appearing in the Boston Globe of Wednesday: Twins are in demand in the church choirs of Jewett City, Conn. Every church in town has twins in the choir with the exception of the Methodists and, even that church has twins among its members is said to be making efforts to have them join the choir. Miss Gertrude Prior Sparks, and her brother, George Prior, are in the Baptist choir. The Misses Marguerite and Madeline Gill sing in the Congregational choir and Helen and Anna Osga are members of the St. Mary's Roman Catholic Junior choir.

Who Died Aug. 13, 1923.

The hands that did so much for us,
How helplessly they lay;
God knows they worked continually
But they are gone today.

Sleep on, our darling mother,
Oh, how sweet to breathe thy name;
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKETS AT A GLANCE.

New York.

Stocks irregular; rails strong; nine oils at new lows.

Bonds firm; C. & O. Convertible 5s at 115 3-4, a new high.

Foreign exchanges easy; allied rates yield slightly.

Cotton advanced; high temperatures causing shedding.

Sugar easy; commission house selling.

Coffee lower; easier Brazilian markets.

Chicago.

Wheat strong; bullish cash situation.

Corn declined; good rains.

Cattle irregular.

Hogs lower; limited shipping demand.

MARKET WAS ERRATIC.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Erratic fluctuations characterized today's irregular stock market, two of the most contrasting features being the weakness of the oil shares and the strength of the rails, particularly some of the southern and southwestern carriers.

Some of the most violent price movements in recent months took place in General Railway Signal which opened 9 points higher at 290 and quickly mounted to a new record price for all time at 319 3-4, then collapsed to 276 after finally on the "Big Board" two months ago. General Electric also made stock exchange history by reaching a record peak at $21, or a full point above the highest price recorded before the segregation of the Electric bond and share holdings.

Mixed movements took place in other so-called "Rich Men's Stocks." American Can attained a record top at 236 and then eased to 234 for a net gain of 1 1-2 points. Mack Trucks showed a net loss of 2 1-2 at 295 3-4 after having sold 3 points above that figure. S. S. Kresge, which enjoys the distinction of being the highest priced stock on the exchange, closed nearly 5 points higher at 495.

A new explanation for the selling of the oil shares, recent weakness of which generally has been attributed to cuts in crude and gasoline prices, was set forth in a report that it represented liquidation of large estate holdings, but this could not be confirmed. New low prices for the year were recorded by Pan-American A and B, Standard Oil of California, Union Oil of California, Barnesdall A, Tidewater, Marland Oil, Producers and Refiners and Texas and Pacific Coal and Oil. Atlantic Refining broke nearly 7 points to 96 1-4 and then rallied to 97 but some of the others recovered their earlier losses and closed fractionally higher on the day.

Buying of the rails centered in Chesapeake & Ohio, which attained new best price in its history at 105, and Wabash common and preferred A, which touched new high levels at 40 3-8 and 72 5-8, respectively. Frisco common, Western Pacific and Bangor Aroostook also broke through their previous high levels.

Bullish operations were successfully conducted in a number of specialties. International Combustion Engineering was run up over 2 points to a new high record at 50 in further reflection of recent important contracts. Jewel Tea preferred jumped 4 points to a new high at 113 on the declaration of back dividends. Austin Nichols preferred also attained a new top in anticipation of an early resumption of dividends on the common. Westinghouse Air Brake and Weston Electric were bid up to new maximum prices in expectation of increased earnings in connection with the sale of automatic train control devices.

Marked heaviness was shown by American Sugar Refining, General Motors, Interboro Rapid Transit, Midland Steel Products preferred, Woolworth and Worthington Pump, all off 2 to 3 points.

Call money renewed at 4 1-4 per cent. and then dropped to 4. Time money rates showed a moderate stiffening, 60 to 90 day funds being quoted at 4 1-4 to 4 1-2 and the longer maturities at 4 1-2 to 4 3-4. Prime commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Fluctuations in the foreign exchanges were extremely narrow and irregular. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.85 1-2 but French francs and Italian lira were slightly easier at 4.67 and 3.60 cents, respectively.

PROPOSE RE-LOCATION OF JEWETT CITY-DANIELSON STATE HIGHWAY

As a means of safeguarding the lives of thousands of automobile drivers and passengers, a re-location of two sections of the state highway from Norwich to Danielson has been proposed by Norwich Council, No. 309, United Commercial Travelers. Norwich Council which has on its membership roll commercial travelers living in all sections of eastern Connecticut, has a committee, headed by Herbert R. Branche of this city, at work on the proposed re-location of the highway. The plan as proposed by the commercial travelers will be laid before the various civic organizations for expressions of opinion and then [illegible] of the resolutions or statements of the action taken by these various organizations will be placed, together with the re-location plan, in the hands of the state highway department.

Blue print plans of the proposed highway changes have already been inspected by a number of prominent business men in Norwich, Jewett City and other towns along the highway and the project is meeting with general favor. Wednesday noon at the regular weekly luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club, the proposed relocation was explained by President J. Nelson Wentworth, and the proposition was referred to the board of directors of the club for investigation and study after which the board will report back to the club which will then voice an expression of opinion. The plan will be brought up for discussion before meetings of the Chambers of Commerce and other civic organizations in eastern Connecticut within the next future.

THE RELOCATION PLAN AND WHAT IT MEANS

The following statement on the proposed re-location of the state highway between Jewett City and Danielson and issued Wednesday by Herbert R. Branche, editor of the Eastern Connecticut Monthly and chairman of the civic committee of Norwich Council number 309, United Commercial Travelers of America.

During the past two years Norwich Council No. 309 U. C. T. of A. has aggressively tackled the big problem of making the highways of eastern Connecticut safe for motorists by the elimination of dangerous railroad crossings, narrow bridges, and abrupt curves.

Through the efforts of this organization the Eastern Connecticut Civic association was formed and various bills presented the legislature bearing on the improvement of highway conditions in our end of the state. Among the more important being the widening of the bridges at Central Village, Moosup, Chaplin and Bean Hill. The placing of uniformed officers as flagmen at all trunk line railroad crossings or the carrying of the highway over- or underneath.

Prior to the World war an organization of committees representing all the chambers of commerce of eastern Connecticut had become an active agency for the voicing of public expression in Windham and New London counties and it was through this [illegible] that the Mohegan Trail was opened June 22nd, 1917 at one of the most remarkable gatherings that had ever taken place in eastern Connecticut. It was the first time that the string of towns which linked together by historical and topographical ties ever came together in a neighborly meeting.

One of the purposes for which the trail was opened was to improve the highway over which the Mohegan Indians traversed, in the old days, and it soon became evident that interest in this important north and south main artery of travel would soon be lost unless the multiplicity of danger spots between Jewett city and Danielson could be eradicated.

To invite tourists into eastern Connecticut is commendable, but through lack of modern and safe highways lives of such are imperilled. All our natural and historical points of interest and scenic beauty spots soon lose their charm.

Rapid Transit Cure

With the rapid increase in the number of motor vehicles yearly seen on our highways, problems of deep concern are confronting the highway departments of nearly every state. In our cities the automobile is fast becoming a pest and more and more stringent laws, are daily being enforced.

Speeding up traffic is the correct thing providing highways are first put in proper condition for rapid and increased traffic. To increase the speed limit to 45 miles an hour and allow dangerous situations to exist is little less than criminal carelessness on the part of those responsible for highway conditions, as exist today, in eastern Connecticut.

As to the elimination of accidents by the use of caution no law, no campaign, not even experience will force people to employ that quality at grade crossings or anywhere else for that matter.

Seventy Miles an Hour

Seventy miles per hour on the main lines of our stream railroads is possible as every crossing is guarded by electric signals and watchmen as well as gates. Now that the traffic load is being spread to motor vehicles, including city, suburban, and interstate bus and trucking lines, it becomes more important that the neck of the traffic bottle be removed.

Every time the gates go down at the thousands of protected crossings an economic loss is brought about by the delays in the traffic stream at all the intersections of railroads and important highways in the state.

By-Passes for Through Traffic

As a means of safeguarding the lives of millions the by-pass is becoming more favored as traffic increases. To divert long distance traffic around congested centers is the logical thing to do where ever possible. If 50 per cent of the traffic over a given route, say from Baltic, Versailles, Occum and Taftville to New London can go over the Gallows Hill route when completed, and return the same way, it is fair to presume that upon the completion of this piece of state aid road such will be the case and the risk of accidents and arrests that now daily obtain through Greeneville and the center of the city will to a certain degree become lessened.

The Otrabando road south from Yantic to Trading Cove offers another means of relieving congestion at lower Broadway. Washington street and Thames square by diverting Willimantic and Hartford through traffic to New London by-passing Norwich and shortening the distance between these points. Rhode Island has just completed a new highway between Woonsocket and Providence carrying the burden of the traffic between Worcester and Providence and by-passing Pawtucket and is now engaged in blazing a new trunk line between Westerly and Providence that will when completed shorten the distance seven miles between these points, eliminate all curves and by-pass several villages.

Federal Aid Highway

The federal government has just taken a long step forward in consolidating 50,000 miles of federal aid highways among which is the New London-Worcester (Mohegan Trail) highway. These thousands of miles of roads are to be marked, numbered, and mapped and information made available to everyone concerning their condition, etc. All new lay outs of lines where federal aid is received must first be sanctioned by federal engineers before state highway departments can proceed with such construction or such aid is forfeited.

The Proposed Changes

The commercial travelers (Norwich Council No. 309) presents the following proposed change as is shown in the accompanying map, the same having first been recommended by their civic committee to the council at a regular meeting held August 1st and unanimously adopted. The committee comprises H. R. Branche, chairman, Norwich; Adelard Morin, Norwich; Daniel Polsky, Norwich; C. W. Pearson, Norwich; W. W. Bromley, Jewett City; E. N. Lyon, New London; Leroy Nash, New London.

The Purpose of the Committee

The purpose of the committee is to correlate and coordinate the opinion of the leading and influential citizens of eastern Connecticut through their affiliation and vote in the various civic organizations in which they may be associated viz;

After the chambers of commerce, rotary clubs, lions clubs, business men's associations, United Commercial Travelers, and men's and women's clubs in general have voted upon the proposed changes as herein shown, after this opinion of the proposed plan is obtained, copies of the resolutions will be placed in the hands of the state highway department, John J. MacDonald, commissioner having first been explained to the division engineer, J. H. Smith, in charge of this district.

No Wish to Antagonize

It is not the desire of the commercial travelers nor of any of the civic organizations named herein to in any way interfere with the work of the state highway department but it is felt that if needed relief can be obtained and dangerous spots as outlined related to the rear, our work will have been worthwhile.

What the proposed re-location means to Jewett City.—It will open up a new territory pleasantly located on the west shore of the Quinebaug river to the building of homes and the landscaping of one of nature's charming spots in that region. It will give to this thriving borough a boulevard approximately three miles in length. It will take the noise and confusion of many interstate trucks off their business and residential streets. It will in a great measure lessen danger and congestion at a narrow bridge, a dangerous railroad crossing, a parochial school and every church in Jewett City.

It will eliminate too through traffic some 50 bi-secting roads that now offer dangerous situations unless approached in an extremely careful manner. Through the busy business section automobiles are parked on each side for a half mile or more and the necessity for through traffic to slow down and consume a greater amount of time in threading through this maize when going north or south over this trunk highway. There are also hydrants located along the way which in case of fires, sometimes hold up traffic for considerable periods of time, all of which will be overcome by the proposed relocation.

It will also overcome the danger now existing at a narrow overhead bridge at the north end of the town, where the approach is a part of a double reverse curve.

Bishops Crossing

At Bishop's crossing an estimated appropriation of $86,000 for the construction of an overhead bridge at this dangerous spot has been approved by the public utilities commission and is now waiting the decision of the chairman, E. C. Elwell.

North of Plainfield at French's crossing the proposed layout crosses the tracks of the Providence-Willimantic line of the N. Y., N. H. and Hartford, railroad, by an overhead bridge, just east of the present grade crossing. It crosses the Moosup river with a new bridge located about 600 feet east of the present narrow one, thus eliminating in Central Village the necessity of crossing the tracks again, a a sharp curve and a very dangerous narrow bridge.

At Wauregan it overcomes another dangerous condition near the school house where the main line is bisected by the highway leading from the Wauregan station to the village. At Danielson the approach from the south is a mass of dangerous curves with trolley tracks, with two trunk line highways north and south and east and west, by intersecting at the main street, another railroad crossing with gates and a narrow business street with trolley tracks through center of same, all of which cause a delay and hold up traffic through the city of Danielson.

The Green Hollow Road

The entrance into Danielson over the Green Hollow road is of a most pleasing nature. The vista along the same is charming, the grades are very moderate and the line is as straight as could be wished for. It enters Danielson at the green, forming a junction with the Providence Hartford trunk line and joining the new section soon to be constructed at a point north of the Danielson city line.

One year ago last May, State Commissioner J. J. MacDonald, speaking before the Norwich council at a dinner held in the Wauregan hotel, stated that within five years this trunk line from New London to the Massachusetts state line will be cemented the entire distance. In presenting this proposed plan of relocation it calls for no extra amount of cemented highway. It calls for the building of no extra bridges, other than will be necessary if the old trunk line were called upon to further the traffic load, and it calls for no engineering problems that would prove too costly to be considered.

The new relocation plan does not mean that the present highway would be abandoned. It could still be used for local traffic while the through traffic could follow the new highway. The relocation plan shortens the distance between Jewett City and Danielson materially, and if put into operation, would overcome all obstacles that now appear on the present road location.

MAYOR WATERS FAVORS THE PROPOSED CHANGE

I have inspected the blue print plan of the proposed re-location of the state highway around Jewett City and over the Green Hollow road to Danielson and Putnam, said Mayor Milo R. Waters, in an interview Wednesday. I believe it will work for safety by doing away with dangerous curves and railroad crossings. I am strongly in favor of it.

A PROGRESSIVE STEP SAYS SEC. O'ROURKE

The proposed relocation of the highway from Jewett City to Putnam is a progressive step, said John J. O'Rourke ,secretary of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, Wednesday. It will eliminate a number of dangerous curves and railroad crossings in that section, he continued. The proposed plan will also eliminate the narrow one car bridge entering Central Village from the south.

With the increasing number of automobiles and the importance of this highway, the solution of the problem of wiping out these dangerous places is an important factor for safety. The plan presents a good solution.

The various communities of eastern Connecticut should stand squarely behind this proposition for the convenience, comfort, and safety of the traveling public in this section of the state, safety in traveling, the elimination of dangerous curves, narrow bridges, and railroad crossings, needs the support of all in order to bring this proposition to a successful issue.

Fortunately the plan does not conflict with the various improvements already completed in this section through the building of concrete roads. The expense therefore should be comparatively small. The plan has much merit. It solves a difficult and a dangerous problem. It deserves to succeed.

E. C. POWER MANAGER FAVORS PROPOSED CHANGE

Harold D. Larrabee, general manager of the Eastern Connecticut Power company spoke in favor of the proposed relocation of the state highway to Danielson, when asked for an opinion Wednesday afternoon. I consider it an important thing, said Mr. Larrabee, for it is a great improvement over the old road, is straighter and safer, and at the same time takes out the bad curves at Jewett City and the narrow bridges at Jewett City and Central Village.

I favor the change, he said, as it calls for a straighter road with less grades and should aid in increasing traffic, something which we need in Eastern Connecticut. You may quote me as being strongly in favor of the proposed change provided it can be made at a reasonable expenditure.

JEWETT CITY CHAMBER WILL ACT ON PLAN

The Jewett City Chamber of Commerce will act on the proposed highway relocation at a meeting to be held at Grange Hall, Pachaug, August 19th.

The officers of the Moosup Chamber of Commerce have called a special meeting of that body to consider and act on the new highway plan. The Moosup chamber is to meet next week.

NORWICH LIONS WILL DISCUSS RE-LOCATION

One of the matters which will be brought up for discussion at the weekly meeting of the Norwich Lions club will be the proposed re-location of the highway between Jewett City and Danielson. The meeting, as usual will be held at the Wauregan hotel Thursday noon.

IS IN KEEPING WITH PRESENT DAY DEVELOPMENT

The proposed relocation of the state highway to Danielson, Connecticut eliminates several railroad crossings, a number of dangerous curves, two narrow bridges, in addition to avoiding the villages, which makes for better travel conditions, and is in keeping with the present day development of trunk line highways.

I believe the above improvements in safety conditions are of sufficient importance to warrant any reasonable expenditure.

The matter will be brought up for discussion at the meeting of the Norwich Lions club this (Thursday) noon, as it is considered to be of great importance to Eastern Connecticut.

NORWICH MAN SEEKS DAMAGES OF $20,000

A $20,000 damage suit has been brought against the Connecticut Co., by John S. Fields of Norwich, minor, through his father, Timothy Fields. The papers in the suit have been filed with the clerk of the superior court in this city.

It is alleged that on Aug. 4, 1924, John Fields was a passenger in an automobile driven by his father, Timothy Fields, on West Town street, Norwich, about 11:45 o'clock in the morning.

The automobile was stationary and stalled on the easterly side of the travelled portion of West Town street, facing in a northerly direction and so close to the tracks of the defendant that a trolley car being operated over the tracks could not pass the auto without striking the same.

The complaint alleges that while the Fields auto was in such a condition, a trolley car, operated by its servants or agents, in a southerly direction, approached the auto at a high and excessive rate of speed, and although the servants and agents of the defendant saw said automobile in its position of peril, or should have seen the same, there being an unobstructed view of the same for a distance of about 400 feet, the servants or agents carelessly and negligently, at a high and excessive rate of speed and without [illegible] the trolley car under control, due care required, ran the trolley into the automobile, completely demolishing the motor vehicle and throwing the plaintiff to the ground.

It is further alleged that the plaintiff was severely injured, that his nervous system has been shattered and permanently injured, his right cheek was cut, forehead cut, head bruised, left hand cut and bruised, eyes injured to such an extent that he is compelled to wear eye-glasses and he is permanently injured and disfigured as a result of the injuries as well as suffering from mental injuries, it is alleged.

NORWICH DRIVER FIGURES IN GROTON COLLISION

Following a head on collision of a truck driven by Daniel Chesebro of Mystic and a Durant touring car operated by Park Wilcox of Norwich at Chesebro corner on the Center Groton road Tuesday night, Carl Johnson of Mystic was taken to the Lawrence and Memorial Associated hospital in New London, suffering from a compound fracture of the nose and multiple abrasions and contusions of the body. Both machines were considerably damaged.

According to the state police, who investigated the crash, the Chesebro truck was turning the corner and took it wide when the accident occurred. Johnson, who was riding on the front seat of the Chesebro truck was thrown with much force against the front of the machine and thrown from the car. A Miss Buddington, a passenger in the back seat of the Wilcox machine, received a scalp wound as a result of the crash.

WILD CARROT IS SPREADING ON FARMS

The spread of "wild carrot" on many of the farms in Connecticut is noticeable. The farmers seem to forget that there is a law regarding the destruction of this noxious weed, as it is a serious damage to the grass crop. It is not as difficult to check as many imagine. If each farmer will spend a little time in mowing it down right now, before the blossoms turn to seed, it will do much to check the spread, as the weed propagates chiefly from the blowing of the seeds broadcast by the fall winds.

It is discouraging to any farmer who tries to keep this damaging plant back to see his neighbor's lots covered, knowing that his own efforts will be largely rendered unavailing when the fall winds blow. If each one will take a little time each fall to mow the blossoms in a very few years the pest will become scarce and the hayfields benefitted accordingly.

FIRE IN CLOSET OF NO. MAIN ST. HOUSE

The fire department was called out at 4:28 o'clock Wednesday afternoon for a fire at No. 74 North Main street in the house occupied by William Keyes and owned by A. V. Covello. The fire was in a closet in the house and had been extinguished by members of the family by the time the firemen arrived, little damage resulting.

NORWICH PASTOR ADDRESSES C. E. SUMMER SCHOOL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Aug. 12—The Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church of Norwich today addressed the delegates to the Christian Endeavor Summer school.

Speaking of Paul, who was traveling to Troas, Mr. Bailey said that he was the only one of the four who saw the vision. Applying this to life today, Mr. Bailey said that it took hundreds to carry out the vision of one man. The vision for each of us comes in the way that is familiar to us in every day life. To Moses, the vision came in a bush, the most familiar thing in his life, so we must be looking for our vision to come in our usual paths of duty, he said. Urging his listeners to be ready for the vision when it came, Mr. Bailey said they should be able to put it into operation as soon as it came.

"Sources of Power" was the subject of an address given to the delegates last night by Dr. Herbert [illegible] White, pastor of the Central Baptist church of Hartford. Explaining that Jesus was called a "man of [illegible] and yet filled with joy at all times Dr. White said he did not get [illegible] from his environment, but from a source within himself. WILLIMANTIC

Joe Larriger and Edwin W. Gordon of Mansfield were in the Mansfield Town court Thursday morning, before Justice of the Peace George H. Andrews, on charges of owning roaming dogs. The arrests were made by Dog Warden W. O. Eldredge. They were fined two dollars each and costs of the court. The assessments amounted to $15.85 and $15.85 respectively.

Five boys from New York who are visiting in Gurleyville for the summer, were adjudged guilty of breach of the peace. The complainant was A. Ostrofsky, who testified that the boys were singing and otherwise using vile language before his property. Mr. Ostrofsky stated in court that he has had similar trouble in the past, although he could not say as to whether or not these particular boys were the guilty ones before. The boys entered a plea of not guilty and denied the allegations. They were fined two dollars each, the costs of the court to be equally proportioned.

Wednesday, before Judge Andrews Theodore Friedman now of this city answered to a charge of speeding. He was arrested by State Policeman Edgar August 11 on the Coventry road. He pleaded guilty. A fine of $10 and costs was levied in this case, amounting to $26.

A splendid success was the Ladies' Night party held by the Willimantic Exchange Club in the Andover town hall Wednesday evening. Members and guests in attendance numbered fifty. Vice-President Edwin P. Hayes was in charge of the meeting, in the absence of the president, Dr. Clarence E. Simonds. Singing was led by Ed Donnelly. Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones and Rev. F. O. Williams. Two plays were presented by the Andover players. An appetizing chicken dinner was served by a committee of the townspeople. Edwin J. Donnelly gave the report of the wild life committee. The Melody Boys furnished music for the evening. Dancing concluded the pleasant affair.

Sunday afternoon at Recreation Park, the West Ends are to meet the Shamrocks of Manchester who defeated the upstreeters earlier in the season. Hawes is scheduled to ascend the hillock for the locals.

Leo Bernier of Baltic underwent a minor operation at St. Joseph's Hospital Wednesday.

Mrs. Alfred J. Mathewson of Jackson street who was operated on at St. Joseph's Hospital Sunday for a serious internal trouble is now out of danger.

Members of the Windham County Farmers' Association from the town of Windham participated in the association automobile tour which started at Pawcatuck Tuesday.

The two flagpoles on the roof of the town building and the eighty-foot steel pole on the east lawn of the building were painted white and the balls were covered with gold leaf by steeplejacks, Wednesday afternoon.

Announcement was made Thursday afternoon that prizes to the winners of the thirty-six hole handicap golf tournament for men which opened Thursday afternoon at Willimantic Country Club links, would be distributed at the course Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

William Goodnow, 20, employed for a few days by a farmer on Jordan Road showed signs Wednesday evening of mental disorder. The police department was notified. Upon being brought to the police station, Goodnow was recognized as an escaped patient of the Belchertown, Mass. Epileptic Hospital. Officers from that institution came here and took the young man back to Massachusetts.

During Thursday State Policeman Edgar D. Abild was at the patrolmen's room in the police station registering motorists for motor vehicle operators' licenses. Archibald W. Buchanan, agent of the state board of education, was examining children for employment certificates.

COST $15.75 TO DRIVE PAST STANDING TROLLEY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 13.—Ernest Arsenault was in the Willimantic police court Thursday on a charge of violation of the traffic rules, by driving his automobile past a standing trolley car which was discharging passengers.

The arrest was made by State Policeman Edgar D. Abild, at the junction of Columbia avenue and West Main street. Judge Frank H. Foss imposed a fine of $25 and costs totaling fifteen dollars of the fine. The assessment, amounting to $15.75, was paid.

AGENTS OF AM. THREAD CO DENIES VARIOUS RUMORS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 13.—Don H. Dorse, agent of the Willimantic Mills of the American Thread Company, yesterday in a statement issued to the press made a complete denial of the stories which have been in circulation the past few days in connection with the local strike situation. Some of these rumors were to the effect that the plant would suspend operations in a short time for several weeks, that the company had written letters to certain workers who are out on strike asking them to return to work and promising them if they did so their jobs would be better than before the strike and that other people of this nationality could come back to work if all went well; that a certain second hand Charles Breault, had been assaulted by one of the so-called strike-breakers in the mill recently, three stitches being required to close the wound in his head and that the company would not sanction the arrest of the assailant. Thursday forenoon, Agent Curtis emphatically denied that there was any truth to any of the rumors so widely circulated. Regarding the suspension of operations, he said that the company which he represented had no such action in view. "The plant will continue on full time," he declared. Over one thousand workers are now employed at the plant, he said, which is very near the number it is planned to employ. The story in which it is charged that the company wrote letters to certain employes who are out on strike is absolutely false, according to the agent, who places in the same category the report of assault on an employe, as well as the charge that the company had hired families in Canada. It was stated that two of the organizers, who for months have been directing the local strike, left the city several days ago. From another source, it was given out that one of the organizers had gone to Canada to investigate in connection with the importation of Canadians.

HUGHES-JENKINS WEDDING AT HOLYOKE THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 13.—Miss Mabel Elizabeth Jenkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Jenkins of Holyoke, Mass., and William E. Hughes, formerly of Putnam, now of Holyoke, were united in marriage Thursday at 11 o'clock by Rev. Michael Kavanaugh, of the Blessed Sacrament Church, Holyoke. Miss Eleanore B. Moriarty of Willimantic, was maid of honor and Thomas Howarth of Putnam was best man. The bride was daintily attired in a gown of jade green canton crepe made bouffant and trimmed with cream filet lace. Her hat was of the leghorn picture type trimmed with pastel flowers and black velvet. She carried a bouquet of yellow Prince of Wales gladioli and blue larkspur tied with a shower of orchid tulle. Miss Moriarty, the bridesmaid was gowned in orchid georgette, trimmed with cream Val lace. Her gown was also in bouffant style. She wore a leghorn picture hat trimmed with flowers and velvet. The ceremony and a reception and breakfast which followed at the home of the bride's parents on Clark street, Holyoke, were attended by about one hundred guests, coming from Boston, Hartford, Duxbury, Worcester, Wauregan, Willimantic, Putnam and Danielson. Mr. and Mrs. Hughes left later in the day in the groom's automobile for a honeymoon trip, following which they will make their home in Holyoke.

The bride's gift to her maid of honor was a white-gold bracelet studded with amphires. The groom gave his best man white-gold cuff links with K. of C. emblems. At the reception, a form from Springfield catered.

Going away the bride wore an ensemble suit of black georgette and blue printed lace, with a black velvet hat.

Mrs. Hughes is well known in Willimantic where she formerly resided. She is a graduate of Windham High School, class of 1919 and of Bay Path Institute, Springfield. Up to the spring term she had been a member of the faculty of Duxbury, Mass., High school. The groom is a graduate of Putnam High School and up to recently was employed by the Buick Motor Sales Company of Putnam resigning from there to take a position in Holyoke.

GOSHEN

The Benefits of Wholesome Play, is the topic for the Christian Endeavor meeting Sunday evening. The meeting will be held out of doors, at twilight, at 7 o'clock. The leader was Miss Dorothy McCall. Miss Gertrude Ladd of Hanover played the little two-octave portable cabinet organ. There was brilliant lighting from the headlights from automobiles, that was a help in the singing.

Miss Gertrude Ladd of Hanover a delegate to the recent National Christian Endeavor convention in Portland, Ore., was a week end guest of Rev. Lydia Harris.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Hyde and daughter Miss Clara Hyde and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hyde, of Lisbon were with friends here Sunday.

Kenneth Lake and a company of Boy Scouts from New Haven are camping on the banks of Elliott Brook.

Seeking Hidden Treasure, was a very interesting and enjoyable pastime of the boys at Camp Moween this week. The trail for the hidden treasure led for many miles over the hills and valleys out of the camp, toward the northwest. A distance of about a half mile on the roadside there was the sign of the arrow, and a message to study out on the trail. One message read "Number of Letters in the Indian Name for October then multiply the product of twice the number of letters in name of the brightest star, take so many paces on road to Bozrah for next message. The messages were printed on bits of bark of the white birch.

Ford brothers moved one of their 35 horse power boilers from this place to Ivoryton, Wednesday. The big piece of steel sheet was loaded on a five ton truck and trailer requiring much dexterity on the part of the workmen in its loading.

On a recent day, one 16-foot sawlow nearly four feet in diameter totalled 755 feet when sawed into plank lumber.

Mrs. C. H. McCall of Colchester spent Wednesday with friends here.

A. J. Randall has purchased a place near New Haven and expects to move there about September 1st. It is regretted that he and his family are to leave town.

Three-Pound Toad-Stool

A curiosity found recently on Maple Hill farm was a white dry toadstool as big as and similar to a large loaf of rye bread. It weighed three pounds.

HOW IMMIGRANTS HAVE CHOSEN HOMES AND WHY

More than one-half of the 1 1-4 million Scandinavians in the United States are grouped in the half dozen states represented by the great audience addressed by President Coolidge at the Norse-American Centennial celebration at St. Paul recently. The latest population figures of the United States, says the Trade Record of The National City Bank of New York, show the number of natives of the Scandinavian countries residing in the United States in 1920, the latest official figures, at 1,178,596, of which number 625,580 were natives of Sweden, 363,862 of Norway, and 189,154 of Denmark. Out of this grand total of 1,178,596 Scandinavians in the United States in 1920, the census reports show 219,209 living in Minnesota, 53,285 in North Dakota, 31,369 in South Dakota, 83,749 in Wisconsin, 57,837 in Iowa, and 150,460 in Illinois.

How does it happen, asks the Trade Record, that more than one-half of the 1 1-4 million Scandinavians entering the country, chiefly arriving through the Atlantic ports, traveled the thousands of miles necessary to establish their homes in this particular section of the country? Climatic conditions and opportunities for occupation similar to those to which they had been accustomed in their native land seem to have been the great causes of the long-distance movement of these people after passing through the Atlantic ports, for the states through which they entered, New York, Pennsylvania, and Massachusetts, retain but a small percentage of the whole number, more than half of that total being grouped in comparatively small area many days and nights of travel from the through which they entered.

This disposition of the Scandinavians entering the country to seek climatic conditions and occupational opportunities similar to those to which they were accustomed in their native lands is characteristic of the method by which the thirty-seven million immigrants entering this country in the past one hundred years have distributed themselves over the entire area with its great variety of soils, climate, and industrial opportunities. Not only have the Scandinavians sought out a section in the very center of the country, offering conditions similar to those to which they were accustomed, but this is true to perhaps a lesser degree of the other groups of people. Of the 1 1-2 million Germans in the United States in 1920 over 200,000 were in the state of Illinois; 151,000 in Wisconsin, 100,000 in Minnesota, and the Dakotas; and 120,000 in Pennsylvania. The Poles, coming from the northern section of Europe, the mining and manufacturing sections of this country offer special attractions, for out of 1,140,000 Poles in the United States in 1920, 178,000 were in Pennsylvania, 162,000 in Illinois, 103,000 in Michigan, about 150,000 in the New England States, and 247,000 in New York State.

Of the 1,400,000 Russians in the country in 1920 the mining and manufacturing states had absorbed a large proportion, Pennsylvania 161,000, Illinois 117,000, New England 147,000, and New York State 529,000.

The cities seem especially attractive to the natives of Ireland, for of the 1,037,000 natives of Ireland in 1920 in this country 284,000 were in New York state, 153,000 in Massachusetts and 121,000 in Pennsylvania.

While the southern states, with their genial climate, have attracted comparatively few, the opportunity for outdoor life in the grain and fruit areas of California have given that state a larger number of white persons of foreign birth than any other states except New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Michigan, and Illinois, the total number of "foreign-born whites" in California in 1920 being 681,662, a number only exceeded by the states of New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Illinois, despite the fact that the average "foreign-born white" entering the United States had to travel a distance of 3,000 miles to establish himself on the Pacific Coast. The official records show the total number of emigrants entering the country in the past one hundred years at about 37 millions, while the total number of "foreign-born whites" in the United States in 1920 was stated at 13,712,754, of whom 2,786,112 were in New York 1,387,850 in Pennsylvania, 1,206,951 in Illinois, 1,077,534 in Massachusetts, 726,835 in Michigan and 681,822 in California. Of the 13,712,754 "foreign-born whites" in the United States in 1920, 11,914,617 were natives of Europe, and 73,824 natives of Asia.

OUR TRADE WITSH AFRICA INCREASED 240 PER CENT

Trade of the United States with Africa has increased 240 per cent since the opening of the World war, while trade with other parts of the world has less than doubled in the same period. Our commerce with Africa in the fiscal year just ended, says the Trade Record of The National City Bank of New York, aggregated 160 million dollars against 47 millions in the fiscal year 1914, all of which preceded the opening of the World war.

This big growth in our trade with Africa, adds the Trade Record, is especially interesting in view of the fact that a very large part of that continent is controlled by the great manufacturing countries of Europe, which require her raw materials for use in their industries and are desiring markets for their manufactures, of which Africa is not a large producer. Of the 11 1-2 million square miles of Africa about 4 1-2 millions are now controlled by Great Britain 4 1-2 millions by France, about 1 million by Belgium, and about 1 1-2 million by Italy and Portugal, the figures are to relative control of area being necessarily approximations. Yet manufactures formed about 85 per cent of our exports to that European-controlled continent, in the latest year for which official details are available, and manufacturing materials formed a large part of our imports from that continent. Cotton goods are in constant demand over all of that continent in much of which a high temperature prevails during the entire year while the absence of manufacturing industries also intensifies the local demand for other groups of manufactures, notably agricultural implements, motor vehicles, electrical machinery, and the miscellaneous manufactures required by the 150 million inhabitants of the continent, of which the area is nearly four times as great as that of the United States exclusive of Alaska.

Much of this increase in the commercial activity of Africa is the result of the acquaintance of man with the interior of the continent and its producing and consuming possibilities. The 23,000 miles of railway which have been extended into the continent from various points on the ocean frontage have not only given a better view of the producing and consuming powers but are beginning to permit the transportation of merchandise from the interior to the water's edge and also the movement of manufactures and other articles of this character to the sections in which they are in demand. A large part of the early service of these transportation routes was the facility and observation by persons interested in the development of the continent through the investment of capital and otherwise.

Through passenger traffic from the Atlantic to the eastern coast is now possible by the Congo Valley, Lake Tanganyika and Dar-es-Salaam route across the central part of the continent, and by the Lobito Bay, Katanga, Beira route across the southern part of the continent, which when completed in the near future will give direct access from the Atlantic coast to the great copper mines of Katanga in which a large amount of American capital is invested.

The great Victoria Falls and Victoria Nyanza lake lacks but about 300 miles of railway to complete the proposed stretch of approximately 5,000 miles. Meantime the British government has co-operated in the development of this through Cape-to-Cairo system by the establishment of 24 aeroplane stations along the line and several through flights by aeroplanes from Cairo to Cape Town have been made.

Nearly all of the 23,000 miles of railway existing in Africa are owned or controlled by the states or colonies through which the lines pass, and the liberal use of motor vehicles and wireless telegraph, operated in conjunction with the railways, enlarges materially the area which they serve and accounts in part for the fact that the recorded trade of the 25 political divisions of Africa has advanced from about 1 1-2 billion dollars value in 1913 to approximately 3 1-2 billion in the latest year for which official statistics are available.

Latest figures on the commerce of Africa indicate her total trade has increased about 140 per cent since 1914, while our own figures of trade with the continent show an increase of about 240 per cent in the same period.

WASHINGTON NINTH CAPITOL CITY OF U. S.

Washington, the ninth capital city of the United States, has now according to a recent estimate of the census office, a half-million people as against 8,000 in 1800 when congress held its first meeting at that spot after a quarter of a century of wandering, in which period it had held sessions in eight cities located on four different states of the Union.

It was on Wall Street, nearly opposite the present site of The National City Bank of New York, that Congress, after holding its sessions in no less than eight cities and towns, determined to establish a new capital city for the United States on the banks of the Potomac. The Congress, which held its early sessions in Philadelphia in 1774 and 75, says the Trade Record of The National City Bank of New York, removed from Philadelphia to Baltimore in 1776, to avoid capture by the British Army which was then marching from New York to Philadelphia, then held sessions at Lancaster and York, Pennsylvania, and after returning temporarily to Philadelphia, removed to Princeton, New Jersey, where it was decided to establish two capitals for the new republic, one to be located "near the Falls of the Delaware," and one "near the falls of the Potomac," the meetings of the Congress to be held alternately at Annapolis and Trenton during the construction of the new capital buildings on the respective sites. One session was held at Annapolis and another a Trenton but while in the latter place Congress decided to move to New York where more convenient buildings were available, and until 1789 held its sessions on Wall Street, as above indicated nearly opposite the present home of The National City Bank of New York.

While located in New York however, the question of the location of a permanent capital for the United States was again raised, and a measure passed providing for the establishment of a new capital city on the banks of the Potomac, the exact location to be determined by President Washington; and he, with the aid of certain officials appointed to cooperate with him, decided upon the spot now occupied by the city of Washington and the District of Columbia, part of the area for the proposed Federal District to be ceded by the State of Maryland, and part to be ceded by the State of Virginia, the entire area of the proposed district to be 10 miles square or 100 square miles. Meantime, Congress returned from Wall Street to its former home in Philadelphia, and thence removed, with its belongings to the new city of Washington in the year 1800, holding a session in the unfinished capitol building, which had been put under construction subsequent to the selection of the proposed site.

The population of the District of Columbia in 1800, including that of several small towns located within this area, was about 8,000. In 1814 the Capitol building was burned by the British, and a building was constructed as the temporary home of Congress. The development of the new building constructed to take the place of that burned by the British made slow progress, be building as originally planned being completed in 1827 extensions at the northern and southern ends for the occupancy of the Senate and House, having been completed in 1859, while new granite buildings in the immediate vicinity recently erected at the cost of about 8 million dollars, are now utilized as committee rooms and offices of the two bodies. The value of the Capitol buildings and grounds was estimated in 1911 at $25,000,000.

The population of the District of Columbia, which has now an area officially stated as 70 square miles instead of the original 100 (the area ceded by Virginia having been unused for building purposes and retroceded to that state in 1846) grew but very slowly in the first part of its history having reached but 52,000 in 1850, 270,000 in 1900, and is now estimated by the census bureau at 497,906.

BULLETIN'S PROPOSED ROAD PLAN MEETS WITH FAVOR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

LEBANON, Aug. 13.—Exceptions ... apprehension on the part ... local business men that the ... of a road plan presented in The Bulletin Thursday morning might divert some business from Danielson, the proposal was well received here.

On the whole, it is regarded here as a grand good thing, a practical means of lessening the traffic load on the present Danielson-Norwich road and opening a splendid new highway that is certain, in the long run, to be of more benefit than it can possibly be of harm, either to business or any other interest.

This proposal is in exact line with one that has been advocated here for some time—the development through a part of the town of Plainfield and a part of the town of Killingly of the Green Hollow road, even today one of the prettiest routes in this section of the county.

It is generally conceded that new routes rating as trunk lines must be opened to care for the ever-increasing traffic burden. Here in Danielson, through the business section, the traffic is so heavy almost all the time that many experienced drivers figure the chances of accident less in operating in a big and busy city than they do right here at home, because of the narrow, congested streets.

From Reynolds street to Water street, Main street is a double trunk line, carrying probably the heaviest volume of through and local traffic of any like stretch of highway in eastern Connecticut. Conditions there grow more congested from month to month and only the alertness of traffic officers prevents more traffic jams than occur almost daily especially when a trolley car is trying to find its way through the maze of parked and moving motor vehicles.

Opening of the proposed route via the Green Hollow road would do much to relieve this condition. It would not by any means presuppose the abandoning of the present state highway from Wauregan to Danielson. It would be merely an optional route.

In the Green Hollow section it would open up to greater development a very beautiful section of country and enhance the value of every parcel of property in its immediate vicinity. It would make of Broad street one of the splendid thoroughfares of eastern Connecticut.

It would be a step toward a greater Danielson and, without doubt, would mark the beginning of business enterprises on or near Broad street, now a strictly residential section, for there are those who could see in the heavy traffic over the new route a chance to pick up some business from the thousands of cars that would pass each week. South of Franklin street at the beginning of the Green Hollow road, would offer opportunity for the business locations, very few of which are available, if any at all, between Franklin and Reynolds street.

Thursday did not provide such a nice half-holiday for the store forces of Danielson, breaking what has been a very general rule this summer season.

Attention is being called by officials to the fact that the state highway department has placed no warning signs of a bad intersection at Reynolds and Broad street, where the Providence trunk line copies in. Accidents have occurred there and there have been many narrow escapes from them. The matter is likely to receive more serious attention, that the danger of accidents there be lessened.

From sections not distant from the borough limits come complaints of property owners that persons unknown to them drive up with trucks, it is assumed, and dump loads of refuse. These unsightly dumps are an eyesore to all who pass and an evidence of slovenliness as well as the disregard of some people for the rights or feelings of others.

The threat of rain Thursday as the hour for departure for the Windham county legislative reunion at Rocky Point deterred a number of Danielson people from going on the trip, but there were enthusiasts who braved the prospects of a stormy afternoon for the delights of the social features the trip promised and for the shore dinner that was made a feature of the outing.

Earl Young, in the postal service at New Haven, is visiting relatives in Danielson.

Mrs. Anna Reynolds and daughter, Gertrude, have been visitors at Rocky Point.

SERGT. GEO. FARRON CONCLUDES FIRST VISIT IN 23 YEARS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Aug. 13.—Staff Sergeant George Farron, U. S. A. (retired), left here tonight to return to San Francisco, after spending three weeks with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Farron, of North Main street, his first visit home in 23 years.

Sergeant Farron was placed on the retired rank of the army only a few weeks ago. He enlisted in Danielson for service in the Spanish war, later served for several years in the Philippines and upon his return remained in the regular army. At one time he was a member of a troop of the famous Fifth cavalry. Sergeant Farron, who is married and has a home in San Francisco, is to engage in business in that city.

JEWETT CITY

John Potts, Jr., narrowly escaped losing his life Thursday noon, when pitched out of his automobile near B. W. Albertine's on Main street. He had passed the car of his cousin, Reginald Potts, and when he turned back into the road something went wrong with the steering gear. He was thrown out head first striking the running board of Dr. F. Browning's car, bounding back under his own car, and all but hitting a telegraph pole. Men picked him up for dead, and carried him into Dr. J. H. McLaughlin's house. When laid on his back, he immediately let it be known that he was alive, and very much so. For half of his back was scraped of skin, and the back of his head was bare of any hair. His nose and lip were cut, but no bones were broken. It was a miraculous escape from death, in the opinion of the crowds going home from the mills.

Mr. and Mrs. George Strickland and Arlene and George Strickland, of New Britain have been guests at Mr. and Mrs. Earl S. Hiscox's home.

PUTNAM

There is not a very large supply of coal in the yards of coal dealers. In view of the fact that the anthracite miners may go on strike the first of the month, the dealers are advising their patrons to place their orders for their winter's supply early. This advice, they say, is not given from an alarmist viewpoint but is playing safe. Whether the strike materializes or not the stock of the dealers is not as large as usual at this season of the year and gives additional weight to the following statement of the coal situation as outlined by one of the largest jobbers in New England:

"To give you an adequate idea of the coal situation at present, we thought we would write you to say that our production is falling off materially, because we have idle, almost every day one or two collieries, for some reason or other, and furthermore, with a strong probability of a strike or suspension September 1st, the demand has become so excessive that we cannot begin to take care of all the orders we have, and will be compelled to disappoint many of our customers.

"We are making this explanation to have you understand why we have not been shipping you coal faster than we have, but in your particular case, we will use every effort in our power to work you out as many shipments as possible before the month expires.

"In view of these condition, we feel the consumer is very unwise if he does not make sure of his coal for the winter, and get it now, while the dealer has it in hand, because in the event of a strike (which is among the strong probabilities), it will not be long before what coal the dealers have in stock will be disposed of, and then the consumer who has not seen fit to take care of himself, will find it very difficult to obtain the fuel that he so needs for winter's use.

"However, our object in writing you particularly, is to have you understand why we have not been doing better for you with our shipments, hence this lengthly explanation, but in closing our letter, let us again assure you that we will put forth our very best efforts to ship you as much coal as we can, before the expiration of the month."

Of general interest throughout the county is the action taken by the executive board of the Windham County League of Women Voters in planning a citizenship school, to be held in Thompson August 25. FULLY A THOUSAND GRACKLES NOTED BY JUDGE FLAGG

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Aug. 13.—From his home on Center street this week, Judge David Flagg saw a large flock of purple grackles coming from the south and light on the lawn of Dr. A. H. Straiun, a short distance up the street. In his judgment, he said, they numbered many more than a thousand. Then they took wing from the ground and resumed their flight the beating of their wings sounded like machine gun fire. He has never seen or heard of anyone seeing so many in one flock. There are many birds of this species that make their home here from early spring until late fall and some of them remain during the winter.

STRAIGHTENING THE HIGHWAYS

The modern motorist who winds around the many curves in which our established roads abound finds it hard to believe that our New England ancestors followed about the same paths when they laid out highways. Their selection was to get from one center of population to another, and they followed the line of least resistance. The problem of leaving around population centers with the that had never occurred to them but which is an ever present development of modern highway improvement. Highway engineers everywhere recognize the value and the necessity of the by-pass in road construction.

Here, with the elimination of grade crossings which it will accomplish, is one of the strong points to recommend the new highway plan that has been worked out along the line of the Mohegan trail north of Norwich. Without disturbing the present highways through Jewett City, Central Village and Danielson, each of which has a grade crossing added to the hazard of dangerously congested streets, the plan as proposed by the Eastern Connecticut Motor Coach association provides an alternate route to handle the traffic which the road which is the main artery of travel between north and south travel between the end of the state and Massachusetts with feeder lines from Rhode Island. Travel is heavy now and it is a certainty that it will grow greater in the future so that any relief from which will relieve the present increasing congestion along this road is worthy of the most serious consideration on the part of local and state authorities.

Equally important is the elimination of grade crossings which can be found in the proposed route. Four are to be found in the territory—at Jewett City, at French's crossing, at Central Village, and at Danielson, each with its unfortunate record of traffic accidents, too many of them fatal. A reminder against the possibility of more of such accidents would be satisfaction enough of itself for the endorsement of such a road project.

The communities of Eastern Connecticut should be united in presenting their claims at the proper time before the state highway authorities to carry out this plan for the re-location of the sections of the road under consideration.

WOMEN AND SOCIAL REFORMS

It used to be argued that if women were endowed with the suffrage they would come to inflict upon the country those ideas brought forward by a portion of members of women's clubs who happened to belong to some committee on resolutions. It now appears, however, that possibly the resolutions committees of women's clubs are in the habit of advocating numerous changes but impracticable ideas simply because their resolutions came to an end when the resolutions had been adopted. Now some they must proceed to bear testimony to their faith at the polls and the serious work of legislatures, to become more cautious.

An example in point is contained in a recent address to the women of Texas by Mrs. Hortense Ward of Houston, long an able champion of equal rights for women, both in and out of politics. She warned her sisters in no uncertain terms against being unwarranted influence of pressures for social reforms which in fact would concentrate power in a autocracy in the government. Washington she sees as clearly as any man could see it the menace of a too-powerful federal bureaucracy. She is not one who ascribes a quality of mind attributed to her sex—her views expressed in these words: "The end sought is a good end. Therefore ways reach it by any route."

Mrs. Ward pointed out that the lure of centralization of federalization may in the end lead to infinite disaster, in addition to the immediate mine: benefits sought by advocates of the proposed child labor amendment to the federal constitution and of the proposed department of education in the federal government. She warned her hearers against both those projects. She also warned them against the proposed constitutional amendment upon marriage and divorce. She said: "Nothing can be more destructive of individual development and progress than to delegate to cumbersome federal bureaus responsibility in matters relating to social and educational institutions. And she even went so far as to say that "only those powers granted or delegated to a central government that are necessary to maintain our foreign relations and to preserve our national integrity."

The latter may be an extreme statement in any event it goes to prove that leading women are going to divide into opposite philosophical camps, just as leading men are divided, and that the idea of a unified feminine force seeking to overcome basic conservatism with reformistic fads had no foundation.

HIGH RATES CUT BUSINESS

The explanation of the postal, deficit is the higher postal rates. Newspapers which were counted upon to produce a very large part of the $83,000,000 needed for salary increases have turned, wherever they could to other methods of delivery than the mails. One New York newspaper stated that the cost of delivery of its Sunday edition had been increased about four times by the new postal rates. The clapping of a two-cent rate upon souvenir postal cards has been followed by a decided lessening in the use of the cards. Even pennies count with the ordinary family that has to watch the inroads made upon its pocketbook by mounting expenses in many lines. So great has been the curtailment of even so simple a matter as mailing a souvenir postal card that one company that was accustomed to sell great quantities has had to cut its order 50 per cent. Two things are being demonstrated. One is that there are cheaper ways of distributing reading matter than Uncle Sam's mails. The other is that a scheme for increasing revenue can bring about less revenue by causing the public to curtail its employment of the postal service.

TAINTED MONEY AGAIN

The action of the board of regents of the University of Wisconsin, has recalled the furore that was raised years ago against "tainted money." The money that was so designated was that of millionaires who had made their fortunes in the trusts, which at that time were in special disfavor at the bar of public justice, and the point was raised that the churches, colleges and charitable institutions could not receive funds from the "tainted" captains of industry without themselves becoming "tainted." Following out that reasoning, the endeavor was to persuade all institutions to reject offers of help and endowment, thus putting the seal of shame upon the beneficiaries of industrial amalgamation and bigness.

It did not take long for the absurdity of this position to be recognized and the agitation died down. It was shown that the history of many institutions in the United States did not look very well when their finances were subjected to analysis under the modern rules of morality. For example, the lottery was once the common method of raising funds for innumerable worthy purposes. Money, from any source, was restored to a place of acceptance for erecting churches, building university dormitories and founding hospitals.

The board of regents of the Wisconsin university have revived the hostility to "tainted money." By an overwhelming vote it has adopted the policy of refusing "gifts", donations or subsidies "free" from any interpreted educational endowments or organizations of the character." This action resulted from the Rockefeller donation to be used for medical research work, acceptance of which the board felt would be immoral. But it had no such qualms about $12,500 recently received from the general educational board of the Rockefeller institution. It declined to return that money.

ON HUSBAND

In a black-and-white frock that showed more Tessie than frock—as if she had drawn on the cover of an umbrella and encircled it with a six-inch patent-leather surcingle—Miss Murphy was busying herself behind the bargain counter. Hers was perplexing various duties, getting the day's business started and also trying to hear what Gladys, at the adjoining department, was saying in muted tone.

"Tess! Come a little closer, if you wanta get an eye and a mouthful at one and the same time take a peep at Jim Markel's new pants. Prince of Walesies he calls 'em. They're the new pantees. Made to wear with slippers and rolled-down hosiery. Slippiopees I call 'em."

"It's the manufacturers does it, Gladys," explained Tessie. "They make the goods and it has to be sold. As we no longer use it in our dresses to keep trade going they have put it in the pants—pantees."

"That dud you got on wouldn't make one side of a pantee," said Gladys. "In that you couldn't swaller a prune seed and not have it show. Do you rub yerself in slippery elum water to get it on? Is it one of them that's advertised 'a husband catcher'? Made in seven minutes?"

"It's a mark down" and I had to take any size I could get. I don't wear 'husband catcher's'," retorted Tessie.

"Not when you wear that. It's one up-and-coming, husband loser. If you ask me, and there's enough of them!"

"Yes, I see about them in the divorce news and some girls here in the store have a list of them in their pockets so to keep clear of them. You can't carry them all in your head."

"I should say not! It's a shame! A girl gets married thinking everything will pass off nice. Then, before she realizes it, it has passed off—without anything nice about it. She has been as easy and friendly as she can be, put up with all that came her way, never taking anything badly or being cross."

"I know it. You hear of it every day. He takes all the dresser drawers while she gets the rear-end closet shelf. A man has no eyes for his deficiencies, but ten pairs of fine ones for his superiorities. Once married, you are all wrong, he is all right. If you dare contradict—"

"The way to do in that case, Tess, would be to use all the time this affirmation: 'You are a perfectly perfect husband and you will soon be just what I want you to be.' Keep that goin' on him and you'll get results."

"Another strong husband loser is the question that has got to do with the window, whether it shall be open or shut at night. I've known girls of a sunsweet disposition, an even, easy-going 'bown-in-the-gass' way with them, and that got them. He smashes it up. She cashes it down. Up! Down! They've started something that won't stop."

"I know it. My lan'! And is a man worth it? What's the answer? For pity's sake! Tet, Tess, a woman some times starts somethin'."

"Yes, she does." Tess admitted. When she scrapes the burned meat off the frying pan with his new razor blade for instance. Then a man should speak up."

"Ain't it the truth! I don't like a too easy goin' fella, but when a wife forgets to run blue ribbons in his pojamas and puts in the pink ones instead it won't hurt him to wear 'em that way for once, say I."

"Certainly not," said Tessie. "That's no true 'loser.' A really true one is when she goes ramping, stamping and bawling about with her hair down and the whole place in a tousle declaring, 'I am going right straight home to my mother.'

"He ought to slap her good for that. I'll tell the world. Especially when it's of a rainy Sunday and she's not set a warm meal on the table a day fer him. That's brutal! A real good woman won't do it. Then, when she has him poutin' she'll say, sugar-sweet!

"'Hubby-babe! Isn't that little golden-haired bare-leg dancer you admired so much last night the very last word?' If I was a man I'd be just as crazy about her as you are. Yes I would!'

"A woman who will say a thing like that to her husband is a measly miscreant," agreed Gladys.—Exchange.

From Small Beginnings

John Bunyan, the Tinker and Author.

Tap! Tap! Tap! went the tinker's hammer on the brass pot, and tap! tap! tap! went the toe of a dirty boy who was watching him. The people of the village of Elstow had little regard for the tinker, or his poor house, or his dirty son. With all fate seemingly dead against him, without education, money or friends, and in spite of many enemies, that dirty boy, son of the village tinker, walked down the shining road of fame and made himself immortal. He had the courage to be a man, no matter what happened.

John Bunyan's life was full of misfortune. In childhood he had horrible dreams of devils; he had a strange fear that church steeples would fall on him; he thought he had committed an unpardonable sin, but what it was he did not know. He believed ghosts and devils surrounded him. He swore until his conscience troubled him. In fact, insanity was closing in on him.

The half-crazy, uneducated tinker became a preacher, and preached to men as ignorant as himself. At 32 he was thrown into Bedford jail for preaching contrary to the state church. They promised to let him out if he would never preach again, but though his family were starving and his poor little blind daughter begging, he remained in jail 12 years and preached to the prisoners. At last his earnestness gave him freedom.

Poverty, disease and the jail were his education. In the prison he began "The Pilgrim's Progress," an allegory of life. It was published in 1678, has held the heart of the world ever since, and is one of the greatest books in the English language. People treasure it next to the Bible because it gives light in the dark days of life.

Bunyan wrote other books, preached in great churches, and carried on vast charities. He died of fever brought on by exposure when trying to do good. The benefit given by his 60 years of life is beyond estimate. He was one of the world's greatest men—and all because he was thoroughly sincere and tremendously in earnest.

Stories That Recall Others

On Their Behalf.

The minister in a little church that used natural gas for illumination, announced his text in solemn tones—"Yea, the light of the wicked shall be put out."

Immediately the church was plunged in total darkness, due to a failure in the supply.

"Brethren," said the minister, with scarcely a moment's pause, "in view of the sudden and startling fulfillment of this prophecy, we will spend a few minutes in silent prayer for the gas company."

An Honest Confession.

Edward is five years old. When his father came home from work one night he happened to walk around the house and noticed that a window was broken.

"Who broke that window, Edward?" asked dad.

"Mother said not to tell you anything about it until after you'd had your dinner," countered the young man.

"Is that so?" queried dad. "And when were you going to tell me about it?"

"I was not going to tell you about it at all," was the frank reply.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Speaks For Evolution

Mr. Editor:

The theory of evolution is a mass of foolish supposes and lies. The Bible story of creation is sound wisdom and knowledge.

The Bible is the inspired word of the living God. Not a word will ever fail. God says, "For in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day, wherefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath day, and hallowed it." (Exodus 20:11. These were literal days of 24 hours each (See Genesis 1: 5, 8, 13, 19, 23, 31.)

No one should think he is so smart as to believe he knows more than God. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived."—2 Timothy 3:13.

If you believe evolution you are building your house upon the sand. "And the rain descended, and the floods came and the winds blew, and beat upon that house, and it fell." —Matthew 7:27.

Fear God, and give glory to Him: for the hour of His judgment is come, and worship Him that made Heaven, and earth, and the sea and the fountains of waters."—Revelation 14:7.

Respectfully,
Katherine Strouse.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

WIRELESS, NORTH POLE

WNP calling, will you relay a MacMillan message to the National Geographic Society?

The sender is John L. Reinartz, amateur radio "wizard," aboard the "Bowdoin," just now somewhere west of Greenland.

On the receiving end is an amateur radio operator—one day in New Brunswick, Canada; the next day at St. Petersburg, Florida; again out in Cleveland, and on some occasions in England.

For it is one of the interesting aspects of the MacMillan Arctic Expedition which is using the new instruments of aviation and color photography that its news transmission also is by a method so new that it is yet experimental.

But the experiment is working—nightly, and also at midday—which is one of the new things about the new short wave length sending.

Even to the "listener in" the name Reinartz may be strange; but to every amateur, code-using radio operator the world over, the name Reinartz, means a special "hook up." And these amateurs, whose amateur standing is attested and guarded by the membership in the American Radio Relay League, are on their toes to "catch Reinartz."

Reinartz has to his credit not only the development of a well known receiving circuit, but holds numerous long distance records for transmission of signals.

Reinartz' greatest accomplishment, however, was making possible the sending and receiving by amateurs, with inexpensive equipment, of waves shorter than the most powerful professional stations could send a few years ago.

Mr. Reinartz was born in Crefeld, in the Rhine Provinces of Germany in 1886, and is of French extraction. After four years of schooling in Crefeld he came to America at the age of ten, and settled in South Manchester, Connecticut, where he completed his schooling and has since made his home.

On leaving school he became a clerk in a dry goods store. He stood this one year. Meanwhile dabbling with things electrical in his spare time. He had taken up this hobby while still in school in 1903, and with the assistance of some friendly telephone engineers—the telephone was then still in its hand-cranking days—had begun experimented in the infant radio field. Radio was then a matter of "coherers" and "de-coherers," and rather crude signals could be gotten over only limited distances with the equipment then available to amateurs.

After a year of clerking in the dry-goods store, Mr. Reinartz became a clerk in the electrical department of a big silk mill. Each year he became more actively connected with electrical work, and prior to his recent selection to have charge of radio communication on the MacMillan Expedition, he was in charge of electrical disposition in the mill.

When the crystal detector came in Mr. Reinartz was one of the first amateurs to make use of it. With home-made transmitting and receiving equipment he kept up his experiments with fellow amateurs until America went into the World War. An accident at training camp incapacitated him and he spent the remaining period of the war teaching radio in a trade school, fitting men for the service which he had not been permitted to enter.

As soon as the war restrictions on radio activity were removed, Mr. Reinartz fell busily to work again at his radio experiments. By 1921 he had designed the Reinartz regenerative circuit, which he improved in 1922. This soon became popular with broadcast receivers on account of its simplicity of tuning and its sensitivity.

At this time "bands" of wave lengths were being allotted for various uses. The amateurs of one country were given a band near 80 meters, but by some arrangement they exchanged for one of much higher wave length, it was discovered that it was impossible to work as low as 80 meters. Reinartz proved that it could be done, and had been pegging away steadily reducing his wave lengths. Finally, in 1923, he reached 70 meters, the record at that time for amateurs. He explained his methods to a French amateur, De Loy, who had a station in Nice, and to officials of the American Radio Relay League in Hartford, Conn.

In October, 1923 the first two-way amateur communication between America and France was established with the equipment that Reinartz had designed.

After achieving 70 meters, Reinartz succeeded in August, 1924 in getting down to 40 meters and got the 40-meter signals through first to the Pacific coast and then to England, Scotland, France, Belgium, Sweden, South America and Australia. There were night signals. By October he was using 20-meter waves and at this remarkably short length or "high frequency" had established two way communication at night with Santa Monica, Calif., from his home at Manchester, Conn. Until this contact Reinartz had the 40 and 20 meter field practically to himself. Since his pioneering, however, many other amateurs have followed.

The first daylight trans-continental transmission between amateurs was accomplished by Reinartz last December, the signals going through clearly at noon on 20 meters. It is because of this success, since repeated many times, that the MacMillan Expedition is maintaining radio communication between the Arctic and the United States, day and night.

Reinartz has not stopped with his 20-meter accomplishment. He has even sent out waves as short as three-quarters of one meter. Confident of further reduction in length he has obtained from the Radio Division of the Department of Commerce a license to experiment with waves in the band from three-quarters of a meter downward. The oscillations of the plate in a vacuum tube are so rapid at these low wave lengths that the metal of the plate becomes in part translucent while the waves are being sent out, resuming its opaqueness when the current is turned off. This phenomenon has not been satisfactorily explained yet, but is believed to be due to the atoms in some way "loosening ranks" or to a sort of polarization of their electrons.

New U. S. Minister To Poland

John B. Stetson, Jr., who was recently appointed by President Coolidge as United States Minister to Poland, succeeding Alfred J. Pearson, who has been transferred to Finland. Mr. Stetson is the son of the hat manufacturer. Mr. Stetson, it is understood, had first been appointed to Finland, but agreed to switch posts on account of the high cost of living in Warsaw, as the Stetson wealth would make it possible for him to meet the high cost of serving his government in a diplomatic post.

WARN SUMMER CAMPERS AGAINST IMPURE WATER

Connecticut water companies through the Connecticut committee on public service information have issuing a bit of friendly advice to summer vacationists and particularly to camping parties which locate in various sections of the state during the summer months. The first advice is a warning to the campers against impure water and the second is in the form of a request against polluting streams which supply Connecticut people with drinking water.

The committee cautions camping parties and vacationists against drinking from streams and brooks, which to the eye seem to be pure, but which may carry contaminating germs. Country streams are never to be classed with the water company reservoirs, it says, for all of the water pumped from the reservoirs is carefully guarded against pollution. Even wells are apt to contain contaminated water; for latrines and garbage disposal cans must be located at long distances from them in order to insure their purity. No polluting substances may be in sight on streams and brooks, but a pig sty or latrine located near it several miles above may make the water dangerous. Typhoid innoculations or preliminary boiling of the water are urged by the committee for those who find it necessary for those who find it necessary to drink from such sources.

Camping parties are warned by the committee against carelessness in dumping waste materials into streams and brooks and against bathing in country streams unless absolute certainty may be had that the streams do not empty into reservoirs or into other streams which flow into town water supplies. A thoughtless act near a stream which apparently is of little use to anyone may be the means of polluting the water supply for thousands of people.

TELEPHONE CO. REDUCES ACCIDENTS AMONG EMPLOYES

Setting an excellent example for other large industries in Connecticut the S. N. E. T. Company by developing special attention to accident prevention work and by obtaining the co-operation of its 4300 employees, has been able to bring about a reduction of 54 per cent in the number of "lost time" accidents occurring to employes during the first six months of this year as compared with the same period in 1924. Moreover, prompt attention to injuries through first aid work has also brought about a reduction in the amount of time lost per accident.

E. S. Dejon, formerly safety engineer of the Winchester Repeating Arms company, assumed control of the safety department early in the year and has aroused keen interest among the employes for the prevention of accidents and first aid training. Because of the enthusiasm and the hearty cooperation of the entire personnel of the company, the remarkable reduction of accidents has been accomplished and they feel that by a continuity of effort along these lines, accidents will be reduced to a minimum.

First Aid as taught to the telephone men qualifies these men to give proper emergency treatment to any form of injury. They are taught what not to do in cases of serious injury as well as what to do in order that the injured person will be placed in the hands of a physician in the best possible condition for further professional care. Many cases have been reported where prompt action on the part of one of the workers has saved a fellow employe or the public from serious injury and even death.

The company is now formulating plans to teach the female employes first aid and home hygiene. These classes will be started in the fall and already the ladies are showing a keen interest in this work by expressing their desire to enroll as students.

The funeral of Rev. James F. Ahern, for 22 years chancelor of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Springfield and for eight years rector of St. Michael's Cathedral in Springfield took place Wednesday.

MR. AND MRS. N. C. DISCO OBSERVE SILVER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Twenty-five years ago, Thursday, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Disco, of 210 Broadway, were united in marriage in Disco, N. Y., by Rev. Seymore, and on Thursday evening the silver wedding anniversary was pleasantly observed with a party attended by some fifty relatives and friends of the couple, who received congratulations in honor of the occasion. The house was most tastefully decorated for the anniversary event, the dining room being of a blue and white color scheme and the reception room a harmonizing red, the decorations being by Geduldig. Mr. and Mrs. Disco were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Alex Disco and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Savage, the hostess being gowned in light blue georgette crepe with silver lace, and wearing a corsage bouquet of pink roses; Mrs. Alex Disco wearing white crepe and Mrs. Savage wearing blue crepe.

During the early evening a delightful concert program was rendered by Herb Smith's Orchestra, which also played during the banquet. A short sketch, The Would Be Four Hundred, was cleverly presented by several members of the Disco family, the scene being laid in the dining room in the O'Grody apartment. The members of the cast who won applause from a delighted audience for their efforts to please were: Miss Cora Mae Disco, as Ma, the peacemaker; Clarence Disco, as Pa, the smart aleck; Miss Florence Disco, as Mamie, the dumb-dora; William Disco, Jr., as Pa, the family meal ticket; John Branahan, as Red, dumb, but happy and Master Stanley Disco as Junior, the little nuisance.

Another special feature of the entertainment program was a solo, The Garden of My Heart, rendered by Mrs. Dominick Bailey, who was in excellent voice and interpreted her selection in a most charming manner.

During the evening the guests were invited into the dining room, where covers had been laid for fifty. The table was most beautifully decorated in blue and white, while reposing in the center of the table was a large basket of cut flowers, and to either side numerous smaller baskets containing larkspur and maiden hair fern. Blue candles when lighted added much to the beauty of the setting. A delightful menu was served and there were numerous toasts and stories given at the request of Mr. Disco, who acted as toastmaster, among them being one by Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael O'May, rector of St. Patrick's church honor guest of the evening. An added feature was the cutting and serving by Mrs. Disco of a large and prettily decorated wedding cake.

The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing and cards, music being furnished by Smith's orchestra. The anniversary party proved a great success and the host and hostess received the best wishes of their many friends for many more such happy anniversaries.

Mrs. Disco was the recipient of many beautiful gifts, including silver, linen, cut glass and money. The members of the family are Mr. and Mrs. Nelson C. Disco, Clarence Disco, Miss Cora Disco, R. N., Miss Florence Disco, Wilfred Disco and Stanley Disco.

SUBMARINE BASE TO OBSERVE NAVY DAY

The submarine base on the Thames river, in common with U. S. naval stations throughout the country will observe October 27th as Navy Day. The plans of the navy day celebration, which were approved by the president, have been announced by the navy department. Extensive efforts will be made to have the general public as guests throughout the service, both afloat and ashore. Where practicable, ships will be assigned to visit various ports for navy day, and providing their arrival at the designated ports does not interfere with their schedules they will ready their stations two or three days previous to the celebration.

The official announcement of the Navy Day plan says:

"The date of October 27 was chosen because it is the anniversary of the birth of the late President Roosevelt, so much of whose life was devoted to establishing a sound naval policy for the country. It was also on October 27, 1775, that a special committee presented to the Continental Congress a bill providing for the construction of the first ships of the navy. The purposes of navy day are to explain the past and present services of the navy to the nation and to point out the important part the navy holds in our plan of national life.

"It should be made clear that the navy is our first line of defense; that it is a protection to our rapidly increasing commerce and our merchant ships, and is a form of national insurance that supports our foreign policies and operates to prevent the causes that in the past have led to wars. In order to do this successfully every naval unit however small, should endeavor to place before the public the work of the navy and extend a cordial invitation to visit and inspect the various activities on this day, the navy's days of toil."

Walter Hines Howe, vice president of the navy league of the United States, will be national chairman on navy day.

Instructions pertaining to the celebration have been issued by the bureau of naval operations, navy department, to the various units. The concluding paragraph says: "Navy day is not a holiday—it is the day on which the navy is 'at home' to the citizens of our country. Every member of the service is relied upon to be ready to receive and entertain the American people, and through combined effort to make a success of navy day."

PRIZE WINNERS AT STORRS POULTRY JUDGING

STORRS, Aug. 12.—Announcement of the prize winning poultry judges of the Junior Short Course for 4-H club members, which was held at the Connecticut Agricultural college last month was made here today by Carl O. Dustin, assistant poultry specialist of the college, under whose direction the judging contest was held.

Those receiving ribbons for excellence in judging poultry are Hazle, Emmons of New Haven county, first prize; Roger Crink of the same county, second prize; and Charles Hughes of Fairfield county. Robert Treat of Hartford county, and Harold Barr of Fairfield county, all tied for third prize.

A list of the high men to breeds is as follows: White Wyandottes Harley Emmons of New Haven county, White Leghorns, Donald Shaver of Hartford county and Elmer Drake of Litchfield county; Barred Plymouth Rocks, Robert Treat of Hartford county; Rhode Island Reds, Charles Hughes of Fairfield county.

Further announcement was also made here today to the effect that the American Poultry association has awarded medals to the Connecticut 4-H Club poultry judging team, which won the 4-H club championship at the Madison Square Garden poultry show last winter. This team, which was coached by Mr. Dossin, was made up of Fred and Charles Gaethker, both of Durham, and Max Sinoway, of North Haven.

Commenting on the results obtained in poultry judging work at the recent short course, Mr. Dossin said the students made rapid progress during the short time they were at Storrs, and the caliber of the work done was far superior to that of former years.

Held Joint Field Day.

About 200 persons interested in fruit raising and dairy farming gathered at the farm of Charles E. Lyman in Middlefield Wednesday, the occasion being the annual joint field day of the Connecticut Pomological society and the Connecticut Dairymen's association. Governor John H. Trumbull was unable to be present and sent his regrets.

John Lyman, manager of the farm, was the master of ceremonies and escorted the visitors all over the farm. The peach and apple orchards, covering 250 acres, were carefully inspected. Mr. Lyman told the visitors the prospect is for a good crop. The guests also visited the nearby farm of Ralph Chase. The dairies on both farms were also inspected.

Louis A. Wheeler Continues Ill

Louis A. Wheeler of West Thames street, who is ill with nervous trouble, does not appear to improve in health.

LEWIS WILL BECOME STATE POLICE MEMBER

County Detective William E. Lewis has signified his intention of becoming a member of the state police department in accordance with the recent ruling of Governor Trumbull.

Detective Lewis stated that he is ready any time to be sworn in as a member of the state constabulary, which is expected to be in a short time. Heretofore Detective Lewis was under the full supervision of State Attorney Arthur M. Brown, but since the governor's new ruling, the detective will have to act under orders from the state police officials.

Detective Lewis in 1909 was a member of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad police, being stationed chiefly at Boston. His work here covers many chapters.

Establishing an enviable record here, he was called in by the Central Vermont railroad officials in 1919, to start the railroad police for that company. Heretofore the police work on this railroad had been done by Pinkerton men. For a short time he was the one and only policeman, being captain, chief, patrolman, etc and had to cover a territory of 455 miles of rail, the C. V. piers in New York city and watch their boats.

The same day he took the job for the Central Vermont people he stowed away on a boat loaded with cargo under C. V control, leaving New London, in disguise, and for 11 hours he remained hidden in the cargo. It was then the middle of December. As the result, three men employed on the freighter were arrested for stealing goods and locked up in New York, where they served time.

The C. V. officials told Detective Lewis that around $35,000 worth of thefts had been done every year. Inside of one year Detective Lewis had the thefts down to practically nothing. As time went on Detective Lewis was given more men, until the time he resigned he had 11 men on the whole system.

When the war broke out in 1917 Mr. Lewis was selected from a large number of detectives from the New England section to serve under W. J. Flynn and Mr. Lewis was attached to the administration secret service and police work which is connected with the department of justice.

EXPECT 500 AT ANNUAL FARM BUREAU OUTING

Plans for the annual field day and outing of the New London Farm Bureau, with headquarters on the Shapleigh building, this city, have been practically completed As previously announced the annual event will take place on the Ellery Allyn farm in Waterford. Considerable interest is being taken by the members in various towns of the county in the competitive athletic events. Banners will be offered for the winning towns in each event, it being the same plan as followed last year.

The speaking programme will include addresses by a representative of the Federal Land Bank at Springfield and a representative from Connecticut Agricultural College. Others who will talk on matters relating to the agricultural outlook and the agricultural banking outlook. Full 500 members of the farm bureau and their friends are expected to attend the outing.

PLAN TO SHOW STOCK AT MIDDLETOWN FAIR

Members of the New London County Dairy club are planning to exhibit calves and yearlings at the Middlesex county 4H club fair in Middletown. This fair is unusual in that all exhibitors are under 21 years old. Later the club members plan to exhibit at the state fair in Hartford.

LOCAL MAN WINS EVENT AT OUTING

At the dinner at Ocean Beach, Wednesday, which was part of the sixth annual outing of the employees of the New London district of the Southern New England Telephone company, H. C. Knight, vice president and general manager of the Southern New England Telephone company awarded a second prize to the local district because of the fine showing made by employes in the district in the recent health campaign. The awards, consisting of several substantial checks, were given to the presidents of the various councils.

The first prize went to New Haven general headquarters, but Mr. Knight stated that the New London district was such a close second that another award was the only possible outcome of the situation. Miss Ruth Skaling entertained with two specialty dances at the dinner.

Other features of the outing were the various contests with their victors as follows: Women's stilt race, Miss Frieda Grout; Men's stilt race, Kenneth Planten, Willimantic; sack race, George D. Freeman, Willimantic; potato race for women, Miss Grout—for men, John B. Walsh, Norwich; shot put, Kenneth Planten, Willimantic.

On the tug of war the married men defeated the single men. Several ball games were played with scores running into large figures.

Grace Church Picnic

The Sunday School picnic of Grace church will be held at Gardner's Lake on Saturday, weather permitting. The children will leave the square in Yantic at 9:30 a. m.

LEAVES INCOME FROM ESTATE TO NIECES

Several articles of historical value are bequeathed to the Connecticut Historical society by the will of the late Frederick J. Huntington of this city which has been placed on file in the office of Judge of Probate Nelson J. Ayling at the court house. The income of the estate, which is left in trust, is to be divided between two nieces, Sarah P. Weshar and Helen M. Perkins, both of Oakland, Calif. The will reads as follows:

First: After the payment of my just debts and funeral expenses, I give to the Connecticut Historical Society of Hartford, in said state, for free exhibition the following articles, viz:

(a) The double portrait of the first Governor Trumbull and his wife, Faith Robinson, which was painted by their son, Colonel John Trumbull and hangs in my lower hall;

(b) The miniature of General Jedediah Huntington by Trumbull;

(c) The two needle-work pictures by said Faith Robinson Trumbull, which hangs in the southwest sitting room;

(d) The sword which was carried by General Jedediah Huntington during the Revolutionary War;

(e) The oil painting of the Holy Family by Colonel John Trumbull, which was given by him to my father and hangs in my large parlor;

(f) Two silver mugs, by Minott, one of which is marked J. T. F. and belonged to the first Governor Trumbull and his wife Faith;

(g) The silver tea-pot by Parker.

Second: all the rest, residue and remaining of my estate, both real and personal, of whatsoever it may consist and wheresoever it may be, I give, devise and bequeath to William H. Allen, now residing on Huntington Place, in said Norwich, in trust, however, to invest and reinvest the same and to pay the net income therefrom in equal shares as it occurs to my nieces, Sarah P. Weshar and Helen M. Perkins, both of Oakland, California, so long as they both shall live, and upon the death of either of them to pay all said income to the survivor of my nieces so long as she shall live, and upon the death of both of my said nieces to pay over and deliver the principal of said sum to the Yale University, a corporation chartered by the General Assembly of the State of Connecticut, and located in New Haven, in said state, for the general uses and purposes of the university.

I direct that all estate, succession and inheritance taxes be paid from the residue of my estate so that the legacies above provided may pass to the legatees without deduction or charge. I nominate and appoint said William H. Allen, executor of this last will and testament and I authorize and empower him as executor or trustee to sell and convey in his discretion any and all real estate of which I may die possessed I further direct that in investing and re-investing said trust funds said William H. Allen shall not be restricted to such investments as trustees are by law limited, and request that no bond be required of him as Executor, nor as trustee.

A codicil is added as follows:

I give the full length portrait of General Jabez Huntington, supposedly by John Trumbull, that now hangs in my hall at the foot of the stairs, to the State of Connecticut to be hung in the State Library in Hartford, Ct.

Alice M. Gorman, Hibberd R. Norman and John Huntington, all of this city, witnessed the will.

THROUGH WASHINGTON, D. C., ON RETURN TO NORWICH

From here on the roads became more and more hilly. At Wheeling, W. Va. were seen coal mines with their belongings, and rows of miners' houses as much alike as the veritable "peas in a pod." At Washington, Pa., not only were collieries found but also oil derricks. At this town camp was made on top of a hill, high and airy, and natural gas was available for camp cooking. For another day hilly country abounded, some real ones being soon encountered, making it advisable to exchange water in radiators, water boys being at hand to perform this service. Lunch was had at the well-known Summit House, near Uniontown, Pa. "Sideling Hill," 2 1-4 miles long, from which Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia may be seen, was surmounted and left behind. Stopping at Cumberland Md., for the night, the journey was next day over historic ground, through Hagerstown and Frederick (home of Barbara Fritchie), territory in the vicinity of Braddock's and Washington's pre-Revolutionary endeavors, and in Civil war days associated with Antietam and Gettysburg, Monacacy and South Mountain, with such men as John Brown, Francis Scott Key and Admiral Winfield Scott Schley.

Washington D. C., was reached in the afternoon and camp made on the banks of the Potomac river where several acres were occupied by tourists with all makes of cars and every kind in use. Their belongings were left here hours at a time undisturbed, and notwithstanding its size, it was very orderly and quiet. From this base were seen Washington monument, Lincoln Memorial, the Capitol, Library of Congress, Executive Mansion, Radio Station, Arlington, Ft. Meyer and so on. The dignity and grandeur of our federal buildings very impressive and fitly typifies our national magnitude and importance. The customary trip to Alexandria to the church where Washington and Lee worshipped, with its interesting features, and then on down to Mt. Vernon was made. The latter has a charm entirely its own and is still invested with the belongings and personality of its former owner. From Washington the trip home was made through Philadelphia with a look at Independence Hall and the Liberty Bell. Passage of the Hudson was made over the not long completed Bear Mt. bridge, and Connecticut from west to east, and Norwich reached after an absence of a month replete with constantly changing panorama.

Within five hours of their arrival Darrow Ferguson rang the door bell unexpectedly, having come in from Alaska, having been two weeks on the way, traveling by boat to Vancouver, to Montreal and Norwich by rail. He has been away since June, 1923, spending one winter in California, one in Montana and the two summers in Alaska. He will remain for a visit.

Wednesday, the police convention at New Haven was attended by delegates from all sections of the state. The local delegates were Sergt. John H. Casey, Officer Hugh McAvoy and Officer Patrick Shahan.

SCOTT DIVORCE TRIAL HAS BEEN COMPLETED

ALPENA, Mich., Aug. 13.—(A. P.)—The divorce trial of Congressman Frank D. Scott, began last December, and resumed Tuesday of this week after seven months' recess, was completed late today. Judge Frank D. Emerick said he would render his decision in about five weeks.

Judge Emerick as a final act in the hearing, denied the request of Ward H. Peck, defense counsel, for an increase in the temporary alimony allowed Mrs. Edna J. Scott. He said in answer to pleas of Mrs. Scott's impecuniousness that he would expedite his final decision in which she would be taken care of as the court might deem just.

Irving S. Canfield, attorney for Congressman Scott summarized his client's ground for a divorce decree as follows:

That Mrs. Scott in the fall of 1922, just prior to the separation, had been guilty of "serious legal and moral indiscretions."

That she had conducted herself "improperly and indiscretely" with Captain Wilbur ("Jazzbo") Sumner of the United States air service, Harry Wyckoff, a clerk at the Wardman Park partment, Hotel Washington, and with "an unknown man" whom she is alleged to have met while traveling abroad.

That she was guilty of "such extravangances as would constitute adequate grounds for absolute divorce."

"There has been no proof of adultery offered or introduced in this case," Mr. Scott's counsel said, "and adultery is not charged. We do charge, however, that Mrs. Scott has been guilty of a course of conduct that would naturally lead to the breaking up of a home."

Mr. Peck, arguing for Mrs. Scott, charged that Scott could not accuse his wife of liquor drinking when he himself, if the testimony were true, also drank on occasions.

CONNECTICUT CROPS HAVE BEEN DAMAGED BY RAIN

HARTFORD, Aug. 13—A potato blight, considerable rot among peaches and the hampering of tobacco curing and hay crop harvesting are included in the troubles caused by the frequent small amounts of rain that have fallen during the past two weeks. An unusual situation is presented in the weather conditions, despite the continued showers, in that the total rainfall this month is below the average for August during the past several years.

B. G. Southwick, county farm agent, reports that while crop conditions are not yet critical, unless several successive days of sunshine come soon a serious amount of damage may result in the blights and diseases that foster in damp weather.

Stancliff Hale, fruit grower, of Glastonbury, said tonight that a considerable amount of "speckling" is showing on peaches and that hot sunshine is needed to offset the damage already done. He said also that the potato blight had gained considerable headway because of the continued dampness.

Mr. Southwick recently returned from Vermont and reports that conditions there are worse than in Connecticut because of heavy rains. The greatest difficulty presented, he said is in the harvesting the continued rain making it almost impossible to carry on the work and meanwhile the pests and crop diseases increase.

The market garden situation has been materially different, with early vegetables more abundant and of better variety than for the past several years. Leonard H. Healy, deputy commissioner of agriculture, reports. Retail prices have been considerably lower because of this, he said. The abundance of these products is due in some extent, he said to the fact that many tobacco raisers are devoting acreage to market truck, where formerly their land was planted entirely to tobacco.

NARCOTIC LAW VIOLATORS OUTNUMBER BOOTLEGGERS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13—Violators of the narcotic laws have a big margin over bootleggers in the federal prisons.

Figures issued today by the department of justice showed that on June 30 last the number of Harrison narcotic act prisoners in Atlanta penitentiary was 1,046 or 32.4 per cent. of all convicts there. There were only 437 violators of the revenue and prohibition laws combined or 12.5 per cent.

Comparative statistics for Leavenworth and McNeil Island were not available, but they were said to be somewhat similar.

For the fiscal year 1924, only 27 revenue and prohibition prisoners were sent to Atlanta, but in 1925 the figure jumped to 339. Narcotic law offenders confined in the fiscal year 1924 were 610, and in 1925 they numbered 782.

The prison population at Atlanta increased from 1,350 ten years ago to 3,350 this year, while at Leavenworth the figure in 1915 was 1,700, compared with 3,400 last June 30.

BUILDING TRADES UNIONS ON STRIKE IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 13—Plans for continuation of the sympathy strike of trades unions of this city, affiliated with the New Haven building trades were discussed at a meeting tonight attended by three delegates from each union. It was decided to continue the strike, called today, until the Master Builders' association agrees to the terms of the bod carriers and laborers of the city who have been on strike for some time.

So far 400 workers comprising the members of the carpenters, structural iron workers, sheet metal workers, hoisting engineers, roofers, painters, electricians, plumbers and steam fitters unions have quit work. Many of the larger building jobs are being held up as a result, according to the strikers, but members of the Master Builders' association said tonight that the strike was in no way affecting work on any of the large building projects.

TESTED TEAR GAS AS WEAPON AGAINST BANDITS

NEW YORK, Aug. 13—Tear gas today routed two goggled "robbers" Henry Nockin, jewelry store owner and 100 spectators at a fake hold-up staged at Nockin's Broadway store under the auspices of the police department to demonstrate the value of the gas as a weapon against hold-up men.

The gas perfected by Captain Adrian St. John, of the army chemical warfare service, was so effective that Nockin, as well as the men who played the part of robbers, was blinded for several minutes. Many jewelers, including some who have been robbed recently saw the demonstration.

SUICIDE ASCRIBED TO FAILURE IN ENGLISH

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 13—Miss Mary Hall, 20, said to have been despondent over her failure in English last June at the close of her Freshman year at Syracuse university, died today, after having swallowed poison this morning.

Another Syracuse woman, Mrs. Mary White, 25, living in another section of the city, is in the hospital, listed as certain to die, as a result of having swallowed the same poison as Miss Hall at about the same hour.

Miss Hall confided to her mother several weeks ago that she intended to commit suicide and then later easedher mother's mind with the statement she would not seek death until after a younger sister graduated from high school.

CHALLENGED TO DEBATE ON THE THEATRE OF TODAY

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 13—William A. Brady, New York producer, today challenged the Rev. John Roach Stratton to a debate on "The Theatre of Today, Should It Be Abused or Saved."

Brady made a sweeping denial of charges made by Mr. Stratton two weeks ago in an address at Ocean Grove in which he asserted that the American stage was reeking with moral infamy and the only place where a spot on a woman's character was an asset.

In a statement today the producer asserted that it would be better for Mr. Stratton to preach the gospel among actors and actresses than to abuse them.

WILL HAVE CHANCE TO REPENT FOR DESECRATING U. S. FLAG

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Aug. 13—Recorder Jacob A. Decker, imposed an unusual sentence upon Morris Marks, 19, today when the youth was found guilty of desecrating the American flag by using it to clean an automobile. Marks was ordered to visit weekly until Thanksgiving day the building here once used as George Washington's headquarters and to learn the history of the flag and of the country.

QUIET REPORTED ALONG THE FRENCH FRONT IN MOROCCO

PARIS, Aug. 13—Advices from Morocco today were to the effect that the situation along the Ouergha River front, where the French are facing the rebellious tribesmen, was quiet. The recent success of the French and Spaniards over the Moroccans have had a cheering effect on the French troops.

A general movement northward by the dissident tribes has been reported since the arrival of French reenforcements at the front.

BILL LIBERTY REPLIES TO MGR. TROLAND

Sports Editor:

An article appeared in Wednesday's Bulletin signed by Mgr. Troland of the Taftville A. A. stating that Ashland has been picking on his team. How do you get that way, Jim?

I can't remember one single write-up in which any thing was mentioned about trimming Taftville A. A.

Yes, we lost our first two games to your club and won the last two. You say we were lucky to win that last game. Probably so, but when you can win a ball game on three hits, you're playing "headup" baseball, Jim.

How about that first game at Taftville you weren't lucky. No, you didn't have a chance to lose with the Jesse James brothers out there umpiring. Why was the game held up about twenty minutes for that day? You know, I know and everybody present at the game knows. The sooner you get rid of those "Blind Toms" and get an umpire that knows his business the better for you and your ball club.

You claim you have played as fast clubs as we have. Name me three teams you have defeated that are on the equal with the Socony, Sub Base and the Checker Cabs. Can you do it?

A bunch of youngsters from Jewett City took a fall out of your wonderful team Monday night. Were they lucky too, Jim?

If Mr. Madden thinks that we have a better ball club than Taftville, Mr. Troland, you and nobody else can convince him that we haven't so why try.

I am ready to play the deciding game of the series any time, the flip of a coin to decide where the game is to be played.

Let's hear from you.

Yours in clean sports
WILLIAM L. LIBERTY
Mgr. Ashland A. A.

OPPORTUNE HITTING ENABLES GIANTS TO BEAT PIRATES

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 13—Timely hitting enabled the Giants to defeat the Pirates, 4 to 1, today giving the champions an even break in the four-game series. The New Yorkers put the game on ice in the third inning, grouped hits together with a base on balls, an error and sacrifice fly netting three runs.

Kent Greenfield held the Bucs to five hits, Aldridge started on the mound for Pittsburgh and was succeeded by Adams and Sheehan. The score:

HULBERT RETURNS FROM WESTERN BUSINESS TRIP

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Murray Hulbert, national president of the Amateur Athletic Union, returned today from a transcontinental trip with plans for establishing the national track and field championships on a Pan-American basis next year at Philadelphia. They would be held, he said, as one of the sports features of the sesqui centennial celebration in the Quaker City.

Mr. Hulbert expressed enthusiasm over the idea of calling these games the "American" or "Americas" and pointed to the possibility of developing them into a fixed affair, held every four years in the intervals between the Olympic games.

Invitations to the games next year, he said, no doubt would be extended to South and North American countries by sesqui-centennial authorities in order to bring about relations in track and field sports which already have been made closed in other branches of competition in the western hemisphere.

REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S ACTIVITIES IN MAJOR'S

CHICAGO, Aug. 13—Getting an even break in the series with Pittsburgh, by winning today's game, 4 to 1, behind Greenfield's artful hurling, the New York Giants kept within fighting distance of the National League leaders, four and one-half games separating the two clubs tonight. Their standing:

Team	W	L	Pct.
Pittsburgh	64	41	.610
New York	61	47	.565

Both American League pennant contenders stubbed their toes, Philadelphia dropping a close game to St. Louis, 5 to 4, and Washington earning an even break in a twin ball with Cleveland by winning the second game 5 to 4 after being shut out in the opener, two to 0.

Their standing:

Team	W	L	Pct.
Philadelphia	70	36	.660
Washington	69	39	.639

Only eight clubs in the two leagues saw action, due to rain. The Chicago Cubs defeated St. Louis 3 to 5, in a free hitting game.

KEARNS TO SIGN FOR DEMPSEY-WILLS BOUT

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Jack Kearns is going to test the validity of his managerial contract with Jack Dempsey at the New York State Athletic Commission meeting tomorrow.

The dapper pilot of the world's heavyweight champion intimated tonight that he would call on the commission tomorrow and make his peace with the boxing solons by signing Dempsey for a match with Harry Wills. At the same time he said he would sign Mickey Walker for a match with Dave Shade.

Kearns made this intimation in the face of a reported declaration from Dempsey on the Pacific coast that he would not fight in New York state or in any state over which the New York board has influence and despite the announcement by Dempsey that he would do his own signing in the future.

Such action on the part of Kearns will likely cause a show down concerning the contractual relations between the two former partners. And those in the know predicted tonight that the case may find its way into the courts if Kearns signs and Dempsey balks.

But Kearns may strike a snag in his program if the New York commission demands a heavy forfeit to bind the contract. And it is almost certain that such a forfeit will be demanded although members of the commission were unwilling to discuss the matter tonight. It is logical to believe that Kearns will not post any heavy forfeit without some assurance from Dempsey that he will abide by the contract.

Floyd Fitzsimmons of Michigan City, Ind., the promoter who holds Dempsey's signature to a contract, and Paddy Mullins, Wills' manager, continued their negotiations today but nothing developed.

Fitzsimmons is eager for Mullins' signature and Mullins is eager for a crack at the championship but he is reluctant to incur the wrath of the New York commission in signing for a no-decision match.

NORTON ENTERS SEMI-FINALS IN SOUTHAMPTON TOURNEY

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 13—Brian I. C. Norton of St. Louis, entered the semi-finals of the Meadow Club invitation tennis singles today by defeating Robert Kinsey of California, 6-3, 6-4, on a court soggy from morning rains.

The summaries follow: Brian I. C. Norton, St. Louis, defeated Robert G. Kinsey, San Francisco, Calif., 6-3, 6-4. George W. Lott, Jr., Chicago, defeated Herbert L. Bowman, New York, 6-4, 6-2; Cedric Major, New York defeated Alfred H. Chapin, Jr., Springfield, Mass. 6-3, 4-6, 10-8; Howard O. Kinsey, San Francisco, Calif., defeated Dr. George T. STATION BELLE WINS MAIN DIVISION OF RAINY DAY STAKES AT CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 13—Taking command at the start of each of the two heats and holding full sway throughout, Station Belle, Belwin-Sienna filly easily won the main division of the rainy day sweepstakes, America's richest event for two year old trotters. The feature of today's grand circuit racing at North Randall.

The race, valued at $15,250 won $5,718.75 for her owner, E. J. Merkle, Columbus, Ohio. Double Cross, owned by A. B. Cox, Paoli, Pa., and driven by Thomas W. Murphy, was second and Charm, a stable mate of Station Belle was third. Charm won the only other two year old trot raced this season at Kalamazoo.

Station Belle was driven by B. J. White of Lexington, Ky. She is a full sister to Sumatra which won the event for White last year. Because of fourteen entries, the division was raced on the elimination plan, the seven starting each of two sub-divisions. The first four finishing in each raced a final heat to decide the winner.

Station Belle won the first preliminary, and Double Cross the second. In the third, the White entry, Station Belle Charm and Peter Hayes, raced in front for half a mile where Murphy made his move with Double Cross. He chased Station Belle for a quarter of a mile, but tired in the stretch and finished a bad seventh, Station Belle easily winning from Charm. As the horses were fed off the field after the race a heavy rain fell, causing a postponement until tomorrow of the rainy day consolidation and the 2:16 claiming pace.

Prior to the stake two heats of the 2:04 pace were decided. Both went to Tarzan Grattan, winner of the $5,000 Kalamazoo derby with Jakie O'Connor second in each. The third heat will be raced tomorrow:

Summaries:

2:04 pace, purse $1,200; 1 1-8 mile heats: (unfinished):

Tarzan Grattan, b g. by Grattan Royal-Red Wing (Ray) 1 1
Jakie O'Connor, b g (Cartnal) .. 2 2
Orphan Peter b g (Fogarty) 4 3
Sempro, War Bride, Buddie Mac and Frisco June also started.

Time 2:02 1-5; 2:20 3-5.

The Rainy Day Sweepstakes, value $15,250 for 2 year old trotters, nine heats. Elimination plan only; first four finishing in first two heats qualified start in deciding heats. Value first two heats $3,812.50 each. Third heat $7,625:

AMERICAN WOMEN TENNIS STARS OPPOSE BRITONS

NEW YORK, Aug. 13—America's women tennis stars will enter the two day international series tomorrow at Forest Hills favorites to conquer their British rivals but a keen contest is expected before the future custody of the Wightman cup is decided.

The trophy is now in British possession, having been won from the United States in the team matches at Wimbledon last year, so that the American forces are particularly anxious to win the third series, which consists of three matches tomorrow and four on Saturday.

Miss Helen Wills, national champion, will lead the challenging team into action in the feature match tomorrow against Miss Joan Fry, who was runner up to Suzanne Lenglen in the Wimbledon championships last month. Bringing together two 19-year-old girl stars of international prominence, this match promises to be one of the high spots of the tournament.

Another dramatic feature tomorrow will mark the doubles match in which there will be two players who held championships before either Miss Fry or Miss Wills was born. These veterans are Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, former American champion and Mrs. Lambert Chambers, captain of the British team. Twenty years ago they met at Wimbledon for the British title and May Sutton defeated her rival, then Dorothea Douglass.

Mrs. Bundy will pair with Mrs. Mole a Mallory while Mrs. Chambers will have Miss E. H. Harvey as her partner in this match. For the remaining contest, Mrs. Mallory will oppose Miss Kathleen McKane, No. 1 British player, in the singles.

AGGIE TRACK CAPTAIN RUNS WELL AGAINST NOTED STARS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Aug. 13—Running in fast company Jack R. Jacoby, captain of the 1925 Aggie track team made a good showing in the three-mile run at the annual field day and outing of the New Haven police held at lighthouse point, New Haven. Willie Goodwin of the New York A. C. placed first his time being 15 min. 20 sec. Alvin Stenroos, winner of the Olympic marathon placed second and Jacoby placed third. Goodwin and Stenroos started from scratch while Jacoby had a 90 yard handicap. A field of 20 started in the race in which handicaps up to 200 yards were given.

JAP TENNIS STAR ELIMINATES SPANISH PLAYER

BALTIMORE, Aug. 13—Takeichi Harada of Japan defeated Eduardo Flaquer of Spain in straight sets, 6-2, 4-6, 6-0 in the opening match of the Davis cup elimination play here today.

Harada's game was flashing throughout. The Spaniard seemed not up to his top form, and apparently tired rapidly. In the second set, with the score 5 to 1 in Harada's favor, Flaquer rallied and expended his last telling efforts in winning the next three games. Harada took the last to win, 6-4, in the third and last set Flaquer showed fatigue. It was Flaquer's first competition in the United States.

DAVIS CUP TEAM IS PRACTICALLY DECIDED UPON

NEW YORK, Aug. 13—Although the test matches of the court fortnight haven't entirely ended the problems of selecting America's Davis cup team, it was learned today that the line-up virtually has been decided upon for the challenge round at Philadelphia next month.

The team, it was said, will be composed of William T. Tilden, William M. Johnston, Vincent Richards and R. Norris Williams, the latter to serve as playing captain.

Tilden and Johnston will carry the burden in the singles, under this line-up, while Williams and Richards are slated to take the doubles assignment.

Johnston's victories over Richards in the two tests between these rivals definitely earned the No. 2 singles position for "Little Bill" but at the same time, it complicated the doubles situation, which previously had been thought settled by the triumphs of Johnston and Tilden over Richards and Williams in two out of three matches.

With Johnston in the singles, it is understood the Davis cup committee feels it would be too great a strain upon him to play three successive matches in as many days. Furthermore, it is felt that the Richards-Williams combination is so closely on a par with the Tilden-Johnston team that this agreement will not lessen the strength of the American team.

It seems definite that Howard Kinsey of San Francisco, who won the singles Round Robin among lesser team candidates, will not gain a place on the international squad.

SENATORS AND INDIANS SPLIT DOUBLE HEADER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13—Washington and Cleveland divided a doubleheader today, the champions bowing to superior pitching by Uhle in the first game and taking the second with a ninth inning rally to break a tie. The scores were 2-0 and 5-4. Zachary pitched well against Uhle in the opener but had two bad innings. In the nightcap Karr was hit hard by the champions. Walter Johnson opposed Karr. But gave way to Gregg in the fifth inning. The latter getting credit for the victory. The score:

Attention Mr. Loughran

Sports Editor:

Mr. Loughran, through the courtesy of the Norwich Bulletin, I would like to inform you that we heed no warnings from you or anyone else connected with the Moosup Baseball club, undisputed champs (?) of Eastern Connecticut. Thank you!

So you're getting that ham ball club of yours together again, I suppose you think you're going to cleanup against this tall. Well, I doubt it. I will be only too glad to book up a three game series with your club any time after Sept. 13th.

If you really mean business why drop in and see me. I can be found at my home most any night.

Let's see you call my bluff.

Yours in sports

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Twenty clubs will make up the circuit of the National Professional football League for the coming season.

"Gunboat" Smith, formerly a conspicuous figure in the ranks of the heavyweight pugilists, is now ploying comic roles in the "movies."

A running meeting under the auspices of the Ohio State Jockey Club will be opened at Cleveland on August 29 and continued for 19 days.

The three big football games to be played by the University of Illinois on the home gridiron this fall will be with Nebraska, Michigan and Chicago.

In their games with the National League pennant contenders the lowly Boston Braves have a troublesome way at times of refusing to roll over and play dead.

Milwaukee's first taste of Grand Circuit trotting will be had the week of Aug. 31, the Cream City having taken over the dates originally allotted to Readville.

The first person to swim the English Channel was Captain Mathew Webb, an Englishman, who later lost his life in trying to negotiate the Rapids at Niagara Falls.

Spokane's most popular society girls will act as caddies in the golf tournament to be held in that city in September as a feature of the national convention of the Hoo Hoo.

Roy Mandery and Frank Popsisil, gridiron stars of the University of Nebraska, are keeping in condition during the summer vacation by trampling beat as regular members of the Lincoln police force.

William C. Murray of Montreal is the first Canadian to be honored with the presidency of the Royal Caledonian Curling Club of Scotland, which is the parent body of all curling clubs throughout the world.

The record time for the English Channel swim is 16 hours and 33 minutes, made by Enrique Tirabocchi, the Argentine swimmer, in covering the distance from Cape Griz-Nez, France to Dover on August 12, 1923.

Annette Kellerman, the famous swimmer, intends to retire from exhibition work at the close of this season. In future she will devote herself to the woman's outdoor all-the-year-round athletic club which she plans to establish in southern California.

The annual golf fixture known as the "News of the World" tournament, which is to be held this year on September 22-25, is the only match play tourney for professionals in the British Isles and is regarded by most critics as carrying the professional title in such play. During the war when no pro open tourneys were held for five years, the "News of the World" tournament was considered its substitute in importance.

day that Mrs. Timmy had moved her family. None of the other tenants were awake at the time, and none knew that Spooky the Screech Owl was a very close neighbor. He had come over there from the Old Orchard, having been crowded out by the family which Mrs. Spooky was raising in his old home. He hadn't been able to find another satisfactory home in the Old Orchard and so had flown over to the Green Forest. He had moved in at once when he discovered this particular house. As he said, it was just his size. And when he moved in he hadn't known that there were any other tenants in that apartment tree.

Now there were four occupied apartments in that apartment tree, and of the four families just one was awake during the day. The family of Drummer the Woodpecker awoke at the very beginning of daylight; just at the time when the other tenants were going to bed, and the Woodpeckers went to bed just when the other tenants were starting out. So the Woodpeckers rarely saw anything of the others and the others had only a few glimpses of the Woodpeckers. In fact Spooky the Screech Owl had lived in that tree a week before he knew that the Woodpeckers were there.

STATE'S SHORE RESORTS ARE LARGE GAS USERS

Connecticut's many amusement parks and shore resorts are a material aid to the ... companies in the state in promoting the sale of their fuel during the hot months when one would naturally expect to find a falling off in the sales of gas fuel and particularly one extensively for house heating. The cooking and industrial uses of gas naturally remain at practically the same level throughout the year but the cooking needs fall to insignificant proportions during the summer.

The Sun-Flower.

Eagle of flowers! I see thee stand,
And on the sun's noon-glory gaze;
With eye like this, thy lids expand.
And fringe their disk with golden rays;
Though fix'd on earth, in darkness rooted there,
Light is thine element, thy dwelling air,
Thy prospect heaven.

So would mine eagle-soul descry,
Beyond the path where planets run,
The light of immortality.
The splendor of creation's sun;
Though sprung from earth, and hastening to the tomb,
In hope a flower of paradise to bloom,
I look to heaven.

—James Montgomery.

RAINBOW HAS MANY NAMES AMONG NATIONS

The lovely offspring of showers and sunshine that we call the "rainbow" bears a multitude of other names throughout the world. The French call it the "arch in the sky," the Italians, the "flashing arch." In various dialects of southern Europe it is known as the "arch of St. Martin," the "crown of St. Bernard," the "bridge of the Holy Spirit," the "girdle of God." In Sanskrit is known as the "bow of Indra;" the Annamites call it the "little window in the sky," and the Kabyles of northern Africa the "bride of the rain."

What makes the rainbow? Here are a few of the essential facts: We see the rainbow when the sun is at our backs and rain is falling in front of us. The sunlight enters the drops and is reflected from their inside surface. In this process the light is resolved into the so-called "primary" colors arranged in this order: Violet, indigo, blue, green, yellow, orange, red. (You can fix this sequence in your mind by noting that the initial letters form the word vibgyor.) The different colors follow different paths inside the drops and are still further separated in emerging. Moreover, for certain geometrical reasons, there is concentration of the light of each color in a particular direction. The drops in a certain direction from the observer send to his eye green light, those in another direction red light and so on. The overlapping of the colors, which makes it practically impossible to distinguish all of them, is due to the fact that the sun is not a sharp point, but a broad disk, which casts light at various angles upon each drop.

A certain amount of light is reflected twice inside the drop before it emerges. This produces the fainter secondary bow outside the primary. The reflection reverses the order of the colors, which runs from violet inside to red outside in the primary bow, and contrariwise in the secondary.

TRIED ELECTRIC CARS IN NEW YORK IN 1887

Electric street cars were first experimented with in New York City in August 1887. The reaction to this experiment by the newspapers in reflecting the viewpoint of the public in general is most interesting. The following excerpt from a copy of the New York Sun of the above date is typical of the comment expressed:

"They tried an electric railway car on Fourth Avenue yesterday. It created an amount of surprise and consternation from 32nd Street to 117th Street that was something like that caused by the first steamboat on the Hudson. Small boys yelled 'dynamite' and 'rats' and made similar appreciative remarks until they were hoarse. Newly appointed policemen debated arresting it, but went no further. The car horses which were met on the other track kicked without exception, as was natural over an invention which threatened to relegate diately lost his interest.

Jay Gould who had been interested in the electric car experiment from a financial point of view, was very near the control box on the trolley car when the safety fuse blew out, and immediately lost hise interest.

Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, younger daughter of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, 2nd, will be married in New York early this winter, to Mr. Earl

THREE COMMANDMENTS FOR CORN RAISING.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

It is a common pretext among a certain breed of farmers that corn doesn't "do well" with them any more, so they give up all attempts to raise it.

Now, we've raised corn on the John Farmer plantations for more than a hundred years. We should as soon think of going out to milk without a milking-stool as of starting the spring work without a corn patch. We shouldn't consider the farm a real farm if it wasn't producing more or less corn.

And when I say corn I mean good corn: thrifty, tall, broad-leaved, heavy-eared corn. Only twice in a memory of corn-fields which extends backwards for 70 years, have I known the John Farmer corn to turn out badly. Once was when a freak frost came in July and killed all the corn in the neighborhood. And once when dogged emergencies prevented us from using the usual anti-crow precautions and the black peas helped themselves to the planted seeds, pulled it up as fast as it sprouted, sprouts and all.

Of course, now that I've grown too old for active farm-work, we don't raise corn for commercial corn-production. Our yearly patches are small ones. But we manage to get in a little every spring. And I can't see but that it is doing as well, now-a-days, as it ever did in any past times. Year after year neighbors who drop in look at it with envy. This season has been and is no exception. I am almost getting elated with my own apparent bearing of the verdict: That's the best-looking corn I've seen this year." That is the unvarying pronouncement of neighbors and strangers, of farmers and tourists. It certainly is the best I have observed personally within a 100 miles south, 50 miles north, 50 miles east and 25 miles west, which is the limit of my own ramblings.

Naturally, and of course I am proud of it. Equally of course I am flattered by other people's admiration of it. I am also considerably puzzled and [illegible] when I [illegible] corn [illegible] with the remark that [illegible] soil must be especially [illegible] to raise it like [illegible].

Now this isn't quite fair to the John Farmer [illegible] and the John Farmer system of farming. As a matter of fact there are seven or eight varieties [illegible] small seeding. And corn [illegible] on every one of them, except the saturated swamp-lands. That has yielded in practice [illegible] great sandy loam, clay, loam, etc., one [illegible] to another.

I don't believe there are two farms within a radius of 25 miles who don't have just as good corn as the [illegible] when now earing back of my [illegible] they cared enough about it, [illegible] necessary trouble.

Right there is the nub of the corn question. — taking trouble. The old farmers used to take it as a matter of course and a part of the day's work. The modern farmer, on the other hand, is or seems to be infected with the idea that the best farming is that which can be done with the least trouble and work.

The end of regarding results as of some importance, too many spend their energies hunting for easier ways to farm it.

Said one to me, the other day, "Why don't you tell us how you do it?" That's just what I'm going to try to do in this Talk.

There are at least three commandments which must be obeyed by the would-be corn-grower.

First. Thou shalt plant thy corn in well-fitted and well-manured soil.

Second. Thou shalt plant good seed and just as early as watchful vigilance makes possible.

Third. Thou shalt take care of it till it gets big enough to take care of itself.

We'll consider each of these in some detail.

The soil must be well fitted and am[illegible]. By well-fitted I don't mean sod turned over and the top two inches scratched across a couple of times with a harrow. Well-fitted corn ground is made mellow and the [illegible] worked in to at least six inches deep. We have almost no other cultivated plant with so big a root-system as corn. When planted in the usual way, in hills three feet by three feet apart, the roots will fill all the soil between the rows from an inch beneath the surface to six or seven inches down, by the time it is ready to tassel. To insure the best growth these roots must have mellow, permeable soil to run in. They mustn't be compelled to spend two-thirds of their energy forcing ways for themselves through clods and hard-pan. Moreover they must find plenty of food all through the dirt wherever they thrust themselves. To insure this condition, the field should not only have an adequate dressing of good, humus-laden stable manure plowed under, but there should be a small quantity of quick-acting corn-pap put into every hill, so that the first tiny rootlets can get hold of it with their first reach. The Farmer clan has never found anything as good as hen manure for this "starter," — a handful dropped, before planting, just at the side of the cross-mark where the seed is to be planted, and covered up with the seed.

So much comment on the First Corn Commandment. Now comes the Second.

The ground must be prepared just as early as soil conditions will permit it being worked. It won't be too early, even if the snow-point occasionally strikes a remnant of frozen subsoil in shady "corners." The seed must be shelled and got ready for instant use when the right moment arrives. To assure best results, it ought to be seed of your own raising the previous year, the ears "traced up" and hung in a dry, rat-proof air way. In shelling, throw away the smaller kernels at the tip of each ear, and the coarse ones at the very butt. Use these for hen-feed, never for reproduction. As to the exact time for planting no rule can be laid down save those differs from another in earliness. But, any spring, there is three times as much danger in waiting too late as there is of planting too early. I suppose there is such a thing as seed rotting in the ground." But the danger is very, very remote. If it was good, fresh seed and planted in mellow, porous soil, it won't rot. At least it never has yet in 160 years of Farmer family corn-growing.—There is also the possibility of too early corn being "nipped" by late spring frost. But this danger, too, is magnified by timidity beyond all reason. While the usual planting time for my neighbor farmers is from May 15 to June 1, the John Farmer date averages between May 3 and 8. Every farmer knows from past experience about when he may expect the last killing spring freeze on his fields. Allowing eight or ten days for the corn to prick through, he is reasonably safe in planting eight or ten days before the average frost is due. Even if one comes later, after the corn is pretty well up, it won't kill the crop provided the soil has not been disturbed by cultivator or hoe. I have, several time, had corn "nipped" by an unduly late frost. The tips were killed. But fresh stalks came up in three or four days from the unfrozen seed below ground, and in two weeks the field would show no trace of injury or "set-back"—Too much stress can't be given to this early planting. In our short New England seasons, every minute gained in May and June means added insurance against "soft corn" at fall frost time.

As to the Third Corn Commandment, the taking care of the crop much less need be said. It should be kept free from weeds and well stirred up from the moment the small sprouts show rows across the field till the lush green leaves cover it with their shadows. The first cultivation may be fairly deep, because the rootlets have not yet reached out very far. But all subsequent cultivations should be shallow—the shallower the better. When the young plants are a foot high their roots will extend a long way towards the center of the row, and many of them close to the surface. Cutting them off by the thousands will do the corn more harm than good. After that first cultivation, later ones should be restricted to weed killing and mulch preservation.

Every farmer has, and should have, his own ideas about the best way to grow things on his own farm. But I submit that when a certain course of conduct in regard to a special crop has assured almost invariable success over a century and a half of farming, the methods which have led to that success are worth every farmer's attention. They may not be exactly applicable to his conditions, yet may have really valuable suggestion for him.

We have not found it essential, as some farmers hold, to plant on sward land. I myself have raised good corn for seventeen consecutive years on the same ground. All that was needful was to supply, with an extra heavy application of strawy yard manure the humus which the rotting sod would otherwise have furnished.

To protect the crop from crows we have always used white grocers' twine strung around and across the field on bean-poles. It has never failed, when promptly set up, the moment planting was finished. But it is N. G. if the crows are allowed to explore the field before the twine is strung. Nothing will scare them off, once they've got a taste of sprouting corn.

My own experience forces on me the conviction that the decrease of corn-raising in New England isn't so much due to any wearing out of the soils or any change of seasonal conditions as it is to "slack" farming methods. To raise it successfully requires careful and wise planning, long-headed foresight, constant care, promptness in seizing the occasion when it comes, and utter disregard for the trouble involved and the work necessitated. It isn't an "Easy Snap" job to grow good corn. I don't at this moment recall any other farming task which could be called an "Easy Snap."

It seems to me pitiful that such a noble crop should be discarded or, at least, made a trifling side-issue in New England farming. There isn't another which we can grow which is so valuable in the truest sense. It enters into the best ration for cows; it is as important as oats in horse "provenender" it is a prime essential in the poultry-yard; it is THE one and indispensable fattener for pork; sheep love it; and the farm-home which isn't blessed with frequent provision of "johnny-cake" or "hoe-cake" or "cornpones" or plain corn bread hasn't risen to its opportunities.

Of course when I talk about corn I mean hard, yellow flint corn, the kind that grows best and matures surest on New England hills. The various dents are all right in their place but they can't equal the flint corn with us.

As a market crop, I don't profess to know much about its capabilities. We've never sold or tried to sell any corn, except a few bushels, now and then, for seed. But for home consumption and up-building, I don't know any other which will compare with it.

If New England farmers who now buy their horse and cow and chicken and pig feed from the west would raise more corn and feed it out right at home, they'd have to buy many million dollars less of high-priced imported feeds.

And here I am at the end of my tether, without a word as to the value of properly cured corn-stalks as cow fodder! Or of the opportunity the corn-patch affords to raise a lot of turnips after the corn is stooked! And of golden pumpkins, too! Three useful crops on the same ground and, as one might say, at the same time.

THE FARMER.

NEAR EAST RELIEF CLEARS UP DEFICIT

The Near East Relief has cleared up a deficit of $300,000 since the beginning of the current fiscal year, according to the annual report of it national board of trustees, which has just been published. This deficit, it is noted, was the result of the far-reaching refugees operations carried on by the organization since the Smyrna disaster. The society hopes to come through the current year without any similar financial embarrassment.

The annual report, which is an official congressional document issued in accordance with the organization's national charter, gives a comprehensive idea of the far-reaching relief operations which the American people have carried out in Bible Lands during the past year. Although financial considerations necessitated the limitation of the work mainly to established orphanage and child-welfare work, the service of Near East Relief reached 554,978 persons, and total expenditures were $3,966,329.

In summing up the year's work, the general secretary says:

"In addition to the more than 1,000,000 foreign born, and, in a large measure, foreign-speaking Greeks and Armenians that had previously been driven from their ancient homes in Anatolia to the over-populated regions of Greece and Macedonia, there has this year been a continued forced exodus, swelling the already over-crowded refugee camps and villages. These people are among the oldest residents of Asia Minor, descendants of the founders of the Seven Churches of Asia.

"In Greece, Northern Syria, and Russian Armenia, where they now sojourn, they are not only foreign-born but speak a foreign language and many of them have no claim upon the land or resources of the countries that generously give them haven. All observers bear witness to the thrift, industry and enterprise of the able-bodied among these refugees. They attain self-support against almost impossible handicaps, but unfortunately the proportion of able bodied men is small. Most of them are women and children—the women in large measure weakened or broken by years of inhuman suffering, exposure and maltreatment.

"From a purely selfish standpoint of insuring permanent world peace, we must needs minister to the Near East. Unless peace and goodwill is established in this area of age-long war and strife, there can never be abiding peace in the rest of the world. By the expression of good will toward these innocent war victims and by training them in lives of forgiveness, unselfish service, and industrial leadership, we not only acknowledge in some measure our indebtedness to the Near East, but we help to insure our own peace and prosperity and that of the rest of the world."

SAY ZIONISTS' HOPES DOOMED TO DISAPPOINTMENT

The belief that the lands bordering the Mediterranean will come almost to rival their ancient glory is unfounded. Ellsworth Huntington, professor of climatology in Yale university, declared at a round table conference of the institute of politics at Williamstown. Due to characteristics of race and climate, the most to be expected is a general improvement in industries, chiefly agriculture, and new industries on a large scale are not to be expected. He said that the hope of Zionists and others that Palestine can support two or three million people and become a great industrial center is an idle one.

"Those who look for great progress in the Mediterranean lands fail to realize that during the last two or three thousand years the people and the climate have changed. The people are less vigorous and active and of a more sluggish temperament. The possibilities of development are limited. The Mediterranean climate is not healthful and stimulative to those who have to live in it permanently. The lands are almost at the saturation point of population. Immigrants cannot go there in large numbers and are not welcome. The greatest hope of progress lies in improving the health of the people, who on all sides suffer from malaria, hookworms and other diseases. I see no reason to believe that any of the lands aside from northern Italy can become great manufacturing centers.

"In the first place there is practically no coal and iron. Any [illegible] manufacturing on an intensive scale is limited to a few small areas, chiefly the northern United States and western Europe. The tendency is [illegible] further concentration rather than expansion. Nowhere does manufacture become a major occupation [illegible] the climate is especially stimulating.

"The movement of cotton to [illegible] in this country from north to south [illegible] ed signs of lessenging, the speaker said. The hot, damp weather of the south makes working conditions undesirable to good operatives, who become less efficient if tempted by higher wages or low expenses to remain.

"The net result is, that inefficient labor becomes expensive labor, and some cotton mills are reported to be moving back north.

"In all except a few of the Mediterranean lands the conditions for manufacturing are much less favorable than in our southern states. The only factories that we can expect to see prosper on any large scale are those which perform the simplest operations of preparing raw material for market."

Of Palestine, Prof. Huntingdon said the obstacles were long, dry summers, the difficulty of effective irrigation, since the soil has been washed away from many hillsides; the lack of water for irrigation, and the obligation of workers to live on the lowest possible standards, like those in the worst parts of China.

Now comes a shortening which need not be kept on ice at all

"Best Foods Shortning is palatable—good to eat just as it comes from the container. It is so good you can even make Cream Filling, Cake Icing and Candies with it."

KNOWING what you do about old-type shortenings, this will probably surprise you—

Best Foods Shortning need not be kept in the refrigerator even after it is opened.

It works best when at the temperature of the kitchen itself. You keep it in the pantry —and save refrigerator space.

So from the minute Best Foods Shortning comes into your home you notice the difference between it and other shortenings.

Why Best Foods Shortning is Different

It is different because Best Foods Shortning is a new idea—the application of fat crystals to shortening.

What are Fat Crystals?

Fat crystals are the sweet and delicious globular crystals gathered from a pure vegetable oil by the new and exclusive Best Foods process. They are tiny, non-greasy and palatable.

Best Foods Shortning is harder than other shortenings.

It keeps three or four times longer.

It is both odorless and tasteless. It is palatable—good to eat just as it comes from the container. So you can use it for such special delicacies as Cream Fillings, Cake Icings, and Candies.

The Non-Greasy Shortening

Best Foods Shortning has none of the "greasy" look or feel of old-type shortenings.

Best Foods Shortning is "neutral"—really neutral. Foods prepared with it develop their own natural flavoring to the full.

All due to the pure palatable fat crystals.

Compare with any other shortening! It is well worth the difference in price.

What we mean when we say "Compare with any other shortening"

When we say "Compare with any other shortening," we mean exactly what we say. Buy a can. Taste it. Compare it on any point you wish.

And if you are not pleased with Best Foods Shortning as against any other shortening, return the can to your grocer and get your money back.

BRYAN WILL PROVIDES FOR CAUSE OF RELIGION

Written by himself shortly before he went to Dayton, Tenn., to take part in the Scopes trial, the will of William Jennings Bryan, filed at Miami provides for the needs of his family and in addition perpetuates his fight in the cause of religion by setting aside part of his estate for various churches and for an academy for boys under the supervision of some evangelical church.

Filled with characteristic Bryan phrases and idealisms, the last testament of the great Commoner placed those close to him first in the distribution of his wordly possessions.

The text of the will said, in part:

"In the name of God, farewell.

"Trusting for my salvation to the blood of Jesus Christ, my Lord and Redeemer, and relying on His promise for my hope of resurrection, I consign my body to the dust and commend my spirit to the God who gave it.

"I, William Jennings Bryan, a citizen of Dade county, Florida, being of sound mind and memory, but conscious of the uncertainty of life, and desiring to make a just disposition of the worldly goods with which an indulgent Heavenly Father has seen fit to bless me, do make, publish and declare this my last will and testament; hereby revoking and annulling all former wills by me made.

"First, I desire that all my just debts and funeral expenses shall be fully paid and satisfied, including the use of such sum as my wife and children deem proper for the purchase of a monument to mark my grave.

"Second. I give and bequeath to my beloved wife, Mary Baird Bryan, my congenial comrade and companion and my faithful helpmeet for more than 40 years, all my household goods, jewelry, plate, library, automobile, or cetera, to use, distribute or sell, according to her pleasure. I trust her to make such gifts to or division among our children, children-in-law, grandchildren, relatives and friends as we would make together if we joined in the distribution.

Life Estate in Home

"Third. I give and bequeath to my said wife, estate in our home Montreat in Cocoanut Grove, Fla., and I hereby authorize and direct the expenditure from my estate of such sums as may be necessary to pay taxes on said wife to occupy, rent or sell said home, according to her pleasure. If the house is rented, the taxes and repairs shall be paid out of the rent. When the home is sold the proceeds shall be turned into the general fund of my estate.

"Fourth. I give and bequeath unto my said wife one-third of all the property, real, personal and mixed which I possess at the time of my death.

"Fifth. I give and bequeath to my beloved children, Ruth Bryan Owen, W. J. Bryan, Jr., and Grace Bryan Hargraves, one-fourth each of all the proceeds of my estate remaining after the payment of the bequest to my said wife and other bequests and expenses, but said bequests are made subject to the following provision, viz: If any child resorts to the courts to break the provisions of this will, the bequest to such child will be revoked by said act, and said child's portion shall be set apart for it as soon as distribution can be made, the other half shall be available for the children, respectively, when my said wife dies. The second half, held until my said wife's death, shall be kept in the hands of my executors and invested in bonds of the United States government, state governments, city governments and school districts.

"Sixth. I give and bequeath unto each of my beloved grandchildren and great-grandchildren now living or that may be born before the final distribution of my estate, the sum of $2,000, said sum to be used for the education of the child, or if not needed for that, paid at an earlier date, my wife to decide as to John's needs in the payment of this sum to him.

"Seventh. I hereby bequeath to my said wife and my said children, Ruth William and Grace, all my copyright, manuscript, letters, et cetera, and hereby authorize them to prepare and publish my official biography, with a full sketch of my wife's life and details as to the important aid she has rendered me in all my work, and such other volumes of life and letters as they deem wise. They shall share equally in all the profits and royalties derived from the books they deem wise. They shall share equally in all the profits and royalties derived from the books they publish.

"Eighth: I give and bequeath to my beloved sister, Frances Bryan Baird, the house in East Lincoln (near Fairview) where she now lives, together with the lot on which it stands with a frontage of seventy-five feet, unless different frontage is agreed upon before I die, to hold, use or rent, with remainder over in fee simple, to her three children, Laura, Frank and Will. My sister is to pay taxes on it while she occupies it or rents it. I give and bequeath to my beloved brother and sister Charles W. Bryan and Mary Bryan Allen, $2,000 each. My wife will, in the distribution of souvenirs, remember Essie, my brother's wife, Jim Baird's sister, Fannie's husband, T. S. Allen, sister Mary's husband, and Roy Spangler, Laura's husband, A. R. Talbot, my former law partner, and W. E. Schwind, my companion in the army. They have all been very dear friends, I appreciate their affection and companionship with them."

Gifts to Churches

"Ninth: I give and bequeath $1,000 each to the First Presbyterian church of Miami and Grove Temple of Cocoanut Grove, the two churches with which I am now connected and $500 each to the following churches with which I have been connected, namely: The Cumberland Presbyterian church of Salem, Ill.; the First Presbyterian church of Jacksonville, Ill.; the First Presbyterian church of Lincoln, Neb., the Westminster Presbyterian church of Lincoln, Neb.; the normal Methodist church, near my former Nebraska home—Fairview; the Lincoln (Neb.) Y. M. C. A.; the Miami, (Fla.) Y. M. C. A.; the Bryan Bennett library, Salem, Ill.; the public library, Lincoln, Neb.; the public library of the Woman's Club, Miami; the public library of Cocoanut Grove, and $500 each to Sigma Pi society, Illinois college, Jacksonville, Ill., of which I was a member; Philosophian Society, McKendree College Lebanon, Ill., of which my father was a member and the Baptist church at Salem, Ill., of which my parents were members.

"Tenth: I give and bequeath to my private secretary (at the time of my death) a sum to be calculated at $100 for each year or part of a year he has been with me, and to the man who is taking care of my wife at the time of my death—driving her car and carrying her—a sum calculated in the same way. To my gardner and each one of the female help a sum calculated at $50 for each year or part of year.

For Religious Education

"Eleventh: I have saved for the last of my bequests for religious education. While I have devoted a large part of my time to the study and discussion of political questions and have found an abundant reward in the reforms adopted with my humble aid, I feel more interested in religion than in politics because religion is the only influence that controls the heart out of which are the issues of life. Next to religion I am most interested in education because education can and should increase one's capacity for service. But education will not be a benefit to its possessor and a blessing to society unless it is wisely used. I am very anxious that each intellectual ship shall be equipped with a moral rudder sufficient to control its course on life's stormy sea. My chief interest is therefore in Christian education— the entwining of the spiritual with the intellectual. I had hoped to aid in establishing of an academy that would embody my idea and serve as a model. Fearing that I shall not be able to carry out this plan during the years that remain, I am setting aside a fund equal to each child's share in my estate. After taking out the bequest to my wife and other bequests I desire to divide the remainder in four equal parts, one part, as I have provided above shall go to each of my three children, the fourth part less $50,000 will be set apart for Christian education. As I have recently given our Norwegian homes known as Fairytea, to the Methodist church for a hospital, I feel that its value, conservatively estimated at $50,000, should be deducted from the one-fourth set apart from Christian education and divided equally between my three children and my wife.

"The amount left for this purpose (I estimate it as about $50,000—$100,000, less the $50,000 deduction above mentioned) I would like to have used to establish an academy for boys which shall be under the control of some unit of government of some evangelical church. Presbyterian preferred, but not absolutely necessary, so that it can be controlled by a recognized religious organization. I would like to have it cover the junior and senior years of the high school and the freshman and sophomore years of the college, those being the years when the student most needs religious supervision. I would like special attention given to citizenship and applied christianity, so that the graduates may be prepared for leadership in both state and church. It should not be conducted for profit; board should be furnished students at actual cost, tuition should be as low as possible, room rent should be the same for all rooms, so as to discourage classification according to wealth. Assignments of rooms should be made on basis of classes—senior, junior, sophomore and freshman—and in classes according to scholarship where possible and by lot until scholarship is tested. I would like the boys to wear a uniform made of blue and gray to symbolize the reunion of the north and south.

Visit on Religion

"If it is impossible to establish such an academy, then the trustees of this fund shall distribute it among boy's schools, selecting schools as nearly like the one described above as possible, care being taken to see that the money is given only to schools that are firmly committed to orthodox Christianity, including the making of man by separate act in God's image, the virgin birth and the bodily resurrection of the saviour. I regard supernatural and revealed religion, as given in the Bible, as the only religion that exerts a controlling influence on our lives. If this money is divided among several colleges, I would like to have it invested and the income loaned to needy students, not over one-half his annual college expenses, so that he will earn the other half, and when collected returned to the revolving fund.

"I hereby appoint as trustee of this religious fund my beloved wife, my son, my two daughters, my brother, C. W. Bryan; my brother-in-law, T. S. Allen; my former law partner, A. R. Talbot, and the pastors of the first Presbyterian church of Miami and Grove Temple of Cocoanut Grove, the pastors to serve while pastors. If any of the life trustees die their places shall be filled by the survivors, preference being given to my personal friends who are also sympathetic in matters of religion.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this fifth day of July (1925) nineteen hundred and twenty-five at Miramont, Cocoanut Grove, Fla.

"WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN.

"The foregoing, published and declared by said testator as his last will and testament, in the presence of us, who at his request and in his presence and in the presence of each other, have hereunto subscribed our names as witnesses.

"W. E. THOMPSON,

STAPLES OF PRINCIPAL COUNTRIES SHOW INCREASE

The advance in prices is world wide. We of the United States, says the Trade Record of The National City Bank of New York, have special facilities for measuring prices in foreign countries of the great articles forming international trade, and from a close study of the latest data on the subject it appears that prices in foreign countries of a large share of the important articles which we are importing, were higher in the latest month for which figures are available, April 1925, than the average for the full calendar year 1924.

The process by which the price abroad is determined, says the Trade Record, is with us a comparatively simple one. Our laws and regulations require the statement of the value of each article to be the export value in the country from which it is sent, plus any export tax imposed by the country from which it is consigned. So it appears that when we compare the official figures of the value per unit of quantity of the respective articles imported, we have a definite statement of the market price of the article on leaving the country from which it is sent to us. While this comparison cannot show actual advances in the price of the article in any single country since the various articles imported, such as wool, hides, silk and cotton, originate in several different countries, it is quite apparent from a comparison of the average price of each of these groups that the advance is world wide.

Out of 78 imported articles of which the department of commerce states the import price in April 1925, 56 articles, or over two thirds of the entire number, show higher prices per unit of quantity in the country from which they are sent to us than the average of the calendar year 1924. Most of these advances occur in manufactured materials and also in certain classes of foodstuffs.

Take cotton as an example, which we draw chiefly from Egypt, India and China, also from certain European countries which have imported it and again forwarded it to us, the average import prices of raw cotton entering the United States in April 1925 was 35.5c. per pound against an average of 30.5c. per pound in the calendar year 1924. Combing wool, drawn chiefly from Australia, Argentina and Uruguay, averaged 61.2c per pound in the imports of April 1925 against an average of 46.6c per pound in the calendar year 1924. Raw silk, brought chiefly from Japan, China and Italy, averaged $6.56 per pound in April of the current year against an average of $6.39 in 1924. Manila hemp, coffee chiefly from the P [illegible] averaged $325.10 per ton in April of this year against an average of $[illegible] in 1924. Jute and Jute Butts coming chiefly from India, averaged $[illegible] per ton in April 1925 against and average of $144.02 in 1924, and Sisal brought chiefly from Mexico averaged $201.70 per ton in April 1925 against an average of $142.08 in 1924. Cattle hides, coming from all parts of the world but especially from Argentina and Canada, averaged 18 c. per pound in April of this year against 13c. in 1924, while all other classes of hides showed increases when compared with 1924. Crude rubber imports in April 1925 averaged 34.2c. per pound against an average of 23.7c. per pound in 1924.

Turning from the manufactured materials to foodstuffs the advance is equally apparent in many of the articles for which we are dependent on other countries. Coffee, drawn chiefly from Brazil, averaged 24.2c. per pound in April of the current year against an average of 17.6c. per pound in 1924; tea, chiefly from Japan, China and India, averaged 38.4c. this year against 29.3c. in 1924, and Olives, chiefly from Spain and Italy 84.2c. per gallon against an average of 62.9 in 1924. Bananas averaged 55.5c. per bunch in April of this year against 46.6c. per bunch in 1924, though in most of the other fruits, notably those coming from the Mediterranean countries and especially Asia Minor, the prices of 1925 and lower than those of the preceding year.

It will be seen from the above that there have been marked advances in the prices of nearly all of the staple articles of most of the great countries of the world; silk and tea in Japan, cotton in Egypt, silk, tea, cotton and hides in China, jute and cotton in India, wool in Australia, New Zealand, Argentina and Uruguay, rubber in Brazil and the Dutch East Indies, coffee in Brazil and South America and fibers in India, the Philippines and Mexico, evidencing the fact that higher prices are being realized the world over by the producers of the great staples required in the manufacturing industries and food requirements of all [illegible] of the world.

PROPOSING TO SAVE AN HISTORIC SHIP

One hundred and twenty-eight years ago the United States navy, then a feeble but hopeful aspiration, launched the forty-four-gun frigate Constitution at Boston and sent her forth upon the high seas to protect American shipping from pirates and to make a demonstration of American naval preparedness. It was not until several years later, during the war of 1812, that her crew had opportunity to use her against an enemy. She won renown for escaping a British fleet sighted off Halifax, and then, after making port, putting to sea again, where singling out one British vessel, the Guerriere, she captured and burned her. She then met the British frigate Java off the coast of Brazil and repeated the victory.

The Constitution is still afloat, a rotting hulk at the Charlestown navy yard. She stands supreme in the affections of the navy and of all patriotic Americans, whether seafarers or not, because it was through her that America demonstrated to the world the country's ability to build superior ships and to fight them and keep the ships of a country that ruled the waves. She was the beginning of the navy, and of the era of selling supremacy in American sea lanes. She is today the symbol of the spirit which carried American shipping to all the seas and developed the United States into a world power. For years the plight of the Constitution has aroused a desire to save her for oblivion, Congress has taken cognizance of this feeling to the extent of authorizing the navy department to save the ship, but no money was appropriated for the purpose.

With the aid of the Elks' Lodge, which has volunteered to tell the story and provide the organization, the navy department, through the commandant of the Boston naval district has decided to appeal to the country for money to preserve the Constitution. The agreement of the Elks to underwrite the plan is in line with the assurance of its traditions and an assurance of its success. Congress has surely spoken the will of the people in taking the stand that the ship should be preserved, and the navy department and Elks are justified in the assumption that a public sentiment so deeply rooted will bear fruit in the form of the means to preserve her.

EXPERIENCE OF MRS. FULLER

"My health has improved wonderfully," says Mrs. T. H. Fuller, of Walpole, N. H. "Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for months I was in such pain that I could not work but thanks to this splendid medicine, I am now strong enough to do all my own work and have two dear babies to care for besides. I want to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to women who are weak, run down and nervous."

Asks Public To Keep Coal Price Low

John Hays Hammond, mining engineer, and head of the Fact Finding Commission to the coal deadlock, appointed by President Coolidge. Mr. Hammond says that the people should not stampede on the talk of a coal strike, and thus bid up the price. At present there is enough coal in storage, and enough of substitutes, to extend over Christmas.

Mrs. Andrilli, 30 Montauk avenue, complained to the police this afternoon that earlier in the day, while her little son was on his way to a nearby store to make a purchase, boys residing on Mitchell court, forcibly took a small sum of money from the Andrilli child.

Samuel Shapiro, 217 Main street, this afternoon requested the police to maintain a watch of his house, 207 North Bank street, where Minnie Kerson, colored, is employed as housekeeper by Elisha Stanfield, also colored. The North Bank street house is the place where William Gross, United States Coast Guard sailor, smashed a door several nights ago and is alleged to have attempted to assult the woman.

Complaint was made to the police this afternoon by residents at 64 Belden street, that Mrs. Mary Devona, a resident of the street, was continuing her practice of annoying the neighborhood by playing a pianola at all hours of the day and night. Mrs. Devona was prosecuted in the police court several days ago on a charge of maintaining a nuisance at her home and was ordered to put a stop to the practice. This afternoon the woman was threatened with arrest if she continued to annoy her neighbors by the continual playing of the piano.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel caused the operators' licenses of John F. Sullivan, 100 Blinman street, and James Dignowity, 939 Pequot avenue, recently suspended for violations of the automobile law, to be returned to the owners.

Frederick G. Smith, 14 Perry street, reported to the police today that while his automobile was parked on Sixteenth street last night, a thief stole a flashlight, kit of tools and registration.

A. H. Frink, proprietor of a store at 4 Church street, notified the police today that a thief had stolen seven automobile tires from his place of business. Frink declared that three of the tires were stolen Sunday night and four Tuesday night, but did not state why he failed to make a report of the Sunday night theft until today. Sergeant John Cavanaugh was assigned to the case and his investigation revealed that Frink had been in the store continuously every day for over a week and that a man whom he employes had been in the store every night, even to sleeping in the place. There was no evidence that entrance to the place was gained by force and the authorities are inclined to believe that the tires were stolen by some one known to Frink and who had knowledge of the movements and habits of Frink and his employe.

For the first time in several months, local members of the Ku Klux Klan, together with members from other branches of the organization in this vicinity, held a meeting in Waterford, the affair being attended by about 500 members. It was held in a large field near Pleasure Beach. The meeting was called about 8:30 o'clock and after a discourse that lasted about three hours, during which it is stated no outsider who happened along the highway in front of where the meeting was being held, a clergyman attacked the Hebrews and Catholics in no mild terms. At 11:30 o'clock the flery cross, always characteristic at the close of the Klan sessions, was burned on the top of a section of land near the site of the meeting. The cross burned about an hour and could be seen from a considerable distance.

George Librizzi, 135 Jefferson avenue, public service operator, who declares that his automobile, seized with a quantity of liquor in it last Saturday night in Center Groton, and which cost the federal authorities declare is owned by Sam Santinelli, 44 Shaw street, awaiting trial on the charge of bootlegging, was not presented before United States Commissioner Russell T. Corcoran this afternoon as was planned. The hearing has been deferred until tomorrow morning.

The New Haven police this evening requested the local authorities to be on the lookout for a Chrysler automobile, 1924 model and bearing registration P-1866, Connecticut issue, which was stolen in New Haven earlier in the day.

While one of the delivery trucks of Swift & Co., was at the local coast guard station, state pier, this afternoon a box of butter was stolen from the rear of the truck, which was unloading provisions there.

Maude Johnson, 18, colored, of New York, arrived in New London this evening on the New London line steamer Richard Peck from New York. The girl being a guest from her home to Block Island where her mother is employed. The girl was without funds and was taken in charge by Captain Richard Kelley of the special agents of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. He caused the stranger to be given shelter at the Salvation Army lodging house for the night. She will be sent to Block Island tomorrow. On the 29th inst., the New London office were requested to be on the lookout for the girl, who, it was stated, had left from New York July 25th for this city for the purpose of joining her mother. The girl had not put in an appearance on the island.

PROHIB. AGENT ADVISED TO MAKE AN APOLOGY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 13—Samuel Santinelli, 44 Shaw street, was arrested several days ago charged with bootlegging following a raid on a barn at Center Groton, reputed to be hired by him. The raid resulted in about $2,000 worth of liquor and an automobile being seized by federal and state officers. Santinelli appeared at the police station last night, alleging that Joseph Fitzpatrick, prohibition enforcement agent, was hounding him and attempting to "frame" him as a result of Fitzpatrick holding up Santinelli's car in which Santinelli, his wife and niece were passengers, on Denison avenue earlier in the evening. This afternoon the accused man appeared with his attorney, William T. Connor, at the office of Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky and requested that a warrant be issued for the arrest of Fitzpatrick, on a charge of assault. Santinelli asserting that Fitzpatrick had seized him by the throat last night, also had applied vile names to him.

Fitzpatrick, who was present at the office by arrangement when Santinelli and his attorney presented themselves, declared that the statement that he had seized Santinelli by the throat was false, but he admitted having grabbed Santinelli by the lapels of the coat.

After hearing the statements of both parties, Acting Prosecuting Attorney Hollandersky stated that he did not consider the statements of Santinelli and Fitzpatrick, which were contradictory, such as warranted the prosecution of the prohibition enforcement agent, but that he had advised Fitzpatrick to make an apology to the women if he had used obscene language in their presence the night before.

SIX YEAR OLD BOY SHOT WHILE PLAYING COWBOY GAME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 13—John Hornsky, aged 6 residing with his parents at 347 North Bank street, came close to losing the sight of one eye this evening. The youth, with several others, was engaged in playing a cowboy game at the corner of North Bank and Douglas streets, when Joe Ma ka, another boy, residing at 173 Main street fired a BB gun, the bullet entering the lad just over the left eye. The injured youth was taken to the office of a physician where the wound was dressed. The Hanka boy will be cared over to Acting Probation Officer Arthur MacDougall tomorrow.

DEMENTED WOMAN SLAYS FOUR MEMBERS OF FAMILY

BOSTON, Aug. 13—(A. P.)—The fourth member of her family shot by Mrs. Mary Curtis in her West Roxbury home this morning while mentally deranged, tonight was fighting for life at the City Hospital with but small chance of recovery, according to physicians.

The husband and father, George H. Curtis, and his wife, were dead when their daughter, Dorothy, 18, ran down from her upstairs bedroom. Another daughter, Marjorie, 7, was found in the bathroom and died a short time later.

George H. Curtis, Jr., 20, the son who is now in a serious condition, was shot in his bed. He was convalescing from a long illness from pleuro-pneumonia.

Dorothy told the police that only her slowness in dressing after her mother called her this morning, saved her from the fate on the rest of the family. Mrs. Curtis, she said, had acted strangely since she suffered partial paralysis in an automobile accident several months ago and the illness of her son had caused her additional worry. In one of the several notes she wrote, Mrs. Curtis said her act was committed "to leave the family in peace."

Dorothy collapsed after calling assistance and is under the care of physicians at the home of a neighbor. Another son, William Fayette Curtis Jr., U. S. Marines, was said tonight to be on his way home from Lakehurst, N. J., where he is stationed.

George Curtis, the father, was an official at the South Station where the son was a ticket seller until his recent illness. The grandfather, F. S. Curtis, is president of the Old Colony railroad, chairman of the board of trustees of the Boston Terminal company, which owns the South Station and for years was vice president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

LABOR LEADER TO SPEAK IN NEW YORK CATHEDRAL

NEW YORK, Aug. 13—(A. P.)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, will be the principal speaker at a special service in the interests of labor at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine next Sunday.

Representatives of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, the greater New York Federation of Churches and the Central Trades and Labor Council of the American Federation of Labor are co-operating with the cathedral in the service.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE TO GO TO PLYMOUTH, VT., TODAY

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 13—(A. P.)—President Coolidge cast an apprehensive eye today at overcast skies, wondering whether the weather would be suitable tomorrow for a motor trip to Plymouth, Vt., where he will spend the week end with his father, Col. John Coolidge.

If the day dawns clear, the president intends to travel by automobile. Otherwise he will make the trip by train, arriving in either instance at his birthplace before dark.

The president will be accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge, Col. John C. Coolidge, his military aide, and Major James F. Coupal, his aide.

It is the president's intention to remain with his father, who has recovered from his recent illness and operation, until early in the week, returning here for an indefinite stay before terminating his vacation.

The president today signed a commission designating Green H. Hackworth as solicitor in the state department. He also has designated Fr. Francis D. Donoghue of Boston, to represent the United States at the fourth international conference on industrial accidents at Amsterdam in September.

SHIPPING BOARD ASKS $22,540,000 FOR NEXT YEAR

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13—(A. P.)—The shipping board today asked for $22,540,000 for the coming fiscal year and was told by the budget bureau it need not expect more than $15,000,000.

For the present year the appropriation is $24,000,000, and last year it was $30,000,000.

Of the total requested, $22,000,000 would go to the fleet corporation and $540,000 to the board itself. President Palmer had asked for only $12,000,000 for the corporation, but not a member of the board supported his estimate. Commissioner Lissner was the only one of the six members present who refused to vote for $22,000,000 and he favored $20,000,000.

President Palmer said today that regardless what appropriation was finally given the fleet corporation for next year, it was his intention to operate all of the 279 vessels now on active service, while bringing about a considerable reduction in personnel of the corporation at home, and accord and the establishment of more efficient methods generally.

Robert C. Cougle, the 12 year old son of Albert Cougle, of Danbury, was instantly killed when he fell under the wheels of a freight train.

SWITZERLAND BEAT U. S. RIFLE SHOOTING TEAM

SAINT GALL, Switzerland, Aug. 13—(A. P.)—Switzerland beat the United States at the International Rifle Shooting tournament here today, 3,591 points against 3,246. The Swiss and American teams finishing first and second in the international classification.

In the individual classification Switzerland captured first, second, third and fifth places.

The formidably sworn riflemen, Hartman, beat the world's record by scoring a total of 1,111 points for the whole competition. He also established world's records for firing from the knee position with 576 points, and from a standing position with 567 points.

COS COB MAN DROWNED IN THE MIANUS RIVER

GREENWICH, Aug. 13—(A. P.)—Frank B. Parsley, of Riverside, Cos Cob, was found drowned in the Mianus river, near his home, this afternoon. He left his home last night and was last seen walking toward the river. Parsley has not been reached by the medical examiner whether it was an accidental death or suicide. Parsley was 70 years old and is survived by his wife and one son.

SELECTING NOMINEE TO SUCCEED LAFOLLETTE

OSHKOSH, Wis., Aug. 13—(By the Associated Press)—Republicans went into an extra session here tonight in a state convention called to select nominee for the United States Senate seat made vacant by the death of Senator Robert M. LaFollette.

Complete harmony reigned throughout the meeting today. At the close of an address by Senator Irvine L. Lenroot, Superior, late in the afternoon speeches were made placing in nomination six candidates for the consideration of the convention.

The first three ballots in rule of the convention are considered informal and cannot be made formal one taken late today sowed contestants receiving the following votes:

H. L. Russell, 257 1-2; R. P. Wilson, 176; F. E. McGovern, 41 1-2; Wallace Ingalls 53; W. L. Pieplow, 63; J. H. McGillan 47.

A majority of the 650 votes of the convention will determine the endorsement of the convention. Several of the candidates including Francis E. McGovern, have announced themselves in the race regardless of the action of the convention.

In resolutions adopted and forming a part of platform which will be used in the 1925 senatorial campaign, the convention went on record as being in accord with the policies and administration of President Calvin Coolidge.

BENJAMIN P. DAVIS,
Town Clerk of Franklin.
Dated at Franklin, Conn., August 13, 1925.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Ledyard, within and for the District of Ledyard, on the 12th day of August, A. D. 1925.
Present, BILLINGS F. S. CRANDALL, Judge.
Estate of Eliza Barnard, late of Ledyard, in said District, deceased.
Chester E. Dimick, of Gales Ferry, appeared in Court and filed a petition praying, for the reasons therein set forth, that an instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased be admitted to probate.
Whereupon, It Is Ordered, That said petition be heard and determined at the Probate Court Room in Ledyard, in said District, on the 19th day of August, A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, and that notice of the pendency of said petition, and of said hearing thereon, be given by the publication of this order one time in the Norwich Bulletin, a newspaper having a circulation in said District at least five days prior to the date of said hearing, and that return be made to this Court.
BILLINGS F. S. CRANDALL,
Judge.
The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.
Attest: L. H. CRANDALL.

NORWICH, CONN., FRIDAY, AUGUST 14, 1925

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin.

Norwich Friday, August 14, 1925

WEATHER
Conditions

The disturbance that was central over Illinois Wednesday night has moved east-northeastward to western New York and it has been attended by showers over middle and northern sections east of the Mississippi river.

The temperature was higher Thursday in the middle Atlantic states. A maximum of one hundred degrees was registered at Charlotte N. C., which is the highest of record at that place for the month of August.

The indications are for general showers in the north Atlantic Friday. Otherwise generally fair weather will prevail Friday and Saturday.

The temperature will be slightly lower Friday in the Atlantic states from Maryland to Georgia. There will be little change in temperature in the Washington forecast district on Saturday.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook—Moderate to fresh winds, mostly southeast and south; weather overcast and showery Friday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras—Moderate to fresh shifting winds, becoming northwest and weather mostly overcast, possibly local rains Friday.

Forecast

Eastern New York: Mostly cloudy Friday; possibly showers Friday morning; Saturday fair; moderate temperature.

Northern New England: Showers Friday; Saturday generally fair; not much change in temperature.

Southern New England: Cloudy, probably local showers Friday; Saturday generally fair; not much change in temperature.

WILL OPEN ONE SIDE OF MAIN STREET TO TRAFFIC SATURDAY

Announcement was made Thursday night by Street Commissioner John C. Donovan that the right hand side of Main street from Market street to Washington square will be opened to traffic Saturday morning. With the exception of one small section of the street, in front of Schwartz Bros., store the laying of the cement on that side of the street has been completed. This small section can't be completed for ten days. Traffic will pass over it until the cement is laid when the traffic will be routed around it until it has set and is ready for use.

The opening of the street to traffic will be heralded with satisfaction by vehicle drivers. The work on the Main street improvement was started about a month ago and has been pushed along steadily. This (Friday) morning, weather permitting, the laying of the cement for six feet each side of the trolley tracks at Washington square will be started.

This summer has been a busy one for Street Commissioner Donovan and the public works department of the city. The various street improvements voted at the annual city meeting in June have been pushed along rapidly and a good part of the work is now practically finished. The Spring street improvement is completed as are the Geer avenue and Summitt street sewers, and the Carroll avenue drain. Oakridge street is torn up for the new sewer being laid there and the No. Pratt street will be completed within a short space of time.

PLAYGROUND TABLEAU IS POSTPONED UNTIL TONIGHT

On account of unfavorable weather Thursday evening, the patriotic tableau, Maids of All Nations, which was to have been given by the children of the Hobart avenue playground under instructor Katherine Farrell was postponed and will take place this (Friday) evening at 7:30 at the Hobart avenue grounds, weather conditions permitting. The tableau is most effective and unique and the costumes very picturesque. Each of the 15 girls taking part is garbed according to the national costume of the country which she represents and many of the costumes which were designed by Miss Farrell were made by the children themselves under the supervision of their instructor. The boys of the playground have been busy during the past two days erecting a platform for the performers and aiding in the general decorating of the grounds. The children of the other playgrounds of the city, parents, friends of the little ones of the playcenter and the general public have been invited to attend.

The cast follows: Reader, Kosta Constandi; Hawaiian Girl, Elvina Niedzwiecki; Japanese Girl, Marian Constandi; Grecian Girl, Madeline Donnelly; Italian Girl, Mary Chioda; Dutch Girl, Senio Alex; German Girl, Miriam Seidel; French Girl, Margaret Payment; Spanish Girl, Raffena Falcone; English Girl, Mary Kelly; Scotch Girl, May Donnelly; Irish Girl, Winifred Kelly; Indian Girl, Helen Seidel, American Girl, Marjorie Pierce.

As an added attraction little Miss Mary Chioda will be seen in feature toe dancing which she has performed on the Palace stage. The annual bimonthly meeting of the recreation commission will be held immediately after the performance at Hobart avenue.

WEATHER

Conditions

The disturbance that was central over Illinois Wednesday night has moved east-northeastward to western New York and it has been attended by showers over middle and northern sections east of the Mississippi river.

The temperature was higher Thursday in the middle Atlantic states. A maximum of one hundred degrees was registered at Charlotte N. C., which is the highest of record at that place for the month of August.

The indications are for general showers in the north Atlantic Friday. Otherwise generally fair weather will prevail Friday and Saturday.

The temperature will be slightly lower Friday in the Atlantic states from Maryland to Georgia. There will be little change in temperature in the Washington forecast district on Saturday.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook—Moderate to fresh winds, mostly southeast and south, weather overcast and showery Friday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras—Moderate to fresh shifting winds, becoming northwest and weather mostly overcast; possibly local rains Friday.

Forecast

Eastern New York: Mostly cloudy Friday; possibly showers Friday morning; Saturday fair; moderate temperature.

Northern New England: Showers Friday; Saturday generally fair; not much change in temperature.

Southern New England: Cloudy, probably local showers Friday; Saturday generally fair; not much change in temperature.

TAFTVILLE

James Durand who has been spending several weeks at the Ponemah house has left town.

A Ford touring car, said to be owned by a man named Chenette lay helplessly crippled all day Thursday near the Providence street curb, with the front axle broken and the left front wheel collapsed.

George W. Beardow of Providence street and William C. Kendall of Norwich, motored to Providence, R. I., Wednesday evening in Mrs. Kendall's car, and were guests of William R. Booth.

"King George" Jacques of East Killingly was in town Wednesday and conferred with John B. Benoit. E. W. Ferrington and John D. Sharples regarding the bake that the king is to serve to the Pioneers at their annual celebration here next month. A visit was made to Ponemah heights, and plans were made to feed the big crowd who are sure to atend the event.

Nicholas Lukoff and son Peter Lukoff of South B street were visitors at Niantic, early in the week.

One of the young daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brochu of North A street broke her arm one evening this week, while playing on the seesaws in one of the village squares.

The carnival for the benefit of the Sacred Heart Church parish opened Wednesday evening on the grounds of the school and convent. The grounds were lighted with strings of Japanese lanterns, and the booths were gaily decorated. All the booths, each of which is in charge of one of the societies connected with the parish, did a thriving business. There was an unusually large attendance both on the opening night and Thursday evening.

Miss Helen Allard of South B street has returned from the William W. Backus hospital where she has been a patient following an operation for appendicitis.

The members of Castle Perilous, No. 247, K. O. K. A. held an enjoyable potato bake at Shetucket Beach, Wednesday evening, about 25 attending. Before the bake the members enjoyed a cooling swim and some water sports, after which the "spuds" were roasted in three blazing drift-wood fires on the beach. At the short business session which followed the bake, it was planned to have a weenie roast in September, when a program for the winter conclaves will be arranged.

Friends of Lewis A. Tillinghast, a resident of the village for over 50 years, who now resides with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. Taylor and family of New Haven, learn that he underwent an operation at the New Haven Hospital Tuesday afternoon and is resting very comfortably.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Erlbeck and family have taken a house on Norwich avenue.

Fred Tyler has resigned his position with the Ponemah company and has left town.

Equipment for the building of the state road from the top of Merchants avenue over Gallows hill to Norwich Town, began to arrive Thursday.

Andrew Keating of New Haven was a business caller in the village Thursday.

Hydrangeas are blooming in profusion in the yards of thevarious residences of the town.

Mr. and Mrs. Roderick St. Marie and family of Terrace avenue have been recent visitors in Chicopee, Mass.

Miss Freida Saroski of South B street was a visitor at Pine Grove, Niantic Wednesday.

Miss Elizabeth Sullivan, R. N. of Norwich visited Mrs. Martin E. Muller of Hunters avenue this week.

Miss Louise Sigrist, R. N. has returned to her home on Merchants avenue after spending several days at Gardner's Lake.

The annual outing and clambake of the Ponemah Wheel club will be held Sunday at Poquetanuck drawbridge. It is expected that practically the whole membership of the club will be present leaving Taftville at 9 o'clock Sunday morning with the intent to make a real day of it. Chef Benoit will put on the bake which is recommendation enough for "Chee's" reputation is known far and wide.

WILL OPEN ONE SIDE OF MAIN STREET TO TRAFFIC SATURDAY

Announcement was made Thursday night by Street Commissioner John C. Donovan that the right hand side of Main street from Market street to Washington square will be opened to traffic Saturday morning. With the exception of one small section of the street, in front of Schwartz Bros., store the laying of the cement on that side of the street has been completed. This small section can't be completed for ten days. Traffic will pass over it until the cement is laid when the traffic will be routed around it until it has set and is ready for use.

The opening of the street to traffic will be heralded with satisfaction by vehicle drivers. The work on the Main street improvement was started about a month ago and has been pushed along steadily. This (Friday) morning, weather permitting, the laying of the cement for six feet each side of the trolley tracks at Washington square will be started.

This summer has been a busy one for Street Commissioner Donovan and the public works department of the city. The various street improvements voted at the annual city meeting in June have been pushed along rapidly and a good part of the work is now practically finished. The Spring street improvement is completed as are the Geer avenue and Summitt street sewers, and the Carroll avenue drain. Oakridge street is torn up for the new sewer being laid there and the No. Pratt street will be completed within a short space of time.

NEGRO HELD IN JAIL FOR STABBING AFFRAY

With a deep knife wound in his back, the result of a stabbing affray at the Oswegatchie house Thursday morning, Henry G. Waters, negro, is a patient at the Lawrence and Memorial Associated Hospital, New London. His assailant, Adolphus Leon negro, captured by Deputy Sheriffs J H. Tubbs and M. J. Martin while making a getaway, was arraigned in Waterford town court, charged with assault with intent to kill.

Leon entered a plea of not guilty to the charge and upon recommendation of Assistant Attorney J. James Floyd, the case was continued until Aug. 25, by which time the results of the wound will have been known.

The stabbing affray grew out of an argument between the men, both of whom were employed in the kitchen at the Oswegatchie house. After an exchange of words the men grappled and Leon is alleged to have slashed his victim, burying a small knife deep in his back. The ambulance was summoned from the Lawrence and Memorial associated hospital and the deputy sheriffs and Waterbury constables summoned.

Leon was reported to have taken to the woods and a posse was organized including Constables Alexander F. Rose, Frank L. Peabody, and Manuel Rose, Leverett Dimock and others. While the men were scouring the woods, Miss Evelyn Tucker observed the negro riding on a truck toward East Lyme and notified Deputy Sheriffs Tubbs and Martin. Shortly afterward William Wilson, truck driver, with the negro whom he had picked up on the road, drove back with the negro. He was promptly taken into custody by the officer.

Judge Dimmock fixed the bond at $2,000 and in default of surety Leon was committed to the county jail.

WILL BE MARRIED AT WATCH HILL THIS MONTH

Plans for the wedding of Miss Anita Lihme of Watch Hill to Prince Edward Joseph Lobkowicz of Vienna, which is to take place at the Watch Hill chapel on Saturday, Aug. 29 were announced Thursday.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Clement A Griscom, 3rd, of Philadelphia, is to be matron of honor, and the bridesmaids will be the Misses Helen Isham of Chicago, Sarah Mellon and Margaret McCargo of Pittsburgh, Marjory Oelrichs of New York and Newport, Narcissa Vanderlip of New York and Dorothy Rhodes of Detroit.

The ushers will be Prince Ferdinand Lobkowicz of Vienna, Count Apponyi of Budapest, Prince Eugene Lubomirski, Clement A. Griscom, 3rd, Austin Grey, Count Vetter, Harold Lihme, Baron Miller, George Larski and Frederick Allen.

Following the ceremony the couple will leave for a trip abroad and will reside after Dec. 1 at 280 Park avenue, New York.

The coming wedding which promises to be the most brilliant social event of the present season at Watch Hill, will be the central event in a series of parties, dinners and dances in honor of Miss Lihme and her fiance. Several hundred invitations and announcements of the wedding have been mailed through the Watch Hill post office this week.

RECKLESS DRIVING CASE CONTINUED BY COURT

In the city court Thursday morning the case of Ralph Urban, charged with reckless driving, was continued until Aug. 18, by Judge Arthur F. Libby. Urban figured in a smash on Washington street, Wednesday noon, when his machine struck one driven by Walter G. Hitchon, Jr., and swerved over onto Chelsea Parade, overturning and being wrecked.

His arrest followed an investigation of the accident by Officers Michael Carroll and William Ryan. One intoxication case was heard and one case of violation of the parking ordinance met with the usual nolle and payment of $5 to the court.

NEMROD GROTTO HOLDS OUTING AT LEBANON

About 150 members of Nemrod Grotto, their wives and friends enjoyed the annual Grotto outing, held at Lebanon, Thursday. The party left Norwich during the early afternoon and owing to the inclement weather all events were held in the Lebanon hall, just off the Green. The affair proved a success and was thoroughly enjoyable despite the rain.

Among the events of the afternoon which afforded considerable entertainment was a basket ball game between the Grotto and Lebanon, resulting in a victory for Lebanon, 23 to 16. There were indoor events for women, men and boys and a tug-of-war between the married men and single men, the married men winning the argument, one of the few they are ever able to win.

At 6 o'clock in the evening a delightful supper was served by the Ladies Aid of Lebanon, the menu consisting of baked beans, several kinds of salad, sliced boiled ham, pickles, rolls, coffee, cake and pie.

Following the supper, and through the courtesy of First Selectman Bishop of Lebanon, the Lebanon War office was opened for the inspection of the Grotto and their guests, many taking advantage of the opportunity of seeing the many relics in the museum.

From 8 o'clock until late into the night dancing was enjoyed, the musical program being splendidly rendered by Thumm's Grotto Orchestra.

The committee in charge of the outing comprised, Everett Peckham, as chairman, George Chappell, William Turner, Fred Hoffman, Edward Hindle, Herman Stelzner and Elmer Johnson of Norwich, while William Curry and Edward Jones were in charge of the Lebanon arrangements.

DR. HARRY COHEN IS VISITING PARENTS HERE

Dr. Harry Cohen, rabbi of the Jewish community of Chester, Pa., is visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Cohen, of Spring street.

Rabbi Cohen was born in New York but spent his youth in Norwich and is a graduate of the Norwich Free Academy. He is recognized as an authority on the English Bible and recently an article on various translations of the Bible, was published by newspapers with the Associated Press. He is a graduate of the College of the City of New York and Columbia university, where he received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in 1918. He is also a graduate of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, and recently returned from Europe, where he undertook special studies in the University of Berlin and in the Talmudical Academies of Lithuavia.

His private library numbers over 5,000 volumes and contains some of the best books on Biblical subjects and several of his works are to be published this year. He is also the author of "R. David Kinche's Commentary on Hosea Critically Examined," "The Mishna Text and Manuscript of Nashim," "The Academy of Jabneh" and other works of the Bible and Talmud.

Previous to his position at Chester, Pa., Dr. Cohen was rabbi of congregations in Cleveland, Ohio, and Bethlehem, Pa. In Chester he has been elected rabbi of both congregations of the city and is director of all activities of the Jewish people in the city, religious and educational. Under his leadership a new Jewish center to house activities of the Jewish residents of the city, is now being erected.

RALPH DIVITO TO LEAVE FOR ITALY

The many friends of Ralph DiVito, well known supernumerary of the police force, learn with regret that he is soon to leave this city for his native country, Italy. Mr. DiVito has not been in good health for some time and it is hoped that he may regain his health in Italy, thus allowing him to return to Norwich some time in the future. He will carry the best wishes of friends here for a speedy recovery, and a hope that he will be able to return to Norwich again fully recovered.

PAYNE MENTIONED FOR LEGION HEAD

Two New London men, Maj. Gen. Morris H. Payne and Col. Henry S. Dorsey, are likely to become candidates for the post of department commander of the American Legion at the state convention of the legion to be held in New London Aug. 27, 28 and 29. General Payne has not stated yet whether he will run for the office or not, but it is expected that he will enter the field if sufficient strength is shown for his candidacy. Col. Dorsey has considerable support for the office among legionnaires in the southern part of the state, and, failing the candidacy of General Payne, will be first choice of this section.

DAIRY CLUB HOLDS ALL DAY COUNTY TOUR

A dozen members of the New London County Dairy club held an all day county tour Wednesday. The first stop was at Rubin Manning's farm in North Franklin. Mr. Manning exhibited his herd of pure bred Holsteins which average 12,000 pounds of milk a year. The second stop was at James Wade's farm in Sprague and other stops included James Lathrop's farm, at Raymond Hill, and Thomas Wood's farm in Waterford.

PLAN POULTRY FIELD DAY IN PRESTON

Arrangements are being completed by the New London County Farm Bureau for a poultry field day to be held September 29th. The field day, which will be a county affair, will be held at the farm of W. W. Service in Preston. Speakers of state wide reputation will be on the programme and basket lunches will be enjoyed on the shores of the nearby lake.

LIONS CLUB APPROVES HIGHWAY RE-LOCATION

The meeting of the Norwich Lions club, held Thursday noon at the Wauregan House, proved a most interesting one for the members, two very interesting talks being given, one by Dr. Charles W. Solomon, on Dentistry and Care of the Teeth, and the other by Arthur L. Peale, concerning the proposed new highway between Jewett City and Danielson.

President William A. Anderson was in charge of the meeting and outlined briefly the proposed re-location of the state highway, urging its approval by the club. A discussion of the subject followed, after which the following resolution was unanimously adopted: That the Lions club of Norwich, at its regular meeting, approves the re-location of the proposed highway between Norwich, Jewett City and Danielson.

Max Hanover was in charge of the entertainment program and introduced as the five-minute speaker of the day, Dr. Charles W. Solomon, who gave a most interesting and instructive talk on the value of caring for the teeth. He spoke of keeping them in good condition.

Mr. Peale was presented by Max Hanover and Mr. Peale was given to a hearty welcome by the club. Mr. Peale speaking on Highways, Old and New said in his talk:

Transportation, traffic and highway problems are attracting our attention more and more every day. In this morning's paper we read of some proposed changes which would be especially advantageous and the state highway department are to be congratulated on the great progress they are making in road building. Only the other day one of the Hartford papers displayed a large map on one of the front pages and announced that the New Haven system would probably supercede train service with buses in the near future. While this may be very pleasing news to the bus enthusiasts, I have been wondering what is going to happen to our mail service, and what the effect will be to be a bus town. Think it over, it is worthy of serious thought. I did not come to you today to speak on this subject but just wished to leave with you a few suggestions on eastern Connecticut as a historical center and highways, old and new.

A prominent newspaper in its editorial columns recently stated that two and a half million dollars would be spent by campers and automobile tourists this year in America. We well know that our highways are being used more and more each year and during the vacation period hundreds of camping parties are seen passing through this city en route for the mountains and shore. California, Colorado and many of the western states probably attract the majority of tourists, but even in New England, especially in Maine and New Hampshire the numbers are increasing. At Portland, Maine, there is a very active publicity bureau inviting travelers to that state and the statistics show that the greater number come by automobile. "The Missions' of California are given great publicity in that state, and surely are objects of great interest. Why should not more publicity be given to our historical places in eastern Connecticut? Here we have the Mohegan Trail which is supposed to run from New London to Webster, Mass., and thence on to the Green and White Mountains. A reference to a few of these places should prove interesting. At New London is the Old Mill and Nathan Hale School. On the outskirts of the city, Connecticut College, a modern institution from which grounds one can obtain a wonderful view of Long Island and Fisher's Island sounds. Continuing through Quaker Hill, named after a sect who formerly resided in that locality we come to a charming village named after the great sachem of the Mohegans. A short distance beyond we pass Mohegan Hill and here were the principal settlements of the Mohegans. On the west side of the road was one of the old forts and the tribal farm and on the east side is the little church and in the distance can be seen the site of Shantok, the principal fort of Uncas, where he was besieged many times. Near by is the old Indian burying ground and half way down the hill was the home of Samson Occum, the Indian boy who raised funds which were used in founding Dartmouth college. On this same road and at the foot of Butternut Hill, so-called, we arrive at Trading Cove, where the early settlers first traded with the Indians. This part of the road from Trading Cove brook was a part of the old Norwich-New London turnpike, the first one established in New England and the second in America. Passing through Norwich and just beyond Greeneville we observe the monument to Miantonomo, the sachem of the Narragansetts who was slain on Sachem's plain. The Shetucket river is crossed and near by was the old fording place of the Indians. The Quinebaug is followed for many miles and passing through Jewett City we come to Plainfield. Here the visit to the old church is an interesting one, and if one has the time motor over to Canterbury, the former home of Cleveland who founded the city that bears his name. On the route to Danielson stop over at Brooklyn and see the Israel Putnam monument, the old homes in the town and also not far distant is the Wolf Den, now a state park. At Killingly is Lake Mashapaug famed in the legends of the Nipmucks and not far distant is Putnam, named after the great hero of the Revolutionary War. On then to Thompson the beautiful old historical hill town and then Lake Chargogg—comes into view. This was called the happy hunting grounds of the Nipmucks and is a very beautiful place.

The Military highway is probably one of the most used and too much credit cannot be given to Herbert R. Branche and the late Frederic W. Cary and Lewis Crandall for their active work in its establishment the old "Brewster Trading Post" located at the state hospital. Passing through the beautiful pine grove and crossing Poquetanuck cove we are in the town of Ledyard where is situated Mr. Decatur where the Commodore by the same name built his fort in 1812-14. Mr. Charles H. Brown of this city has generously given the use of these grounds to the public. Gales Ferry the old ferry crossing now the early summer home of the Yale and Harvard crews, the Submarine Base is always an attraction and at the terminus of the route at Groton is Fort Griswold famous in its defence against Benedict Arnold in 1781.

The Jonathan Trumbull highway extends across the state passing through this city, in the east end. Lantern Hill towers majestically and nearby are the Pequot reservations. North of Norwich on this same route is Lebanon with the old war office of Governor Trumbull. Here also William Williams, signer of the Declaration of Independence, lived and was buried. This old town is a great mecca for tourists.

The Norwich-Willimantic-Stafford Springs route is an attractive one to the north and part of the road before the year 1800 was called Route No. 6 on the "Road to Dartmouth College" branching off at Windham.

Norwich has the Uncas monument and Norwich Falls within the city limits and on the way to the north more than a hundred old colonial homes are passed. In the old burying grounds are the graves of the French soldiers and nearby the tomb of Samuel Huntington, signer of the Declaration of Independence. Norwichtown green has the old store and schoolhouse and to the west end the Meeting House Rocks the site of the first church.

On the banks of the Yantic is the monument to Capt. John Mason who defeated the Pequots in 1637.

Huntington Green is of interest and in the town of Franklin many of the old milestones may be seen enroute. A short ride from Willimantic is Coventry and here was the birthplace of Nathan Hale, the old Hale homestead has been restored by Mr. Seymour of New Haven and there is a very imposing monument at South Coventry in memory of Hale.

There are many other highways. The Norwich-Colchester, the route to Hadlyme and Connecticut River, the Boston Post Road, the Pequot Path, the Greenwich Path and one of the most noted the "Connecticut Path," which was traveled by the settlers who first founded this state. This passes through the northern part of Windham county, all of which I can only refer to briefly. The state of Connecticut through its park commissioner has established many parks in eastern Connecticut and I believe with the united effort of our people in this section many people would be attracted and visit the historical places here.

The meeting voted to hold their luncheon August 27th at the Indian Wigwam, Mohegan Hill, on the Norwich-New London highway.

FORMER NORWICH MAN FOUND AFTER 25 YEARS SEARCH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 13.—"Father, father, father." "Mary, my little girl." Wreathed in smiles yet half in tears, Mrs. Mary Dupont, of this city, after a search of 25 years, today ended her quest when in a shadowy room in a local hotel she found her father, J. Michael Connelly, 60, of New York. His disappearance from the Connelly home at 114 Holmes street, Norwich, Conn., 25 years ago was followed three years later by a report of his death and an apparent identification of a corpse found in a Providence hotel as that of Mr. Connelly.

Twenty-five years ago, after a family disagreement, he left his wife, who was Ellen Mahoney, of Norwich, before her marriage. When weeks lengthened into months and he failed to return, his family started a search for him. The search seemed ended three years later when Mrs. Connelly identified a watch found on an unidentified man as hers and worn by her husband. His daughter, Mrs. Dupont, her faith still strong that her father was living, tried all means of locating the missing man but all attempts failed until last night, when her nephew told her that a man seen strolling near her home in the afternoon claimed to be her father.

A survey of all the hotel registers of the city revealed the name of Mr Connelly at the Hotel Burton and there, this morning Mr. Connelly swept his daughter into his arms, and half sobbing yet in smiles, they lived over again the long years which have passed since they last met.

Mr. Connelly was employed on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad for a time and then went to New York where he has been employed as a furniture salesman for several years. He left this afternoon for Hartford, Providence and Norwich to visit his other relatives whom he has not been in as many years. His daughter, Annie, is Mrs. Michael Guinan, of 122 Franklin street, Norwich, Conn.

Mrs. Connelly died in this city several years ago. A son, James W. Connelly, formerly a waiter at the Wauregan hotel, also died in Norwich some years ago.

FORMER NORWICH WOMAN PREACHES AT TRENTON

Mrs. George H. Strouse, formerly of Norwich, preached at the New Salem Baptist church on Lamberton street, Trenton, N. J., on Tuesday evening.

Her text was from the Revelation, 14th chapter and verses 6 and 7. It reads: "And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation and kindred and tongue and people, saying with a loud voice.

Fear God, and give glory to Him, for the hour of His judgment is come, and worship Him that made heaven and earth and the sea and the, fountains of waters."

Her theme was the Evolution Discussion Forecast in the Bible.

Mrs. Strouse said in substance that the present controversy over Evolution and the Bible is foretold in the Scriptures.

God saw that there would be perplexity in men's minds as to the Cause of Creation.

He also foresaw that at the time of the end of civilization or of the world there would be a need for a movement calling men back to the Bible and to the God of the Bible—the great Creator of all things, because there would be almost universal infidelity.

This present agitation over the Bible is the beginning of such a movement. Many leaders in this movement to exalt the Bible against Evolution, however, will give place to leaders who will give the Biblical Creation message in more exact terms.

Mrs. Strouse said that many of the supporters of the Bible had one weak spot in their exposition of the Bible.

They were not certain on the question of the length of the days of Creation.

They said these days were long periods of time and not days of 24 hours each.

Mrs. Strouse told her audience that God also foresaw that this question of days would arise.

He was careful to make that point clear in the first chapter of Genesis. Six times in that chapter it is written, "and the evening and the morning were the day."

Where could we find an evening and a morning to an indefinite time of a million years or more, if these days were long periods of time? she asked.

There is no record of the evening and morning of millions of years.

There is, however, a record of the evening and morning to the day of 24 hours; and every human being is acquainted in his life with the evening and morning or the light and darkness period of the literal day.

If God gave us the Bible to instruct us then He would write it in terms that we could understand.

This sentence of "the evening and the morning were the day," defines the length of the periods of creation to have been days of 24 hours each.

Mrs. Strouse said that her text gave her reason to prophesy that this exaltation of a personal Creator and of His infallible Book, the Holy Bible, would go with a louder voice and in correct terms.

The true exegisis of the Bible would be proclaimed world-wide that "in six days the Lord made Heaven and Earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day; wherefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath Day and hallowed it." Exodus 20:11.

Mrs. Strouse was invited to preach again for her hearers as they expressed their appreciation of her remarks.

Visiting White Mountains

Mrs. Thomas M. Crowley of Williams street and Miss Margaret N. Meehan of Otis street are on a motor trip through the White Mountains.

FOUR-WAY HIGHWAY IS COSTLY PROJECT

The 50-mile, four-way super-highway to be built by the state of Connecticut between New Haven and New York state line will cost four and a half million dollars, it is estimated by State Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald. The plan is to have completed in about three years a concrete slab 9 inches thick and 36 feet wide in an 80-foot right of way, which, the current issue of the Engineering News-Record says "is probably the longest stretch of paved road of equal width under actual construction in the United States."

No sooner will this super-highway for general traffic be completed, in the opinion of Commissioner Macdonald, than a parallel "express highway" for commuters to and from New York will be necessary, if commuters continue to swell the population of Fairfield county at the present rate. Preliminary surveys already have been undertaken to determine the most advantageous location for such a highway.

The 118th Observation Squadron of the Connecticut National Guard has offered the services of airplanes pilots and photographers to assist in the preparation of necessary topographical maps of the territory through which the proposed highway would pass.

"Ten years ago the possibility (of a super-highway like that now being constructed from New Haven to the New York line) would have been derided," says the Engineering News-Record. "Five years ago the probability would barely have been conceded."

More than 16,000 automobiles passed a given point on the Boston Post road in Greenwich on July 3 of this year it is announced. On the previous day, 10,027 cars were counted there, and, on the following day, 12,043, a startling increase over the counts taken by the United States bureau of roads in co-operation with the state highway department in 1922 and 1923. Traffic has increased at that point about 20 per cent. a year. "This traffic, both by its volume and its regularity and by its high annual increase makes clear the growing inability of an 18-foot road to give it accommodations," says the engineering publication. It is the busiest section of state highway in the country.

Four contracts in the projects have already been let, involving expenditures aggregating $1,019,033. "The work will cost, in round numbers $100,000 a mile, and the state highway department is approaching it with the idea of spending about a million dollars a year on it for five years. Independent experimental sections undertaken two years ago are being linked up in the general plan.

"Widening the road is a major operation both financially and constructionally," according to the News-Record, which has had experts on the scene studying it. "The road is through the famous shore district—a settlement of rich residential, resort and manufacturing towns and cities merging almost into each others' boundaries. Land is astonishingly high priced. Widening called for more land, the taking down of rows of great trees, the moving back of costly walls and fences, the disturbing of property rights which had endured since the time of the Pilgrims.

"In addition to the widening there were places where old kinks in the road must be removed by buying land for a new line. Line changes and widening are in a word costly in property damages and construction before any surfacing costs enter. A high type of construction for the new road was logical. A quarter to a third of the vehicles using the roads are trucks carrying factory products to New York. Whole trains of trucks are run nightly by some of the factories or by general trucking concerns. A stiff road is required to carry this traffic."

PLAN MORE DORMITORIES FOR STATE FARM

Competitive plans and estimates for the construction of a new dormitory at the State Farm for Women, have been advertised for by Frederick M. Salmon, comptroller of the state of Connecticut, to be filed with his office in the state capitol, Hartford. A public hearing on the plans has been set for Friday, Sept. 25, in the state capitol. Which means that within a short time the state farm will have available the needed additional room for which so much agitation was heard during the recent legislative session.

The proposed dormitory is to house 25 girls and three officers, to be of fireproof construction, two stories in height, with basement. Preference is in favor of hollow tile construction, stucco covered with slate roof, copper gutters, etc.

The comptroller has the sum of $42,130 available for the building, including architect's fees, and on that account each architect will be required to sign his plans and accompany them with an estimate from a reliable contractor. Floor plans only, are to be furnished by the comptroller and each architect works out his own design with the needed accommodations in view.

All competing architects must submit their plans and estimates to the comptroller at his office in Hartford not later than Friday, Sept. 11, at 11 o'clock, standard time. The right is reserved by the state to reject any or all plans.

It is understood that several local architectural firms will be numbered among the competitors.

"Ben Hance," the dying man replied.

"And you know Gerald Chapman?" [illegible] officer asked.

Don't ask me," Hance returned.

He then asked that Detective Puckett be called.

It is known that members of the Chapman gang had sworn to obtain revenge on Hance for giving information which led to the arrest of the "Prince of Bandits."

Mrs. Hance has lived in dread of being murdered ever since her husband informed the police of Chapman's whereabouts.

At the time her husband went to Hartford, Conn., to testify against Chapman she refused to accompany [illegible] part), preferring to stay at home fearing she would killed.

On several occasions while her husband was in the east the woman called the local police headquarters asking for protection telling the officers that her home was being watched.

When Chapman was taken into custody by local police early this year he readily admitted his identity to police officers.

ONE OF ANDERSON'S ACCOMPLICES CAPTURED

MUNCIE, Ind., Aug. 14—Charles "One Arm" Wolfe, one of the companions of George "Dutch" Anderson who late today shot and killed Ben Hance and his wife because they informed police last January of the whereabouts of Gerald Chapman, notorious mail robber, was captured by local police at 10.25 tonight driving through the city.

The cache also held thirty-seven opium pipes, some of them of rare woods, sacles for weighing drugs, lamps for cooking opium for smoking and a miscellany of other merchandise.

The former narcotic chief, out on bond, charged with conspiracy and violation of the anti-narcotic act, declined to comment on the seizure Mrs. Gilhooley, who has been in jail since special intelligence agents raided her apartment, was released today on bonds of $5,000.

HOW NEWS WAS RECEIVED AT WETHERSFIELD PRISON

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 14—(A. P.)—Warden H. K. W. Scott of the state prison when notified tonight of the murder of Ben Hance and his wife, in Muncie, Ind., was much interested but declined to comment. Asked if the news would be told to Chapman, he replied that it would not unless he should learn of it in time through his lawyers. In reply to questions whether extra guards would be thrown about the prison in anticipation of a possible attack by Chapman's gang, he said "the prison is always carefully guarded and will continue to be."

During the trial of Chapman, during the latter part of March and early April, he was closely guarded when taken from the prison to the courthouse and back each day, one car full of deputy sheriffs, preceding and another following the limousine in which the prisoner was convey. These precautions were taken at the insistnce of State's Attorney Alcorn, who himself, as well as Judge Newell Jennings, the presiding judge, had a persons body guard throughout the trial.

Hance was one of the principal witnesses against Chapman in his trial for the murder last October 12 of Policeman James J. Skelly of New Britain. Chapman glared at him coldly when he took the witness stand as a state witness and identified a small arsenal of sawed-off shot-guns, revolvers, and pistols which had been found in the car used by the Skelly murderers as articles which Chapman and his gang had in their possession when they lived during the summer of 1921 at his farm in Eaton, Ind.

A high-powered touring car found near the scene of the New Britain murder and which Walter Shean of Springfield, Chapman's accomplice identified as Chapman's was also identified at the trial by Hance as a car which Chapman and his gang used in Indiana and which was kept in Hance's barn. Chapman was also seen by Hance, previous to the Hartford trial, at Hance's farm in Indiana a year ago.

A heavy mallet found at the foot of a safe in Davidson and Leventhal's department store in New Britain, which Chapman is alleged to have blown open just before the murder of Policeman Skelly, was readily identified by Hance as a tool he had seen in Chapman's room in Indiana, as was also an axle iron found on the New Britain scene.

Walter Shean, who was considered to be the star witness of the state against Chapman until Lillian Knell, a Meriden waitress, testified, has been locked up in the county jail since the Chapman trial, State's Attorney Alcorn having deferred his trial, pending the outcome of Chapman's appeal to the supreme court, which is to be argued in October.

Fearing reprisals by Chapman's confederates on the outside, Shean is said to have preferred to keep his de. Mr. Alcorn has not divulged upon what charge he will present Shean when the time comes, but announced after Chapman had been sentenced that the public could rest assured that Shean would get a long prison term. He declined to say how long a term he would recommend.

Shean at the county jail was not disturbed tonight to be told of the killing of Hance and his wife. He will probably be told tomorrow.

Hance and the four Muncie, Ind., policemen who captured Chapman were seated in a line of chairs directly in front of the cage where Chapman sat, heavily guarded after the jury had returned a verdict of guilty of first degree murder against him. Chapman was seen to be looking intently at Hance and to whisper something under his breath.

ANDERSON'S WHEREABOUTS HAS BEEN A MYSTERY

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 14—(A. P.)—George "Dutch" Anderson, charged with complicity in a double killing at Muncie, Indiana, escaped from the federal penitentiary here a year and a half ago, tunnelling his way under the prison walls with two companions.

Anderson's get-a-way followed the sensational escape of his confederate, Gerald Chapman, by several months. Chapman's daring departure was under the eyes of guards and accompanied by a hail of bullts, which resulted in the wounding of the notorious robber.

The escape of Anderson was undiscovered by prison officers until the prisoner had successfully left the penitentiary and gained some distance on pursuers. Authorities believed that the tunnel under the walls must have required from one to six months to dig.

Whereabouts of Anderson since his escape have been a mystery to prison authorities here. At sundry times reports of his alleged activities would reach federal officers but every effort to effect his recapture proved vain

STATEMENT BY COUNSEL FOR GERALD CHAPMAN

HARTFORD, Aug. 14—Judge Frederick J. Groehl, of New York, Chapman's senior counsel was notified by the Hartford Courant at his summer home, Monterey, Vt., tonight of the murder of Hance and his wife.

"Off-hand I would say that I don't think Anderson had anything to do with it," he said. "They can't help Chapman by reprisals. That's self-evident. Of course, that is only my opinion, but there could be no incentive. Hance's testimony didn't hurt Chapman seriously. Chapman did not deny that he had stayed with Hance and Hance was unable to swear that he saw Chapman handling those guns and other articles. He wasn't sure when I asked him whetner they were Chapman's or the other men's belongings. It's a terrible thing, but I don't think Anderson would be foolish enough to think he could help Chapman that way."

DEVELOPMENTS IN THE CHICAGO NARCOTIC SCANDAL

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Jewelry valued at $50,000 was seized today by government agents who opened a safety deposit box leased by Kitty Gilhooley, whose arrest a few days ago led to the seizure of narcotics valued at $150,000. Her arrest also led to the investigation of Colonel Will Gray Beach, chief of narcotic agents here, arrested later for bartering narcotics for various kinds of merchandise, much of it stolen.

Another sensation was created by the opening of ten packing cases belonging to Beach, found yesterday. These contained the skull of a baby, one hundred Chinese bowls and several packages of narcotics. The presence of hundreds of keys, lamp shades, cigarette cases, and a sack full of cheap jackknives, seemed to be the result of a hobby for collecting.

The cache also held thirty-seven opium pipes, some of them of rare woods, sacles for weighing drugs, lamps for cooking opium for smoking and a miscellany of other merchandise.

The former narcotic chief, out on bond, charged with conspiracy and violation of the anti-narcotic act, declined to comment on the seizure Mrs. Gilhooley, who has been in jail since special intelligence agents raided her apartment, was released today on bonds of $5,000.

WORCESTER POLICE ARE IN QUEST OF BANDITS

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 14.—Although out-witted by the bandits who in the past five days have perpetuated a series of daring holdups that have aroused the citizens of Worcester and vicinity, police authorities of this city, aided by the state constabulary forces, has spread officers over a wide territory tonight in an effort to round up the men. Additional armed men on motorcycles were also assigned to patrol duty throughout the city with orders to shoot at the slightest resistance, if they found the bandits. The police detail in the Lake Quinsigamond sections, where the bandits have been particularly daring, was increased so that every switch of it was under constant scrutiny of the officers.

The fact that there have been three distinct series of hold-ups Sunday, Wednesday and Thursday led the police to believe that there are more than three men concerned in the activities. The police believe that a bandit gang has been recruited among the young men, and has for its leaders three young men who have recently been released from jail after serving sentences for similar activities.

OPPOSITION TO MAYOR HYLAN IS GROWING

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(AP)—An open attack on Gov. Smith and the intimation that Mayor Hylan may run as an independent in New York mayoralty campaign were high spots today in the fight between Tammany Hall and the mayor for political leadership in the city.

Gov. Smith's espousal of the candidacy of State Senator James J. Walker and his definite statement that he would help in the fight to defeat Mayor Hylan, was the cause of declarations by Hylan adherents that the governor was "irregular."

Suggestions of a growing fight against the mayor in Brooklyn were contained in statements made by various democratic leaders there, who said today that Gov. Smith's support of Senator Walker had taken many votes away from Mayor Hylan.

Benjamin Schrieber, Senator Walker's campaign manager, announced the Tammany platform as better transadequate school facilities.

Frank D. Waterman, republican candidate for mayor, has almost been overshadowed by the Hylan-Tammany fight but is quietly continuing his own organization plans.

BRITISH GOVERNMENT HAS SETTLED TEXTILE DISPUTE

LONDON, Aug. 14—(A. P.)—A settlement was reached today, through government mediation, in the textile dispute which has been in progress since about three weeks ago when the mill owners announced a wage reduction of eight per cent.

Representatives of the operators and workers, meeting at the ministry of labor, agred that the strikers shall resume work at the old scale of wages, pending the negotiations of a new wage agreement based on the findins of a court of investigation which is to be appointed.

About 200,000 textile workers in Yorkshire are affected.

BELIEVE BURNING OF KLAN HOME INCENDIARY

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 14—(A. P.)—County authorities today ordered an investigation into the origin of a fire whih destroyed the newly erected home of the Indiana county Ku Klux Klan last night with an estimated loss of $35,000. Nearby residents told police an explosion preceded the fire, which they believed was incendiary.

Heart Disease Fatal To Mrs. J. P. Morgan

Fatal Attack Followed Illness of Two Months With Sleeping Sickness — No Relatives at Bedside.

GLEN COVE, N. Y., Aug. 14—Mrs. J. P. Morgan, wife of the international banker, died at noon today in her Long Island home from a "cardiac collapse" after being ill of sleeping sickness for two months.

No relatives were at the bedside. Mr. Morgan, informed at his Wall street office that his wife was very ill, left before noon by train for Glen Cove. He was met at the station and rushed by automobile to the Morgan country home at Matinecock Point on East Island, which lies a short distance off the mainland at Long Island. He reached his home three hours after his wife's death.

Guards were at once stationed at the causeway connecting East Island to Long Island, and none but relatives and close friends of the family were allowed to approach the home. A doctor and two attendants were at the bedside today when Mrs. Morgan suffered the cardiac collapse. Mrs. Morgan was stricken with sleeping sickness June 14 while attending church services. Several days later it was announced she had passed the crisis and was steadily improving but she never entirely emerged from state of coma.

A corps of specialists attended her following her attack, and Dr. J. J. Tierney chief physician in charge, several times used blood transfusions in an attempt to renew the patient's strength. He also resorted to forcible feeding. Mrs. Morgan, who for years has been a virtual invalid, suffering from heart trouble, lost ground after the first rally from her attack.

Mrs. Morgan was Miss Jane Norton Grew of Boston before she married Mr. Morgan in that city in 1899.

The Morgans had four children, Julius Spencer, Jane Norton, Frances Tracy and Henry Sturgis. Two married names of the daughters are Mrs. Paul G. Pennoyer and Mrs. George Nichols.

Although it would have been easy for Mrs. Morgan to have taken a leading part in New York's most exclusive society she had always given the greater part of her time to the mental training of her children. She was a great lover of flowers and gave much time and thought to their cultivation at the Glen Cove estate.

The two sons—Junius Spencer Morgan and Henry Sturgis Morgan—who left New London, Conn., this morning on the Morgan yacht Corsair on the annual 10-day cruise of the New York Yacht club, were advised of their mother's death by wireless and are returning to Glen Cove.

When they left Glen Cove on the Corsair yesterday to join the cruise they believed their mother to be steadily improving. With them on the Corsair is George Nichols, a son-in-law, who is commodore of the New York Yacht club.

J. P. Morgan, who has been spending much of his time at the bedside of his wife making only flying trips to his Wall Street office by train, was informed this morning that Mrs. Morgan was resting easily and left for New York on the small yacht Navette. When he arrived at his office he found messages from Glen Cove telling him to return at once he left immediately by train, but did not reach the bedside until after his wife's death.

Capturing a severe electrical storm tonight, the electric light system for the Morgan and neighboring estates was disrupted and candles were brought into service to light the Morgan home.

NEW YALE THEATRE TO BE ERECTED IN YORK STREET

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 14—(A. P.)—The new Yale theatre provided for in the gift of $1,000,000 by Edward S. Harkness and to be directed by George Pierce Baker, formerly of Harvard, will be erected on property in York street between the new Wolf's Head tomb and the D. K. E. Fraternity house, it was announced tonight. The university today acquired the property for $125,000.

The announcement was made several months ago that Mr. Harkness, who was a member of the class of 1837 had given the bequest for the establishment of a course in dramatic art in the Yale School of Fine Arts, and the erection of a theatre in which will be produced plays under the auspices of that school and the Yale Dramatic association.

NEW HAVEN ROAD TO RETAIN ITS N. Y., O. & W. HOLDINGS

NEW YORK, Aug. 14—(A. P.)—Wall street hears that the management of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad last Thursday declined an offer of $50 a share for its holdings of the New York, Ontario and Western which amount to 51 per cent of the stock outstanding. The rejection was said to have been based on the New Haven's belief that the Ontario & Western business would be greatly increased with the completion of the Welland Canal, facilitating grain shipments by water from Chicago to Oswego, N. Y., instead of Zuffalo.

Advertise Worthwhile Goods.

Did it ever occur to you that the merchant who advertises does so because he has something worthwhile to tell you about—something that he feels will fit some of your particular needs, something that he knows you might not hear about if it were not for the notice he gives you through his newspaper advertising? He calls your attention to things worthwhile. It would not pay him to advertise inferior goods which would result in dissatisfied customers.

So this mere fact makes it advisable and profitable for you to place your patronage with those merchants who proclaim their confidence in their ability to please you by telling you in advertisements what they have to offer. Bearing that in mind, read the advertisements in The Bulletin by the merchants of Eastern Connecticut who can supply your every want with seasonable and distinctive goods.

Widespread Cut In Gasoline Prices

Oil Trade Expects That Further Reductions Will Follow Along the Eastern Seaboard.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14—A widespread reduction in gasoline prices throughout the eastern seaboard was initiated today by the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, which cut wholesale quotations throughout its territory one cent a gallon, the second reduction by this company within a week. Similar action was taken by independent companies operating in the territory including the Texas Company, Sinclair Refining company and the Gulf Refining Company. The Atlantic Refining company also lopped off two cents from its retail gasoline price in eastern Massachusetts bringing it to the level of other companies.

Owing to excessive gasoline stocks on hand, the oil trade expects that further reductions will follow today's price changes, the Standard Oil Company of New York being mentioned as the next large distributor that will lower the quotations shortly. This company reduced prices two cents a gallon recently and its quotations are now 3 cents above those of companies operating in other eastern territory.

Gasoline consumption last year amounted to 9,000,000,000,465 gallons and statistics for the first six months of this year indicate the total for 1925 will approach eleven billion gallons. Stocks of gasoline on June 30 were circulated at 1,635,000,000 gallons.

SPEEDING OF PLAN FOR PROHIBITION REORGANIZATION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14—(A. P.)—With only two weeks remaining before the whole prohibition reorganization plan is to come into effect, Assistant Secretary Andrews today began speeding up his conferences at the treasury with state directors and division chiefs who have been summoned here from all parts of the country.

A half dozen or more of the day officials conferred with Mr. Andrews today and he has an engagement to see about a score of them tomorrow. He hopes to conclude the conferences Monday and to announce the appointments of the new administrators later in the week.

The assistant secretary has not desired to complete selection of the new officials before conferring personally with the present officials so as to determine just how and where they could fit into the new machinery. At the same time, the conferences have afforded him opportunity to give them his own views as to effective means of forcing the law.

Very unsatisfactory reports as to enforcement in many places have come to the prohibition field marshal, and one of the first jobs of the 24 new administrators who are to have charge of this country and in Porto Rico and Hawaii will be to conduct a cleaning up campaign.

Once the weak links in the enforcement chain have been removed, the officials will be able to concentrate their attention on drives against both bootleggers and those who are obtaining alcohol and other spirits illegally through forged permits and the diverting of industrial and medical spirits to the illicit trade.

MAIL MESSENGER PLANNED REGISTERED MAIL ROBBERY

KEWANEE, Ills., Aug. 14—(A. P.)—With the confession of Joseph Jackson, local mail messenger, that he, with Harry Johnson, and Philip Robinson planned the robbery here yesterday which resulted in the theft of a mail pouch containing registered mail, attention of post office inspectors tonight turned to Rock Island and Chicago in an effort to locate the accomplices.

Johnson and Robinson escaped with the pouch when it was thrown into an automobile.

Jackson, who said he had served a term in the Wyoming penitentiary for automobile theft, said he had met Johnson and Robinson in Casper, Wyo.

Johnson will be arraigned tomorrow on a charge of conspiracy. He confessed after an all night questioning.

A re-check disclosed that only six registered units were in the missing pouch, with no payrolls or bank shipments, the value of the theft is probably identical.

FUNERAL OF EX-MAYOR KINSELLA IN HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Aug. 14—St. Peter's Church could not accommodate the thousands of persons who this morning desired to attend the funeral service of Ex-Mayor Richard J. Kinsella. Hundreds stood in front of the big church. Delegations were present from the municipal government, police and fire departments and organizations of which the ex-Mayor was a member. The service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Thomas S. Duggan, rector of St. Joseph's Cathedral. Bishop John J. Nilan and auxiliary Bishop John G. Murray were in the sanctuary. The funeral procession to Mt. St. Benedict cemetery was half a mile long.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE VISITS FATHER AT OLD HOMESTEAD

The President and Mrs. Coolidge Made an Eight Hour Motor Trip Through Rain Storms and Over Slippery Roads—Found Father Coolidge Waiting For Them in Front of His Home—The President Stopped at Camp Devens to Great His Son, Corporal Coolidge.

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Aug. 14—(A. P.)—Laying aside the cares of his office, President Coolidge was back again tonight in the hills of Vermont for a brief visit with his aged father.

An eight hour motor trip, through rain storms and over slippery roads brought the president from the summer White House in Swampscott to his birth place. Arriving here late in the day he found his father, critically ill six weeks ago, waiting for him in front of his modest home.

This sight was one of several that touched the executive on an eventful day's ride. Earlier he had stopped near Camp evens to greet his son, John, a orporal in the Citizens' Military Training camp, had visited the grave yard, at Rockingham Meeting House, near Bellows Falls, Vt., where his great, great grand-father was buried, and had dropped in at the home in Proctorsville, Vt., of his aunt, Mrs. Sarah Pollard.

Immediately after his arrival here, Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge, accompanied by Col. John Coolidge, the president's father, went to the cemetery where their younger son, Calvin, was buried a little over a year ago. There they remain for a brief time.

The sadness occasioned by the visit to the grave yard was alleviated in a measure in the president's mind by the appearance of his father. Dressed in his best clothes, Col. Coolidge not only greeted his distinguished son and daughter-in-law, but showed them around his place, pointing out a number of late improvements.

Until the visit here Monday of Secretary Mellon and Senator Smoot, of Utah, to discuss the Belgian debt situation, the president intends to keep affairs of state shunted to the background and give himself over to rest and relaxation.

Leaving Swampscott in a drizzle the first stop made by the president was on the outskirts of Ayer, Mass., near Camp Devens, where John was waiting in the automobile of Brigadier General Barnum, camp commandant. The President and Mrs Coolidge kissed the lad, and chatted with him several minutes before continuing on their way.

Between Ayer an Fitchburg, the presidential caravan ran head-on into blinding storm which nearly obscured the view and made driving on the congested Mohawk trail somewhat hazardous. Winding along past trucks and automobiles, with headlights on, the president's limousine made its way in safety through the storm.

Swinging later into New Hampshire and Vermont the president's car travelled for the most part over dirt roads, made muddy and at times almost impassable by rain.

The president and Mrs. Coolidge munched a box lunch as they rode. They stopped for a few minutes at Troy, N. H., and further along they passed through Keene, N. H., and Bellows Falls, Vt., where crowds cheered them.

A few miles north of Bellows Falls, the president ordered his car stopped at a rather isolated point on the road. Familiar with the surroundings, he and Mrs. Coolidge climbed a hill to the Rockingham Meeting House cemetery. After a few moments search they found the slab marking the resting place of the president's maternal great great grandfather, Nathaniel Davis, who, at the age of 87, died in 1803.

Before continuing on their journey, Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge went into the meeting house, stood for a moment at the pew which Nathaniel Davis once occupied and signed the register of the "Old Town Meeting House."

Mrs. Pollard, at Proctorsville, was caught by surprise. She didn't hear the president knock on the door and he was obliged to enter and call for her before she was aware of her guests. Before starting on for Plymouth, the president, Mrs. Coolidge and Mrs. Pollard were photographed together. Mrs. Coolidge holding "Rufus" a big black cat in her arms.

After an early supper here, the president and his wife took a stroll together along a back road to the farm of Mr. Coolidge's grandfather, where he worked as a boy.

WEALTHY MAN TRAPPED WITH A SOCIETY WIDOW

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Thomas Fisher Lawrence, wealthy St. Louis business man and Mrs. Julia Gruner, society widow of the same city, trapped early today in a room of the fashionable Lakeshore Drive Hotel by Mrs Lawrence and a squad of detectives spent a rather uncomfortable day here.

Detectives who had loafed in the Lincoln Park shrubbery waiting for them to come in, smashed in their door.

Then Lawrence, who obtained bond, ran afoul of Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, city health commissioner. As a result when the couple appeared in morals court, Lawrence, charged with a statutory offense and disorderly conduct, Dr. Brundesen appearing too, announced he was for the "single standard of morals," and said if it was the intention of the authorities to subject Mrs. Gruner to a physical examsimilar test or spend 30 days under quarantine.

Then their attorney obtained a continuance of the case until August 26, and they faced a barrage of cameramen as they tried to leave the court room. Their bonds were set at $1,500 each, which they furnished. Both pleaded not guilty to the charges.

BOY DROWNED IN CLOCK SHOP DAM IN THOMASTON

THOMASTON, Aug. 14—(A. P.)—Walter Woyteckuk, nine year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Woyteckuk of Railroad street, was drowned in the Seth Thomas clock shop dam near Schippacasse's grove here early this afternoon. The body was recovered at 5 p. m., by Edward Johnson, after the river had been turned into the canal.

Two theories are offered as to how the drowning occurred. According to one story the boy slipped into a hole while wading with a playmate in the mud south of the dam. Another relates that he fell off the dam into the water which is six feet deep at that point.

Officials of the Plume and Atwood Manufacturing company, including President Ralph L. French and Vice President Kellogg S. Plume, were on the scene shortly after the accident had been reported. The body was viewed by the Medical Examiner Dr. Winfield S. Wight and then turned over to Undertaker H. Lyons.

REDUCTION IN THE PRICE OF GASOLINE IN HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Aug. 14—(A. P.)—A reduction of two cents in the retail price of gasoline, the second such cut this month, will be put into effect tomorrow by the Gulf Refining company, the Colonial Filling Stations, the Singer Oil company, and the Yankee Filling Stations, according to announcements tonight by these companies.

With this second reduction, the price at the filling stations will be 24 cents including state tax. Gasoline at 24 cents will put this city on the same basis as most of eastern Massachusetts, where gasoline retails at 22 cents but without the two cent state tax. All but one of the companies reducing the price of gasoline will do so when the stations open tomorrow morning. The Yankee Filling Stations will put the reduction into effect at six p. m., David T. Smith, sales manager, announced.

DIRIGIBLE SHENANDOAH IN NIGHT FLIGHT TO NEWPORT

LAKEHURST, N. J., Aug. 14—(A. P.)—The navy dirigible Shenandoah left tonight at 7:20 o'clock for Newport, R. I., after twice circling the field and dropping two petty officers by parachute.

The Shenanoah is expected to reach Newport tonight and moore to the mast of the tender Patoka. In the morning the Patoka will put to sea, towing the Shenandoah. The airship will then cast loose from the boat and later return to its mast to test the possibility of establishing a base at sea. The airship is expected to return to Lakehurst tomorro wnight.

FREAK OF LIGHTNING AT NEW HAVEN COUNTY JAIL

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 14—A bolt of lightning during a thunder storm here early tonight, came down on a tree on the south side of Whalley avenue, shot across the street and into the front door of the county jail, and then disappeared along the fire alarm wires. The tree itself was little damaged. The bolt passed along one of the large branches and browned the leaves then shooting directly across the street.

Jailer Frank R. Baldwin and Stiles Stevens and Leon Babcock, were on duty at the jail. The three were almost knocked off their feet when the bolt flashed through the door. As quickly as it had entered, the flash disappeared by way of the wires.

The main station of the inside firm alarm system, housed in a closet in the office, apparently was not damaged by the lightning, but all of the wires were burned out.

The flash sent an alarm into fire headquarters and just as the firemen were about to respond, a telephonic message from the jail stated that there was no fire.

Mr. Baldwin though somewhat stunned by the lightning, was able to telephone fire headquarters not to respond to the alarm. Then Mr. Baldwin shut off the switch and the ringing of bells inside the jail stopped. The prisoners were considerably frightened when they heard the fire bell, but guards maintained order.

DICTATORIAL METHODS NECESSARY IN MEXICO

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 15—The use of dictatorial methods is now necessary in Mexico to bring about law and order, Dr. Guillermo A. Sherwill, secretary-general of the Inter-American high commission, said at the Institute of Politics today at Dr. Leo S. Rowe's round table conference on Inter-American relations. He read a communication described as "very important" from J. N. Puig Cassaurane, secretary of public instruction at Mexico City outlining a program of policy. The text was not made public.

"The last revolution in Mexico perverted to a considerable extent the moral sense of the country," he said. "Bandits have openly plundered and have been rewarded or asked to stop their activities. Mobs have held sway and agrarian and labor movements have taken a dangerous direction. To bring order out of chaos, it is necessary to use dictatorial methods without forgetting that the purpose of any dictatorship at present would be only to pave the way for democracy."

PHILADELPHIANS FOUND STARVING IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Aug. 14—(A. P.)—Against the drab background of every day sordid events which flowed through police channels today there stood put three unusual examples of human misery, involving actual starvation in the midst of the city's plenty

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Martin, who had come to this city, from Philadelphia, were aided by a policeman who found them seated disconsolately on a curb stone, within hearing distance of the "roaring forties," center of the city's night life. They said they had not eaten in four days.

DANIELSON WOMAN IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

MERIDEN, Aug. 14—Mrs. George W. Miller, of Danielson, was taken to Grace hospital, New Haven, with a fractured shoulder, and Mr and Mrs. Harry Devers of Forestville, were treated for cuts and bruises, after a car operated by Devers turned turtle near the Southington-Cheshire town line about 7:30 o'clock tonight.

WILLIMANTIC

There was no escaping the sultry heat which followed Friday morning's rain. The sun made its appearance about noon Friday and it was welcomed but it failed to carry out its intended purpose of drying the atmosphere and taking the "choke" out of the air.

Another continuance was granted in the case of Patrick Albert O'Toole, of Hartford, driver of a truck which weighed over 28,000 pounds, who was charged with a number of violations of the automobile law when in the local police court. Attorney Terry Chapin of Hartford appeared for the defendant and upon asking for the continuance gave indication that the owner of the truck plans to dispute the allegations in the case. O'Toole was arrested early Wednesday morning by State Policeman Comstock, of the temporary barracks here, after he had received a notice from Hartford that the Massachusetts trucks was headed toward this city. The weight of the truck and contents of iron was 3,300 pounds more than the law allows on the highways. Herman Fink of Hartford is the owner of the truck. The Hartford authorities state that the truck has been operated with Massachusetts markers more than fifteen days in this state without being equipped with Connecticut registry markers. The charges against O'Toole are: Operating an overloaded truck; failure to display minimum or maximum figures of capacity and failure to have a special permit for a load overweight in transportation. O'Toole was fined and furnished a bond of $500.

William Simons, of West Haven, arrested Sunday at a Polish picnic in Storrs, after he had disturbed the peace and sold propogandist magazines and was fined $10 and costs in the Derby court Wednesday by Judge Archibald Duffield. He is the same Simons who invaded this city during the early weeks of the strike of the operatives of the American Thread Company. He was selling a Chicago publication called the Daily Worker. The publication is designated as a Communist one. Simons presence here was universally an unwelcome one. Although he presented himself as a friend of the strikers his true purpose was soon realized and he was forbidden to attend their daily meetings. He was an agitator of some ability and at one time secured an assistant in the hope of starting trouble at a Polish gathering of strikers, but the police were notified, and he was not allowed to attend. On another occasion he accused Overseer John Powers of Pawtucket, R. I., a leader in the textile unions of calling him (Simons) unbecoming names, and further said that Mr. Powers was a liar. Only the self-control and better judgment of the latter prevented an encounter. Simons teachings to revolutionize the social, religious and commercial world were published in an issue of The Bulletin some months ago.

Funeral services for Rev. Leonard Smith were held at his home in Spring Hill at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. Rev. A. W. Pardee of Jewett City officiated. The Masonic burial service was carried out by members of Uriel Lodge, A. F. & A. M. of Merrow, at the grave in Hillside cemetery, Spring Hill. The honorary bearers were Robert W. Gardner, Wallace Babcock, Fred Rosebrooks, Frederick O. Vinton Clark and F. Storrs. The active bearers were, Daniel C. Flaherty, George Clark, George Swift and Dr. H. C. Ballou. Avery and VanZandt had charge of the arrangements.

The South Windham All-Stars are on the shelf for Sunday, finding themselves without a game. This state of affairs was brought about by the cancellation of the game scheduled with the Hazelle Velvet Company team of Mystic. The following week, however will be an arduous one for the All-Stars. On Saturday they tackle the Taftville A. A. in that town. This is the team which twice defeated the semi-pro teams in Eastern Connecticut. The next day a trip will be made to Fishers Island to play Fort Wright, which team proudly boasts a victory over the Shipyard outfit of Groton. Mystic has signed up for September 6th which means a change in the schedule for the encounters between the All-Stars and the local West Ends.

Loretta Pearl Ashton, Thomas V. Ashton and Patricia Grace Ashton, whose birthdays occur in August were jointly tendered a birthday party at their home on South Coventry, Thursday, the affair being in the form of a basket picnic, held in the Lake-de-Casino, due to the rain. Tables were set and beautifully decorated. Each child present received a favor. Dancing, games and swimming were enjoyed. Those present besides the guests of honor were, John Ashton, Mrs. Susan A. Ashton, Abot of Saybrook and Ernest Bush. The hostesses were Mrs. Arthur V. Ashton and Miss Jane Ashton of this city.

Joyce Brothers, Manchester, N. H., merchants have instituted civil proceedings against George Elliott and Alex Elliott, formerly of Manchester, N. H., now residents of this city, for the recovery of an alleged unpaid bill of $13.50 in the former case and $10.27 in the second. Damages of $50 are claimed in each case. Constable Joseph Peck garnished the wages of both defendants at the American Thread Company Friday. The cases are returnable before a Justice of the Peace.

In honor of her approaching marriage with John Ahern of this city, Miss Alma Chasse was tendered a miscellaneous shower by Mrs. Daniel Shearer recently. The decorations were in robin's egg blue and rose crepe paper. Miss Chasse received gifts. Friends and relatives came from Jewett City, Norwich and this city.

Miss Margaret Gavitt, a former employe at the local office of the American Thread company and John Ratcliffe, known in this city and formerly connected with the Fall River office of the same company were the artists in a program broadcasted Friday night from station WDOD, of Chattanooga, Tenn.

The board of registrars, A. Linn Leatherhead and Thomas A. Shea held the second and final session Friday, in the selectmen's rooms, at the town building for the purpose of receiving applications from the legal voters of the town to be added to respective party caucus lists. The rush on the part of democrats has been noticeable with over one hundred applications being placed on the primary list of that party, while only thirteen republicans made applications up to Friday afternoon.

Ralph J. Lussier, grocer, has started civil action against Amidee and Lillian Bonin of Birch street, to recover an unpaid bill of $120.50. Damages of $50 are claimed. Constable Joseph Peck attached property owned by the defendants Friday. The case is returnable before the Windham county superior court.

Windham people have been invited to attend the Automobile Sunset Service at Columbia Lake, Sunday at 6:30.

This (Saturday) morning at 11:57 o'clock the twenty-one girls and one boy being sent here by the Tribune Fresh Air Fund will arrive here from the sweltering sidewalks of New York. Leaving the maze of sky-scrapers and the musty odors of East side the children will be taken into custody of local friends and taken to a fairyland of trees, grass, wild flowers and invigorating fresh air. At the railroad station they will be met by President John Ahern, Vice-President James P. Bath, Secretary Gerard E. Loisell of the Willimantic Rotary Club, P. D. Donahue of The Elks and the Rotary Club, Edwin P. Hayes, vice president of the Willimantic Exchange Club and John McCarthy, of Scotland.

Due to rainy weather the announcement was made Friday that the thirty-six hole handicap golf tournament for men at the local Country Club will be extended until Thursday, August 20, inclusive.

Pasquale Furcoia vs. Generoso Gallucci. Continued one week.

Judge Michael J. Turano came into the Friday morning session of court and disposed of the trial calendar as follows:

John Roche, 19, was arraigned on complaint of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown of Westerly that on Aug. 8th, he operated a motor vehicle on Bayystreet, Watch Hill, without first obtaining a license from the Rhode Island State Board of Public Roads. A plea of nolo was entered for him by Attorney John F. Gallagher. Town Solicitor Ferguson asked the court to be specially lenient, as the young man contributed to the support of his mother and attention was called to his previous good record. Judge Turano said that it was a serious offense to take an automobile and drive it off, but he would take into consideration what had been said. Finding the respondent guilty, he fined him $5 and costs, which was paid.

Victor Svenberg, 18, was charged with the operation, Aug. 9th, of a motor vehicle on the Watch Hill road which was not properly equipped with two powerful brakes. Solicitor Ferguson told the court that the foot brakes were all right but that the other brake the emergency or ratchet did not hold the car when it was stopped on a hill. A fine of $10 and costs was imposed.

Mario Defanti, 20, of Bradford, was presented in court on a count of the reckless operation of an automobile Aug. 7th on the Bradford road and at a rate greater than reasonable and proper. He pleaded not guilty and the case was continued to Aug. 21. The town solicitor said that the car operated by Defanti struck a small automobile on the Bradford road occupied by the Thompson brothers and as a result their automobile was knocked 15 or 20 feet and the occupants were thrown through the roof. One of the men received a cut on his head which required six stitches to close. The accident happened just as the injured men had turned their automobile around in the road to start for Bradford, where there was a straight stretch of highway. Surety was required in the sum of $500 for appearance of the accused in court and Clarence A. Vars became the bondsman.

Royal Gill, 16, of Jewett City, was also complained of as operating an automobile on Aug. 9th on the Watch Hill road when the car was not provided with two powerful brakes. The respondant asked if he could not explain nbefore he entered a plea. Judge Turano said plead first and he would hear the explanation later. He pleaded "guilty." The town solicitor said the automobile had no brakes at all. Gill told the court that his emergency brake was not working and the other brake of his Ford touring car driven from Jewett City to the beach, went bad after leaving Westerly. He was fined 20 and costs.

Amando Thomas, 28, of New London pleaded nolo to the complaint that, on Aug. 9th, he operated a motor vehicle on the Watch Hill road which was without two powerful brakes. Patrol Motor Cycle Officer Madison said that the auto was stopped for three passengers on the front seat, when it was found that the automobile had no foot brakes, although the emergency held slightly. Attorney Gallagher said that the foot brakes should have been taken up and then it would have all right. "That's the trouble with these cases," said Judge Turano, "the parties don't adjust their brakes. In view of what has been said, fine, $15 and costs."

Trial of the much continued Fiore jitney cases was then taken up, John J. Dunn appearing for Fiore. For the town, Solicitor Ferguson submitted a registry card to show that if a representative of the state board of public roads was present he would testify that the automobile of the defendant was used for a jitney. Attorney Dunn moved to have the case dismissed in that the registry card was made out "Anthony Fiore" while the complain twas brought against "Antonio F. Fiore." Chief of Police Brown, placed on the witness stand, said he could not identify by number the Studebaker car as registered, but was sure there was no other car operated by Fiore.

Judge Turano said that to him there was no question but what they were the one and the same person and he would take judicial notice of the same.

William Russell Dower, deputy internal revenue collector, testified that he knew the defendant and that he had taken and forwarded the application for him under the federal law, but upon question by Dunn, did not know whether he had received his stamp or certificate. Mr. Dunn then said that he felt that the state had failed to make out its case, as the testimony previously given by two R. I. state troopers was that they had gotten into a car on private property and had been taken to the cemetery, also to the New England Granite works for which they had paid $1 and 25c. Also that a certain newspaper clipping in court of a hackney ordinance by the town council did not make it a fact that it had to be proved and furthermors there had been no proof to show that the Town of Westerly had any authority to pass such an ordinance. (Way back in 1870, (corrected to 1831 by Mr. Ferguson) long before the birth of the auto and long before it was dreamed of the statute giving the council regulation of hacks, drays or some other horse-drawn vehicle, did not for a moment refer to motor vehicles, and if so, then that regulation was stricken from the Town Councils by the R. I. Automobile law." He said that Mr. Fiore had been given a certificate by the state to do business after the payment of a large fee, and it was just possible that the council might tell them where to park. "But when the town council goes to the extent of giving the chief of police czaristic power, the Town Council might just as well know today as any other time, that body has exceeded its power." For the chief to be able to say for any one who has money invested in the business "You're out of business" to be dependent upon his arbitrary ruling, then the act was null and void. Judge Durano asked Mr. Dunn if he wanted him to pass upon the constitutionality of the act. "You're not a dummy court, because a district court, and your hands and feet are not tied. You can pass on what the town council had a right to do," said Mr. Dunn. Judge Turano said he would take the ordinance which he had before him and deny the motion.

In the three cases brought after the town council had passed the hackney ordinance, Judge Turano said he would judge the respondent guilty and sentence him to pay a fine of $5 and costs on each count. In case of appeal, bonds would be required in the sum of $200 in each case. Attorney Dunn in signifying his intention to appeal, found that the previous surety, Filomena Fiore, was acceptable to the court. It was first thought that the two old cases would be discontinued by the town and later they were put over a week.

The Thomas Fiore cases were continued another week, Attorney Dunn admitting sufficient evidence to convict, and notice given of imposing sentence at the time.

Niman Davidson, of Pennsylvania, a resident of Watch Hill, pleaded his own case, on the complaint of operating an automobile at Watch Hill on Bay street, without proper brakes, Aug. 2. The defendant was represented as having driven his automobile in such a manner that it collided with another automobile at a high traffic hour and stopped when it was located across a sidewalk. The defendant, in his own behalf said that the car was left when wet and that someone had moved it, with the result that the bands were damaged so that when he turned the car on Bay street to go on a wash stand he was astonished when the brakes would not work. He was adjudged guilty and fined $15 and costs, which he paid.

Thursday afternoon Dr. Gordon Anderson of the surgical consulting staff of Westerly hospital, and Dr. Michael H. Scanlon, who was called in the case, wired Cherenzia's jaw and otherwise prepared him for hospital treatment on Monday next, when his case will be the first major operation to be performed at the new Westerly hospital, which is to be opened for the receipt of patients at 3 o'clock that morning. Several minor operations will also be performed Monday morning.

Due to the stormy weather, the Thrsday band concert in Wilcox park was omitted and will be given by the Westerly band, Charles O. Gavitt, director, Thursday evening of next week.

About a five-foot strip of the property of Dr. Michael H. Scanlon, conveyed to him by Dr. Harold Kenyon on High street recently, was reported as purchased Thursday afternoon by Samuel Nardone. The purchase was made so that a drive of sufficient width could be provided at the rear of the United Theatres block, being erected by Mr. Nardone on Canal street.

Funeral services for Immanuel Traggis, were held Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of his sister, Mrs. Katherine Vanvoras, at 9 Chase street. The service was conducted by a priest from the Norwich Greek Orthodox church. A large number of relatives and friends were present and all local stores of Greek proprietors were closed during the time of the funeral.

Burial was in River Bend cemetery. The bearers were James Tearopolis, Spearos Tramis, Thero Varvaganis, James Parandelis, Vasilios Trandalis and Mathews Zakas.

Mr. Traggis' death was sudden. He was employed by the St. Clair confectionery store and had gone to the plant Tuesday morning. Going into the refrigerating plant in a heated condition the shock was too much for his heart and he expired before medical aid could be secured. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Irene Traggis, of Mitylene, Greece; a sister, Mrs. Katherine Vanvoras, of Westerly, and six brothers, John and Nicholas Traggis of Westerly, George and Samuel Traggis of Torrington, Conn., Peter Traggis of New Haven, Conn., and Apostolas Traggis, of Mitylene, Greece.

On Pierce street, Patrolman George H. Champlin took four peddlers into custody Friday morning, Louis Rosenkrantz, Maurice Rosenkrantz, John Lieveman and Maurice Miller, all from Brooklyn, N. Y., for doing business without a license, were arraigned before Judge Michael J. Turano in the third district court Friday morning and each was fined $20 and costs amounting to $23.80.

Miss Hilda K. Young and sister, Miss Marion Young, left Friday for Melbourne, Province of Quebec, where they will visit their sister, Mrs. Malcolm F. Rooney, and her family.

Miss Harriet Ellis, of Westerly, accompanied by a cousin from Brooklyn, N. Y., is the guest of Miss Eunice B. Clark, at Matunuck.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Phetteplace, of Pawcatuck, leave Westerly this (Saturday) morning on a vacation automobile trip which will take them to Danbury, Conn., and Albany, New York, with a tour of Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine, before returning home.

Miss Ruth V. Davis and Miss M. Edna Biblock, S. H. Davis and Miss Virginia Davis are members of an automobile party leaving Westerly Sunday for West Point, N. Y., Pittsburgh, Pa., and Salem, West Virginia, where they will attend the annual conference of Seventh-Day Baptist churches.

Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the First Baptist church, on Broad street, Vincent Martley and Miss Janette Gilbrath, both of Pawtucket, R. I., were married by Rev. Byron U. Hatfield, pastor of the church. The only attendants were Donald Pancher as best man and Miss Frances Davis, as bridesmaid, both residents of Westerly. Following a short automobile trip to New Haven, Mr. and Mrs Martley will return to Pawtucket, to make their home.

Following several months' illness, the death of Mary A. Chapman, 74, widow of James H. Lee, of North Stonington, occurred on Aug. 13 at the Norwich State hospital.

Crossed wires of the electric light circuits with the fire alarm caused the fire alarm to be sounded Friday evening about 9:30 from Box 24, High street and Grove avenue. All three pieces of apparatus with Fire Chief George Egger responded only to find that their run in the heavy rainstorm was a needless one. A number of automobiles attracted by the alarm near the center of the town, visited the place near Grace Methodist church, causing a considerable traffic jam.

WAS NOT FIT TO DO HER WORK

Dreadful Condition of Mrs. Fullerton's Health Remedied by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Clearfield, Pa.—"I cannot begin to tell you how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me in every way. Before taking it I couldn't stand on my feet without pains running all through my whole body from my waist down, just like threads pulling. I was not fit to do any work. My mother got me to try the Vegetable Compound and I have found great benefit, and I not only recommend it for such troubles, but to build up the whole system. I have used it for most everything that gets wrong with me. When I begin to feel nervous and irritable I don't stop long in getting a bottle of the Vegetable Compound if I haven't got one in the house. It gives a fine appetite and makes a new woman of me. You may use this testimonial in my own town or anywhere else, and I will answer any letters I receive."—Mrs. RUBY FULLERTON, 525 S. 2nd Street, Clearfield, Pa.

If you are suffering from nervous troubles, irritability, give the Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

PAWCATUCK TWIN GIRL HAS INFANTILE PARALYSIS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Aug. 14.—Supposed to be a sufferer from infantile paralysis Isabelle Molloy, 6, of 28 Wilfred court Pawcatuck, was taken to the City hospital in Providence Friday afternoon, in the ambulance of the Westerly Sanitary corps. Paralysis in both legs was found by Drs. William H. Hillard and M. H. Scanlon. The child came to Pawcatuck from Pawtucket with her parents about a year ago and was one of twins. Health Officer Dr. Charles F. Congdon of Stonington was informed of the condition.

The bureau of standards in Washington has attained the tiniest of measuring devices—a mechanism by which blood corpuscles are enumerated. The blood corpuscles count, which has become an increasing important aid in diagonsis and treatment of disease, has hitherto been a somewhat inaccurate enterprise.

The demand for living space in London is so acute that bunks, one above the other, similar to those aboard ships and which fold up out of sight when not in use, have been placed in some of the newest flats in the crowded city of London, where inches have to be taken into consideration whenever any building is done. Another innovation in the compressed furniture line is a "six-in-one" contrivance which includes a folding bed, washstand, chest of drawers, mirror, shoe rack and space to place the bedding when the bed is not made up.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Excellent native sweet corn was selling for 30 and 35 cents per dozen at Danielson Friday. Practically all of it came from growers who live within five miles of Danielson. At first glance, that isn't much of a news item—everyone knows it.

Back of that apparently inconsequential statement there is, however, an issue of prime economic importance. It involves the agricultural interests not only of Danielson but all of Windham county. This may be illustrated by setting forth at once that while corn was bringing the above prices in Danielson, 300 dozen corn grown within the limits of the borough of Danielson was motored over to Providence Thursday and brought—after a long search and much haggling—just five cents per dozen. The average wholesale buyer that was offered a chance to purchase it wanted to buy it for 3 cents a dozen! They said the market was flooded.

To the average person who considers these facts, an idea will be developed as to what is wrong with the merchandising of sweet corn in Windham county. These ideas likely will be as diverse as the people who conceive them. There are many angles from which this matter may be considered.

"What was the matter with the corn-grower?" the average person will ask, "knowing, as he must have known, that corn was retailing here for 20 and 25 cents a dozen, while the Providence wholesale market, where he sold his corn, wanted to buy it for three cents a dozen and wherein he finally and reluctantly accepted five cents per dozen."

That's an interesting and legitimate question.

The grower might have sold it here by a house to house canvass. And if he had, he could have dominated the market by making the price 15 cents per dozen. But he didn't do it. More than 300 dozens of sweet corn were consumed here Thursday, almost anyone might wager and win a bet, and the price paid for it was from four to five times greater than it commanded in the wholesale market over in the Rhode Island metropolis.

Consider driving a motor car more than 50 miles, paying the operation cost of the machine and the wear and tear upon it and the man's time to sell for one-fourth to one-fifth of what the commodity he had to offer was selling for in an area that he could look over from his front yard.

One might be excused for considering this unusual, true though it be.

The man who sold this corn is one of the hard working farmers fo Windham county, an honest man and a very worthy man. There are those who will say that he received a rough deal from his toil of a season and his effort to feed a nation ill-concerned with where its food supply comes from or what is involved in the way of labor and expense in producing it.

If you asked him why he didn't sell his corn in Danielson, you likely would get some interesting information. He might tell you that he called the people who sell it at retail here and was informed, monotonously, time after time, "We do not need any corn today." Here again he was facing an abundant corn market, which scores were seeking to supply. The wholesale price amounted to nothing at all but the retail price remained as firm as a concrete walk. You might suggest to him that he could sell it from house to house, and it would be a good suggestion, too. And in answer to this he would probably tell you that the average housewife would say to him "I'm dreadfully sorry; that's nice corn, but I just telephoned to So and So for a dozen—how much are you getting for this?"

Mr. Corn Grower is trying to do business in a market where there is too much competition from other growers and where the average household buyer pays any price that his or her favorite retailer may happen to be asking. We are all in a hurry, you know and can't stop to quibble over prices.

All of this doesn't add an extra penny to the Corn Grower's purse. He is discouraged and disconsolate. And well he may be after all his toil and consideration of the ridiculous prices he receives, while what he grows brings an excellent profit to handlers.

Simmered down, it appears to be a marketing proposition worth the careful consideration of the corn growers. Easy guess, a person be who pays ten cents for an ear of "hot, buttered sweet corn" from a barker at some shore resort—or elsewhere—when he considers what the man who grew the corn got for it. Easy indeed is hte one who helps perpetuate such an unseemly situation.

Windham county legislators, officials, members of their families and their good friends are rain-proof. The Weatner Man tried to drown them out Thursday afternoon, on the occasion of the county legislative outing at Rocky Point, but he failed miserably. They neither floated nor drifted with the tide. They were neither drenched nor dampened—not even in spirit. Nearly 300 of them, including State Highway Commissioner John Macdonald and State Bank Commissioner John B. Bryne, both Windham county men as citizens of Putnam, by the way, had a thoroughly good time. They paid about as much attention to the rain as does the Cloud Digger to another weather prophet's forecasts.

Windham county can't be stopped! Its people are as rugged as its ancient and formidable hills. There was no rain in the great convention hall where they regaled themselves at tables where an excellent shore dinner was served. There was no rain for them at all—just rain for individuals who talk about such things and are more or less upset or worried about such trivialities. All was sunshine—and the electric lights were on.

A roster of Who's Who in Windham county might be compiled from the parties that sat about the tables, though a few of the notables were absent—business and. other things. A jolly, good crowd of a jolly good outing. Sheriff Charles A. Gates was there and Willimantic also sent Postmaster Walter R. King, County Investigator W. E. Jackson, Federal Officer William Congdon—and many others. Senator Urgele LaFrance of Central Village, who also happens to be a county commissioner, Senator Clarence H. Childs, of Woodstock, County Commissioner E. H. Corttis of Thompson, Judge Sabin S. Russell, Postmaster E. H. Keach, Speaker E. L. Darbie of the house of representatives, all of Danielson, Judge George Torrey of the Plainfield town court. There were representatives and former representatives galore. One had the pleasure of a handshake with Captain William Jarvis of the Putnam police department. There were many, many others, all prominent in county affairs. There were bankers and business men—and the wives of those so blessed, this applying to offialdom as well as to those who were with them for the day.

Rain? What a mere incident to a gathering of Windham county people! Postmaster W. Franklin Sheldon of Moosup beamed over the success of the outing. And well he might. The committee achieved a great success and they have the congratulations of all who had an enjoyable day through their efforts. They have a rising vote of thanks from the county, and in its name.

A distinguished native of Killingly is dead, in the neighboring town of Foster—Rev. Searis B. Young, 93, oldest Baptist minister in the state of Rhode Island and oldest member of the G. A. R. in that state.

Rev. Mr. Young was born in this town March 9, 1832, a son of Searis and Luraina Mitchell Young. Beloved wherever known, a disciple of the Apostle of Peace, Rev. Mr. Young had the proud record of having served his country during the Civil war as a member of K company, 7th Rhode Island Infantry. A truly remarkable American is dead in Foster and those who knew this man of the ministry, this man who knew what it was to strive on the field of battle for the nation that gave him birth, will long mourn his passing. He died at the home of his son's widow, Mrs. Flora Young, at North Foster.

Rev. Mr. Young had held pastorates in Foster and in Sterling. He had, on account of his advanced age, been retired for years.

The Bulletin carried first page double headlines Friday morning telling of the flood of beer coming out of Scranton, Pa., into New England and related how 6,000 barrels of what was described as real beer has been seized during the past 30 days. There are men in Danielson who are not surprised about Scranton being the source of plenty of real beer. In fact, they are well aware of it. Scranton is not a great distance from Tobbyhanna, Pa., where the Service battery, 102d Field artillery, of this town, spent about three weeks in July.

There were times during the three weeks' encampment, or whatever time it was the boys from this town spent at Tobbyhanna, that leave from camp was allowed them. They migrated to Scranton as ducks migrate toward water—not all of them, of course, but many of them. They don't deny it.

They will—and have—told without reservation about the abundance of beer in that mining city, of the wide open bars and the almost total disregard of the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act. They speak of beer with a wallop, beer of pre-war efficiency, or disability, as you like it, and of the prices charged for it, which were not excessive, prices for everything today considered. There is small wonder that many of them are cynics as to how prohibition is working in the country at large. They were not surprised Friday morning over the published revelations concerning Scranton, of much of it was news to them. The boys will tell one, too, of towns in New York state where one would not die of thirst if a glass of real beer would save a life.

It will be harder to find a mill man in eastern Connecticut today (Saturday) than to locate a proverbial needle in a haystack, and this is because they are down at Rocky Point for the third annual outing of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association. The committee as arranged a program of sports and a fine shore dinner. There will be big doings at Rocky today.

PUTNAM

HAD TWO RIBS BROKEN SITTING IN HIS CAR

(Special to the Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, ANG. 14.—Coming down Shippee Hill last evening Frank Warren's automobile skidded on the wet street, veered to the side of the road and crashed against a telephone pole. He was pinned in the seat in such a way that two ribs were broken, both legs were lacerated and badly bruised and his face was cut, the wounds bleeding profusely. He was dazed for awhile but managed to extricate himself from the wrecked car and to walk to a nearby house, from which a telephone call for aid was sent out. His injuries were dressed by Dr. B. P. Murphy who expressed his opinion that there probably would be no serious results but that Warren was going to be lame and uncomfortable for a few days.

DEATH OF CHAS. E. BROWN GRIEVES POMFRET STUDENTS

(Special to the Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Aug. 14.—The sudden death of Charles E. Brown for twelve years past athletic director of Pomfret school has caused deep regret here, where he was well known, as well as at Pomfret.

With a party of boys who were in camp at Maine, he started to make an ascent of Mt. Katahdin. Becoming tired he sat down to rest telling the others to go on, that he would overtake them. On their return they found him dead where he had stopped. Physicians say that heart disease was the cause.

Mr. Brown was thirty-five years of age and had been at Pomfret for twelve years. He was very popular and was reputed to be one of the best football coaches in the country. Buell, a Pomfret school boy who was captain of the 1922 Yale team, and Mallory, captain of the 1923 Harvard team, got their training under him.

Mr. Brown was of athletic build and apparently in the best of health when he left Pomfret at the close of the year's term in June. He came here from Pottstown, Pa., where his parents lived and where his body will probably be taken for burial. He was married and had two children; they were with him at the Maine camp.

Friends in Jewett City are interested to learn that Mrs. Mary Brown, a long time resident here, now of Atlanta, Georgia is visiting her niece, Mrs. William Maine, in Windham, to remain until September.

Jewett City people furnished a short entertainment for the Voluntown Methodist church Thursday night, when they served a bean supper. David Carter played organ selections. and Mrs. Ella Geer gave humorous readings. Rev. W. Carter sang and recited and Rev. A. H. Clement told interesting reminiscences and stories. A handsome bed spread of about 150 pieces, sold at auction, brought a good price.

THREE CARS COLLIDE PLAINFIELD DRIVER BLAMED

(Special t othe Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Aug. 14.—Three automobiles were in collision at the junction of Belvidere avenue and North Main street, Friday evening. Bert Grenier, driving a Star touring car was coming out of Belvedere avenue when a Jewett, driven by Emile Dubeau, of Plainfield, struck his machine; also hit a Velie driven by William Snyder, of Hartford. The Jewett and Velie were badly wrecked and the wives of Dubeau and Snyder required the service of physicians, although not seriously injured.

Dubeau will appear in Judge John T. Barry's court Monday. State Policeman Gardner, from the Danielson barracks was called and investigated the accident.

"LIKE FATHER LIKE SON."

We often hear men say, "If I had my life to live over again"—fact is, we do live our lives over—in our children.

"Dads" are heroes to their boys—so here is a chance for us to prevent our sons from making some of our mistakes.

A thrifty FATHER usually results in a thrifty SON.

A good idea then to save NOW even if you didn't start "years ago."

You will be pleasantly surprised to see the little fellows imitate you.

The financing of time sales of automobiles, through dealers, is today an important and profitable part of modern banking. So general has become the practice of purchasers buying cars on the deferred payment plan that the commercial banks have been unable to meet fully the dealers' demands. To handle this phase of the automobile business, companies have been formed whose business is confined strictly to this form of credit. These companies have been uniformly successful. The record of losses is small as compared with the losses of the most conservative financial institution and profits have been impressive.

Three factors of safety enter into the transactions of the well managed company of this kind that reduce losses to a minimum. In the first place the company has for security, title in the automobile upon which the loan is made. Secondly, it holds the note of the purchaser. Thirdly, it has the guarantee of a reputable automobile dealer. The loan is usually 66 2-3 per cent. of the purchase price of the car. During the life of the loan the company is protected by insurance against fire and theft. The loans are never made for more than 12 months and paid off on a monthly basis, thus enabling the lender to turn over its capital several times a year.

A. W. ACCEPTANCE CORPORATION

OF WORCESTER

OFFERS

$600,000

Preferred and common shares in units of 10 shares of 7% cumulative preferred stock, with a par value of $10, and 5 shares of common stock, no par value.

At $150 Per Unit To Yield 8 Per Cent.

The management of the L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation recommends the purchase of this stock, and offers the following information in support of this recommendation:

PURPOSE OF ISSUE—The corporation is financing at the present time 75 selected automobile dealers in Eastern Connecticut and Southern Massachusetts, and the demand for its service is constantly in excess of its working capital. The disposal of a portion of its treasury stock has been authorized by the Board of Directors for the purpose of supplying additional funds with which to expand operations.

BUSINESS AND HISTORY—The business of the Corporation is financing, through dealers, automobile time sales. It was established by Louis A. Wolfe, president of the Corporation, in April, 1921, and was operated with private capital until the following September, when the business was incorporated under its present title.

Prior to engaging in the automobile financing business Mr. Wolfe was treasurer of the Brockway Motor Truck Co., of Connecticut, president of the Putnam Buick Co., and president fo the Norwich Motor Car Co. He disposed of all other interests to enter the motor car financing field, and the business has shown a healthy and substantial growth from the beginning. The Executive Offices of the Corporation were moved from Putnam, Conn., to Worcester, in December, 1924, because the volume of business being transacted had outgrown the banking and other facilities of a small city.

From a modest beginning in 1921, with $27,000 of paid-in capital, the Corporation has grown until its assets as of March 31, 1925, amounted to $506,439.17.

SAFETY—The Corporation has discounted, since starting business, approximately $2,000,000 worth of automobile paper, and its losses have been less than one-tenth of 1%. The field in which the Corporation employs its funds is broadly recognized as being among the safest and most profitable of all channels for the lending of money.

The acceptance of dealers, which are all for short periods of time, are issued for not over 80% of the wholesale price of the cars, and in addition to the title of such cars resting in the Corporation, they are insured in favor of the Corporation against fire and theft.

The notes of retail purchasers which are paid in installments over a period of not more than 12 months, are issued for not over two-thirds of the retail selling price of the cars, and the title of such cars rests in the Corporation until they are paid for.

They are likewise covered by fire, theft and conversion insurance, and payment is guaranteed by the dealer who sold the car.

The average amount owed the Corporation for the financing of each car sold at retail is less than $300, and the average maturity is about 4½ months.

Customers of the Corporation are carefully investigated as to their credit standing, and the thoroughness with which such investigaitons are made and the aggressive manner in which collections are followed up are reflected in losses which have been practically nil.

EARNINGS AND DIVIDENDS—Dividends at the rate of 7% per year have been paid on the preferred stock since and including the first three months the Corporation was in business. One dollar per share was paid on the common stock in 1922, and one dollar per share in 1923. A dividend of one dollar per share for the year of 1924, payable in 7% preferred stock of the Corporation was paid April 1, 1925. The net earnings on the outstanding preferred for the year 1924 were approximately three times dividend requirements.

The fact the money loaned is repaid monthly and these sums are immediately reinvested enables the Corporation to turn its working capital over several times during the year, thus multiplying its profits proportionally.

The surplus and reserves at the present time amount to approximately $90,000.

Additional information will be furnished upon application

TRAITORS TO THEIR TRUST

Public attention has been drawn this week to the arrest in Chicago of the chief of the federal narcotic district and three of his assistants on charges of bartering drugs for the loot of robbers. It is charged that these federal officials have been trafficking with crooks and thieves and with the drug peddlers of Chicago, which is declared to be the central source of supply for the entire country. As a step in substantiating these charges, which include the claims that drugs seized in raids have been bartered for stolen property, the investigators found goods of great value in the apartments of the two men, and it is further charged that the four officials corruptly secured light penalties for the drug peddlers.

These four arrested officials have formed a narcotic raiding squad greatly feared by the purveyors of drugs in Chicago. Their chief has acquired a wide reputation as a lecturer upon the evils of drugs. If the charges against him are true, he has evidently succumbed to the temptation to profit richly by his official opportunities.

Opponents of prohibition point to the difficulty of maintaining an honest, incorruptible enforcement organization as one of the reasons for the abandonment of the policy. Is it to be argued similarly that, because members of the anti-narcotic forces are likewise susceptible to the temptation to graft, the law against the sale and use of habit-forming drugs should likewise be repealed? This is a dangerous doctrine if generally applied.

Unquestionably the drug evil is a menace to public health and morals in this country today. There is no telling how far this vile trade has extended, how many victims it has made. It has gone into all parts of the country, into all classes of society, has reached even the children. The fight against it must be prosecuted vigorously. It must not be remitted because it is hard to find honest men to wage it and to keep them honest after they have started their work. These men who are now caught in betrayal of their trust, should, if convicted, be given the utmost possible punishment as an example.

THE PRICE OF PEACE

Shrewd observers of the development in the coal situation profess to see signs that John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, is intending to use an anthracite "suspension" to enforce the soft-coal wage agreement. If hard-coal users are to be penalized because soft-coal operators are not paying the soft-coal wage scale, they would like to know it. If the nation faces a general strike because the miners have not been able to keep the wartime wage scale in the soft-coal regions, it is time for Mr. Lewis to let that be clearly understood.

The road is apparently being opened for such a strike. The first convenient pretext was seized by the miners to repudiate the agreement that hard and soft-coal problems should be dealt with separately. If the two quarrels can be hooked together, a general strike threatened and the government forced to intervene in both fields the Lewis leadership may be able to escape from a difficult situation.

The leader of the hard-coal workers has been unable to dominate the soft-coal field, but if he can get the public to help whip them into line, he might think that a good price to offer for peace in the anthracite territory.

The hard-coal miners have just received a set-back in the refusal of the interstate commerce commission to reduce freight rates on anthracite coal. This decision destroys the miners' argument that these rates are unjust, that they should be reduced and the differential given the miners in the form of a wage increase. The commission finds the rates for the most part are neither "excessive, unreasonable nor otherwise unlawful" and that the roads could not absorb a 10 per cent. cut. The main structure of these rates will stand. At the same time, the roads are ordered to make considerable reductions on smokeless coal from West Virginia moving to New England and the seaboard of the North Atlantic.

THE WISCONSIN SKIRMISH

As spokesman for the republican party and the Coolidge administration, Senator Lenroot drew the issue very plainly before the meeting of the regular republicans at Oshkosh to endorse a candidate for the primary that will precede a special election to name a United States senator. Wisconsin republicans were asked to send "no man hostile to President Coolidge" to the senate. Senator Lenroot described the LaFollette regime in his state as a "dictatorship" by radicals bent upon perpetuating the power of a little oligarchy of leaders. He indicated that they were would-be destroyers of the constitution, anxious to make congress supreme and ready to break down the safeguards of civil and religious liberty. Wisconsin was reminded that "every members of the ruling triumvirate at Madison" did everything he could to destroy the republican party last year. He declared that common honesty and decency ought to lead these gentlemen to keep off the republican primary ballot and, if they wish to become candidates for office, to do so under the name of their own party or in the independent column. But this is exactly what Lafollettism will not do. It wishes to use the same republican labels and machinery by which it has built up a bloc of bogus republicans in senate and house.

Whether they win or lose this fall, the Wisconsin regulars are following sound tactics. They propose to challenge and fight radicalism for what it is and wherever they find it. They believe they have a fighting chance to beat the younger LaFollette to the senate nomination and begin the work of redeeming Wisconsin and the northwest this fall.

Whatever the result, they will have made a start toward regaining control of the state. They are setting an example that will encourage their party brethren in other radical-ridden states. When Wisconsin, citadel of insurgency, raises a formidable revolt against LaFollettism, the whole northwest will feel the shock.

CAUTION IN SCIENCE

Dr. R. A. Millikan, Nobel prize winner and scientist, has been giving the sometimes overbumptious scientific world a few words of sound advice. He believes men of learning should be "more modest and thoughtful." In his opinion there may be several subjects straying around in the universe about which science has not said, and may never be able to say, the last word. He had a word also against religious as well as scientific dogmatism.

There should be more Dr. Millikans. One of the things from which the world suffers is too much of this insufferable cocksureness on the part of its leaders and would-be leaders. There was too much of this overtopping the late but unlamented Taylor trial. Men's ideas change with their information. Some of the "scientific facts" of yesterday are scientific jokes today. It behooves the scientist as well as other men to walk softly, thoughtfully and modestly.

"Where are many things we do not know," was the Millikan reminder to the American Chemical Society. This, lettered on the walls of laboratories, classrooms and more or less cloistered studies of our dogmatic scientists and equally dogmatic thinkers in other fields, might make the world a more pleasant planet.

CONGESTION IN THE ETHER

Wireless telephony and radio broadcasting are still rising in popularity throughout the world. The lead of the United States and of England has been followed by France and Germany and now other countries are establishing broadcasting stations at a rate that threatens ether congestion and resultant confusion. In Europe the problem has to be treated internationally. Already 110 stations are in operation and 25 additional broadcasting stations are projected. The interests of trade, of art and of recreation demand the intelligent regulation of wireless telephony. Recently a conference of engineers was held at Geneva to deal with the whole situation.

The central idea is to encourage the present use of the radio everywhere, but to insure a systematic development. Only in this way can interference be avoided and international friction be prevented.

At the Geneva conference the delegates limited themselves to the study of theoretical questions. It was recognized, however, that practice often reveals unforeseen difficulties. The radio is influenced by many subtle factors as well as by physical contours and geological conformation. Accordingly a remarkable experiment has been decided upon, and future regulation will depend largely upon the results of that experiment.

In September, on several nights, at midnight, all the broadcasting stations in Europe, large and small, will simultaneously send forth whatever messages or other matter they may see fit to broadcast. All wave lengths and all languages are to be used. A veritable modern babel doubtless will be the first effect, but experts may find it possible to separate the many tongues and obtain clean and satisfactory results. If not, the engineers will consider the causes of conflict and interruptions and seek to devise correctives.

It is hardly necessary to say that the United States will profit by the unique experiment and the conclusions of the European experts.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Philippines may be a source of rubber but that is a long way to go to get a spare.

"Beat Hylan" or "Boost Hylan" are slogans that are dividing the New York democrats.

Doubtless Russell Scott thinks that weaving baskets is a better job than swinging from a hemp rope.

The man on the corner says: The miners seem determined to add hard to get to the other qualities of anthracite.

There are not a few New Yorkers who consider that a Tammany hall split opens up great possibilities for good.

In the present state of affairs the statesmen of other countries may consider themselves lucky not to be British statesmen.

Teetotalers can cheer up. The Connecticut man who has lived to 91 on whiskey and tobacco is outmatched by a Jersey man of 95 who has never smoked or drunk.

This country, it is said, was discovered by Chinese priests in the fifth century. However that may be, the Chinese laundryman re-discovered it in the nineteenth.

It is reassuring to learn from those who say they know there is to be no gasoline famine. Now all that is needed is a combination that will get more miles out of a gallon.

Although the French are said to feel resentful towards America that feeling is not strong enough to prevent the American aviators who are going into Morocco from being popular.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

It is doubtless true that one of the greatest pleasures of life is the possession of friends. Because of this fact it is hard to understand Emerson when he says: "We walk alone in this world. Friends such as we desire are dreams and fables. But a sublime hope cheers ever the faithful heart, that elsewhere in other regions of universal power souls are now acting, enduring, and daring, which can love us, and which we can love." This —let us hope—cannot be the usual experience. Is it so that "we walk alone?" If so there is something the matter with us; something that repels fellowship with others. I utterly refuse to believe—because it is unreasonable—that our only real friends are the ghostly inhabitants of distant spheres with whom it is impossible to associate. That they are the only friends who love us is utterly absurd.

In his great chapter on The Happiness of Duty, Sir John Lubbock quotes Socrates as saying, that "the penalty of injustice is not death or stripes, but the fatal necessity of becoming more and more unjust." In all probability, Socrates knew nothing of the scientific theory of evolution, but in the above statement he has set forth a great fact of evolution that the earlier Darwinism just missed. The statement of Socrates emphasizes the terrible fact of retrogression. By doing right and thinking right man goes up hill; by doing wrong and thinking wrong, or, failing to do and think right, he goes down hill. His retrogression is his punishment, just as his advancement is his reward. As long as there is the presence of the spirit of injustice in his heart, it will continue to manifest itself in unjust deeds, and logically he goes on from bad to worse by the very momentum of his unjust spirit.

The writer has recently seen a reprint of an old painting entitled, Puritans Going to Church. It vividly portrays a custom in the early days of colonial America. It is a winter scene with a scattering of snow in a wilderness settlement. They are traveling over ground recently cleared with stumps of trees showing here and there. They are marching to their meeting-house, two by two, all the men carrying guns, also Bibles. They are a serious-minded company, evidently not indulging in frivolous gossip. Their sober faces are a consistent setting for their sombre garb. Still those faces are wonderfully striking. There is serenity, holiness, sweetness, poise and moral strength in those faces. There is a heroism that would defy death itself. It may be there is more sunshine in our belief than theirs; with us there is more mercy and less sovereignty, but let no one ridicule these mighty servants of Jeovah! They and their children have never been surpassed for strength of character or faith in God.

A peculiar, and sometimes unwarranted, glamor attaches to old historical events, and we are apt to give them a veneration out of all proportion to their merit. On the other hand, near events are apt to pass almost unnoticed because we are familiar with them, and perhaps we are too near them to appraise them at their full value. Along commercial lines an event has taken place in this new century of supreme importance, and has so easily and fully slipped into the life of the nation that we think nothing about it, and that is the Panama Canal. It is well to remember that on Aug. 15, 1914 (just 11 years ago today) this international waterway was opened to the service of the world. It is of the utmost importance to the shipping industry of the world. It brings California and the Atlantic coast nearer together by more than 2,000 miles, and no gun has been fired in its defense.

No adequate history of slavery in the United States can be written without devoting large space to the pioneer work of William Lloyd Garrison, the 45th anniversary of whose death we have recently passed. Probably no man attached to a great cause ever displayed finer and more insistent heroism than he. Because of the cowardly desertion of his father his school life was cut short in his early teens and he was apprenticed to a shoemaker. But there was nothing in the trade that appealed to him. Later he learned the art of printing, and by dint of perseverance and energy soon had an establishment of his own. Garrison early interested himself in the question of slavery and soon his great soul was all aflame with a holy zeal to exterminate the curse. No anti-slavery agitator was more relentlessly persecuted than he. The mob of cultured Boston—the "cradle of liberty"—wrecked his office building.

But William Lloyd Garrison was of a moral fiber not to be intimidated by such a breach of the peace. As he was born in that section of eastern Massachusetts that might easily have heard the shots that were first fired at Lexington and Concord, but afterwards at Bunker Hill, possibly the echo in behalf of political equality might have entered his soul. At any rate he rebuilt his office and thundered as never before against human slavery, but again they attacked him, not his office, but dragged him bodily in the mud of those streets where Washington once waved the flag of his country. Again and again was he threatened with assassination. The state of Georgia offered a reward of $5,000 for his arrest and conviction. But he was undaunted and kept at it until the Emancipation Proclamation crowned his effort. He lived to see his name honored throughout the civilized world, except in the southern section of his own country.

It must be admitted on all sides that more is being done for children along all conceivable lines today than ever before. To say nothing of the improvements in school buildings themselves, and better methods of teaching; of teachers with a larger general education, and greatly improved text-books, take, for an illustration, what is now being done in the matter of playgrounds. Here is something not directly connected with the schools themselves. They are intended only for the long vacation period. Still the inception of this idea on the part of school authorities was wise and far-visioned. The quality of the work done in the schools during the fall term will largely depend on the condition of the pupils; and the condition of the pupils will depend on what they have done in vacation. The playground, under the direction of a wise supervisor, will appeal to the play instinct of the child. As they need something more than instinct in study they want something more than mere instinct in playing properly.

Once there were hymns in our hymn books that were exceedingly popular that never appear in recent editions. Take, as an illustration, Dr. Mulhenburg's hymn—once claimed to be a great hymn: "I would not live always." Objection is now taken to the ethics of the second stanza: "I would not live always, no, welcome the tomb;&" There is not much criticism to be made of the first verse: "I would not live always." It is quite possible, and altogether human, if one could always be strong and vigorous, there would be no strong desire to quit living. But the statement, "welcome the tomb" is entirely different. That man's attitude toward the tomb has been revolutionized by the atoning work of the Redeemer is undoubted. But is it natural to welcome it? Is it consistent with our inborn desire for continued life here?

Hon. Raoul Dandurand, who is prominently mentioned for the presidency of the League of Nations soon to meet at Geneva, is a member of the Senate of Canada and one of the representatives of the Dominion in the League assembly. Senator Dandurand is a native of Montreal and after graduating from the college in that city took his B. C. L. at Laval University. In 1883 he was called to the bar and before long had risen to a high place in his profession. He became a member of the Senate in 1898 and for four years was the presiding officer of that body. Senator Dandurand has been a keen student of foreign politics and international relations and on numerous occasions has been sent abroad as a representative of the Dominion. He was created a Commander of the Legion of Honor by the French Government in 1912.

From Small Beginnings

The Shepherd Emperors of Rome

When ancient Rome was ruler of the world and the Balkan lands were remote outposts of civilization, two little shepherd boys, some 70 years apart, and of different races, watched their sheep. Both were ignorant and unskilled. By freaks of fate both became emperors of Rome, masters of vast armies, and controllers of the world's destiny. They are known in history as "The Two Maximini."

The first, Caius Julius Varus, grew into a giant over eight feet tall. Gibbons' history says that he could crumble stones in his hands, move loaded wagons, drink seven gallons of wine, and eat nearly 40 pounds of meat a day. The Roman soldiers captured the huge shepherd and made him a soldier. Because he was so huge they made him an officer, and then a general. For his sake they assassinated the emperor and made the giant ruler of Rome. For three years the uncouth shepherd waged cruel war, until at last he and his son were assassinated and their heads sent to Rome, where they themselves had never been.

The second Maximus kept sheep in Albania. His uncle, Galerius had kept sheep also, but had joined the Roman armies as a common soldier; had risen in rank because of bravery; had married a great Roman lady, and had seized imperial power. It was he who raised his nephew, Daia, to high position. When the uncle died, Daia became emperor. Both uncle and nephew remained wild shepherds at heart while they lived. Both persecuted the Christians; and both were rude, tricky, cruel, and uneducated in everything but the art of war. Daia was poisoned, and the world was rid of a tyrant.

The giant Maximus was emperor for three years; Galerius and his nephew each held power for six years. All three hunted men as they had hunted wolves in their shepherd days. They were the playthings of fate, and their tragic stories well illustrate the fact that true greatness comes from a slow and steady growth from within the soul, and never from any sudden lifting into place and power.

BITTER BLOW.

The young person with the carmine lips, faintly orange rouge and hennaed bob slid agilely around a counter of sheetings and back to the stout saleslgirl.

"Mebbe he won't see me," she breathed in explanation. "Don't move till he gets by, Angeline! It's Callings, that new floorwalker, and he's looking for somebody to go help out across the aisle—and besides, I kind of don't want to see him! Say, weren't we nuts to think he was so handsome when he first came—"

"Huh?" queried the stout saleagirl, whose mental processes were not speedy. "You said he looked like Valentino and John Barrymore. He—"

"Will I told you all that stuff!" derided the highly colored young person, croughing lower. "I never did! Why, I wouldn't look at him twice! I guess I don't hafta when as many boys are crazy about me as are! Besides, I am certain he is bow-legged."

"Why, he looks all right," the stout salesgirl protested after a survey. "What's the matter with you? He looks just as he always looks all day. And you said what you most admired about him was his noble carriage and the way he held his head—"

"Your room in the insane asylum is No. 23 on the third floor," hissed the tinted young woman. "You're thinking of the way Lily and that bunch raved. I've too much sense."

"You said," insisted the stout salesgirl, who had difficulty in abandoning a line of thought once embarked upon, "you said that wouldn't it be marvelous to be engaged to him and how lucky a girl would be if—"

"Stop moving!" snapped the tinted young woman, "he's looking over this way! Why doesn't he pick out Nettie there? She isn't busy. I don't know what you're talking about, Mary Osterfield, and I care less! Any man as dumb as him is going to walk floors all his life—"

"You said," protested her stout friend patiently, "that Callings was the type of strong man who would end in the president's chair upstairs."

"Say, you're in a dangerous state," the hidden one told her. "Something's wrong with your brain wheels—"

"Why," said the stout salesgirl, almost turning around in her intensity, "you were just pleased to death when you happened to get on to his address and found he lived on the next street to you and bought cigars at Hensey's drug store! You said fate seemed to have a hand in it—"

"I've bought my face powder at Hensey's for years and they're the only store that carries the line!" said the tinted one in great indignation. "Just because Callings traded at that store was no reason at all for me to stop going there, was it? And I had to have powder and they were all out, and wasn't it perfectly natural for me to drop in their every night on the way home to see if it had come in, I'd like to know? It's a free country!

"What difference did it make to me if Callings came in there, too, at the same time? Naturally I had to be polite to him! I only ast him what he thought of pineapple face cream and wasn't the crushed strawberries at the soda fountain nice this evening! And that I was crazy about dancing—just what any lady would say.

"And what do you think—bend over! Last night just as he came in and I stepped out from behind the hairnet case all smiling pleasantly and said, 'Oh, Mr. Callings'—there he was with an ordinary little woman wheeling a baby stroller and another tagging along and she said, 'Dearie, don't forget to buy some safety pins!' And he was carrying a bunch of green onions with their tops sticking out and a bottle of milk and some laundry. He said 'How-de-do,' just as though he was good to look at, but I passed on, I tell you! Just plain married!"

"No!" exploded the stout girl, startled for once out of her calm. "Well, I never was crazy about him neither, I'll say!"—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Evolution Examined

Mr Editor:

In earlier days of discussion the Socratic method was much favored. That was, teaching by questions leading to definite conclusions.

It is this writer's intention, herein, to adopt this form, in presenting some questions which, so far as we know, have not been propounded to nor answered by the apostles of evolution.

In a former letter we tried to make it plain that evolution being simply a process, and not creative, it could only evoke what had already been involved. The outcome of evolution, which we admit, results from its processes is therefor a product inherent in the matter or substance in which it operates, and the word "product" both scientifically and etymologically stands for a thing drawn out of something else. Nothing added nor created.

Now the doctrine of evolution defined, seems to be this, that it is a process proceeding always from the lower to the higher from the simple to the complex, from the crude to the perfected plant or animal.

If this doctrine be true, then we ask. Has evolution intelligence? Has it foresight and purpose? If it has then we cannot escape the conclusion that it is either guided by "a divinity that shapes our ends," or else itself is a divinity.

Our next question is based upon the previous. If when in its arrival at the climax of its productions through a long series, we will assume its purpose to form man, and the last step is from ape to man, why does it persist in the production of apes as a separate distinct species inferior to the man, and in no way contributive to his further development?

Even in human inventions the man discards what he has proved to be worthless in his previous contrivances. We are not unaware that in the series of evolution many animals of great stature have become extinct and we have none in our day retaining any resemblance to them. Professor Huxly in his New York lectures (1876) threw upon the screen the footprints of a biped which he said could be seen in Massachusetts. This animal's stature may be imagined when its three toed feet, right and left, showed a stride of six feet nine inches at each step. Why did this attainment halt at this point and leave us without a successor, if even a smaller one and more perfect? That would have proved the continuity of evolution, yet that animal with all its monstrosity hasn't left us one fossil bone from which we could estimate its skeleton, only its tracks in the earth's crust.

O, yes, through all this befogging scientific lore and biological transitions and supposed transmigrations of soul and body we have a clearer word of testimony upon which we may lean, at least until a few of our questionings are answered satisfactorily.

Yours truly
JOHN TROLAND

Stories That Recall Others

Tempered Criticism.

He was only 12, but he contrived to throw the apple of discord into the boarding house to which he had been sent for convalescence after influenza.

It came about because they all read the postcard he had left on the hall table.

He had written: "There are three extraordinary old geesers stopping here, but one of them is rather a decent old geeser as geesers go."

Where He Came In.

A woman who had given a dinner party met a doctor in the street the following day and stopped to speak to him.

"I am so sorry, doctor," she said, "that you were unable to come to my dinner party last night. It would have done you good to be there."

"It has already done me good," he replied, tersely. "I have just prescribed for three of the guests."

A wealthy woman of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., has erected a huge granite mausoleum at a cost of $13,000 as a final resting place for her two pet dogs.

Sunday Morning Talk

WHAT WILL ABIDE

Heaven and earth shall pass away, but My words shall not pass away.

What words are these? They are not the words of man, for man fadeth like the flowers of the field, and his words pass away like the fragrance of samethe flowers. I know only One of whom it is said: "Of old hast Thou laid the foundation of the earth, and the Heaven's are the work of Thy hands. They shall perish, but Thou shalt endure: yea all of them shall wax old like a garment, as a vesture shalt Thou change them, and they shall be changed, but Thou are the same and Thy years shall have no end." He who claimed for His word everlasting validity and authority, must have been conscious of being one with the everlasting One of speaking His words and not the words of man. And this is why we believe the words of Jesus shall abide though Heaven and earth shall pass away.

SMALL MINORITY IN CONN. OBSERVE STANDARD TIME

HARTFORD, Aug. 14—Less than one ninth of the people of Connecticut observe standard time this summer, according to reports from town clerks and a few others throughout the state to Hartford Courant. As nearly as can be approximated by the returns received by this newspaper in response to inquiries sent to the town clerks 1,399,169 of the 1,503,445 people in the state follow daylight saving time, leaving 164,276 on standard time.

The latest population estimate, based on school enumeration returns as of September, 1924 made to the state board of education, was used to determine the proportion of people using standard and daylight saving time. In some instances, the towns clerks reported that a certain fraction of the people in their towns followed daylight time and the remainder standard time. In computing the totals, these fractions were applied to the population figures for those towns. Clerks in a handful of towns, including Brooklyn, Coventry, East Windsor, Franklin, Hartland, Newtown, Prospect, Salisbury, Saybrook, Sharon, Southbury, Voluntown and Waterford, did not answer the inquiry, and the information was supplied from other sources.

Seventy three of the 169 towns in the state reported that they are on standard time, without qualification; sixty seven including all but one of the cities, reported they are on daylight saving time, and twenty nine reported their people to be divided most of them nearly evenly, between standard and daylight saving time. The effect of the observance of daylight saving time in the large centers of population is felt in surrounding towns within a large radius in each case. Public clocks are generally on standard time, in conformity with the state law.

The city of Willimantic remains on standard time. It has twice defeated daylight saving time in city meetings, according to Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton, who was democratic house leader when the standard time law was passed in 1923.

MAN FOUND IN WEST SIDE GOAT SHED

Shortly after 2 o'clock this morning a man who refused to give his name was arrested in a goat shed at 104 High street and is locked up at police headquarters. Tony Saragusa, who lives in the house saw the man as he was making his way into the shed which several goats are kept and notified Officer Frank Gwiczdowski, who immediately notified police headquarters.

Capt. Thomas Murphy sent the patrol wagon with Officer Patrick Murphy and Patrick Saseman. The three officers, with Sergeant John H. Casey, found the man standing behind the door in the shed. He started to give battle, but was quickly loaded into the patrol wagon and brought to police headquarters. He was coatless and hatless and at police headquarters appeared to be intoxicated. The officers claim that at the time he was found in the shed he was perfectly sober. There was no trace of liquor when he arrived at police headquarters. He declined to give information about himself whatsoever. The police are making a thorough information of the case and the matter will be threshed out.

VARIOUS MATTERS

Light vehicle lamps at 7:16 (S. T.) this evening.

Plans are already being made for noting Labor Sunday, Sept. 6.

Today (Saturday) is the Feast of the Assumption, not Sunday, as stated.

It would not be safe to mention St. Swithin to a beach hotel proprietor these days!

It is mentioned by a Deep River correspondent that Mrs. W. J. Powers is a guest of friends in New London.

Miss Dorothy McKnight, of the Springfield library is spending her vacation at her home in Ellington.

The flower gardens about the home of Supt. Charles W. Young, at Goodyear, are a beautiful sight just now.

The hostess at the D. A. R. Museum at Norwich Town this (Saturday) afternoon will be Miss Bernice Willey.

A resident of Voluntown, Mrs. Albert G. Brown, remains very feeble and her children are caring for her.

A Lord's Point cottager, Mrs. Lucius Brayboy has had a gift of watermelons from her father's plantation at Aiken, S. C.

This week will see the harvesting of tobacco well under way in a number of Connecticut towns. The crop as a whole is good.

Miss Natalie Burnham, of Hampton, entertained Wednesday afternoon in honor of Miss Carol Robinson, who is at Chelsea Inn.

At the Congregational church in Central Village, Sunday, the pulpit will be occupied by Rev. Edward J. Ayers, of Norwich.

Grapes on vines in many Norwich gardens are ripe—which is something not often recorded as early as the middle of August.

After several oppressive hours, Friday's thunder shower came just in time to catch the store forces, as they were quitting work.

The Howe Waste and Packing company is to locate in Taunton, Mass., and is moving its plant from Moscow, near Hope Valley.

Rev. W. C. Prentiss, minister at Plainfield Congregational church, is spending his annual vacation at Pleasant View, with his family.

Richard Palmer, of North Stonington, is a patient at Backus hospital in Norwich. His mother, Mrs. Birdsey G. Palmer, is at his bedside.

Miss Phebe Barber, of Lemingwell, has left to visit relatives in South Killingly and Putnam after a week's visit with relatives at Central Village.

Misses Leah Leith, Violet Leith, Eva Colombe and Almedia Harpin of Baltic are spending two weeks' vacation with friends and relatives in New York city.

OBITUARY

Miss Richardetta E. Wilson

Miss Richardetta E. Wilson, 66, died in this city Thursday morning having been in failing health for some years. She was confined to her bed only a few days. Miss Wilson was born in Warrenton, Va. in May, 1859, the only child of the late Solomon and Mary Wilson. While a small child the family moved to New York city. The family later moved to this city and both her parents have since passed away here.

Both Miss Wilson and her mother will be well remembered by many of the older residents as both were very successful nurses. Failing health caused Miss Wilson to give up her profession several years ago. She has since made her home with Rev. Mrs. McGee of Mt. Pleasant street. The deceased was a member of the United Congregational church. To know her was to love her and her many friends will be grieved to hear of her death.

Edward Baggott

The death of Edward Baggott, 90, occurred Friday afternoon at 6:20 o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Catherine Delaney, 29 1-2 Sixth street, after a protracted illness due to the infirmities of advanced age, during which he was tenderly cared for by his daughters. Mr Baggott has been a resident of Greeneville for 24 years, where he had gained a large circle of friends, who will receive word of his death with sorrow.

Mr. Baggott was born at Limerick, Ireland, and was the son of John and Catherine Baggott. He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Catherine Delaney, Miss Mary Baggott and Mrs. Bernard Enright, all of this city and a brother, Edward Baggott of Providence. He also leaves eight grand children. He was a devout member of St. Mary's Memorial church.

Mrs. George G. Bailey

Adella H. Carver, beloved wife of George G. Bailey passed peacefully away at her late home, 317 Central avenue, Friday afternoon, at 5 o'clock. The cause of her death was severe nervous shock to her system as a result of an accident five months ago at Willimantic when she fell and broke her leg.

Mrs. Bailey while attending a Social Circle gathering in Willimantic on March 11, fell down a flight of stairs and received severe bruises, a broken leg with a splintered bone. She was taken to the Backus hospital, where she remained for nine weeks and for the last 16 weeks she has been a patient never confined to her bed at her home on Central avenue. She was known as Social Corner readers as "Adella Carver."

Mrs. Bailey was born in Killingly, Conn., 59 years ago, the daughter of Henry H. and Caroline Colman Carver. Thirty-four years ago this month she was united in marriage with George G. Bailey by Rev. Archie Brown, pastor of the First Baptist church and since her marriage she had always made her home in Greeneville. She was the mother of one little girl, who died 28 years ago, at the age of 5 years.

Besides her husband, who has been a faithful attendant during her long illness, she is survived by three sisters, Mrs. George Upton of Greeneville, Mrs. Charles Kramer of Boston nad Mrs. Fred Botham of Abington and Mrs. Fred Botham of Abington-Turner Upton of Greeneville are niece and nephew of the deceased. She also leaves four other nieces and one cousin, Charles Carver of Killingly.

Mrs. Bailey was a faithful member of the Third Baptist church and of the church missionary society and was also a teacher in the Sunday school. She was also a member of the Daughters of Pocahontas and the Bulletin Social Corner.

She will be sadly missed by a large circle of admiring friends and neighbors and especially in her home, which was her chief delight.

Mrs. Meredith Lee

Following an illness of five weeks, during which time everything possible was done to save her life, the death of Harriet Talcott May, wife of Meredith Lee of 221 Broadway, occurred Friday evening at 6:45 o'clock.

Mrs. Lee was born in New Rochelle, N. Y., January 31, 1906, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. May. When a young girl she moved, with her parents, to Irvington-on-Hudson, N. Y., where on December 8, 1923 was united in marriage with Meredith Lee, of New London, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. Beveridge Lee, the ceremony being conducted by Rev. Dr. Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church of New London and Rev. Dr. William Colton, rector of St. Barnabas Episcopal church of Irvington-on-Hudson.

Shortly after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Lee came to Norwich to make their home, establishing a residence at No. 221 Broadway. Since coming to Norwich, Mrs. Lee had endeared herself to many local people, all of whom will learn of her death with profound sorrow. To those left to mourn the loss of a beloved wife, daughter and sister, is extended the sincere sympathy of many friends.

Mrs. Lee is survived by her husband, an infant daughter, Harriet Charlotte Lee, born July 12th, her parents, and four brothers and one sister, William B. Jr., Newell, Gerald, Harold and Charlotte May, all of Irvington-on-Hudson.

ITALIAN RESIDENTS TO CELEBRATE WITH BOMBS, CONCERT AND FIREWORKS

The Italian residents of Norwich are completing plans for an elaborate celebration of the Feast of the Assumption which takes place Monday. The day's programme will begin at 6.30 o'clock in the morning when 15 aerial bombs will be exploded.

At 8.30 o'clock the Italian band will form at Steiner's hall and parade from there to Franklin street, up Franklin street and to St. Patrick's church where a solemn high mass will be celebrated at 9 o'clock. Following the mass the band will parade down Broadway to Main street, over Main to Thames square, countermarch through Main street, across Preston bridge to Hamilton avenue. Countermarching at that point the procession will proceed to North Main and up that street as far as the junction with Central avenue, around the silent policeman at that point and back to Steiner hall.

At noon 15 more bombs will be exploded and at 7 o'clock in the evening there will be another parade by the Italian band up Franklin street to the little park. At 7.30 o'clock there will be 15 more aerial bombs and this will be followed by a band concert at the little park. The programme will be as follows:

March—Symphonique Conte di Tori no .....P. Puca
Overture—Barber of Seville..G. Rossini
Selection—Fause ..... C. Guonod
Waltz—Les Patineurs..E. Waldteufel
Fantasia—Boheme .....G. Pucoini
Polka—Rememberance ..... P. Puca
Selection—Africaine.....G. Meyerbeer
The Star Spangled Banner

The concert will last until nearly 10 o'clock and is to be followed by an elaborate display of fireworks on Lanman's Hill. This will bring the day's celebration to a close.

The committee in charge of the celebration comprises: Rocco Barbeti, chairman; Ralph Divito, cashier; Guiseppe Cristina, Lorenzo Rinella, James D'Atri, Domenico Ciarleglia, Carmine Cedrone, E. Rondine, Sam Chinigo, Enrico Di Pucchio, Cesidio Tremontozzi, Sam Vasington, Antonio Donvito, Peronne Salvatore, Antonio Piazza, Michele Santacroce, Michele Sodella, Matteo Tedesco, Tony Coletti, Jr., Amideo Onofrio, Guiseppe Rigalbuto, Achillo Giammarco.

NEW STATE LABORATORY FOR HIGHWAY DEPT.

A new state laboratory for testing road-building materials used by the state highway department is now being established at Portland and will be ready for use on September 1, it has been announced by the department. An appropriation of $25,000 was authorized by the General Assembly to establish and equip the plant.

The state has bought a brick building formerly used by the Embio Manufacturing Company not far from its repair department headquarters, which will be ready for use with a few minor changes. F. G. Flood, formerly connected with the highway department as an engineer, has been named testing engineer in charge of the laboratory. Recently he has been connected with the engineering department of the city of Hartford.

The laboratory will be used to test sand, steel, concrete specimens and other materials used in highway construction to see that they meet the specifications required by the state for its contracts.

PLAN CLOSING EVENTS OF PLAYGROUND SEASON

At a meeting of the Recreation committee, held Friday night, Chairman William A. Fitzgerald was in charge. Superintendent Earl Brigham outlined a plan for the closing week of the playground season, week of August 24th, when there will be presented exercises showing what has been accomplished during the summer months at the various playgrounds.

The dramatics have been an especially interesting feature this season under the direction of Miss Katherine Dodd, who is arranging a special program for one evening of that week. There will also be an athletic meet at the Norwich Free Academy and a swimming meet at Mohegan park. The closing event of the season will be a demonstration at the Lake street playground, in which the children of all the city playgrounds will join and a band concert be given.

SURPRISE PARTY FOR MRS MARCUS CRADY

A delightful surprise party was given at the home of Miss Hazel Beebe, of Plainfield, Thursday evening, in honor of Mrs. Marcus Grady, who is leaving the employ of Carpenter Manufacturing company.

Dancing, games and music were enjoyed during the evening, Ukelele selections being rendered by Miss Toth and Earle White. Refreshments were served later in the evening by Mrs. Beebe, assisted by Mrs. Hallock.

Those present were Mrs. Marcus Grady and the Misses Nellie Connelly, Billy Toth, Anna Dziengiel, Mary Chemelsky, Gertrude Rook, Peggy Dayton, Hazel Beebe and Marcus Grady, Earle White, Thomas Shea, John Fitzgerald, Clyde Rock, Claude Beebe, Thomas McGarry and Jack Brown.

FOUND WATCHING PICTURES BACK OF BREED STAGE

Five boys, all about 13 years of age, were discovered in back of the stage at the Breed theatre Friday evening. They had sneaked in through a rear entrance and were watching the movies. The boys were taken to police headquarters where they had a session with Probation Officer Edwin Hill.

This is not the first time that boys have sneaked into the theatre and hidden back of the stage to watch the moving pictures. Several times boys have been caught there and warned by the theatre management.

AUTO STRUCK SMALL BOY ON NO. MAIN ST.

Hazen H. Jones of Sprague, driver and owner of a Buick coupe, reported at police headquarters that while driving on North Main street early Friday evening his machine knocked down Fred Puzo, about 7 years old. The boy who lives at No. 36 White street, received a scalp wound which received three stitches. He was attended by Dr. John W. Callahan and taken to his home by Mr. Puzo.

Bazaar Committee Meets

A meeting of the Colchester bazaar committee of Voiture Locale, No. 743, American Legion, was held Friday night in the legion rooms in the Uncas bank building, with Chairman Leon P. Raymond in charge. Various committees reported that all arrangements were being made for the purchase of necessary merchandise for the booths which are to be run by the Voiture members. It was also reported that the soda water and ice cream and other refreshments booths would be supplied by Colchester committees. The bazaar is being run under the auspices of the borough of Colchester and Voiture Locale of New London county.

Centennial Anniversary

A centennial anniversary service will be held Sunday afternoon, August 30th, at 3 o'clock, D. S. T., at Wassuc, East Glastonbury, Conn., under the old oak tree where George Washington once stood and where the early Methodist preachers used to hold services. The oak tree is on the New London turnpike near the summer home of John H. Buck. Nearby is the famous rock upon which Bishop Asbury stood when he preached to a large audience in the summer of 1794. Rev. J. B. Ackley of Burnside will give a few interesting facts from "A Lost Chapter in Methodism." Bishop William F. Anderson of the Boston area will preach the anniversary sermon. Old time hymns will be sung.

Progress on Colchester Road

At Colchester, Ben Green, who has been in charge of rebuilding the Norwich turnpike from Colchester town house to the Lebanon line, has completed the laying of stone. The oil will be put on some time next week.

TWO NEW BUILDINGS FOR FAIR GROUNDS

A special meeting of the New London County Fair association executives was held Friday afternoon with the following members present: Charles F. Bushnell, president, Gilbert S. Raymond, Charles D. Greenman, L. L. Chapman, Simon Brewster, George G. Avery, Edward N. O'Brien, Gilbert Morgan, J. L. Raymond and Edwin V. Ross.

It was voted to build two new buildings, each to measure 100 feet by 8 feet by 8 feet, these buildings to house the merchants and manufacturers exhibits. The buildings are to be divided off into stores, each to measure 10 feet front, to be separated by wire mesh. The front of the stores will be boarded up counter high, the remainder of the front to be board but to use in swinging style to allow them to be pulled up while in use and serve as awnings. The buildings will be set up on either side of a street thirty feet in width and will stand in the place formerly occupied as the midway. Each booth will have a sign designating its owner or occupant.

The booths have been in great demand and following have already been taken, Eastern Connecticut Power Co., two; Norwich Gas & Electrical company, Preston Brothers, Porteous & Mitchell, Caron's Specialty Shop, Kir ball's Textile shop, Quinn & Desmond, Connecticut Council of Catholic Women, Ponemah Mills company, Norwich Belt Manufacturing company, J. B. Martin company and the United Metal Manufacturing company, one each. Several other companies are considering entering the exhibit deeming it as a civic movement worthy of their support and there are still remain about seven stores to be taken. Work will be started immediately to construct the building that they may be completed before the fair opens.

It was also voted to entirely discard the woman's toilet and open the pay toilets, for their use, without charge, also to have a woman attendant present at all times during the fair days. It was also voted to make necessary repairs to the old grandstand to make it entirely safe for use. It was also announced the Veterans of Foreign Wars had secured a room adjoining that of Carl W. Brown.

Announcement was also made that Philo T. Platt, comissioner of agriculture and Leonard T. Healy, deputy commissioner, have accepted Secretary Ross' invitation to join with the governor's party on the opening day of the fair.

NORWICH GRANGE WILL ENTERTAIN MAINE DELEGATES

The regular business meeting of Norwich Grange, No. 172, Patrons of Husbandry was held Wednesday evening with a large attendance. The principal topic of discussion was the supper to be provided at the fairgrounds, August 28, for the Maine delegation to the New England Lecturers' convention which will be held that day at Storrs. Regret was expressed that Mr. and Mrs. Carl Geib, both prominent workers in the Grange, are to leave for Washington, D. C., to reside.

A part of the entertainment programme of the evening was given by a group of members of the West Side Community association. The Grange orchestra provided music and old and popular songs were sung. A read, Our Grange Principals was given by Mrs Anna Woods and William Rush was heard in a vocal solo, with an encore. There was also a reading, Our Grange Relations by Helen B. Moore followed by a song, Love's Sorrow, by Roderick F. Sullivan who responded to an insistent encore.

A reading, True Community Organization, written by Paul Brown, president of the West Side Community association was given by Mrs. K. H. Smith after which Mr. Sullivan was heard in another solo, Love's Old Sweet Song. Sandwiches, cake and punch were served by the feast committee.

Visitors were present from Preston City and Stonington. Preston City Grange has invited Norwich Grange to put on a number for their Neighbors' Night meeting which it to be held at their next session.

Norwich Grange has postponed its picnic which was to have been held next Thursday until the first week of September, owing to the fact that the county pomona grange is planning a picnic for next Thursday.

DONATES GOSHEN TRACT FOR STATE PARK

John M. Wadhams, chairman of the state board of finance, has donated a tract of land in Goshen, containing approximately fifty acres, to the state as an addition to the Mohawk state forest. The land, which has been in the Wadhams family for several generations, was formerly a part of the Elihu Hall property, which is of local historical interest. The gift will increase the Mohawk forest to 1,578 acres, most of the tract being in Cornwall and the greater part being gifts to the state from the White Memorial Foundation.

State Forester Austin F. Hawes has secured a photostat copy of a map of the town of Goshen which was made by L. M. Norton sometime between 1870 and 1880. The survey lines faithfully follow the individual land holdings in the town at that period and their irregularity gives the map the appearance of a cross patch quilt made of decidedly odd shaped pieces of cloth. The holdings of one owner change abruptly from a few feet in width to several miles this situation being repeated several times through the course of the tract. Besides presenting its own peculiar appearance, the odd shaped boundaries of this tract also form fantastic outlines for the adjoining properties.

Prohibition was adopted in the District of Columbia in 1917 by act of congress.

FLETCHER POST TO TURN OUT STRONG

That Robert O. Fletcher Post, No. 4, American Legion, is going to the state convention, to be held in New London, August 27, 28 and 29th, in true Legion style, was brought out Friday evening, at a meeting of the "On to New London Legion Committee" held in the post rooms in the Uncas bank building.

Chairman John A. Cunningham was in charge of the meeting and there was a full attendance of members. It was voted that Houston's East Side Drum corps be chosen to lead the Norwich boys in the big Legion parade on Saturday afternoon. This drum corps of 20 pieces, led by one of the youngest and snappiest drum majors in the state is a 100 per cent. Norwich product and the local Legion members feel certain they will make a big hit and bring back the prize for the best drum corps in line.

Another feature of the Norwich boys will be the 100 per cent. turnout with red roses, emblematical of Norwich, the Rose of New England. All members are to turn out in Post hats if possible, and cards are to be sent out notifying them to meet at the New London armory at 1.15 o'clock sharp. Saturday afternoon to await orders to fall into line. It is hoped that the local post will be represented in line by over 50 per cent. of its membership and plans have been made to care for over 100 marchers. Ex-Service men, not members of the post, are also urged to turn out and join with the boys in making the day a big Legion day.

Colonel H. S. Dorsey, of John Coleman Prince Post, No. 9 and general chairman of the convention committee has sent out notices concerning the happenings during the three days the convention will be in session in New London.

PRINTING OF PUBLIC ACTS IS COMPLETED

The printing of the public acts adopted by the 1925 session of the general assembly is practically completed. The volume this year will contain 189 acts and a reprint of the proposed state constitutional amendment concerning representation for towns, which was carried over for action by the next session.

The acts will be ready for distribution this year within a few days of the usual time, despite the fact that more than one-half the bills were not ready for the governor's signature when the legislature adjourned. Deputy Secretary Lounsbury explained that all the acts were set in type as soon as possible after adoption and were ready for printing soon after receiving the governor's approval.

Only two public acts were vetoed by Governor Trumbull. The act reducing the rate of interest on small loans and the bill providing that county sheriffs have authority to make purchases without prior application to the county commissioners.

The accumulative index is continued in the new volume of public acts, Mr. Lounsbury said, showing how the 1925 acts will affect those of 1913 1921 and 1923.

The number of public acts adopted during the 1925 session was less than during any previous session since the revision of the general statutes in 1918. In 1913, 345 were adopted, the next session, in 1921, 404 acts were on the list and at the 1923 session, 284 were adopted.

The special acts adopted by the 1925 general assembly are expected to be ready for distribution in about a week.

Greetings come to Norwich friends from the Ausable club, where Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Bond (Harriet M. Learned) of the Pequot, with Mr. Bond's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thorne, of Long Island, are motor guests. This smart club, near St. Roberts, N. Y., controls 60,000 acres of lake, stream mountain and woodland, with artistic cottages, camps, swimming pool, golf links, tennis courts, etc. The season is especially gay this year.

BRITISH NET STARS DISPLAY GREAT STRENGTH AGAINST AMERICANS

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Displaying unexpected strength, Great Britain's racquet stars gained a commanding lead in their battle to defend the Wightman cup, emblem of international supremacy, by taking two out of the first three matches from American rivals today at the West Side Tennis Club's stadium.

Miss Helen Wills, American national champion, saved the home forces from a rout by defeating Miss Joan Fry, 6-0, 7-5 in a spectacular tussle between these two 19-year old rivals, but England was decisively victorious in the remaining tests.

Miss Katherine McKane, former Wimbledon champion and ranking star of the invading team, opened the series with a three set triumph over Mrs. Molla Mallory, seven-times American titleholder, 6-4, 5-7, 6-0, while Mrs. Lambert Chambers and Miss E. H. Harvey, British doubles team, turned in the second victory by defeating Mrs. Mary Sutton Bundy and Mrs. Mallory 10-8, 6-1.

As a result of these setbacks, America faces an uphill task in the concluding matches tomorrow, when three singles and one doubles encounter will bring the series to a close.

In these contests, Miss Wills, Mrs. Mallory and Miss Eleanor Goss will carry the singles burden against Miss McKane, Miss Fry and Miss Evelyn Colyer, in that order, while the American doubles team of Miss Wills and Miss Mary K. Browne will oppose Miss McKane and Miss Colyer.

There was dramatic interest in the final match when Mrs. Chambers crossed racquets with Mrs. Bundy.

Twenty years ago these two were rivals for the Wimbledon title and Mrs. Bundy, then May Sutton, was victorious, but today Mrs. Chambers, captain of the British team, was the dominant factor in the doubles triumph.

Mrs. Bundy held her own in most of the exchanges and it might have been a different story had Mrs. Mallory given her veteran California's partner more assistance at critical moments. The Americans, for instance, had a good chance to take the first set when they led at 6-5 on Mrs. Mallory's service but they lost it, chiefly on the latter's errors, and with it went a hard-won advantage. Sharp play at the net carried the English pair to victory finally after most of the games had gone to deuce and they had no difficulty sweeping through the second set.

Miss McKane's victory over Mrs. Mallory was the more closely contested of the two singles matches but the tussle between the two youthful stars of the rival teams, Miss Wills and Miss Fry, was the most interesting and spectacular.

The American champion seemed headed for an overwhelming triumph when she took the first set at 6-0 in 11 minutes but before the gallery had time to readjust its focus, Miss Fry had raced through the first four games of the second set with the loss of only two points.

This sudden and effective spurt by the English girl, whose play had been nervous and uncertain in the first set seemed likely to carry her through the set but Miss Will's steadied in time to check her rival and pull out the match.

It was the American girl's cool playing and persistent court covering, as a matter of fact, that gave her the match. Fry traded drive for drive with Miss Wills from the baseline but invariably she erred under the monotonous attack of her opponent.

JAPANESE PLAYERS TAKE LEAD OVER SPANIARDS

BALTIMORE, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Japan took the lead in the second day's play of the preliminary Davis Cup matches at the Baltimore Country club today when Takeichi Harada, brilliant young Nipponese, and his captain, Zengo Shimizu, pulled out a gruelling five-set victory over Manuel and Jose Alonso of Spain. The scores were 6-2, 6-3, 2-6, 8-10, 6-3. Japan now needs but one victory in the two singles contests tomorrow to insure a meeting with the Australians in the third round of the competition.

Takeichi Harada, who yesterday defeated Eduardo Laquer in the singles, flashed a sensational game again today. He was ably seconded by the veteran Shimizu whose steadiness and generalship carried the Oriental team through many trying moments. Manuel Alonso, Spanish captain, bore the brunt of the Japanese attack, scoring practically all his team's points on his placement thrusts along the baselines and through the Japanese.

Japan ran out the first two sets with little difficulty. They showed steadiness and accuracy, keeping the Spaniards continually in the back court by their lofty lobs. Most of their play was directed at Jose Alonso, the weaker of the brothers, who made many errors. The fourth set brought out the best tennis of the day.

Harada's splendid net play and vicious service gave Japan the victory although the play was fast on both sides.

Tomorrow Harada will play Eduardo Laquer and Shimizu will meet Manuel Alonso in the final play of the tournament.

FIRST OF MARTIN-ASHLAND SERIES, JEWETT CITY SUNDAY

Sunday afternoon at Ashland Park the fast J. B. Martin team and the Ashland A. A. come together in the first game of a three-game series. As both clubs have been going at a fast clip a battle royal can be expected.

The J. B. Martin club has won 13 games and lost 2 so far this season, including wins over Riverview, Corbin Red Sox, Herrups, of Hartford, and Capitol City Colored Giants.

Ashland will lineup: Bill Liberty, c; Spike Liberty, p; Robertson, 1b; Sullet, ss; Rainey, 2b; Nap Liberty, 1b; Gilbert, lf; Ralli, cf; Benjamin, rf, and Cornier, utility.

The Velvetmakers will take the field: J. Murphy, c; Lemon or Pepin, p; J. Joubert, 1b; Krauss or F. Murphy, 2b; F. Gisy, 3b; Decelles, ss; W. Gisy, E. Joubert, E. Murphy and Donies in the outfield.

Tommy Corcoran, former International league umpire, will hold the indicator.

The grounds will be put in first class shape for Sunday's game and arrangements have been made to handle the largest crowd of the season.

FALCONS OF NEW BRITAIN AT TAFTVILLE TODAY

The fast Falcons of New Britain will clash with the Taftville A. A. this afternoon at the Providence street grounds at Taftville. The visitors are reputed to be one of the fastest baseball aggregations pastiming in and around New Britain. Mgr. Troland will throw his strongest lineup into the field to oppose the visitors who are known to be exceptionally hard hitters. Lefty Dugas or Lloyd Jarvis will be Troland's choice for the mound assignment with George Sheffiott behind the bat. The remainder of the Taftville lineup will be the same as in previous games.

GIANTS GAIN HALF GAME BY BEATING ROBINS TWICE

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(AP)—New York took both games of a double header from Brooklyn today, 3 to 2 and 5 to 3, gaining half a game on the league-leading Pirates.

Jack Scott emerged victor in the box in the opener, holding the Robins to 11 hits. A single by Frank Snyder, pinch-hitting for Jack Bentley, drove in the winning runs in the eighth of the second game.

Art Brown, southpaw from Mexican border, made his first start for the Robins and gave Bentley a stiff tussle on the mound. The score:

MULLIGAN HAS NO FEAR OF AN INJUNCTION

WATERBURY, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Promoter George F. Mulligan, when shown the Associated Press dispatch from Boston stating that Charles Cardio, manager of Red Chapman, Chelsea featherweight, would seek an injunction restraining Kid Kaplan, the featherweight champion, from meeting Babe Herman in a 15 round bout here on Aug. 27, stated tonight that he had no fears that Cardio would be able to stop the bout here.

"From what I have learned in talking with Kaplan's managers," Mulligan said, "Chapman has absolutely no claim against Herman. His claim should be against the Queensboro club if he believes he deserves redress. The bout between Chapman and Kaplan was scheduled for the Queensboro club in New York but was postponed when Kaplan hurt his hand in the bout with Kid Sullivan in this city. When Kaplan was ready to box again, the Queensboro club failed to go through with the bout, although Kaplan was willing and it was called off. The New York commission then demanded that Kaplan meet Herman for the featherweight championship and I have arranged to stage that bout in this city. Although I cannot see where Chapman has any claim against Kaplan, I have placed the matter in the hands of my attorney so that there can be no possibility of the bout being interfered with in any way."

DONOHUE NOT NOTIFIED OF CHAPMAN'S INTENT

MERIDEN, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Thomas E. Donohue, state boxing commissioner, has received no official notification of an injunction to be placed against the staging of a Kaplan-Herman championship bout at Waterbury on August 27 by Charles Cardio, manager of the Chelsean featherweight, Red Chapman, he stated in a telephone communication with the Mtriden Morning Record tonight.

Mr. Donohue said he was unaware of Cardio's intentions until told unofficially by a New London sports writer late today.

The gist of Donohue's statement was to the effect that he would officially take no action regarding the injunction until forced to do so and that the matter would probably find its way into the hands of the New York commission for settlement within the near future.

Kaplan returned today from his vacation at Moodus and will go into intensive training at Hanover park beginning tomorrow afternoon.

Babe Herman has staked his camp at Foxon, East Haven, and is working out daily with a coterie of sparing partners.

CORBIN RED SOX TO PLAY RIVERVIEW TODAY

The Corbin Red Sox, of New Britain, will be the attraction at the State Hospital this afternoon. The Red Sox have been playing in hard luck lately, losing games by a one-run margin. Nevertheless they have won 9 out 14 starts. They will go to the plate in the following order: Patrus 2b, Jasper ss, Huber lf, Schneider rf, Fitzpatrick 3b, Smith cf, Blanchard 1b, Noonan c, and Buckland, Highland or Blanchard p.

The Riverview club will present the same lineup that held the New Departure to a 1 to 0 score two weeks ago. The hospital club will go to the plate in the following order: Couillard cf, Hawes 2b, Mills 3b, Normandin ss, Harrell 1b, Moore lf, West p, Noell rf, and Belair c. If the managers of the Jewett City and Taftville A. A. clubs wish to settle once and for all who is who, and why, they can be accommodated at the State Hospital on Sept. 12 and 13th. Make your selection early and avoid the rush.

Valiant Jrs., Defeat Crescents

In a thrilling 10 inning contest Friday afternoon the Valiant Jrs. defeated the Crescent Jrs. by a score of 10 to 9. It was a hard fought game to the finish, neither team having the edge on the other. Anton for the Valiant Jrs. pitched superb ball allowing eight hits and sending back 10 men via the strike out route. Porter of the Crescents was hit freely allowing 12 hits and striking out 4. In the tenth inning J. Mingo led off with a double and scored easily on M. Murphy's three base hit thus winning the game.

Score by innings:

Crescent, Jrs.	0	1	2	0	0	1	3	0	2	0
Valiant Jrs.	2	0	1	3	0	0	1	0	3	1

Batteries: Vallants, Anton and M. Murphy; Crescents, Porter and Quinn.

COMMISSION DEMANDS FORFEIT OF $25,000 FOR DEMPSEY'S APPEARANCE

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The New York state athletic commission today demanded a certified check of $25,000 from Jack Kearns as an evidence of his good faith before it would recognize any contract signed by him binding Jack Dempsey to a title match with Harry Wills. This ruling was made by the commission when Kearns applied for reinstatement from an ineligibility ban placed against him when he ignored a recent request from the board that he accept, on behalf of Dempsey, a challenge hurled at the champion by the negro heavyweight.

Kearns did not have his check book with him today when he went to the commission offices and the boxing nolens agreed to allow him until next Tuesday to sign the contract and post the forfeit. Until that time his status with the commission remains the same, inegible. And until the ban is lifted the commission will not recognize him as Mickey Walker's manager.

Again the commission postponed action against Mickey Walker when Kearns told the board that he would have Walker sign a contract to meet Dave Shade of California before midnight tomorrow.

Chairman James A. Farley said that the time limit for Walker to sign for the match expires at midnight tomorrow and unless that contract is received before that time Walker will find himself suspended at next Tuesday's meeting.

Kearns made his peace with the commission but he didn't win his elimination from the blacklist. He was prepared to sign for Dempsey to meet Wills and Walker to meet Shade, as he previously announced, but the lack of the $25,000, prevented him from doing the former and his own ineligibility halted any action in Walker's behalf.

Chairman Farley was asked what would happen if Kearns signed for Dempsey and posted the required forfeit and then Dempsey refused to abide by the contract, as he has declared.

"You can't very will drag Dempsey into the ring by physical force and make him fight. Kearns will clean his skirts with us if he signs and posts the forfeit," added Farley.

"What will happen to the $25,000 forfeit in the event Dempsey balks?"

"Well, offhand, I feel that it should be returned to Kearns."

Kearns said after the meeting that the commission recognized him as Dempsey's manager and would approve anything he does in Dempsey's behalf providing he fulfills his promise to sign for a Wills match and posts the forfeit.

KINSEY BROTHERS MEET LOTT AND NORTON IN FINALS

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 14—(A. P.)—The Kinsey Brothers, Howard and Robert, today reached the final round of both singles and doubles in the Southampton Invitation Tennis tournament. The former tomorrow faces George Lott of Chicago in an effort to gain his second leg on the challenge trophy, and both will play for the doubles championship against Lott and Brian I. C. Norton, of St. Louis.

In the semi-final round of the singles today, Howard Kinsey eliminated Norton in straight sets 10-8, 6-1, while Lott disposed of Cedric Major of New York, rather easily, 6-0, 6-3.

The San Francisco player employed all his craft and running against Norton and wore the mid-westerner down by employing deep slices to the baseline intermingled with soft trap shots which barely skimmed the net.

After Kinsey ran out two games in the opening set, Norton, flashing his best tennis of the match, took four straight games and was within two points of 5-2.

At this stage the Californian played superlative ball and forcing the play at every issue, stormed through for three games and took the lead at 5-4.

Norton evened the count by breaking Kinsey's service and from thereon, the games see-sawed back and forth until 8-all. Norton beginning to weaken under Kinsey's service attack then dropped service and Kinsey ran out the set, 10-8.

Norton was too tired to try in the second set and the match developed into a procession of games for Kinsey.

The contest between Lott and Major resulted in a decisive victory for the Chicago youth, who has been playing sensational tennis all week.

Brian I. C. Norton and George M. Lott entered the final round by crushing the young Californians, Gerald Stratford and L. Ogden, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3.

AUSTRALIANS ADVANCE TO THIRD ROUND DOUBLES

MONTREAL, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Australia advanced to the third round of the Davis Cup tournament today by winning the doubles contest of a match with Canada, Gerald L. Patterson and John B. Hawkes defeating Willard F. Crocker and Jack Wright 6-0, 6-2, 6-4.

The victory, marking Australia's third straight triumph against Canada, eliminated the Canadians from the tournament and qualified the antipodeans for a series with the winner of the Spain-Japan contest.

The Australians won as impressively today as they did in taking the first two singles matches yesterday. In spite of the fact that Patterson suffered an attack of ptomaine poisoning last night, he played ever more vigorously and with better effect than in the singles against Wright.

The Canadians made a battle of it only in the last set, when they carried the score to 4-all only to have the Australians break through and take two straight games for the match.

BLUEGE'S DOUBLE IN 8th WINS FOR SENATORS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Third baseman Bluege's double with two on in the eighth inning broke up a pitching battle between Jones and Ruether today and Washington took the series opener from New York, 2 to 0. Meusel and Paschal of the Yankees each hit a triple but both were left on base. Score:

TROTTING AND PACING MARKS BROKEN AT CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The victories of Wire Worthy, in the Rainy Day sweepstakes consolation, for 2-year-old trotters, and Gordon Dillon, in the Sportsman, for 3-year-old trotters, and the smashing of the world's trotting and pacing records for a mile and an eighth, featured today's Grand Circuit racing at North Randall.

In winning the first heat of the 2-19 trot in 2:20 Traux, driven by Richard McMahon, Lexington, clipped a full second off the trotting mark for a mile and an eighth. The former record was set by Tennis here July 3. This time also was lowered today when Peter S. won the second heat in 2:20 2-5 and paid $153.60 on a $2 mutuel ticket.

The pacing record at 1 1-8 miles was twice lowered by Miss Czar Moko, an easy winner of the 2:08 pace. Driven by Neil Edman of Memphis she stepped the first heat in 2:18 3-5 and the second in 2:18 2-5.

Gordon Dillon had no trouble in taking the inaugural racing of the Sportsman. He was sent away in the lead and never was in danger in the first two heats but tired in the stretch in the third and finished fourth.

TENTATIVE ARTICLES FOR DEMPSEY-WILLS BOUT SIGNED

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(AP)—A tentative agreement for Harry Wills to fight Jack Dempsey next summer at Michigan City, Ind., under the direction of Promoter Floyd Fitzsimmons was signed today by the negro challenger's manager, Paddy Mullins.

Fitzsimmons, announcing that he had finally come to terms with Wills' manager after a conference at the latter's home this afternoon, left early tonight for Chicago.

Prior to his departure he wired the following message to Dempsey:

"Closed full details with Paddy Mullins this afternoon. Have been trying to get you on long distance for hours, but all efforts failed. But the match is in the bag, leaving for Chicago at 6 P. M.

FLOYD FITZSIMMONS."

Fitzsimmons carried with him Mullins' signature to an agreement calling for the fight to be staged somewhere in the middle west, but Fitzsimmons announced that his present plans provided for the bout to be put on at Michigan city. His present arena there, he declared, will seat approximately 40,000, but he said he proposed to build an addition to the structure large enough to accommodate 125,000.

Fitzsimmons said that the final signing of articles would take place in Chicago on or about September 20. He plans to stage this event, he said, in one of the Chicago ball parks, inviting the public to look on.

POETRY

THE MOUNTAIN TO THE PINE.

Thou tall, majestic monarch of the wood,
That standest where no wild vines dare to creep,
Men call thee old, and say that thou hast stood
A century upon my rugged steep;
Yet unto me thy life is but a day,
When I recall the things that I have seen,—
The forest pageants that have passed away
Upon the spot where first I saw thy green;
For I am older than the age of man,
Or all the living things that crawl or creep,
Or birds of air, or creatures of the deep;
I was the first dim outline of God's plan;
Only the waters of the restless sea
And the infinite stars in heaven are old to me.

—Clarence Hawkes.

THE MIRROR IN THE MOONLIGHT.

A mirror in the moonlight,
It is a weirdsome sight;
'Twas on a summer night,
Before it was a woman
Who once was fair as vain,
Who viewed upon the eerie glass
Her beauty on the wane.

Her beauty there a-waning,
She spied with tear-wet face
Although the moon, it strove to hide
The passing of its grace.
Ay, tears behung her lashes
As dew a shattering rose;
The man she'd loved had failed the tryst,—
Love off with beauty goes.

The moon looked down in pity;
It was a mournful scene;
The woman's face was ghastly fair—
The ghost of what had been;
The loveliest I'd ever known,
A face I can't forget;
The tearful eyes, the night wind's moan,
They haunt—they haunt me yet.
—Samuel Minturn Peck, in the Boston Transcript.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Waiter (to convivial gentleman at hotel who has entertained friends with realistic imitations)—Beg pardon, sir, the manager says no gentleman would make a noise like that.

Convivial Gentleman—Of course not. Taint meant to be a gentleman; it's a lion.—Rensselear Pup.

Meek—Henpeck has a straw hat he really likes.

Milds—One he really likes, eh?

Meeks—Yep, his wife wasn't with him when he bought it.—Chicago News.

Mrs. Brewer—John, somebody has been in the pantry while I was out.

Mr. Brewer—Well, the cat gets in there once in a while, doesn't she?

Mrs. Brewer—Yes, but she never leaves her pipe there.—Kansas City Star.

A man in a club nodded toward a stalwart, broad-shouldered man and said:

"He began as an office boy, I suppose, and worked his way up, step by step, to his present position of vast influence and power.

"No," was the reply, "not at all. He began as a star halfback and married the boss' daughter."—Brooklyn Standard Union.

Doctor—Your hands are very feverish and dry—now let me see your tongue.

O'Soaks—Ah, now you are talking, doctor; now you are talking!"—Pittsburgh Leader.

"You seem to be very fond of jazz music," said a man to another, in the lounge of a fashionable hotel now given over to dancing.

"Yes, I like it best of all," was the reply. "You don't have to put on formal attire when you listen to it, nobody asks you who wrote it, and you don't have to pretend you understand it."—Judge.

Small Edwin sat up in bed and began to cry as if his heart would break.

"Why, dear, what's the matter?" asked his mother.

"I dreamt I h-had a bag of candy, an' I woked up 'fore I c-could eat it," sobbed the little fellow.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Sentimental Sap—Don't you think dancing sort of fills one with a longing for something

California—Yes he is only 5 months old and trying to talk.

Easterner—Yes, trying to praise the climate, I suppose.—Chicago News.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Preston bridge was in a dangerous condition a half century ago and city and town authorities were being appealed to for action on the matter of repairing the bridge and making it safe for travel.

Other interesting bits of news as taken from the files of the Bulletin of 1875 is in part as follows:

Monday, August 9, 1875—A meeting of the stockholders and directors of the Norwich Horse Railroad company, was held at the offices of Lucius Brown on Saturday. John B. Shaw and Michael McQuick were elected new directors and Lucile Brown was elected secretary. It was voted to postpone the sale of the road until September 11th.

Stonington celebrates the attack of the British on the village, and their defeat in 1814, tomorrow, with an elaborate procession of antiques and horribles.

The Willimantic Linen company has declared a ten per cent dividend, payable on demand.

The large Elm tree in front of the Otis library is being defended by a number of local people who intend to go to law to prevent its being cut down.

It appears to be extremely desirable that the Norwich and Preston town authorities look to the condition of the open bridge across the Shetucket, which connects this city with the bridge district. At the present time a wagon in crossing the bridge causes considerable vibration, showing that the cords are very much weakened by long usage.

Charles McCheseney has been authorized by the New London County Agricultural society to solicit funds from private citizens to make the purses larger for horse racing events. The subject of having a balloon ascension was also discussed at the last meeting.

Tuesday, August 10, 1875—The Mackerel fishing off Watch Hill reef is unusually good this year. Catches are running from one to three pounds in weight and are being made in large numbers. Many Norwich people are taking advantage of the good fishing while enjoying an outing there.

An immense coal train, one hundred and twelve cars, went up the Norwich & Worcester road yesterday. Two engines were required to pull the long string of cars.

Frank Jewett, formerly a teacher at the Free Academy, has returned home after spending a year in Europe.

Willimantic has had two fires during the past few days, causing a loss of over $6,000. The first was a barn on the land owned by Earl S. Willis, in which a horse, a calf and a lot of tobacco were burned up; the other being A. J. Stones grocery store, which was saved before the fire had gained too much headway.

The committee on the fire department has recommended the adopting of the electric telegraph fire alarm and the matter will go before the voters of the city, at a meeting to be held on August 14th.

Wednesday, August 11, 1875—The rise in coffin trimmings will prevent many frugal families from enjoying all the pleasures of the green apple season this year.

Aldermen Brewer and Carpenter and Councilman Smith are the committee appointed to re-name local streets, to avoid conflict of names.

The survivors of the once powerful Narragansett tribe of Indians live on a small tract near Westerly. They are engaged chiefly in farming and are strongly religious in character.

Over 1,200 Odd Fellows from New Haven were on the boat which docked for a short time yesterday, at the steamboat wharf. Brother Odd fellows from Norwich were at the dock to welcome them and help them enjoy their brief stay in this city.

Half-hour guns were fired yesterday from the frigate Powhattan, out of respect to the memory of Andrew Johnson.

The Tallapoosa, man-O-war, came up the Thames to the Navy Yard yesterday to enable an examination of that place to be made.

Thursday, August 12, 1875—Mrs. Fillmore, wife of the ex-president is a guest of the Ocean House, Watch Hill.

A boat load of blue fish was at the wharf yesterday, selling at four cents a pound.

A chapel costing $6,000 has just been completed by Narraganett Pier, the money having been raised by summer visitors.

North Stonington has paid out $115 this year for sheep killed by dogs and there is but $108 left in the dog fund. Something is to be done to rid the town of this nuisance.

It is reported that Colonel George Merrill, formerly of the Northern road, will take the superintendency of the Rutland & Burlington road.

A meeting of the representatives and commissioners of the county will be held at New London Saturday morning to act on a petition in relation to enlarging the New London jail and levying a county tax.

The strange animal which has frightened residents of East Great Plain, was killed yesterday, and was found to be a large dog, which had evidently lived in the woods and become wild.

Friday, August 13, 1875—The body of a man was found in the Shetucket river yesterday and people believe he was robbed and then thrown overboard while in an intoxicated condition. He is a stranger in town but a woman who had seen him previously said that he had money at that time. None was found on his person when he was taken from the river. An investigation is being made.

It is believed that the animal killed at East Great Plain was a cross between a wolf and a dog, the wolf predominating. The animal fought hard before it was killed and when weighed tipped the scales at eighty-five pounds.

The stock of the Norwich & Worcester road was quoted at 128 in Boston yesterday.

The dwelling house of Zebulon T. York, at North Stonington was entered yesterday, Mr. and Mrs. York bound and gagged, and over $300 in money and valuables stolen by thieves. There were three thieves but all escaped and no trace of them has been found.

Mystic has a fight on since Capt. Thomas Williams, representing Williams and Dudley, erected a fence which runs several feet into the travelled way in front of the Central hall building. The people claim this is public property while the owners of the fence claim it is private land. The fight may be carried into court.

Saturday, August 14, 1875—The trial of Dwight F. Steere, charged with the murder of Frederick A. White, in New London, recently, will afford considerable interest here. Steere pleaded not guilty to the charge in the New London police court yesterday but witnesses for the state, officers from Worcester and New London claim Steere admitted murdering White with a knife and stealing money and a watch from him. They allege that Steere was drunk at the time the crime was committed.

In answer to unfair remarks about the Norwich Croquet club, members have issued a challenge to any club of the state to come to Norwich for the championship games, expenses to be paid by Norwich club members if the local club players are defeated.

Richard Adams has opened a new drug store in the Wauregan Block.

The stable floor at Oliver Reynolds caved in yesterday letting five horses drop through to be left hanging by their collars. They were rescued after considerable effort, none the worse for their experience.

NOANK

Steamer Xyphias is hauled out on the ways at Noank shipyard and will receive a general overhauling and repainting. This steamer was built in Noank 30 years ago, in a boat shop at the foot of the store hill. The building was situated on the grounds near J. H. Webster's plumbing shop. The boat was built under supervision of the late G. W. Rathbun, and was formerly used for sword-fishing. After the repairs are made it will leave the yard to engage in other business.

THE SOCIAL CORNER

GOOD NATURE PAYS LARGE DIVIDENDS.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
His Religion

My religion's lovin' God, who made us, one and all,
Who marks, no matter where it be, the humble sparrow's fall,
An' my religion's servin' Him the very best I can
By not deepisin' anything He made, especially man!
It's lovin' sky an' birds an' flowers an' trees,
But lovin' human beings more than any one of these.

I ain't no hand at preachin' an' I can't expound the creeds,
I fancy every fellow's faith must satisfy his needs
Or he would hunt for something else, an' I can't tell the why
An' wherefore of the doctrines deep an' what's more, don't try.
I reckon when this life is done and we can know His plan
God won't be hard on anyone who tried to be a man.

My religion doesn't hinge on some one rite or word,
I hold that any honest prayer a mortal makes is heard.
To love a church is well enough, but some get cold with pride.
An' quite forget their fellowmen for whom the Saviour died.
I fancy he best worships God, when all is said an' done,
Who tries to be, from day to day, a friend to everyone.

If God can mark the sparrow's fall
I don't believe He'll fail
To notice us an' how we act, when doubts an' fears assail.
I think He'll hold what's in our hearts above what's in our creeds
An' judge all our religions here by our recorded deeds
An' since man is God's greatest work since life on earth began
He'll set to Heaven, I believe, who helps his fellowman.

Walk With Him

I saw a man of another race,
Foreign garb and an alien face,
And was turning aside with a bitter frown
When an angel voice came whispering down.
"Walk with him," I heard it say,
"Only a mile along his way."
I walked with him to the highway's end
And found that the alien was my friend.

I saw a man in a servant's gear,
Walking alone, though throngs were near;
Then I walked with him as with the other,
And found that the servant was my brother.
I walked with men of dusky face,
Men from the distant Mongol races,
Men of varied political schools,
Divergent in faiths and forms and rules.

With a common fatherhood, all were brothers,
Yet each stood alien from the others.
Then I heard the voice of the master say,
With the grieving tears of a distant day.
"How oft would I have gathered you
But ye would not,' O brother true.
How can peace on earth be wrought
Tell we learn the lesson the Master taught?
Yonder a stranger walks today;
Go with him a mile upon his way

The Creed of the Bells

How sweet the chimes of the Sabbath bells!
Each one its errand in music tells,
In tones that float upon the air
As soft as song, as pure as prayer;
And I will put in simple rhyme
The language of the golden chime:
My happy heart with rapture swells
Responsive to the bells sweet bells.

"In deeds of love excel, excel!"
Chimed out from lofty towers a bell;
"This is the church, not built on sands,
Emblem of one not built with hands;
Its forms and sacred rites revere!
Come worship here! Come worship here!
In rituals and in faith excel!"
Chimed out the Episcopalian bell.

"O heed the ancient landmark well!"
In solemn tones exclaimed a bell.
"No progress made by mortal man
Can change the just, eternal plan;
With God there can be nothing new,
Ignore the false, embrace the true;
While all is well, is well, is well,"
Pealed out the good old Dutch church bell.

"Ye purifying waters swell!"
In mellow tones rang out a bell;
"Though faith alone in Christ can save,
Man must be plunged beneath the wave,
To show the world unfaltering faith
In what the sacred Scriptures saith;
O swell, ye rising waters, swell!"
Pealed out the clear-toned Baptist bell.

"Not faith alone, but works as well,
Must test the soul," said a soft bell;
"Come here and cast aside your load,
And work your way along the road.
With faith in God and faith in man,
And hope in Christ, where hope began;
Do well, do well, do well, do well!"
Rang out the Unitarian bell.

"Farewell, farewell, base world, farewell!"
In touching tones exclaimed a bell;
"Life is a boom, to mortal given,
To fit the soul for bliss in heaven;
Do not invoke the avenging rod;
Come here and learn the way to God.
Say to the world, 'farewell, farewell!'
To all the truth we tell, we tell."

"To all the truth we tell, we tell,"
Shouted in ecstasies a bell.
"Come all ye weary wanderers free:
Repeat, believe, have faith, and then
Be saved, and praise the Lord, amen!
Salvation's free, we tell, we tell,"
Shouted the Methodist bell.

"In after life there is no hell,"
In rapture rang a cheerful bell;
"Look up to heaven this holy day!
Where angels wait to lead the way
There are no fires, no fiends to blight
The future life; be just and right;
No Hell, no Hell, no Hell, no Hell!"
Rang out the Universalist bell.

"The Pilgrim Fathers heeded well
My cheerful voice," pealed forth a bell,
"No fetters here to clog the soul;
No arbitrary creeds control
The free heart and progressive mind
That leave the dusty past behind.
Speed well, speed well, speed well, speed well,
Pealed out the Independent bell.
"No Pope, no Pope to doom to Hell!"

SOCIAL CORNER EVENTS

Aug. 25—Picnic at Helpers, Windham Center.
Aug. 27—Trip to Rocky Point.

The Protestant rang out a bell,
"Great Luther left his fiery zeal
Within the hearts that truly feel
That loyalty to God will be
The fealty that makes men free.
No images where incense fell!"
Rang out old Martin Luther bell.

"All hail, ye saints in Heaven that dwell Close by the cross!" exclaimed a bell.
"Lean o'er the battlements of bliss
And deign to bless a world like this;
Let mortals kneel before this shrine,
Adore the water and the wine.
All hail, ye saints, the chorus swell!"
Chimed in the Roman Catholic bell.

"Ye workers who have toiled so well
To save the race," said a sweet bell;
"With pledge and badge and banner
Each brave heart beating like a drum;
Be royal men of noble deeds,
For love is holier than creeds;
Dring from the well, the well, the well!"
In rapture rang the Temperance bell.

GENEROUS WITH AUTOMOBILE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: It has been a long time since I wrote a letter but not because I've had any vacation, because I have not, but I've been sewing, sewing, sewing all summer, and the only real pleasures I've had is the nice auto rides that I've had with Annette and her hubby. I'll tell the whole world how generous they are.

They are always giving some one a good time and if every one that has an auto was half as generous as they are with their friends and neighbors, well you know the rest.

Well, Mayfayre is having her vacation. She has gone to Boston and vicinity for a visit. I tell you its nice to go away and feel contented, knowing that you have a grown up daughter to keep things going for you.

I remember one time I was to have my vacation and told my mother that if she cared to go away I'd keep house for her for a week. Well, the first day she went I cried all day. A young girl friend asked me what I was crying for and I said "my mother has gone to Boston for a visit." She said "Good land, you'd think she was dead." Believe me I felt almost as if she was. I was that lonesome. Well, I cried all that day and watched the street about all the time for the rest of the week and believe me I was happy when she came home. I was that lonesome.

That poor girl friend didn't know what it was to have a good mother, hers having died when she was an infant and she lived with a crotchety old aunt that did nothing but find fault with her.

Did I hear some one say "Well, she gave her a home."

Yes, oh yes, she gave her a home but the poor girl was afraid even to say that her soul was her own. She was a good girl, and good to her aunt and I have often wondered how the girl was so good natured and jolly. Now the aunt is dead and that girl has her own home and does as she pleases. Has everything she wants and is happy.

Well this is a little longer than I intended it to be.

Was pleased to meet Ivy, Forget-Me-Not, Kinsy and E. L. M.

E. L. M.—Hope you gave a good report of me to Tatting. Next time I hope she will come with you.

Thank you Mr. Editor for that yellow slip. It was very unexpected but oh, quite welcome. I assure you.

DESCRIBES WATERVILLE, ME

Dear Social Corner Friends: I am going to tell you about Waterville for I know that some of the readers have dear relatives there.

Waterville is a very pretty little city situated on the west side of the Kenebec river. It is handy to Augusta, the capital of the state, and it is easy of access to several other towns.

Situated as it is on the banks of the Kennebec river, Waterville has its location on one of the principal power giving rivers of Maine.

This river has its source and is the chief outlet for the Great Moosehead lake and its tributaries and in its course from lake to ocean it furnishes many thousands of horse power for industrial purposes.

Waterville was incorporated as a town in 1802 with only a small population was but 4,852, while now it has increased to 13,351 according to the census of 1920. A city charter was adopted January 23, 1888.

It is a great manufacturing city. There are paper mills, factories and iron works. For all the city is noted for its manufactures, its railroads and many other things, Waterville is known far and wide because of its great educational facilities. The common schools are of the very best and its high school is excellent. In Waterville is located the Coburn Classical Institute, one of the best preparatory schools in New England.

There is also Colby college. It is notable because of the scholars, statesmen and business men it has graduated.

Round about Waterville, which is the trading center for a large territory in central Maine, are some of the richest and best farms to be found in the state.

There are many handsome residences in Waterville and hustling business houses. Nearby are the greatest fishing grounds in the state.

Waterville is one of the foremost cities, beautiful and healthy, progressive and pathfinding, ideally situated the center of recreation, pleasure, education and hustling business, and no place in Maine has progressed so rapidly as Waterville. The streets of Waterville are tree lined. Over head branches of stately elms meet and form arches that shade the traveled ways and make them beautiful.

Best wishes for everybody from

FOUND PICNIC DELIGHTFUL

Dear Social Corner Members: Only a few lines this time, but I thought I must tell you that after being a member of the Corner for many years I on Wednesday a week ago went to the Social Corner picnic at Ocean Beach, the first Social Corner gathering I have ever attended. The members that I met were so friendly and cordial I am anxious to go again and meet more of them. How true it is wher ever you go you meet some one who knows someone you know.

Dorinda: I was hoping you might be there. I met Kensy and isn't she nice?

Dorothy Bradford: Are your initials A. M. and have you a friend in another town whose initials are E. G.?

Justice: You have my sympatay. Wish I knew you. My mother went through the same.

Crimson Rambler: No, the one who put me wise never lived up your way. She has no car and does not know how to drive but I often talk with someone who lived up your way but he does not drive a car and she does not know you are a Corner member. Was hoping I would meet you at the picnic. I wonder if Ma of Greene Gables and Chub were there?

Black Eyed Susie: Tatting and I have been talking about you today. She is sorry she did not go to the picnic now.

A SUNDAY AT OCEAN GROVE

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Ocean Grove is unique. It is said there is no place like it in the world. A Sunday spent within its gates will justify that statement. Yet, the sea ever has its charms, and Ocean Grove by the sea will ever have its charms for its faithful followers.

While the weekenders and autoists which thronged its thoroughfares the previous saturday disappeared before midnight, it certainly is an extreme surprise to awaken on the Sabbatn morn amid profund silence, for it is in the stillness of Heaven that the light of the Sabbath day breaks over Ocean Grove. Not an automobile enters its closed gates, not a Sunday newspaper, a soda, nor an ice cream cone may be purchased within its sacred precints, nor is there a garage in Ocean Grove, and Oh! not an anatomical exhibit on the beach.

But it is in the great auditorium, one of the largest in the world, seating nearly 10,000 people where the interest centers, and services are held almost hourly during the day. In the evening the twilight services on the beavch add a certain romantic sentiment to the otherwise staid devotional custome—a quaint reminder of the old time practices, which for 50 years or more have been observed at Ocean Grove.

The Pilgrim's Pathway, leading from the ocean frontage to the entrance of the autitorium is banked on either side with flowers and green. This Pathway and Wesley Lake, when illuminated, are the picturesque features of Ocean Grove, which together with the tent colonies are in unique comparison with the more elaborate cottages and hotels. During the week commercialism has its place, and a post office, banks and the movies are among the outside interests.

One great attraction was the Criterion Male Quartette, who sang with much expression. There is a City, A Beautiful City, at one of the early services, and it would seem under the inspiration of these voices, as if that "City by the Sea" had momentarily taken on the glory of that "Beautiful City" of which they sung.

Ocean Grove has about a mile ocean frontage. Wesley Lake on the left separates it from Asbury Park, and Fletcher Lake on the right from Bradley beach, and on the sabbath Day the line is strictly drawn.

But it is only five minutes walk from the sublime to the ridiculous. Asbury Park on the left is teeming with life and excitement. The dancing pavilions, merry go rounds and pony paths are treading the lively pace. Bradley beach on the other side is playing its part in the amusement program.

In any direction humanity is following its own form of amusement, which is offered in every up to date jazz and trash form to the public. The automobiles are parked in double rows along the closed entrance to Ocean Grove. The piers are crowded with fishermen, golf, tennis, sea bathin, e.c., and on Saturdays when the week enders crowd the beaches the bathing suit displays are somewhat startling. Yet, the ocean sobs and sighs and sings the same melody to the worshipper as to the pleasure seeker.

From Ocean Grove to Sea Girt, a distance of about six miles, is a continuous board walk along the ocean frontage, and an automobile road along the shores of the Atlantic which connects with the state road, affords a delightful ride along the Jersey shore, of which I had the pleasure. On Sunday afternoon we also drove to within five miles of Lakewood.

But when the evening came and I passed from within the gates of Ocean Grove, I heard again the strains of, There is a City, A Beautiful City, and as the train sped through the cities along the Jersey shore and the ferry plied across the bay to New York harbor with the lights gleaming far out to sea, and twinkling in the distance, I found myself peering through the darkness and mist, for perchance, a vision of the peacefulness of that Beautiful City by the Sea.

THE LITTLE SPINSTER.

SOCIAL CORNER DISPELS BLUES

Dear Social Corner Memmbers: I sent in a letter last week but I almost know it was to late to be printed but wanted to say a good word for the picnic at Ocean Beach. Now I will add a little more. Tatting was so sorry she had not made a special effort to have gone when I told her about it and Incensted Reader has made so many attempts to go. Some day they will get to a Corner meeting I'm sure. To hear you tell of your clubs makes one wish there was a club near us so we could join.

O. D.: You're no sport at all and I always thought you were one. Was hoping I would see you on the trolley. Perhaps we'll make it some other time. Enjoyed reading of your trip to the tree. I think it's one I read about some time ago people were going to see. I don't know where it is. I did not find time to read the Social Corner page until Sunday. I was having a blue spell but when I read when Pa is sick and when Ma is sick I laughed until I cried. Then came Lular Wylie's letter which brought more laughter so I felt Saturday's Bulletin was worth a good deal. I don't blame you for wanting to keep Biddy Ann after having such a time getting her. The poetry had a lot of truth in it I guess.

Crimson Rambler: You certainly have been in the rug business. I inquired for you at the beach.

Yes, Kitty Lou, I use a brush washing collors and cuffs. It is a great help in washing pants and overalls, start carrying your own dishes to the hall where you have so much work. I know you will like the idea when you get used to it. I am going to try and come some time and shall hope to see True Blue there. I am wondering if there will be another picnic this season.

E. L. M.

GATHERING AT "HELPER'S."

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I shall be glad to welcome any that can come on Aug. 25. I truly hope Foxglove and Whirlwind will make the effort to come. Also Bug, and bring Ma of Green Gables, please. Don't forget to bring dishes and plenty of good things to eat.

The place is at Windham Center, third house from the Congregational church and on the same side of the road, Cootland road. We expect to have a good dinner. Ice cream will be for sale. What is over the expenses goes in S. C. treasury.

Should it be very stormy, next day please.

Yours for a good time,

HELPER.

ROBERT MONTGOMERY MEMORIAL CHAPEL

Dear Cornerites: The letters have been unusually interesting this summer. Have enjoyed reading about vacations and auto trips. Have had several nice rides myself. The one to Watch Hill with its lovely scenery passing acres of dahlias in bloom, the same of other flower's with their sign cut flowers for sale is worthy of mention. Elizabeth Park on Rose Sunday, the ramblers just beginning to bloom, other's all out, besides the hedge of sweet peas, their fragrance so sweet. It was fairly sickening but oh they were so beautiful. Then to New Haven twice by three different routes passing through East Hampton, where many happy childhood days were spent sailing on the lake in summer, skating in winter. One of special interest perhaps to some of you sisters will be the stop at Camp Hazen (the Y. M. C. A. camp) visiting the Robert Eldridge Montgomery Memorial chapel, which is situated on a side of a hill reaching it by broad winding stone steps. At the foot of the steps is a large rustic arch with a cross at each end, his name on the arch done in small rustic letters at one side the large memorial stone with bronze plate, his name and date on it. The chapel is in the open air. All seats done in rustic work in half circle, sloping gently down the hill, seating perhaps 200 more or less. The pulpit a beautiful large boulder almost the shape and size of some altars with ferns growing around the base of it and beautiful flowers and three large rustic chairs by the pulpit, different from any I ever saw, the choir seats on one side with rustic rail in front, back of it a precipice of perhaps 50 feet or more with a rail. It was beautiful such a lovely and worthy memorial from his parents. Many of you know how he lost his life. Although not personally acquainted my children attended the N. F. A. with him. Am afraid this is rather lengthy.

Out one more guess N. O. T. have finally come to the conclusion you are Yantic school teacher and are personally acquainted with Betsy Trotunce, am I right this time? By your letter in S. C. last week will surely find out if you are to drive down with your family in three weeks. Will granddaughter come also?

GRACE.

RECALLS PICNIC EVENTS

Dear Editor and Sisters: While about the festive board at Twice Twenties several clocks were in view, now if we had a discarded one, by removing the "works" or insides (front and back) could we not make a nice little medicine chest, by adding a few sheives or by putting pegs on same use it for spools of different colored thread, seldom used. How we enjoyed the roll call that day. Most of the sisters were born in The Garden of Eden or in Connecticut.

This state has been nicknamed "The Land of Steady Habits," alluding to the moral character of its inhabitants. Esmaralda hails from Ohio but is improving under New England culture.

Bumble-Bee, U. C. E. and Aunty Bee: Not rested yet? No wonder. But such a wonderful day. So glad to see the old friends of home church and grange, had a ride in Aunty Bee's new car and a piece of Mrs. E. C. W's nut bread. What could any one ask more!

We want to thank May B and you all for the many fine things you have said about our picnic. We do not deserve any praise. Why it all belongs to you. We just struck off a few preliminaries and you Social Corner sisters brought the "good time" with you. Lets review:

Here is Avon with the flowers, 1492 with the cake, Primrose, T. T. and the others with speeches, everybody with baskets loaded, Keziah Doolittle with the history. Space forbids naming you all.

Aries: Thank you for sending poem and pictures to us all.

Your motto must be For Others.

Best wishes to all

ESMARALDA.

MOTHERS AND PICNICS

Dear Social Corner Friends: What I would like to write to the Social Corner often comes to mind but rarely gets on paper.

Buffalo: Am told that we live not far apart. Hope to get acquainted.

Regrets to Twice Twenty that I was detained from the picnic but will still hope for a future opportunity for picnicing with the sisters.

Several weeks ago someone mentioned taking olive oil as a human lubricant. I wonder how many have taken up the new fad of mineral oil. It is a very good thing when needed.

Last year someone, not of Club 4, but in the Corner complained of the selfishness of mothers with small children in letting other people do all the work at the picnics. I wonder if I am expressing a more general feeling in saying that the mothers who tend little folks night and day get them ready and care for them properly at picnics besides bringing them their share of eatables are fully entitled to the waiting on of those not similarly blessed.

The garden and fruit are fast filling the empty jars. The growing things have seldom gone long in need of a drink this summer.

And now we are beginning to plan for fall and winter so fast coming on.

With best wishes to all.

THIRTY TWO

POINTS ON PAMISTRY

Dear Editor and Sisters: Girls who are interested in love and lovers and what girl is not? may be amused to learn some of the signs by which palmist read the love stories written in peoples hands.

The heart line runs across the upper part of the hand just beneath those cushions or mounts which are at the base of the fingers. Look at a number of hands and when see one that gives the impression that this lines is set a little lower than is normal, you have found an idealist in love, one is hard to win and exacting in love standards.

If this idealistic line divides into anew two pronged fork on the mount below the forefinger (the mount of Jupiter.) its owner once won, is absolutely true and loyal. The line set very low shows a cold nature, with a little love to give anyone. And a loveless nature, with a little love to give anyone, and a loveless life is indicated when this low set line is pale in color and free from little loops and branches. A very high set heart line means an intense, passionate, jealous nature, and when this line is deeply cut and red in tinge its qualities are intensified. The girl who is warm hearted and loving, generous, and not over exacting with her admirers, has a heart line placed neither very high nor very low of a warn pink color, with plenty of tiny branches, if with this sort of a line the two mounts at the base of the hand (the mount of Venus) the ball of the thumb, and that of the moon (the mount opposite it) are high she is also romantic. Branches all along the heart line mean friendship, usually people of the opposite sex. Branches at the ends of the line tell of love affairs. Those under the forefinger are generally supposed to mark affairs of importance, such as engagements and marriages; while those beneath the little finger begins to grow. Occasionally, one of these tiny girlations lines extend up into the mount, and over the side of the hand, overshadowing every other lover marked there. This means of course, that the play love has become a paramount importance.

Wee crosses just off the heart line, but so close to it that one prong of the cross touches the line, also mark affairs of this lesser type. A triangle on the line shows calculation in love, a sign often corroborated by another triangle on the love mount Venus, white dots shows conquests in love. Darker dots show love disappointments. A chained line tells of a flirtatious nature. If it is chained halfway the owner began life with this tendency but has overcome it. When the low set idealistic heart line is chained, we have an idealist who is inclined to become involved in sentimental relation while looking for the ideal knight.

A break in the line means an affair broken off. Sometime this break is mended by a tiny overlapping line, which indicates the quarrel is healed. Sometimes lines grow around the break in the form of a square; and since squares in the hand are supposed to mean preservation from trouble, this square tells of recovery from heart trouble indicated by the beats.

Curiously enough the position of these dots and breaks often tells something of the calling of the calling or talents of the lover who is responsible for the marks. When they occur under Jupiter the forefinger he is ambitious, often a man of importance. Under Saturn the middle finger, he is apt to have something to do with the earth such as farming, mining interests or some branch of engineering; under Apollo the ring finger, he has something to do with fine arts, under Mercury the little finger, he is concerned with law, medicine or business. When the affair has been very important there is often a line, called the line of influence extending from the dot or break across the hand to mount of Venus. A double heart line shows a double power of loving. Sometimes this double line runs a short distance. This shows the double power of loving is confined to the period of a special love affair. Some girls never knew how much they can love until this one man comes into their lives. Sometimes this double line is formed by the extension of one of these lines that are found on the side of the hand between the heart line proper and the base of the little finger. This means a very intense emotional nature, on that demands from the object of its attention absolute and absorbing devotion.

These lines on the side of the hand are designated marriage lines, but if they really mean marriage lines, some of us would rival Brigham Young. However they do mean love affairs, one affair for every line and the longest and strongest of these lines do mean either marriage or a very important affair. A fork at the end of one of these lines means a broken engagement—if the fork is on the inside of the hand—the owner is responsible for the break; if on the outside of the hand, the other person concerned is to blame. When the line droops toward the heart line widowhood is foreshadowed. When it curves upward towards the little finger sings blessedness is decreed by old time palmist. Probably they drew their conclusion in a day when it was the fashion to pine away, if disappointed in love. A more hopeful, and more modern, reading is that the owner of the securing line will never marry the man that particular line represents and may even go so far to vow celibacy, and at the time she quarrels with him. Breaks overlaps and squares on these marriage lines are to be read as such marks are read on the heart line.

Across the mount of Jupiter is supposed to mark a happy marriage. A star attached to this tells of marriage to a man of distinction. The big line encircling the thumb is the life line and the lines lying parallel with it, but nearer the thumb are called influences lines and often refer to husbands and lovers. Many a happy married woman has one of these lines running close to her life line for a long time.

The fate line, which generally speaking runs from the basis of the hand up to the mount at the base of the second finger, caller the mount of Saturn, also has love affairs marked upon it. This line is not found on all hands, but when it is present and clearly marked little influence lines often travel beside it. A big influence rising from the mount of the moon is supposed to be a wealthy or advantageous marriage.

An upward branch from the fate line toward the heart line tells of a love affair. If this branch actually touches the heart line the affair ends in marriage. If marriage changes one's circumstances greatly, there is usually a break in the fate line at the time it takes place and a change in the appearance of the line beyond the break. The smoother and stronger the line is beyond the break the more successful the marriage is.

While scientific palmist smile at the idea of letters being marked in one's palm many a girl equipped with a magnifying glass has been well satisfied with the result of her search for them. So if you are eager to find your sweethearts initials in your hand take your glass and search diligently upon the mount supposed to govern his calling.

Another popular hand superstitution, if the tip of a girl's little finger reaches beyond the top joint of her next finger she will rule her husband, if it falls below this joint he will rule her, and yet another is that the white spots on one's nails have a meaning. On the thumb, they predict a gift of money; on the forefinger, friends; on the middle finger, foes; on the ring finger, lovers or love letters, and on the little finger, journeys.

Signs usually appear in the left hand; therefore the line on this hand indicate the traits and opportunities nature has given us. If we encourage the love and friendships that come our way, the right hand is supposed to show, later, what we have made of them, and consequently of ourselves. It is certainly very interesting to study the marked difference which is often found in the two hands on the same person.

KITTY LOU.

GOOD TIME AT PICNIC

Dear Editor and Social Cornerites: Just a few lines to tell what a good time I had the last Wednesday at Social Corner picnic. When I got to Ocean Beach I saw many sisters of the Social Corner and they were all nice and they had a book with them and they would write down all the new sisters' names. That was a good thing. Take it from me, the next time I do go to a picnic or meeting I will make it sure that I have a book with me.

Well, O. D., you came to see the big oak, too bad that you did not know that Forget-me-not lives in one part of the house you pass by. You would like to know how old is the big oak. Well, he is over 30 years old. And O. D. they do not hold services here every Sunday. They did have services here seven years ago. Good luck and best wishes to the Corner and editor.

FOR GET ME NOT.

THANKS FOR BIRTHDAY CARD

Wild Rose thanks her dear Social Corner Sister Aries for the birthday card she sent to her.

THE PASSION FLOWER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: How many of you are familiar with the Passion vine and flower? I think it is one of the most beautiful of the climbers. The Spaniards named it "granadillo." The flower represents in itself all the elments of the Christian passion; the crown of throns, the three nails, the five wounds, and the cords that bound the martyr of Calvary. And as the vine bears a red fruit they are supposed to represent the drops of blood of Christ. The flower closes at set of sun, and opens when the sun rises. The passion flowers is blue and red, including all the graduation of both colors and is about four inches in diameter, the leaves are emerald green. The outer petals of the flower are 10 in number, representing the ten commandments.

There is a wonderful legend in Spanish concerning the origin of the passion flower. It follows:

Mburucuya was a Spanish maiden, fair and beautiful, who went to the land of the Guaranies with her father, a captain. Mburucuya was not her Christian name, but the name given her by one that loved her well but furtively, a Guarani chief.

Mburucuya and the chief saw each other without the knowledge of the Spanish captain who, true believer and good soldier that he was, would never have permitted his daughter to wed a heretic and an enemy.

However, a fateful moment arrived for the unfortunate lovers. The maiden's father had selected the one from among his people that was to be her husband, a gallant captain that loved her and sought her with persistence, although he had received from her naught save disdain. Mburucuya refused to accept him and arguments availed nothing. To all of them she opposed the undeminstrable reason of not loving him, but her conduct only drove to desperation the old captain, naturally despotic and authoritarian on principle.

Mburucuya was even more unhappy than formerly, for if the mere presumption of a refusal had obliged her to conceal her love, she was now certain that if her father knew of it he would become very angry.

The unfortunate lovers saw each other more and more from day to day, in secret and when night had wrapped its shadows about the Spanish fort.

The girl could not go out night after night, because she could not mock the paternal vigilance, but the young chief was ever without, peering into the shadows, always penetrable to his eyes of a savage, and only when the red disk of the sun began to show did he depart without seeing her, after he had previously confided to the breezes some melancholy tones of his rustic reed flute.

One night she did not hear the melancholy tones. She went out the next night, but he did not appear.

She thought he might have been wounded, that he might have fought with some of the wild beasts of the forest. She did not think he might have forgotten her; and she waited, all in vain. She never saw her Indian suitor again, nor did she ever hear again the melancholy tones of his rustic flute.

She was driven to despair by the anguish of the unknown; she became pale and hollow eyed; her gaze saddened; she had to smother her grief in her bosom, for she could communicate with no one the sorrow of her love, all the more cruel on this account, perhaps, since it is well known how given to confidences are those that rejoice or suffer because of love.

After sunset, on a night in which she, as if still waiting, was gazing into the infinite, alone and mute from amid the thicket at hand rose the figure of an old Indian woman.

She spoke to Mburucuya.

That Indian was the mother of him that loved her well, and she came to describe his sad fate to her. He had been slain by Mburucuya's father inquestionably the captain, chancing on the story of their love, had thought death the only means of separating them.

However, it was an ill thought of his hard heart, because Mburucuya followed the Indian to the spot where the mortal remains of the victim reposed—an aerial bier, according to the Guarani custom, lest in the shadows of the forest, and so solitary that only the funeral bird yagua flitted about it and accorded it the harsh concerte of its screeches.

Maddened by sorrow she dug a deep ditch, deposited there the body of the one that had died for love of her and over it pierced her heart, already bleeding before it was wounded, with an arrow her lover had given her in happier days; and the small feathered arrow remained over the heart of the dead maiden like an exotic flower sprung from it.

The old Indian, as Mburucuya had instructed her, took it on herself to cover the bodies with earth, and she, marveling, was the first to see, some time afterward, how from that grave was springing up a plant never seen thitherto, with green leaves, blue and incarnadine flowers and yellowish fruit with a red heart; and how that plant climbed over the aged trees of the forest and beautied them, and even they were already rotting; attached itself to their tunks and branches, lovingly gracing them with the miracle of its youthful beauty.

That plant was the mburucuya, and those that dwell in the forest and those that dwell in the forest and along the river hold that if in the mburucuya are to be seen the attributes of the passion of Him that died for the love of them, it is because Jesus approved of the sacrifice of the maiden; for love ennobles and purifies.

ASKS FOR RECIPES

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Have been wanting to write for some time, "to keep in good standing," but some how did not get to it, have been rather busy this summer, a lot of berries and currants to see to and now the huckleberries and blackberries to pick, so it keeps me busy picking and canning. It's warm and tiring work to put up fruit, but if we only hold the thought that we are canning summer sunshine for winter cheer it will seem much easier.

The summer days are going fast, we have no piazza to sit on, but instead a lovely large ash tree right in the front yard. A couch hammock, swing hammock and chairs are out there most of the time and we enjoy it very much, especially Betsey Bray who spends a great deal of her time out there on sunshiny days and it does her a lot of good.

Mary France also I had a wonderful time at Zany and Twice Twenties picnic, the weather man was undecided that day so made us the same. We finally got started, met Primrose on the trolley who kindly took us under her wing and brought us safely to port.

Mostly strangers to us, but it wasn't long before we were all chatting like old friends. We all enjoyed the hospitality of their home, and many thanks for kindness. A very fine dinner was served in the barn and later home made fudge and watermelon was passed around which was enjoyed by all, a day long to be remembered and to [illegible] Olga and family kindly gave Mary France and myself an auto ride in to Willimantic, a rare treat for me and for which I was very thankful.

Hope Cobweb: You certainly are having a lovely summer. As [illegible]ing of taking a trip to Maine if all goes well.

Golden Glow: Wish you were here to go berrying with us.

When making huckleberry pie just cut the under crust one half inch larger than upper crust, and when upper crust, and when over upper crust, press with tip of thumb and the juice will not leak out.

Will some one of the sisters kindly send recipe for elderberry wine, blackberry cordial and currant wine. Hate to have so many berries go to waste. With sympathy for those in trouble and best wishes for the Corner.

MARIGOLD

USING LEFT-OVERS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Left-overs seem to be a constant trial to some housewives—what do you do with your left over coffee? Turn the clear coffee into a bowl and when you make your next batch of coffee put the cold coffee in the coffee pot and use it as part of the liquid for the new batch. I use my cold coffee for wetting of dark cakes, coffee jelly, iced coffee on a hot day. With cold coffee you can color lace. The dried coffee grounds you can use to fill cushions. I also use coffee in gingerbread, it is good for to use in Mocha frosting. In gelatine instead of water makes a wonderful dessert with cold cream or you can eat the gelatine with fruit.

How do you serve your butter? Butter will go much farther and every one will have enough if individual servings are cut in small squares half an inch thick.

Better the economical use of a good grade of butter than an over abundance of cheap substitute.

Did you ever think the condition of a breakbox tells the character of the family. I should say the condition of the bread box, usually shows the condition of the family bank account. A well kept breakbox speaks of thrift. Left over slices can either be wrapped in wax paper or you can keep a small tin candy box and keep all cut slices in this; broken pieces you can dry, put through the chopper and use for crumbs, for poultry dressing or scalloping dishes.

Oatmeal is a wonderful substitute for crackers. In using half an egg or the white break the shell and let white out, then dip a small square of white paper in the white and paste over the hole, the yolk will keep perfectly fresh for several days.

Ethelyn—Aunt L was glad to hear from you. Mother thought the poetry sent was fine. We will send it to the S. C. later.

Aunt H.—Do you get your Courier every week? Let us know if you are skimped.

Idel—Hope you will come to Norwich soon. It is some cooler here than at West Palm Beach. Josie and Viola were here and spent the day. We made sweet peas and roses. Hope you get your Courier.

Mock Sweetbreads—One pound of fresh tripe, vinegar, 3 cups white sauce, rounds of toast. Clean tripe thoroughly. Boil in water to cover for several hours until very tender. Put in cold water, add very little vinegar (I pull off all the lose skin then cut in dice. Reheat in the white sauce, which should be well seasoned. Use some of white stock in making the sauce if possible. Put on rounds of toast and serve very hot.

THANKS FOR BIRTHDAY CARDS

Dear Corner Friends: If it is not too late I want to thank those that remembered me by cards and good wishes for my birthday.

I see by a letter to the Corner that Effie M. has hired the Episcopal church house for future meetings of Club. No. 1, and I want to say that she has been greatly misinformed as the standing committee has learned from the church officials that the rooms are not to be rented at any price. We are still looking for a suitable or more desirable place before the second Wednesday in September.

THEODA

PLANNING ROCKY POINT TRIP.

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: What a good time we had on our trip to Ocean Beach and now we want to get ready for a trip to Rocky Point. Theoda has gone away for a week or so and I am helping her to get the trip ready. All that would like to go please call 644-12 and let me know. We will try and get the same bus and will arrange to leave Willimantic at 7 a. m., Thursday, Aug. 27.

April Flower—Call up and let me know if you want to go and all the others that held up their hands in the bus coming home from the Beach.

GOOD SUMMER FOR FLOWERS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: Many thanks to our editor for check received. Surely he is kind and fair to give us all a little encouragement in turn.

The summer is nearly gone. How few the days have seemed. I go out several times a day to look at my flowers the same as Ma of Green Gables said she did. There is a joy in watching them grow and the weather has been favorable for both vegetables and flowers.

Have not forgotten the kind messages sent by Pedestrian. Hope all is well with her and that she is still able to go walking.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

State police searched the store of Edgar V. Dupuis, of Moosup, last week finding two bottles of alleged alcohol, also searched the residence of Ernest E. Dupuis, his father, when the family was away from home, forcing an entrance.

The report that the elder Dupuis was to be tried Friday was all wrong, as he was not charged with any offense whatever, the actual sale and reputation charges being against Edgar V. Dupuis, the son.

The case was called in Plainfield town court Friday, and set for trial next Tuesday at 9 o'clock (standard time), Joseph P. Smith of Moosup and Harry B. Beck of Danielson representing the Dupuis interests.

The entire community is greatly stirred up over the matter, as Mr. Dupuis, the elder is a prominent and widely known business man, and the fact of searching his home was evidently due to the son who is charged with an actual sale residing with his parents, and not that any one considered the elder Dupuis guilty of violating the law.

MYSTERIOUS THEFT OF TIRES CLEARED UP AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 14—August Christianson, 28, a plumber at 45 Church street, was taken into custody this afternoon by Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Patrolman Clarence Wells charged with theft. He was locked up in default of a surety on his bond of $300 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning.

Christianson occupies the same building as does Albert H. Frink, the owner and yesterday Frink informed the police that he had been mysteriously robbed of seven automobile tires, the mysterious part of the theft being that Frink had been in the place continuously for a week, while his helper has been in the place at all times during the night, also slept there. Last night Patrolman Clarence Wells obtained information that pointed to Christianson as the thief for it was known that he had complete knowledge of the movements of Frink and his employee. Acting upon the information obtained last night, Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Patrolman Wells went to the Christianson establishment about 2 o'clock and there found the seven tires. Christianson admitted the theft, but declared that he was drunk when he stole the tires.

Max Fern, proprietor of the Ocean View hotel, Ocean Beach, complained to the police at 12:30 o'clock this morning that he and the guests at his hotel were given much annoyance and unable to sleep nights because of the great annoyance and unable to sleep nights because of the great amount of noise made at a bowling alley, located near the hotel.

Willika Metzermacher, a painter, who is intoxicated often, became drunk yesterday and was taken in by the police. Mrs. Metzermacher testified against him in court this morning. She said he had work, but that it was a task to get any of his money for herself and the family, and represented that Metzermacher owed two months' rent and no fuel. She said he came to the house yesterday with a man named [illegible] watched them and saw where they went to obtain liquor. Metzermacher became intoxicated. Mrs. Metzermacher declared that he had called her the vilest of names. That she said was abuse that she would put up with. She has had him arrested often before, but today she appeared against him in court. Judge Prince read the law to him an dthen committed him to jail for a stay of ten days.

Charles Parks, public service car operator, didn't heed the order given to him a few days ago, when he was found guilty of using his car for unlawful purposes. Then his license to operate was taken from him and returned to the motor vehicle commissioner. Parks thought he had a plan to defeat the order of the court and secure an operator who did have a public service car license. Parks drove the car and Sergeant Smith arrested him and today Parks was fined $10.

Daniel C. Beckwith, alleged to have been connected with recent burglaries in this city, was in the court as a person without visible means of support. Police appeared and that further evidence was wanted in connection with the case and asked for an adjournment in the hearing to obtain that evidence. The prosecution pointed out that since the arrest of Beckwith there had been no robberies in this city, whereas there was one a night for a good many nights before that time. The prosecution said that the only testimony of a theft by which Beckwith offered to sell cigarettes at half the retail price and below the wholesale figure [illegible] This man had identified Beckwith as the person who made the offer of the cigarettes. It was declared that at the places where cigarettes had formed much of the plunder. Beckwith was held in bail of $200 till the 21st inst. The police are confident he is the robber, but they desire to get more proof to connect him with the breaking and entering of stores.

Two brothers, James and Patrick McArdle, were charged with intoxication, and each admitted that he was justly so charged. They declared that they came here from Fishers Island to meet a friend from Providence. The renewal of friendships was over some liquor and the brothers became a little intoxicated. They were roaming about the railroad tracks while they waited for the Fishers Island boat and there they were in danger, so their arrest was asked for and secured. They have been in court before more than once of late, so they were fined $5 each today.

Ralph L. Stout of Broad street was charged with parking his car in a restricted section on the west side of Bank street. He pleaded guilty, saying that he went to several stores there and did not realize that his car was parked for an hour or more.

Chester Phillips was guilty of the same indiscretion, but he is a stranger in the city and was not familiar with the ordinance, perhaps. Judgment was suspended in each case but the accused were told some things they will do well to remember.

Bamis Lubanick gave a bond of $10 yesterday when ordered to appear in court for violation of the parking ordinance. He didn't appear today, so his bond was declared forfeited.

Alfred S. Chappell, formerly of New London, now residing in Denver, Col., is spending several weeks in this city. Mr. Chappell is a son of William S. Chappell, real estate dealer of this city and Windham.

An automobile owned and operated by George J. Fox, 207 Williams street, and a car owned and driven by Richard Bruden, Greens Village, L. I., were in collision this afternoon on Main street. Both cars were slightly damaged.

Mrs. Marie Baier, about 55, wife of George Baier, died last night at her residence, 303 Huntington street. Mrs. Baier had been ill many weeks. Besides her husband, she is survived by two daughters and a son.

Louis Lipman, of Hartford today acquired of Joseph R. Schwartz the cottage at 48 Park street.

Benjamin A. Armstrong has sold a parcel of land on Terrace avenue and two tracts of land on Cole street to Zoffi Szeiglewski and Catherine Sewczyk.

Antonio and Mary DeMarco have sold a house and lot on Truman street to The J. E. Fitzgerald company. The price paid was $9,000.

While being speeded through the streets of this city late this afternoon in an attempt to obtain medical treatment by which an endeavor could be made to save his life, Michael J. Griffin, about 53, of Hartford, succumbed to gastric ulcers for he was dead when the Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital had been reached. Mr. Griffin is well known in Hartford, where he has been a manufacturer a number of years.

Mr. Griffin and his son and daughter-in-law had been spending a fortnight at Block Island and this afternoon they came to New London to make the trip back to Hartford by automobile. After the machine had passed through State street and had entered Broad street, Mr. Griffin was stricken with a severe internal hemorrhage and was rushed to the Lena private hospital, Broad street. The victim was carried to the institution but in the absence of Dr. Lena, the patient was not received. Mr. Griffin, then in a dying condition was placed back in the automobile and a hurried trip was made to the Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, but as the machine passed through Montauk avenue, death occurred.

The New York Yacht club on its annual cruise departed from New London on the run to Newport, R. I., this forenoon, but because of a dense fog the start, which was scheduled for 9 o'clock, was not made until two hours later. The sloops were the first of the craft to get under way and the schooners followed 15 minutes later.

While standing on the platform of the Waterford station of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad last night, John Bouchette, of Waterford, and employe of the railroad, was held up and robbed of $33. Bouchette informed the Waterford authorities of the holdup and today they are conducting an investigation which may lead to the apprehension of two New London young men, for the New Londoners are strongly suspected of robbing Bouchette. Bouchette was standing on the platform shortly after 9 o'clock, according to the story he has related to the authorities when he was suddenly seized from behind and his hands and arms pinioned to his back. In another instant the second hold-up man appeared in front of Bouchette and with one hand over the victim's mouth to prevent an outcry being made, the other hand rifled the pockets of Bouchette.

Mrs. Eva H. Barber, wife of James Barber, formerly of Harrison's station, Waterford, died yesterday at the residence of her daughter, Mrs Howard Smith, 27 Morgan street. The body will be interred in the family plot in Plainfield.

Mrs. Alice Edmonds, Maple avenue, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital where she underwent an operation yesterday for appendicities.

Sidney M. Sulmar has acquired the valuable realty, corner of Main and Church streets, consisting of a house and lot, of the Misses Fannie and Alice Crump. Also upon the purchase was made several days ago, the deed transferring the property has not been received at the office of the city clerk. The property consisting of a two and one-half story dwelling and the land, the latter having a frontage on Main street of 110 feet and a depth of 140 feet. It is the intention of Mr. Sulmar to raze the building and to cause a business block to be erected upon the site.

Augusta C. Comstock and C. Frank Walden, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Lillian M. Moon, this city, have sold Nicola and Assunta Ciccarelli a parcel of land on Jefferson avenue.

Harry Brown, United States Coast Guard, destroyer McCall; Mrs. Ernest Decker and infant daughter, 100 Riverview avenue; Miss Mae Taylor, 259 Main street; Master John O'Brien, Niantic; Arnaldo Sechahiahioia, 73 Walbach street; Miss Helen Donovan, 444 Williams street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

GEO. LIBRIZZI UNDER BONDS FOR HEARING AUGUST 21ST

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 14—George Librizzi, 135 Jefferson avenue, and employed as a public service operator, was before United States Commissioner Russell T. Corcoran this morning charged with violation of the prohibition law, transportation and possession. He was held in bonds of $500 for hearing on the 21st inst.

The arrest of Librizzi was made as the result of the raid on a barn in Center Groton last Sunday evening by prohibition enforcement agents and state police. A quantity of booze, alleged to be owned by Samuel Santinelli, 44 Shaw street, this city, was stored here. A short time before the raid upon the barn, the officers seized an abandoned automobile, alleged to have contained much of the liquor that had been stored in the barn and the officers claimed that the automobile is owned by Santinelli, although it is registered in Librizzi's name. Librizzi declares that the automobile was stolen from the garage of Samuel Kat, 632 Bank street sometime Sunday afternoon or early Sunday evening.

Santinelli, in a statement made today, declared that last night he received a telephone message from Fred Barber, a former employe, requesting Santinelli to go to the vicinity of Trumbull street and Pequot avenue on the representation that Barber had important information for Santinelli. Santinelli obtained two witnesses and went to the specified location where he claims he met Barber and a companion named Silva. The information referred to, according to Santinelli, was important only to Barber, for Santinelli declared that Barber requested a sum of money by which Barber and Silva could leave the city. Santinelli refused to comply with the request and declared that he will reveal that information when he is presented before United States Commissioner Corcoran the same day that Librizzi is slated for hearing.

CHAS. MOORE NOT IN COURT— HELD AT NORWICH STATE HOSP.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 14—Charlie Moore, known as Charlie Chaplin, was scheduled to appear in court this morning, but circumstances necessitated the postponement of his appearance. He is being detained at the Norwich hospital that his mental condition may be determined. He has been there two weeks, it is deemed prudent to keep him some time longer, so his case was today postponed for a month.

PIMPLES ON FACE AND HANDS

Itched and Burned. Face Was Terribly Disfigured. Cuticura Healed.

"My skin trouble began with small pimples that broke out on my face and later on my hands. They were hard, red and small but grew larger and caused great pain. MYSTIC

The sudden death of Mrs. Susan M. Watrous, widow of Albert G. Watrous, at her home, 34 Mistuxet avenue, Thursday morning, was a shock to friends and relatives. She retired Wednesday night apparently as well as usual and arose Thursday morning and made the fire and started to go upstairs when she was stricken, as she was found by her daughter, Miss Madila Watrous, sitting on the bottom stair, dead. The latter summoned help, but it was found that her mother had passed away as she had wished to go, without any lingering illness, same as her husband also had died some years ago. She was born in Old Mystic, the daughter of David Lamphere and Mary Houghe, one of a large family of children. After her marriage she resided in Old Mystic while her husband was cashier of the bank there until it closed. The family moved to Mystic and later Mr. Watrous was engineer for many years for the Mystic Valley Water company and they lived in the house owned by the company that was rebuilt and made modern for them, renting her home until Mr. Watrous retired from the position and they returned to Mystic to spend the last years of their lives. Mrs. Watrous was of pleasing personality, naturally retiring, and when she made a friendship it was lasting. She was liked by all her neighbors. She was a devoted wife and mother. She leaves the daughter, Miss Madila Watrous, who lived with her and two sons George A. Watrous, of Stamford, and Adin M. Watrous, of Groton. Of this large family only four are living, Mrs. Annabel Douglas, of New London, Miss Bertha Lamphere and Mrs. Charles Flint, of Mystic, and Edwin Lamphere, of Old Mystic.

Rev. George P. Jones is to preach in the Union Baptist church Sunday morning. The evening services are omitted during August.

Mrs. Raymond L. Snell and Miss Katherine MacKay, of New London have returned from a six weeks' stay at Hyannis, Mass. During their stay there they motored to nearby places.

The sewing society of Charity chapter, O. E. S., met Friday afternoon with Mrs. Stella Wilcox, in Quinabaug.

The Mystic Building and Loan association is to meet Monday evening.

Mrs. Sarah Spink is recovering from a recent illness at the home of her son.

Mrs. George Ashcroft has returned to Ledyard, after a visit here.

Mrs. Grace Snell has returned to Stow, Mass., after a visit with her son here and with her daughter at Groton Long Point.

OLD MYSTIC

The body of Mrs. Anna Taylor Parton was brought from Yonkers, N. Y., to Elm Grove cemetery for burial Saturday. She was the oldest daughter of Amos B. Taylor and Huldah Babcock. She was brought up here and after her marriage with Arthur Parton, an artist, she lived near New York, and always visited here as long as her parents lived. She leaves four children and several grandchildren. Mr. Parton died several years ago and was buried in the Taylor plot in the local cemetery.

Mrs. John Hood is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Arthur Douglas, in Providence.

Mrs. Lucy Polley and daughters Bertha and Betty, of Waltham, Mass., are visiting her father, Alonzo Chapman.

Rev. Francis Mitchell is to preach in the Baptist church Sunday morning.

Professor De Witt T. Keach, of Yale, delivered a lecture in the Baptist church Friday for Plus Ultra class.

The semi-monthly meeting of the Old Mystic Social Circle was held in the Methodist parish house Monday evening with 27 present. A social hour was spent and refreshments were served.

Edward Spring, who had not been heard from for several years, but was recently heard from in Denver, Colo., is expected here soon to claim his share in the estate left by his uncle, Rodolph Davis, who died three and a half years ago.

PENDLETON HILL

Mr. and Mrs. John Rae and three sons returned from a European trip this week and are at their summer home here.

The Backus hospital ambulance conveyed Richard Palmer to that hospital Friday of last week. A specialist from Hartford with Dr. Glidersleeve, of Norwich, visited him here the day before he went.

Charles Roode was a week-end visitor in Washington, D. C.

Rev. and Mrs. Walter Boardman, of Barnegat, N. J., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cottrell and sisters, for a few days this week.

Mrs. C. Dwight Thompson and granddaughter, Lucile Wheeler, have returned to their home, after three weeks' visit with Mrs. Harris Boardman.

Clifford Thompson and Ed. Harrington have been trimming the brush in a most satisfactory manner.

Several from here were in Westerly this week to inspect the new hospital.

DROUGHT CAUSES SUGAR PRICES TO FLUCTUATE

In 1923 the price fluctuations of sugar were relatively wide ranging from 5.02 cents for Cuban raws, duty paid, in January, to 8.41 cents on April 25th. The advance was caused by a drought in Cuba, which reduced the cane yield from early estimates of 4,200,000 or 4,400,000 tons to an actual yield of 3,603,000 tons. As the effects of the drought developed, buyers bid up the price, as they are very apt to do with the price of anything the supply of which seems likely to be short. As prices rose, considerable excitement developed and government officials undertook to enjoin the sugar exchange and indict traders for conspiracy, but these proceedings ultimately came to nothing.

However, the high prices which ruled on that crop had economic results. They stimulated beet sugar producers to plant increased acreage in the spring of 1924, so that the world's 1924-1925 beet crop has amounted to 8,185,386 long tons (according to Willett & Gray's figures,) as compared with 5,861,478 long tons in the previous crop year, an increase of 2,323,907 long tons. Cane production does not in general respond as rapidly to the price stimulus as beet production, because of the necessity of planting so far ahead of time of harvest. Nevertheless the world's cane crop also shows an increase over last year of 817,000 tons. The latest estimates of the Cuban cane crop vary between 4,925,000 tons (Guma-Mejer) and 5,100,000 (Himeley.) as compared with a crop of 4,066,641 long tons last year.

In response to prospects in the latter part of 1924 for large production everywhere, the price of raw sugar fell from 6.15 cents duty paid at New York, on December 27th. The maximum fluctuations during the first five months of this year from this price have been about one-third of a cent below. In this striking fashion have the high prices of 1923 "cured themselves."

Low Prices Stimulate Consumption

This, however, is not the only lesson in economics taught by the big sugar crop. Lower prices have increased consumption. Reliable information from Europe is to the effect that although production for the five principal exporting countries of Europe, (Germany, Czecho-Slovakia, Belgium, Holland, Poland) increased 1,141,000 tons over last year, stocks in those countries on April first were only 178,000 tons in excess of last year at the corresponding date. In comparing the Cuban and European situation it must be borne in mind that the European beet crop was practically made by the end of January, and supplies have been disappearing since then, while the Cuban season is just now closing, and its production will be the main supply of this country to the end of this year. Nevertheless, with production to May 15 about 850,000 tons larger than to that date last year, stocks at ports and plantations were only 525,000 tons larger, indicating that the rapid movement of the European crop has not meant any curtailment of the demands on Cuba.

These figures show that the disappearance, however, is not the same as consumption. The sugar has gone to the trade but there remains the question whether stocks in the trade are greater than normal. It is known that the general trade policy in all lines of general trade policy in all lines of late has been to carry no larger stocks than are necessary, and in view of the general tendency of sugar prices downward since last December it seems probable that this has been the policy of sugar dealers. So far as information is available it supports this view.

In this country, with the season of largest demand in immediate prospect invisible stocks are reported as low, although the distribution from cane refineries and beet sugar mills for the first quarter of the year exceeded last year's distribution by 116,000 tons, an increase of 8.7 per cent.

U. S. Sugar Budget for 1925

Because of the present relatively low price of sugar and the relatively high tariff of 2.2 cents per pound on all foreign raw sugars except Cuban raws, it is clear that receipts of full duty sugars will be as small this year as in other years of low prices. Analyzing the sugar position of the United States for 1925, it is therefore only necessary to consider our usual sources of supply.

The carry over of United States beet sugar at the beginning of the year is estimated at 725,000 tons (raw basis) and 20,000 tons for Louisiana, making a total of 2,431,000 tons raw basis. The Cuban crop may be set at 5,000,000 tons, of which approximately 1,200,000 tons will be sold to Canada, the United Kingdom, other European countries and the Far East, and about locally, leaving 3,575,000 for the United States. There must be added about 250,000 tons of 1925 beet sugar which will be distributed before the end of the year.

The total available supply in terms of refined sugar for this year for the United States, for consumption and export, will thus be about 5,800,000 long tons. Exports of refined sugar may be estimated at about 300,000 tons which would leave available for domestic consumption for the calendar year 1925 about 5,500,000 tons. Trade figures of consumption for the first quarter of the year show an increase over last year of 8.7 per cent. which applied to last year's consumption of 4,854,000 long tons (Willett & Gray) would mean a consumption for the year of about 5,300,000 tons, leaving an apparent surplus of about 200,000 tons.

This is a close margin on the estimated consumption, and might be wiped out by summer demands somewhat greater than ordinary. In the last year of low prices, 1922, the per capita consumption, according to the government estimate was 103.18 pounds, while in 1924 it was 95.80 pounds. A rise to the 1922 rate would wipe out the indicated surplus several times over. There is to be considered not only the normal increase of demand, and the increase naturally resulting from the low price, but that European beet production is now back on practically the pre-war basis, and the price is so low as to be unremunerative on the bulk of production in all countries. These facts afford reason for belief that planting at least will not increase and as the yield on the present crop has been generally good, it would seem probable that the sugar-producers are in line for some such change as has come to the hog-raisers, rubber-producers and wheat-growers.

Mrs TIMMY & Mrs WhiteFoot Gossip

Gossiping, like unwatched fire,
Brings results that oft are dire.
—Old Mother Nature.

Mrs. Timmy, the Flying Squirrel, passed close to the doorway of the home of Mrs. Whitefoot the Wood Mouse when climbing up to her own apartment in the Green Forest apartment tree. Of course Mrs. Whitefoot had soon discovered that Mrs. Timmy had moved into the upper apartment. As Mrs. Timmy was hurrying up early one evening with a fat May Beetle for her children, Mrs. Whitefoot poked her head out of her doorway. "Good evening, Mrs. Timmy," said she. "I hear you have moved into the apartment above us. I hope you will enjoy your new apartment. Whitefoot and I looked it over but decided that it is a little too high for us. That is why we took this lower apartment. I trust your babies are well and enjoying their new home."

"They are quite well, thank you," replied Mrs. Timmy.

"They are quite well, thank you," replied Mrs. Timmy. "That apartment does very well for the time being. When the children leave and go out into the Great World Timmy and I will look around for something to suit us better. The only objection I have is to that noisy Woodpecker family."

"True, quite true," said Mrs. Whitefoot. "They are noisy, and at just the time when other folks want to sleep. I suspect, however, that those youngsters will soon be leaving and then we will have no cause for complaint. I saw one of them poking his head out yesterday when I happened to wake up and look out to see what was going on. Have you noticed that Spooky the Screech Owl seems to be spending considerable time over here?"

"I hadn't thought anything about it," replied Mrs. Timmy, "but now you speak of it I have noticed him around. Do you suppose he is living over here in the Green Forest now instead of over in the Old Orchard? I hope not, for my children will soon be taking their first lessons in jumping, and goodness knows there is danger enough without having Spooky around."

Little Mrs. Whitefoot signed. "Don't I know it?" said she. "I have six children of my own, and like your children they will soon be getting their first lessons out in the Great World. It is bad enough to know that Hooty the Great Horned Owl is likely to appear at any moment, but for a long time I haven't worried about Spooky. That little robber has spent most of his time over in the Old Orchard. I can't think what has brought him over here unless he has somehow learned that Whitefoot and I are living in this part of the Green Forest."

"Well, all of us will have to keep an extra careful watch," declared Mrs. Timmy. "If we help each other by giving each other warning, as good neighbors should, we probably will be able to fool him. Anyway, it may be that he has just happened around a few times. Now I must get this beetle up to my babies. I expect there'll be a regular fight for it. What a lot of care those darlings are. I shall be glad when they get to be big enough to do for themselves, but I suppose I'll be more worried than ever. Children are such a care."

"They are," replied Mrs. Whitefoot. "They certainly are. But I guess they are worth all they cost in care. Look!"

Mrs. Timmy looked in the direction in which little Mrs. Whitefoot was staring. There was Spooky the Screech Owl just alighting on the stub of a tree a short distance away. Mrs. Timmy flattened herself against the trunk of the tree and didn't move while Spooky remained there. The instant he flew away she hurried up to her hungry babies.

RIFFIAN REBEL FORCES ARE MOVING NORTHWARD

PARIS, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Riffian rebel forces are reported moving steadily northward in the eastern sector, and in explanation of this advance it was suggested here tonight in military circles that the movement is intended to meet the landing of Spanish troops at Alhucemas.

The riffian war lord said he intended to establish an independent Mussulman nation in North Africa.

MANUFACTURERS FOR TWO THIRDS OF OUR EXPORTS

Manufactures formed more than two-thirds of the merchandise exported from the United States in April, the latest month for which official figures are announced. Finished manufactures says the Trade Record of The National City Bank of New York, were 43.6 per cent of the total exports of April, semi-manufactured foodstuffs 10.2 per cent making the aggregate of factory products 69.3 per cent of the total exports. The share which the other great groups formed of exports in April was crude material for manufacturing (chiefly cotton) 21.4 per cent and of crude foodstuffs (chiefly grains) 9.2 per cent.

This big percentage which manufactures of various sorts formed of our exports, says the Trade Record, is the most interesting when compared with the record of earlier years. The share which finished manufactures formed of total exports in April, 1925 was, as above indicated, 43.6 per cent against 34.1 per cent in the fiscal year 1914, 24.2 per cent in 1900, 15.7 per cent in 1890, and 11.3 per cent in 1880. Exports of finished manufactures in the calendar year 1924 were $1,588,183,000 against $623,909,678 in 1914, the 1924 figures being more than double those of the fiscal year 1914, all of which preceded the opening of the World War.

This big increase in the exports of manufactures, comparing the calendar year 1924 with 1914, occurred chiefly in cotton manufactures, automobiles, copper, iron and steel, refined mineral oils, and lumber. The value of cotton manufactures exported in 1924 was 133 million dollars against 50 millions in 1914, automobiles and tires 147 millions against 32 millions in 1914 lumber 78 millions against 40 millions, copper 138 millions against 114 millions, and refined mineral oils $281,926,000 against $134,942,000 in 1914. Exports of the six great groups iron and steel manufactures, cotton manufactures, copper, lumber, autos and tires, and refined mineral oil aggregated $1,109,000,000 in 1924 against $373,738,000 in 1914, having thus practically doubled in the ten-year period, while the value of finished manufactures as a whole exported in 1924 is slightly more than double that of 1914.

Less growth in the exports of manufactures occurs especially in the trade with the non-manufacturing world, notably Latin America, Asia, Oceania, and Africa. The 1924 exports to Latin America were 770 million dollars against 282 millions in the fiscal year 1914, to Asia and Oceania 671 millions against 176 millions in the calendar year 1914 and to Africa 70 millions against 23 millions in 1914; and manufactures form the bulk of our exports to all these non-manufacturing sections of the globe Asia, Oceania, Latin America, and Africa.

BAPTIST SCHOOL HELD PICNIC AT VOLUNTOWN

About 60 members of the Central Baptist church braved the rain, Thursday, and autoed to Pine Lodge, Voluntown, the summer home of Rev. and Mrs. David A. Pitt, where a most enjoyable picnic was held. During the afternoon games were played indoors and in the early evening basket luncheons were enjoyed, and ice cream and coffee were served.

In the evening a vesper service was held, Rev. Dr. Pitt leading, the service taking the place of the usual Thursday evening prayer service in Bushnell chapel. The affair proved most enjoyable and Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Pitt proved themselves admirable entertainers.

MARKET WAS STRONG

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Speculators for the advance staged another broad buying movement in today's stock market which carried the general industrial price average to the highest level in history and the general railroad average to the highest level since March 1917. A plentiful supply of relatively cheap money, reports of expanding trade operations and favorable dividend and merger reports were all factors in the upturn.

Repetition of commission house advices urging profit-taking and caution in making new commitments, and another decrease in gasoline prices along the Atlantic Seaboard, apparently were discarded. Most of the oils actually closed fractionally higher on the day, indicating that bear traders were taking advantage of the adverse trade news to cover short sales.

Buoyancy of the high-priced industrials again attracted widespread attention, American Can established a record top for all time at 24b 1-2. General Electric at 323 1-4, International Telephone at 144 and Mack Trucks at 214, but most of the early gains, which ran well above five points, were materially reduced in a late wave of realizing in these issues. Dupont opened 11 5-8 points higher at 157 in reflection of the benefits which will accrue to that company in the declaration of an extra cash dividend of $1 on General Motors stock of which it has large holdings. General Motors opened 3 point higher at 92 and closed just below that figure.

U. S. Cast Iron Pipe jumped over 8 points to 158 3-4 closing near the top, and Sears Roebuck advanced 7 points to 197, duplicating the year's high, and then fell back 2 points. Chicago Pneumatic Tool jumped over five points to a new peak price at 107.

Rails gave another impressive demonstration of group strength Norfolk & Western assumed the leadership in that group by moving up nearly 4 points to 139 3-4, the highest price since 1916 when the stock crossed 147. New Haven, which is generally expected to dispose of its New York, Westchester & Boston profit moved up to 36 3-4, the highest price since 1920.

New peak prices in the rail group also were established by Frisco common, Wabash preferred A, Great Northern preferred, Seaboard Air Line common and preferred and Western Pacific common and preferred.

Eastern coal carrying stocks showed sharp gains despite the threatened suspension of anthracite mining on September 1. Lackawanna jumped 5 1-2 points to 144 and then slipped back to 142 and Delaware & Hudson showed a net gain of 2 1-4 points at 150 1-2 after having sold slightly above that figure.

Some of the other outstanding strong spots were American Safety Razor, Commercial Solvents A, Federal Mining & Smelting preferred, General Outdoor Advertising, International Business Machine, International Harvester, Sloss-Sheffield Steel, South Porto Rican Sugar, United Railway Investment preferred and Westinghouse Air Brake.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent, holding steady at that figure throughout the session. Time money rates also displayed an easier tendency, 60-90 day funds being quoted at 4 to 4 1-4 per cent, instead of 4 1-4 to 4 1-2, with a corresponding reduction in the longer maturities. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchange rates displayed a steady tone. Demand sterling was slightly firmer around $4.85 5-8 and French francs were practically unchanged at 4.67 cents. Norwegian and Danish kroner rallied several points to around 18.44 and 22.85 cents respectively.

PARTLY CLOUDY TODAY; FAIR TOMORROW

Norwich Bulletin

1795

NORWICH, CONN., SATURDAY, AUG. 15, 1925

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Saturday, August 15, 1925

THE WEATHER.

Conditions.

The disturbance that was central over western New York Thursday night has moved eastward to the Atlantic coast and it has been attended by local thundershowers within the last 24 hours in the Atlantic states.

There will be local thundershowers in Florida and the southern portions of Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi and generally fair weather elsewhere east of the Mississippi river during Saturday.

Showers are probable by Sunday night as far east as the Appalachian region. Moderate temperature will prevail in the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic states on Saturday and the temperature will rise slowly on Sunday in these sections.

Winds.

North of Sandy Hook: Moderate to fresh northeast and north and overcast weather possibly local rains Saturday.

Forecast.

Eastern New York: Fair with moderate temperature Saturday; Sunday fair, somewhat warmer in interior.

For New England: Partly cloudy Saturday, Sunday fair and somewhat warmer.

Observations.

The Bulletin's observations show the following changes in temperature and barometric changes Friday:

	Ther.	Bar.
7 a. m.	68	29.90
12 m.	74	29.90
6 p. m.	73	30.00

Highest 82, lowest 67.

Comparisons.

Predictions for Friday: Cloudy, probably local showers.

Friday's weather: Rain in morning, clearing and warm in afternoon; heavy shower in late afternoon.

NORWICH TOWN

Miss Helen Smith, eldest daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Edward H. Smith, of Ink Hok, China, is to be the speaker of the First Congregational Young People's Christian Endeavor service Sunday evening at 6.30 (D. S. T.) Miss Smith, who is one of the C. E. members, is connected with the Student Volunteer Movement. Her subject will be, My Answer to the World's Challenge. Printed invitations, which were sent out by George F. Hyde, representing the C. E. information committee read: "Come and bring others with you. We need you."

AWARD CAMP EMBLEMS AT CAMP MOHICAN

The past week has been an active one for the members of tent number 2 at Camp Mohican, Gardner Lake.

They are the first this year to receive the camp emblem. The much-coveted emblem is awarded to each boy who earns no less than fifteen merits on subjects which pertain to woodcraft and camp life in general.

With the end of the season not far off preparations are now being made for the building of the "Grouch." This is the building of a tremendous pile of wood thirty feet high, on top of which is placed the "Grouch." On the last night at camp the two most popular boys in camp are elected to set this afire. This is a gala time and friends both far and near view this spectacular event.

Almost all the boys have won their point of merit for emblem which comes under fishing, having caught fish at least ten inches long. Councilor George Veldian has brought in four large pickerel within two days.

Mr. and Mrs. Roegler are at the camp for a week. Mr. Roegler staged a donkey party at which each one who participated received a really handsome prize.

This week we also had our swimming test and to the satisfaction of the director all but three or four passed the camp test of a hundred-yard swim, using at least three different strokes. This is a fair showing when it is considered that only half the boys could swim as much as fifty yards when they came to camp.

Guests the past week included Mrs. William Necher, Union City, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. William Necher, Jr., Union City, N. J.; Mrs. David Hirt, West New York, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Roegler, Union City, N. J.; Miss Gardner, Norwich.

OIL MEN TO HAVE RED TOP OUTING

The Connecticut fields of the Standard Oil company of New York will hold their annual summer outing at Red Top Sunday. It is expected that more than 200 employes of the organization will enjoy the athletic program and the bake, which are being arranged.

The feature of the day will be the championship baseball game between the New London team, champions of 1924 and present holders of the silver trophy cup, and the fast nine from the South Norwalk station. Tillie Landels, Bulkeley's former ace, will be opposed by Doc Scanlon, a name once familiar to all National league fans Joe Cranker will start the contest on the Submarine Base diamond at 11 a. m. In addition to the baseball game, a track and field program will be open to all Standard Oil employes, substantial cash prizes being awarded to the winners in each event.

Another Legion Candidate.

State Vice Commander Le Roy D. Downs, of Norwalk, now looms up as a candidate for state commander of the American Legion.

He is being pushed by many of the Legion posts throughout the state, for election to the office, at the state convention in New London this month.

He was elected to the office that he now holds, at the last state convention held in Torrington. During the past year he has served well and has made a host of friends among the Legion men in Connecticut.

Unclaimed Letters.

Unclaimed letters in the Norwich, Connecticut post office for the week ending Aug. 15, 1925, are as follows: Miss Betty Corcoran, Mrs. Justin Denison, Miss Dora Maushake, Mrs. Clarence Waite, R. F. D., Mrs. Joe Villetta.

EXTENSIVE ALTERATIONS UNDERWAY AT THE NORWICH POST OFFICE

Several changes of importance are under way at the Norwich post office, made necessary by the ever increasing amount of business being handled at the office. The money order department and the parcel post department have been swamped of late because of increased business and added room to handle the increased business is necessary.

Thursday workmen began the work at the post office and it will be fully a month before it is completed, and the interior of the post office, both on the main floor and in the basement, will present a far different appearance than in the past.

The money order department, which was located to the left of the main floor, and in a separate office reached by a small lobby, is to be entirely changed. The lobby will be done away with by the new plan of alterations and the department enlarged to about twice its present size.

The front of the office, where the various mail boxes and windows for receipt of mail are located, will also undergo a change, which when completed, will tend to speed up the work of handling more bulky parcel post pieces. A section of boxes near the main entrance is to be moved further down and the parcel post section will be moved up to take its place.

In the past all large parcel post pieces have been carried into the post office through the rear door, thus making a tiresome and lengthy job of a routine matter that could have been handled much more easily by use of a larger window in the front of the office.

The new change calls for the construction of a larger window for receipt of parcel post pieces, the window to be of sufficient size to care for any shipment made through the Norwich office. The department will also be enlarged on the main floor to enable a speeding up of the work.

Parcel post matter has usually been handled from the basement of the building, packages being sent down a chute to be carried to the parcel post room and laid out for the carriers. This department has been found to be too small to care for the ever increasing volume of parcel post matter being sent out through the local office and a change is to be made, increasing the space for this department to double its present size.

Postmaster Casper K. Bailey expects that the work in the office will require about one month. The changed at the local office will be made noticeable around Christmas time. Those familiar with the conditions at the office during the Christmas rush realize that the post office has been sadly handicapped for space to handle the thousands of pieces of parcel post matter which come into the post office. Despite all past handicaps the carriers at the Norwich post office have given wonderful service, practically all matter being delivered by Christmas day.

MAY PUBLISH NAMES OF SUSPENDED DRIVERS

Publication at stated intervals of the names of all motor vehicle operators of Connecticut whose licenses have been suspended for driving while under the influence of liquor is under contemplation by the state motor vehicle department as a means to combat this menacing practice. Notwithstanding all disciplinary measures taken to date to overcome this offense, which grows increasingly dangerous as the number of automobiles on the highways multiply, unsatisfactory headway is being made against it, in the opinion of the department, and the resort to general publicity throughout the state is deemed advisable.

In the first six months of this year, the department found it necessary to suspend the licenses of 425 operators for driving motor vehicles while drunk. The peak number was reached in June, when 111 operators were ordered off the road for one year for that offense. The policy of the department has been to notify the police of the town in which an offender lives when his license has been suspended. In some towns, the police give out the names, but in others no publicity is given and it has come to the attention of the department frequently that suspended operators have continued to drive their cars notwithstanding the suspension.

It is felt that, in addition to the disciplinary effect of publicity in itself, the publication of suspensions will make it difficult for such an operator to use his car in his own neighborhood without being seen by acquaintances who are aware of his suspension and, in most cases being reported. The department receives many confidential complaints daily and investigation of anonymous complaints usually proves that they are well founded.

The state law requires the department to suspend an operator's license for one year when notified by a court that he has been convicted of driving while intoxicated. In order not to do injustice, the department insists upon official notification before proceeding with suspensions.

The proceedings of a fraction of the courts in which the convictions occur are reported in the press, but usually no mention is made in connection with the news of a conviction that it carries with it a year's suspension, and the appearance of the operator in his automobile a few days later rarely attracts much attention for that reason.

With traffic problems in Connecticut becoming more and more complicated, the department is of the opinion that treatment of this type of wilful offender against the motor vehicle laws should be made more drastic than ever before.

TROLLEY CAR STRUCK WAGON IN GREENEVILLE

Max Rabinovitch, of 246 West Main street, was slightly injured Friday afternoon about 3 o'clock when the wagon in which he was riding, was struck by a south-bound trolley car, about opposite the Norwich Belt Manufacturing plant in Greeneville.

The trolley car was in charge of Motorman William T. Denker and Conductor Arthur J. Ladd and was coming around the curve near the belt company when the wagon driven by Mr. Rabinovitch was seen directly ahead. Motorman Denker applied the brakes but, owing to the wet rails, the car slid along the track and before coming to a stop, bumped the rear end of the wagon with sufficient force to break the shafts of the wagon.

The trolley crew asked Mr. Rabinovitch if he wanted the care of a doctor. It is said he complained of pains in his back, but did not want a doctor. Later he went to Dr. Louis T. Cassidy for treatment.

The wagon was patched up and later taken to the West Side. Mr. Rabinovitch was taken to his home.

E. CONNECTICUT BOYS TO STUDY FOR PRIESTHOOD

This week's issue of The Catholic Transcript, official organ of the bishop of the diocese of Hartford, lists among young men assigned by Rt. Rev. Bishop John J. Nilan, to seminaries to prepare for the priesthood, Ubald Laurion, from St. Joseph's parish, Grosvenordale, and Richard Fanning, of St. Patrick's parish, Norwich. They go to St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore.

Mr. Fanning is the third of the five sons of Mrs. Annie M. Fanning, of 31 Lincoln avenue, and the late Attorney Joseph T. Fanning, at his death four years ago serving his fifteenth year as corporation counsel of the city of Norwich. Young Mr. Fanning, who was 21 the past spring, was graduated from Holy Cross college, Worcester, with the degree of A. B. in June. While at Norwich Free Academy he was winner of the Latin prize, also did good work on the ball team, at tennis, etc.

After their three or four years of study and training at the Baltimore seminary, Mr. Laurion and Mr. Fanning may be sent to Canada or abroad for further study, before being ordained

SEA SLED COMPANY HAS CHANGED HANDS

Albert Hickman, president of the International Motor Boat company, licensee of the Hickman sea sled patents in all countries, has completed negotiations with a strong group of New York financiers for the formation of the Sea Sled Corporation of Delaware. The new corporation, with John A. Eyre, of New York, takes over from the Sea Sled Co., Ltd., of West Mystic, the sole license for sea sled and surface propeller boats for the United States Sea Sled Corporation has also purchased from the Sea Sled Co., Ltd., the plant at West Mystic. Mr. Hickman acts as a director and consulting engineer for the new company.

The demand for the various types of boats under the Hickman patents has increased rapidly and the new corporation has undertaken to turn them out on a production basis.

The International company has recently licensed Swan, Hunter and Wigham Richardson, of Newcastle-on-Tyne under Sea Sled patent for Great Britain, the continent of Europe and Japan.

The new corporation has already commenced alterations and improvements to the West Mystic plant and will ultimately result in a greatly enlarged plant for the manufacture of this type of boat. The plant is advantageously situated, geographically, for the manufacture of boats as it is within a few hundred feet of the railroad with through freight connections possible at Midway. Then, too, the Mystic river flows by the property which allows for trial runs for speed on smooth water. Fishers Island Sound is near, providing for trials in a short, choppy sea, while for testing for real seaworthiness a short run through the Race will provide as rough water as any small craft cares to negotiate.

ERECT BLEACHERS AT GARDNER DOW FIELD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Conn., Aug. 14.—The athletic association of the Connecticut Agricultural college will within the next few days let a contract for the erection of wooden stands on Gardner Dow field at Storrs, to be completed in time for the Aggies first home football game with the University of Maine eleven Oct. 10.

This marks the first step in the program of the Storrs athletic authorities to provide better facilities for spectators at home games of the Nutmeg institution, which up to now has been forced to let its followers stand on the sidelines because of a lack of funds with which to erect adequate stands. True, the Aggies have one stand on the north side of the field which was put up fifteen years ago, but this has proved totally inadequate to accommodate the crowds which the Connecticut football games now draw.

As explained by Prof. A. W. Manchester, chairman of the athletic council at Storrs, the plan is to put a certain number of seats on sale in Hartford, Norwich, Willimantic and other nearby cities, which will enable those desiring to attend the Aggies games to purchase tickets beforehand and thus be assured of seats. With this accommodation, and the Aggies playing such teams as New Hampshire, Massachusetts Aggies, Maine and Tufts, it is felt at Storrs that these contests will draw a good attendance, especially from eastern Connecticut.

Two attractive contests on the Connecticut Aggies' slate for this year are the Maine and Massachusetts Aggie games, both of which will be played at Storrs. Maine is played Oct. 10, and Mass. Aggies Oct. 17. Both games will have an important bearing on the New England Conference championship, and as the situation looms up at present, they will be among the best of the early season contests in New England.

FIVE ARE FINED ON GAMBLING CHARGES

Jacob Vulgares, proprietor of a shoemakers' establishment at No. 1 Washington square was found guilty of keeping a gambling house, when he appeared before Judge Arthur F. Libby, in police court Friday morning, and paid a fine of $10 and costs for his offense. Other men caught in the raid, Thursday night and who were fined five dollars and costs were John Boyus 32, Gaetano John 26, Peter Fantelle 23 and Harry Kosolis 18 all of Norwich. Vulgares also received a ten days jail sentence, judgment suspended for one year.

Sergeant Matthew Delaney testified to going to the establishment run by Vulgares on Thursday evening, accompanied by Officers William Sharvan and Patrick Murphy and finding four men playing cards and one sitting at the table. A dollar bill and about a dollar in silver, with a deck of cards were seized as evidence.

In the testimony of Sergeant Delaney it was brought out that two small children of the proprietor were asleep in a bunk in the store, one of them a girl of ten years. He also testified that numerous complaints had been received about the place.

RIBBON WINNERS IN STORRS EGG CONTEST

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Aug. 14—Announcement of the awarding of ribbons to the high pens during the month of July in the Storrs Egg Laying Contest was made here today by Professor William F. Kirkpatrick, head of the poultry department of the Connecticut Agricultural College.

High score for the month was made by the entry of Hansen's Leghorn Farm from Corvallis, Ore., with a lay of 257 eggs. Incidentally, the pen is leading the contest at the present time and bids fair to take first honors this year. Second place in the Leghorn class as well as all breeds, was taken by the entry of Hilltop Farm of Suffield with a lay of 253 eggs. The pen entered by J. C. Patton of Charlotte, N. C., was third in the Leghorn class with a lay of 235 eggs.

In the Barred Rock class, the entry of Keewaydin Farm of Darien took the ribbon with a lay of 249 eggs. Incidentally, this is the leading pen in its class, based on total production to date.

In the White Rock class, the entry of Harold F. Barber of Dover, Mass., took the ribbon with a lay of 187 eggs. Albert W. Buckbees White Wyandottes from Wisner, N. Y., took the honors in this class.

A close contest was waged for top honors in the Rhode Island Red class, with the entry of D. Hart Horton of Farmingdale, L. I., N. Y., coming in first. This pen laid 189 eggs, which is just two more than were laid by Deer Brook Poultry Farm of Short Falls, N. H. Horton's pen is also the leading pen to date in the Red class, based on total production to date.

During July, the 1,400 contest birds laid a grand total of 22,149 eggs, or a yield of fifty-one per cent. This is 1,205 more eggs than were laid in June.

Based on production by varieties, the Barred Rocks led for the month with an average production per bird of 17.4 eggs. Just a fraction behind were the Leghorns with an average of 17.2 eggs per bird.

Third place for the month was taken by the White Rocks with an average production per bird of 14.3 eggs, while the Rhode Island Reds and the White Wyandottes were fourth and fifth with a lay of 13.9 and 13.7 eggs each, respectively. The average production during the month for all varieties was 13.8 eggs per bird.

As might be expected, the Barred Rocks, which were the high egg producers for the month, were also the heaviest consumers of feed for the same period. Each pen of ten birds in this class averaged to eat 48.8 pounds of dry mash and 33.1 pounds of scratch grain. The Leghorns laid approximately the same number of eggs as the Barred Rocks, and their feed consumption was approximately the same also.

A Connecticut White Leghorn, owned by Hilltop Farm of Suffield, has the honor of making the best individual egg record up to July 31 with a score of 223 eggs. This bird is laying well at the present time, and if she can continue at the present rate of production she has a chance of reaching the 300 egg mark for the year. The next best record was made by a Rhode Island Red owned by Deer Brook Poultry Farm of Short Falls, N. H., with a record of 214 eggs. A White Leghorn entered by Johnson's Leghorn Farm from Corvallis, Ore., has the third best record up to the end of July with a score of 213 eggs. This bird is one of the ten that make up the pen that is leading the contest to date and seem likely to win this year's competition.

MUCH INTEREST SHOWN AT C. E. SUMMER SCHOOL

While the registration at the Christian Endeavor Summer school now being held in Storrs was small, the interest which is being manifested by those attending is deep, and much good throughout the state, both in the direct cause of Christian Endeavor and the churches themselves, is expected to result.

Derby Christian Endeavor Union leads the race for registrations having nine of their members actually present. New Haven and Enfield Unions are tied for second honors with seven to the credit of each. Other arrivals expected during the next two days should prove the ability of one to outdistance the other.

The delegates who are present are: Rev. Thomas F. Campbell, Beacon Falls; Hilda Moran, Myrta Bronson, Helen Wakefield, Anna Wakefield, Beacon Falls; Lillian Snace and Anita Weiskopf, Seymour; Marion B. Steele, Ansonia; Edith E. Drew, Shelton; Stella P. Olmsted and L. Myrnie Buck, Hazardville; Jennie L. Geissler and Janice Middleton, Broad Brook; Agnes M. Brainerd and Dorothy Hopkins, Enfield; Dorothy Brown, Suffield; Emma Avis and Irene Bonney, Whitneyville; Helen B. Andrews, Margaret M. Andrew and Mary Treat, Orange; Jean Harding and Pearl Rabenold, East Haven, Lewis E. Drew and Joseph G. Strolin, Bridgeport; Louise H. Stocking and Mattie Paine, Avon; Helen M. Taylor and Edna Madley, Lebanon; Elizabeth S. Avery and Louise M. Avery, Norwich Town; Byron E. Wilkinson and Jessie L. Rogers, Waterford, and Leona A. Palmer, Manchester. Others are registered but have not yet arrived, and it is expected that the attendance will exceed fifty.

This is the first attempt on the part of the Christian Endeavor forces of this state to hold a summer conference, and the attendance is so general of the state that it is expected there will be a repetition of the school next year, though the final decision has not yet been reached.

The courses offered this year are on the Bible, Missions and Methods in work of young peoples societies, with addresses at assembly periods in the morning and at the evening services, while rest and recreation takes up the afternoons. The general public is welcomed at the evening service.

ANOTHER PROMOTION FOR FORMER NORWICH MAN

The many friends of Frank P. Welch former assistant superintendent of the E. I. duPont de Nemours Co., plant in this city, will be pleased to learn that he has again been promoted by the company. Mr. Welch was recently transferred to the Arlington, N. J., plant and is now in charge of all stock coming into the plant, the routing through the plant and the control of orders. He has charge of the entire shipping department and has under him about 150 men, consisting of foremen, assistant foremen and department managers.

Mr. Welch was born in Norwich, and is the son of P. H. Welch of 116 West Thames street. He is a graduate of Yale law school, class of 1909. While in Norwich Mr. Welch took an active interest in all civic affairs. He was secretary of the City of Norwich Board of Gas and Electric commissioners shortly before he left the city and was a member of the Norwich hockey club and Norwich Golf club.

Automobiles and other vehicles annually remove by abrasion from one-half to three-quarters of an inch from macadamized highways.

NEW NURSES HOME AT BACKUS HOSPITAL IS NEARING COMPLETION

The new nurses home at the W. W. Backus hospital is practically completed and the student nurses are now sleeping in the building.

By September 1st the furnishings will be complete and it will be fully settled. At present the dining room and kitchen are not in use. The new laboratory in the main building, however, is entirely equipped and according to Dr. Bartlett, state inspector of laboratories, is one of the best small laboratories in the state. Mrs. Carley, in charge, is a trained technician, and under her the department will grow and is already doing splendid work. From this the benefit will be felt not only by the patients in the hospital and town but in the surrounding towns as well. A fixed rate of charges has been arranged by the medical staff in the hope that after the initial cost of equipment has been met by the hospital it may be self-sustaining, as no other department of the hospital can hope to be so. The laboratory will be of great assistance in hastening the recovery of patients as laboratory tests are the foundations of diagnosis and are of great assistance to the doctor and surgeon.

The department of the hospital called the Norwich Neuropsychiatric clinic has been also active with two clinics held regularly each week with four psychiatrists from the state hospital and public health and student nurses in attendance. Two psychiatric social workers and one clerical worker complete the staff. The patients come from the surrounding towns as well as it is the only such clinic in the county and it is much appreciated by them and especially by the Bureau of Child Welfare. The laboratory tests have an important part in the physical examination which is most complete. Grateful patients have brought fruit and flowers as an expression of their appreciation of this service, the running expenses of which are met by the United Workers. Two recent books "The Problem Child" and "Social Aspects of Mental Hygiene" have been added to the lending library. In July, 18 new cases were registered, 46 were examined at the clinics and some medical social work was done with 116 persons. 58 children and 48 adults. 277 visits and interviews were made.

For the visitation committee Mrs. Joseph A. French reports that regular visitors from the Church of the Good Shepherd, the Brothers of Joseph Synagogue, the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church took cheer to the patients last month. Music, arrangements for which were made by Mrs. John F. Rogers, was provided by Loyal Chapter of King's Daughters, the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church and Grace Circle of King's Daughters. These musical programs give much pleasure to the shutins.

Flowers were sent week-ends for the wards under the care of Mrs. David Sussler and Mrs. Thomas Leahy. A very large rubber plant was donated by Mrs. H. C. Messler which brings into the corridor where it is placed, a bit of out-doors.

Miss Hannah Crowell reports for the production committee that it met at the hospital once a week in the month of July completing 752 dressings in that time. During the month of August it is holding itself in readiness to make surgical dressings whenever the need arises. Those on the committee who served during these months were Miss Hannah Crowell, Mrs. Frederick T. Sayles, The Misses Williams, Mrs. Ralph Melcer, and Mrs. Walter T. Camp.

Magazines have been sent by Mrs. Charles L. Stewart, chairman of this committee by Mrs. Bellefleur, Mrs. Dwight Hough, Mrs. Carl W. Brown, and Mrs. Albert H. Chase. These are taken at once to the wards where they afford pleasure and diversion. Any new subscriptions to magazines for this purpose would be most acceptable and could be in use immediately.

The recreation committee has placed at the disposal of the nurses the use of a bath house at Ocean Beach for the season. The Woman's Auxiliary has purchased two large electric fans which were much needed.

Donations of various kinds have been most thoughtfully sent by the following: Mrs. R. S. Gernon, Miss Aiken, Mr. G. Hagen, Mrs. David Sussler, Mrs. Charles Hill, Miss Martha Campbell, Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Thomas O'Rourke, Mr. D. J. Kenefick, Mrs. Harold Robinson, Mrs. J. D. Driscoll, Grace Church, Yantic, Mrs. Richard Gregson, Mrs. Leahy, The Universalist Church, W. C. Harrison, of Hanover, Mrs. Sweesy, Mrs. Charles L. Stewart, Mrs. Dwight Hough, Mrs. Bellefleur, E. J. Leonard, Occum.

The officers and the committees of the Woman's Auxiliary which are filled at the present time and whose names have been sent to the president are as follows: President, Mrs. Walter F. Lester, vice presidents, Mrs. F. B. Ricketson, Mrs. Witter K. Tingley, Mrs. J. N. Rosenberg, recording secretary, Mrs. John S. Blackmar, corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. S. Comstock, treasurer, Miss Isabel H. Mitchell, directors, Mrs. E. LaRue Bliven, Mrs. Frederic Cary, Mrs Charles B. Gilbert, membership committee, Mrs. Allyn L. Brown, chairman, finance committee, Mrs. William H. Dawley, chairman; members, Mrs Hope Wade Adams, Mrs. Willis Austin, Miss Mary Callahan, Mrs. Hugo B. Campbell, Mrs. Harold M. Carpenter, Mrs. Lyle Fillmore, Mrs. Harry Ford, Mrs. Charles Gildersleeve, Mrs. Richard P. Gregson, Mrs. Arthur H. Lathrop, Mrs. Aurin E. Payson, Mrs. Clarence G. Thompson, Mrs. David Tractenburg, Mrs. William H. Collins.

Hospital visitation, Mrs. Joseph A French, chairman, Mrs. C. C. Williams, Mrs. Neville Bliss, Miss Nellie Riordan, Mrs. Vincent Welsh, Mrs Benjamin Mellor, Mrs. William E Stinson.

Suburban committee, Mrs. Harry E. Higgins, chairman, publicity committee, Mrs. Alexander H. Abbott, chairman, Mrs. Carl W. Brown, Miss Josephine C. Canty, R. N., Mrs. Albert H. Chase, Mrs. Leonard Hough, Mrs. Robert W. Perkins.

Flower committee, Mrs. Joseph P. Cummings, chairman, Mrs. Henry D. Buckley, Mrs. George Conmu, Mrs. Thomas Leahy, Miss Mary E. Richards, Miss H. R. Trumbull; Mrs. David Sussler.

Nurses' recreation, Mrs. J. J. Donohue, chairman, Mrs. R. R. Agnew, Mrs. T. A. Crowley, Mrs. W. A. Somers, Mrs. W. A. Pitcher, Mrs. W. E Turner.

Religious services, Mrs. John F. Rogers, chairman, Mrs. H. H. Boyen, Mrs. John E. Hawkins, Miss Elizabeth Hall, Mrs. Louis H. Geer.

Production committee, Miss Hannah T. Crowell, chairman, Mrs. Frederick T. Sayles, Miss Helen Williams, Miss Annie Williams, Miss Jane Bill, Mrs. Ralph Melcer, Mrs. Walter T. Camp.

Junior committee, Mrs. John H. Williams, Jr., chairman.

Literature committee, Mrs. Charles L. Stewart, chairman.

Holiday committee, Mrs. Walter T Camp, Mrs. Flint E. Brayton, chairmen.

Donation (food) committee, Mrs. H. H. Allyn, chairman, Mrs. Rollin C Jones, Mrs. E. T. Phillips, Mrs. T O'Rourke, Mrs. H. C. Mosher, Mrs L. J. Williams, Mrs. W. H. Douglas, Mrs. C. E. Sanders, Mrs. E. A. Rich, Mrs. F. I. Royce, Mrs. C. E. Wilson, Mrs. H. H. Vignol, Mrs. Clarence G. Thompson, Mrs. James Purdon, Mrs J. B. Walsh, Mrs. J. B. Oat, Mrs C. W. Taggart, Mrs. Richard Quinn, Mrs. J. D. Ring.

F Burlingame, Miss Lena Hoar, Mrs Henry Lanz, Miss Anna Ward, Mrs Arthur Thompson, Mrs. Clarence Carpenter, Mrs. James Crawford, Miss Annie McGrory, Mrs. Williams Somers, Miss Mary Callahan, Mrs. Charles Frink, Miss Mary Crowe, Mrs. Henry Buckley, Mrs. Thomas M. Shields, Mrs. Edward A. Cudworth.

ANNOUNCES PLANS FOR COAST-TO-COAST TOUR

The Blackfeet Indian Chiefs in Glacier park will entertain the members of the 31-day coast-to-coast tour to be taken by New England business men and their wives under the auspices of the State Chambers of Commerce of New England starting September 5.

Arrangements have just been made to take special auto busses from San Francisco over the Santa Cruz mountains, through the Big Trees, luncheon at Santa Cruz and then on to the famous Del Monte resort.

The party will be guests of the naval air station at San Diego. This is the largest air port in the United States. Many interesting developments in flying will be witnessed.

Special arrangements have been made for fishing in Glacier park where rainbow and eastern brook trout run as high as six pounds. At San Diego the party will have an opportunity to fish off shore for gamey yellow-tail and tuna. The party will have an opportunity to play golf as guests of several clubs. The historical battle grounds in the vicinity of Chattanooga will be visited.

Many organizations at the principal stop-over points have written in that they will receive the entire party and show the New England people the points of interest in their communities.

The route to be followed by the coast-to-coast tour includes the following points: Glacier Park, Vancouver, Sailing down Puget Sound, Stopping at Victoria, visiting Seattle, touring the beautiful Columbia River, Drive, all day in Portland, over the Siskiyou mountains, past Mount Shasta, two days in San Francisco, Golden Gate Park, Chinatown, Mount Tamalpais, big trees at Santa Cruz, Del Monte, Santa Barbara, Los Angeles, Pasadena, Hollywood, Riverside, San Diego, Coronado Beach, Tia Juana, Mexico, famous Carriso Gorge, Imperial Valley, El Paso, Juarez, Mexico, San Antonio, Houston, Wonderful New Orleans, Chattanooga, Mountains of Tennessee and Virginia, Washington, New York.

The arrangements for the coast-to-coast tour in Connecticut are being handled by the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce, 3 Lewis street, Hartford.

Comrade Irish to Attend.

Aug. 19, the Connecticut Cavalry association is to hold its annual reunion in Hartford, at Robert O. Tyler hall. Comrade John Irish, of Laurel Hill avenue, Norwich, has made arrangements to attend. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Irish and their niece, Miss Lola Belle Roath.

GAVE TABLEAU AT HOBART AVE. GROUNDS

Despite the unfavorable weather on Friday evening a large and enthusiastic audience among whom were the members of the city recreation commission, Supt. Earle E. Brigham and parents and friends of the participants gathered at the Hobart avenue playgrounds to witness the patriotic tableau, Maids of All Nations, in which fifteen girls of the center under Instructor Katherine Farrell took part. The grounds were very prettily decorated with Japanese lanterns and foliage which made an effective setting for the picturesque costumes of the little ones. The program was opened at 7:30 by little Mary Chioda in a feature toe-dance. Little Miss Chioda showed skill and grace in her dancing and this coupled with her attractive personality and effective costume won immediate applause from the audience. She was forced to respond with an encore equally as graceful. Music was furnished for the toe-dancing by a Victrola loaned for the occasion.

After the little solo dance the tableau was opened by Kosti Constandi, who cleverly acted as reader for the performance. The tableau called for a representative of fifteen countries, each girl in the native costume of the country which she represented. The costumes, both colorful and effective, elicited much favorable comment and were so skillfully designed that the spectators had no trouble in recognizing the various nations portrayed.

The cast is as follows: Reader, Kosti Constandi; Hawaiian Girl, Helen Seidel; Japanese Girl, Marion Constandi; Greek Girl, Madelyn Donnelly; Italian Girl, Mary Chioda; Dutch Girl, Senio Alex; German Girl, Miriam Seidel; French Girl, Margaret Puyment; Spanish Girl, Ratferie Falcone; English Girl, Mary Kelly; Scotch Girl, Mary Donnelly; Irish Girl, Winifred Kelly; Indian Girl, Alvina Medzwicki; American Girl, Marjorie Pierce.

The tableau was the second event staged by the dramatic department during the week under the supervision of Katherine Dodd, and will be followed by two plays to be given at Mohegan park by the children of the Lake street and all five play centers.

TEXTILE COUNCIL VOTES TO APPEAL TO PRESIDENT

To Ask President Coolidge to Intervene and Advise Whether the 10 Per Cent Reduction in Effect in Many Mills in New England is Justified—Meeting in Pawtucket Was Attended by Representatives of 20,000 Operators, Including a Delegation From Willimantic.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Aug. 16—(A. P.)—The Rhode Island Textile Council today voted to ask President Coolidge to intervene and advise whther the 10 per cent wage reduction placed in effect by many mills in New England recently is justified.

This action was taken at a meeting here of 150 representatives of 20,000 operatives including a delegation from Willimantic, Conn., where a strike is now in progress against a wage reduction.

The adopted resolution authorized the council secretary to communicate with President Coolidge "in order that the present depression and its causes may be made known and wage earners in the mills may not be made to suffer unjust wage reductions."

It was also voted to start an intensive organizing campaign for the United Textile Workers of America in order that the emergency board, under the authorization given it in 1920, may take action against any mills entering a reduction. Organizer Francis J. Gorman, of Rhode Island and Connecticut, made known the action of the council.

TO ASK FOR WITHDRAWAL OF TARIFF ON TEXTILES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—(A. P.)—Edmund Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, announced tonight he would ask the next congress to withdraw the tariff protection afforded textile manufacturers who have inaugurated and carried out policies of wage reductions."

In a letter to M. G. Pierce, president of the American Woolen company, made public tonight, Mr. Green declared that when manufacturers, protected by a tariff wall, "reduce the wages of their employes below the subsistence level, the government in all fairness should reduce the tariff schedules and tear down the tariff wall which has been so skillfully built."

In behalf of the members of the American Federation of Labor, the president entered "vigorous protest against the reduction in wages which has been forced upon the textile workers." He demanded that the pay schedule in effect before the reduction be restored.

Referring especially to conditions in the New England textile centers, Mr. Green declared a recent wage reduction of 10 per cent. was offered employees in the Willimantic district "in spite of the fact that stock dividends ranging from 50 to 200 per cent. have been voted by certain textiles companies." He regarded the wage cut as "most unfair, unjust and inequitable" and declared evictions of men women and children from company owned houses had been ordered to enforce the reductions.

Green's letter follows:

"Even though I have not received a reply to my communication transmitted to you on July 27th, I am prompted by a deep sense of the injustice which I feel has been inflicted upon the helpless textile workers of New England, to address to you this second communication.

Textile manufacturers of New England insisted that they be made beneficiaries of a high protective tariff. They demanded of congress a tariff schedule which, they explained, would adequately protect goods manufactured in the textile industry from competition from Europe. They alleged such protection was necessary in order that they might pay high wages to their employes. So, behind repeated reductions in wages of textile workers there looms like a ghost the notorious schedule K.

"The latest reduction of 10 per cent. imposed in the Willimantic district is regarded as one of the most localized for and indefensible reductions in wages ever offered or demanded by employers of labor. In order to enforce these reductions many men, women and children have been evicted from company-owned houses and are being compelled to live in a tent colony, while the company which demanded and is enforcing this reduction in wages operated six months during the year 1924 and declared a dividend of 10 per cent. payable to stock holders, while $1,500,000 was added to the reserve fund.

"Laying aside humane considerations and considering the question of reduction in wages upon facts herewith submitted, how can the textile manufacturers justify their demand for lower wages and how can they sustain their position in enforcing lower wages?

"On July 28 when I learned of the arbitrary reduction of 10 per cent. which was being demanded and enforced by certain textile manufacturers, I stated that such reduction was not based upon reason, fairness or justice. I further charged that such reduction in wages was economically and morally wrong. Consequently, I was gratified when I learned that at a meeting held Aug. 1 by 25 New England wool and worsted manufacturers, most of them operating mills in Worcester county, Massachusetts, it was agreed by all those present that the reduction of 10 per cent. ordered by the big companies was untimely, unneeded and that it would reduce the purchasing power of textile operators, interfere and prove harmful to business in general. This group of manufacturers refused to reduce wages, and by this action proved that reduction in wages was unnecessary and unjust.

"Textile manufacturers of New England may feel secure in their position and may feel that it is nobody's business if they force reductions in wages, thus lowering the living standard of their employes, they may feel they have no responsibility to the public and they may ignore public opinion, relying solely upon the power of wealth which they represent and the brute force which they may employ in compelling their workers to submit to their dictates and accept reductions in wages. But, in assuming this position, they are ignoring the facts of history. There is a limit to public patience and public endurance. Corporations which enjoy the protection of the law and government and especially those that are beneficiaries of a high protective tariff, must remember that they owe something to the government and to the people who make up the government. Certainly congress can not close its eyes to the facts which developed in the textile manufacturing industry.

"If a tariff wall is built in order to protect special interests and special industries against competition from foreign manufacturers, certainly when the manufacturers protected by such a tariff wall reduce the wages of their employes below a subsistence level, the government in all fairness should reduce the tariff schedules and tear down the tariff wall which has been so skillfully built.

"It is the purpose of the president of the American Federation of Labor to bring these facts to the attention of congress and to insist in the name of the working people of America that the textile manufacturers who have inaugurated and carried out the policy of wage reduction shall be deprived of special privileges and special benefits which they have enjoyed from high tariff protection.

"In the name of the American Federation of Labor and millions of members which I have the honor to represent, I again enter a vigorous protest against the reduction in wages which has been imposed upon textile workers and demand that the rates of pay which prevailed before the reduction was put into effect shall be promptly restored."

NO CHANGE IN THE ANTHRACITE SITUATION

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 16.—(AP)—No sign of early reconciliation between anthracite operators and miners now at Loggershead over renewal of the wage contract expiring August 31 appeared tonight at their respective headquarters here.

Only two weeks remain before the country is to know definitely whether it is again to suffer interruption of its supply of hard coal for winter stove and furnace a suspension in the 528 hard coal mines in northeastern Pennsylvania on the part of 158,000 mine workers.

The United mine workers "do not work without a contract," they say.

During the last week an announcement from a miners' source disclosed that the union at present would not accept the government as a peacemaker unless prepared to consider its troubles in soft coal fields as well.

Operators seized upon this as support of their belief that the union all along had meant to make some settlement of the bituminous coal over-production problem the price of peace in anthracite after September 1. This in turn drew official denial from the union.

With the outlook unsettled, the anthracite trade and public are reported taking emergency precautions.

Work at the mines is proceeding at top speed, word comes, in order to store up every extra pound of coal possible.

Anthracite carrying roads indicate increasingly heavy shipments of this commodity, particularly to outlying sections of the consuming territory where any cessation in supply would be felt the first.

WATERBURY GIRL KILLED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

WATERBURY, Aug. 16—The funeral of Stella Beaudoin, 17, of 596 South Main street, this city, killed in an auto accident late last night on the Thomaston-Watertown road will be held Tuesday morning. Meanwhile Alcide Paradis also of 596 South Main street, is lying at St. Mary's hospital between life and death, suffering from a fractured skull. Mrs. Louis Beranger, of 1197 South Main street, an occupant of the car has an injured spine and the exact nature of her injuries is yet to be determined. Five other occupants of the car sustained minor injuries. The driver, Louis Beranger, sustained only minor injuries.

Coroner Samuel Herman, of Winsted, today began an investigation of the accident, visiting the place where the smash occurred. The scene of the accident was about four miles from Watertown on a steep down grade. As the car was attempting to pass another car on a down grade, it struck a sign board, turned about and careened down the road to strike a tree stump and finally, turning over several times, it passed completely over a fence and landed in the ditch on the other side.

The Beaudoin girl was hurled from the car after it started its mad career and she was found lying in the road at a point about fifty feet from the spot where the car finallylanded.

SEC'Y MELLON ARRIVED IN NEW HAVEN SUNDAY

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 16—Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, arrived in New Haven tonight aboard a United States coast guard cutter. He was met at the New Haven Yacht club by N. M. Rice, vice president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, who is an old acquaintance, and E. G. Buckland, vice president and general manager of the New Haven railroad station here where he board President E. J. Pearson's private car which it is understood he will travel in on his way to Vermont where he will hold a conference with President Coolidge tomorrow.

TROUBLE IN THE ITALIAN SOCIALIST LABOR PARTY

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 16—Black shirted fascisti and members of the Italian socialist labor party clashed for the second time within the past few weeks in Newark today and when the smoke of battle had cleared it was found that six men had suffered bullet or stab wounds.

The clash followed an encounter at Laurel Garden in Springfield avenue, where the socialists had called a meeting and to which members of the New York branch of the fascisti society had been invited.

Three hundred weavers employed in woolen mills in Pittsfield, Mass., have gone out on strike in protest to wage reductions.

Indications Point to Better Business

Excessive Cuts and Prices Have Stimulated Industry the Past Week.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16—(A. P.)—Further indications of recent improvements in business came to light last week, with no new adverse factors developing to chill the cheerful sentiment prevailing in most lines of trade.

Commodity prices were somewhat mixed. Despite record breaking gasoline consumption, there was a further easing of gasoline prices, particularly along the Atlantic seaboard, in reflection of the apparent desire of refiners to reduce surplus stocks of the product. Further reductions are expected by the trade next week unless there should be a marked falling off in crude production, which showed another gain in the week ended August 8 over the week before.

Stel centers report expanding mill operations with producers apparently more interested in maintaining present prices than raising them. The decrease of about 170,000 tons in the July unfilled tonnage statement of the United States Steel corporation, which was made public early in the week, was slightly larger than had been expected and brought the orders on hand to the lowest level of the year but still more than 350,000 tons above those on the corresponding date last year.

Non-ferrous metal prices all moved higher, copper selling for a time at 14 7-8 cents a pound, the highest quotation since last February, although it eased slightly in the closing days of the week. Exceptionally heavy consumption by the electrical and automotive industries has been a sustaining factor in the price of the red metal wheat futures broke 4 to 8 cents a bushel in reection of the bearish interpretation placed on the government's crop report, which indicated a higher probable yield in this country and Canada than had been anticipated. The bullish nature of the cotton crop wheat futures broke 4 to 8 cents a bushel in reflection of the bearish interpretation placed on the government's crop report, which indicated a higher probable yield in this country and Canada than had been anticipated. The bullish nature of the cotton crop report was offset by subsequent rains in the southwest which helped the crop, futures dropping to within about a cent a pound of the year's low prices. Uncertainty about the future price of cotton has acted as a restraining influence on the textile trade, but prices held relatively steady.

Establishment of a new high record for the year by freight car loadings in the first week of July, incidentally the highest of any corresponding week on record, provided additional proof that goods were moving into consumption in large volume. Loadings in of merchandise and general freight, widely regarded as barometric of general business, were nearly 53,000 cars above those of the same week in 1923. Grain loadings showed a marked falling off.

Extensive automobile cuts have stimulated the sales of motor cars with indications that business in the third quarter of this year will run well above the corresponding period of 1924. Although the cuts are expected to reduce substantially the margin of profit, the declaration of an extra cash dividend of $1 on the common stock of the General Motors corporation following closely after the raising of the regular dividend rate earlier in the year, was accepted as an indication that no general slump in the industry was anticipated.

Reductions of call money rates and an increase in the reserve ratios of both the New York federal reserve bank and the system of a whole testified to the relative ease of the credit situation. The foreign outlook was brightened by the announcement that Great Britain and France had reached an agreement on a security compact and that Belgium had begun negotiations for the funding of its debts to this country.

FORMER CHICAGO GANGSTER GAVE UP $75,000 AS "GAMBLE"

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 16.—(AP)—A former Chicago gangster gave $75,000 as "a pure gamble" to aid William Darling Shepherd in his successful fight against the charge of murdering William Nelson McClintock, his millionaire foster son.

He is Louie ("Diamond Jack") Alterie, once the lieutenant of Dion Banion, Chicago gangland chieftain, and now owner of a large ranch at Jarre Canyon near here.

The story is told by William Scott Stewart, chief of defense counsel of Shepherd, who is here as Alterie's guest.

Shepherd, although the chief legatee under McClintock's will, was able to raise scat funds when he was accused of killing his ward with typhoid germs.

Alterie, often sought and questioned in connection with Chicago gunmen's feuds and killings in beer runners' wars, gave the money, says Stewart as "a pure gamble."

"If Shepherd won, he was to get the money back, while if Shepherd was convicted—."

NINETY PERSONS ARRESTED IN HARTFORD SATURDAY

HARTFORD, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Ninety persons, including thirty four charged with drunkenness and ten charged with breach of peace, were arrested Saturday and today by the Hartford police. All but the "plain drunks," first offense, are booked for police court tomorrow morning.

Because a number of those arrested on charges other than drunkenness were released on bond, and some of the plain drunks were allowed to go when they had become sober, it was not necessary to have more than one person occupying any one of the fifty cells at the police station.

An unusual feature of the week-end activities of the police was that no one was arrested on the charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

YACHT BURNED TO WATER'S EDGE OFF MAINE COAST

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 16—The 30-ton gasoline yacht Southwind III, owned by H. H. Harris of Brookline, Mass was burned to the water's edge three miles off Cape Elizabeth early today. Harris, three guests and the crew of three, forced to take to the boats escape the flames, were picked up by the Cape Elizabeth coastguard crew and given food and clothing at the station. The hull of the yacht was beached, but she will be a total loss. The value was $30,000.

Two Firemen Killed; Girl Burned to Death

Fire Destroyed the Dining Room and Servants' Quarters of Long Branch Hotel.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Two firemen and a 16-year-old girl were burned to death, two other firemen and two women were injured and 600 guests were routed from their rooms early today when fire destroyed the dining room and servants' quarters of the New Atlantic hotel in Ocean avenue. The damage was estimated at between $30,000 and $40,000.

A ship some distance at sea sent in the alarm after observers aboard had seen the smoke at 5 o'clock.

Oeona Allen, of 346 West 124th street, Manhattan, a waitress, was burned to death when she returned to her room to get her clothing and money.

The two firemen were killed when the roof of the dining room fell as they were fighting the flames from above.

The hotel was crowded to capacity with regular and week-end guests.

Two waitresses were injured before they could escape from their rooms. One of them was saved from death by a police man who rescued her from the roof, where she had gone to escape the flames.

Most of the guests deserted their rooms without taking any of their possessions, and police frustrated several attempts made to loot the rooms during the fire.

The waitresses occupying the quarters above the dining room lost almost all their possessions through the fire.

Wilbur Lloyd, 40 years old, and Raymond Lenan, 19, were the firemen who lost their lives. The injured were Frank Hannish and William Gardner, also firemen, and Elsie Emz and Marie Peterka, waitresses, who were trapped by the flames.

The hotel was sold a week ago by Harry Glazer, who is still the manager. The names of the purchasers have not been made known. It was the first sale of what has since developed into a considerable boom of real estate along the ocean front. The hotel is a frame and stucco structure facing the ocean.

GIRL ATTEMPTED SUICIDE IN STREET IN HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Aug. 16.—(AP)—A girl, on whose pocket book was found the name "Dora Stillwell," 10707 Garfield avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, attempted suicide at midnight Saturday by taking poison as she stood on the sidewalk in front of Wise Smith and company's store on Main street. She was taken to the police station by Policeman Gustaf Ekstrom, and from there removed to the Hartford hospital. Her condition is not serious. Dr. James Hazzler said, after an examination today.

Inquiries in Cleveland failed to show any "Stillwell" at the address given and no girl by that name is reported as missing from the city. She is about 25 years old, blond and of medium height. Since attempting suicide she has persistently refused to speak, both at the police station and at the hospital, except to say "I don't remember" to some of the doctor's questions.

A stomach pump was applied as first aid, but the poison had not gone into her stomach. It is supposed that she took too much of it, as there was only a little left in the vial, that was found lying beside her on the pavement. While at the police station the girl gulped hard for some time in a determined effort to swallow the poison but to no avail. Dr. Glazier said today that her present condition was more of "hysterical trance than the effects of the poison."

AWAITING HIS WIFE IN BUSHNELL PARK, HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Aug. 16—Lawrence L. Roe, traveling representative for a publishing company, is in Hartford, hoping to meet his wife, from whom he separated by mutual consent last October, in Bushnell Park near the railroad station here. Last Thursday Mr. Roe received a letter from his wife, dated August 5, in which she asked him to meet her in the park here August 8. He was not to the Springfield office of his employers when the letter reached there and it was forwarded to Boston, then Philadelphia and finally to Worcester. He came here at once and will remain here tomorrow in the hope that his wife will return for a belated meeting. He said that his wife, in the letter, expressed a desire that they be reunited for the sake of their six year old son Donald who remained in custody of Mr. Roe and is now in Salem, Mass.

WILLIMANTIC STRIKER FOUND DEAD BY POISONING

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 16—(A. P.)—Thomas Pageau, 55 year sold, one of the strikers at the American Thread company plant here, was found dead on the floor of the kitenen in his home today. A bottle of poison was discovered near the body but it is the opinion of the medical examiner that death was due to accidental poisoning. The medical examiner said he believed Pageau took the poison thinking it was medicine.

Pageau was last seen Friday but a neighbor said she had seen an electric light switch on at the Pageau home at midnight this morning. Pageau had been living alone for more than a week, his wife and daughter being in New Britain. He was born in Providence, R. I., and came here when a boy. He had been employed at the American Thread plant for 25 years.

TWO CHILDREN FATALLY INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Two children were fatally injured, four other persons were hurt so seriously they are being held at a hospital and two more escaped with minor injuries when an automobile operated by Benjamin Greenstein of Fall River was in collision here with a taxicab operated by James Douglas of Newport today. Douglas is being held on a charge of manslaughter. Albert, 12, a son, and Herbert Finn, 6, a foster son, died soon after the accident. Helen, 8, Anna 7, and Ethel 14, with their maternal grandmother, Mrs. Bessie Kadalkin, 58, are in the hospital here with serious but not dangerous injuries. Mr. and Mrs. Greenstein escaped with bruises and cuts. None of the party of sailors from the Newport training station who occupied the taxicab were hurt.

OFFICERS FAIL IN QUEST FOR "DUTCH" ANDERSON

Police and Members of a Sheriff's Possee Received a "Hot Tip" That the Gunman Was in House Near Hartford City, Ind.—Later They Returned to Muncie, Ind., Without Anderson.

MUNCIE, Ind., Aug. 16—Several squads of Muncie police and members of the sheriff's force who late today received a "hot tip" that George (Dutch) Anderson named by Ben Hance in a dying statement as the slayer of himself and his wife was in a farm house near Hartford City, Ind., returned to this city tonight, without Anderson.

Early tonight several squads of police in command of Chief of Police Randolph and Chief of Detectives Fred Puckett, armed with riot guns left headquarters for a farm half way between here and Hartford City, Ind., where Anderson was reported to be in hiding. Arriving at the farm the officers cautiously closed in on the place but found that Anderson, who has been sought for more than a year by federal authorities for escaping from the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, had evaded the dragnet they spread for him.

Throughout the day officers ran down numerous "tips" and took time to collect additional evidence against Anderson and Charles (One Arm) Wolfe who also was named in Hance's dying statement as a companion of Anderson.

Anderson, a pal of Gerald Chapman, notorious mail robber, gunman and jail breaker, has been sought by scores of department of justice agents and private detectives ever since he escaped from Atlanta.

Chapman is now held in the Connecticut state prison under death sentence for the murder of a New Britain, Conn., police officer during the robbery of a mercantile establishment in that city.

Chief of Police Randolph announced he had obtained the names of additional witnesses to the murder and they will be called to testify at the coroners' inquest Monday.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE CLIMBED HILL SUNDAY

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 16—(A. P.)—The bald knob of Messer Hill, towering above the sky line back of his fathers home, lured President Coolidge outdoors into the sunshine today and he set out on a Sunday morning tramp which carried him to its summit.

In the afternoon, accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge and his father, he attended non-denominational services in the simple Union church, just across the road from the family homestead.

Tonight he rested, preparatory to his conference here tomorrow with Secretary Mellon and Senator Smoot of Utah on the English debt situation.

Avoiding main travel roads, congested by the automobiles of tourists who find Plymouth as their Sunday objectives, the president, as he started for the peak of Messer Hill, took to a curving lane that is little more than a wagon trail. The first and last stages of the journey were made in a Ford touring car commandeered from C. W. Stearns, of Springfield, Vt., a deputy sheriff, who is assisting the executives body guard here.

Three secret service men accompanied the president.

John Fitzgerald acted as conductor, Richard Jervis, head of the White House detail riding with him in the front seat, while in the rear with Mr. Coolidge was E. W. Starling.

For several miles the car bumped its way over the rocky road winding through the hills. Finally, the president suggested a stop, stepped from the automobile, doffed his coat and put on a blue denim smock.

For the next hour or more the president, hiking up and down slopes he knew as a boy, led his companions along at a fast clip. They tramped through mud, scrambled up and down steep slopes and finally stood on the summit of the hill, high above the hamlet of Plymouth.

At one point the president lost his footing. To aid him, he picked up a stave of white birch and used it as a walking staff. Perspiring and a bit fatigued the party finally circled around to their automobile, returning home in time for the president to sit down to his Sunday dinner prepared by Aurora Pierce, his father's housekeeper, under Mrs. Coolidge's supervision.

PHOTOPHAGH BULLETS GOING 2700 FEET A SECOND

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—(A. P.)—By working out electrically timed photographic apparatus, the bureau of standards has been enabled to take a new series of photographs of rifle bullets, and time the release of gas and sound waves from the weapons used.

Photographs are made by the light of an electric spark which has roughly a duration of a millionth of a second. With new and speedier types of planes, it is thus possible to get a picture of entirely successive phases of each bullet, though the projectile is speeding at the rate of 2700 feet a second. The sound waves, the disturbances in the air from the bullet's passage and the gas blast behind the bullet, are recorded on the plates.

One of the ordance theories to fall before the evidence of the photographs is that the speed of a bullet from an army rifle increases from some distance after its emergence from the muzzle. The last of the explosive gases in its rear is supposed to accomplish this acceleration, but Mr. Quayle's photographs show the projectile drawing swiftly away from the gas within a few inches from the muzzle.

Likewise another of his photographs "demonstrates the futility of attempting to silence a revolver by attaching various contraptions to the muzzle." A round wave on firing was found to be propagating itself mostly from the junction of the revolver cylinder and the barrel, well back of the muzzle.

GIRL CHARGED WITH POSSESSING A REVOLVER

NEW YORK, Aug. 16—(A. P.)—Miss Otilia Millares, 18-year old student in the Columbia School of Journalism, and said by the police to be a member of a wealthy family of Havana, Cuba, spent several hours in jail today, after being arrested on a charge of possessing a revolver without permit.

Police were called to quell a fight in the apartment house in West 124th street, near Riverside Drive, where she lived. The alleged fight was between the girl's brother, Joseph, and Henry Adrian, superintendent of the apartment house. The Millares changed that Adrian tried to enter their apartment by force to see a girl who lived with them, and that the brother resisted.

The alligator got away.

HOW MACMILLAN KEEPS IN TOUCH WITH CIVILIZATION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Means by which the Macmillan Arctic expedition keeps in touch daily with civilization and how, through a two way service over the navy radio system, the public is informed of its adventures, hardships and successes were described today by the navy department.

"Through the navy's radio communication system," said a statement, "a perfect link in communications has been completed between the Macmillan Arctic expedition and the United States. The navy station at Bellevue, D. C., has completed and is using daily, two-way communications with the S. S. Bowdoin.

"Prior to the departure of the expedition, a schedule was arranged with the S. S. Peary and S. S. Bowdoin on high frequencies. The schedules were to be effective after the expedition left Boston, but due to seasickness of the expedition's operators, their unfamiliarity with the necessity of keeping strictly to schedule times, and the first difficulty of getting the expedition sets whipped into shape, communication was not established until after the expedition left Nova Scotia.

"After that time, the Bar Harbor, Maine, navy radio station copied the expedition's high frequency messages until July 21, forwarding navy department and National Geographic Society traffic to Washington, where it was released to the press. Then the navy department using the Bellevue 71.5 meter set, broadcast traffic for the expedition daily at 2:30 p. m. No response to these messages were received until July 28. The expedition asked Bellevue to send the daily time signals on 71.5 meters, saying that they could copy that station 100 per cent. and could no longer copy any other stations. Since then Bellevue has sent the time signal daily at 3 p. m. Following that with broadcast traffic to the expedition on the same wave.

"Since July 31, the navy radio station at the Great Lakes training station, Illinois, has copied the expedition's messages nightly and forwarded them to the navy department over the navy radio. On August 1, the Great Lakes station established two-way communications on high frequency with the expedition. Since that time messages to the Peary and Mowdoin have been sent either direct from Bellevue or to Great Lakes and thence to the Arctic.

"On August 4, Bellevue radio station heard the Bowdoin working on 16 meters. In response to a message sent on the 71.5 meter 3 p. m. schedule that day, direct two-way communication was established on 16 and 17 meters the following day, August 5, when messages were received for the National Geographic Society. The Peary asked Bellevue on August 10 to experiment with her on 20 meters, but up to the present time it has not been possible to communicate on that wave. By a slight shift, to 17 meters, communication was again re-established.

"The Bellevue station has copied the messages from the Bowdoin to Arthur Collins, an amateur at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, on 17 meters, and relays his messages to the National Geographic Society."

WATERBURY BOY WAS DROWNED AT SILVER BEACH

MILFORD, Aug. 16—(A. P.)—Felix Pelosi, 12, of 62 High street, Waterbury, was drowned at Silver Beach here this afternoon and seven others narrowly escaped the same fate when a canoe in which they were riding overturned when they were quarters of a mile from the shore. The seven were taken from the water by bathers and life boards and it was not until they were revived that the disappearance of the dead boy was noticed.

The body was found about thirty minutes later and efforts to revive him were unsuccessful. Medical Examiner W. H. Fisher established the death as one of accidental drowning.

With the boy, at the time of the accident was his uncle Casmin Pelosi, with whom he was visiting, Salvador Guerrido, another relative and his two daughters, Grace and Sally, and Louis, Joseph and Jonn e Jennette all of Waterbury.

DESERTERS FROM KLAN START RIVAL ORGANIZATION

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 16.—(AP)—The Rocky Mountain News says today that "The Minute Men of America" an organization formed here recently by men who seceded from the Ku Klux Klan, plans to make itself nationwide and to draw from dissident factions in the present klan.

Final action on the plan awaits the outcome of litigation between the klan and the minute men here over property which originally belonged to the "invisible empire" in this state," the newspaper says.

Recently the Denver organization and virtually every local klan body in the state withdrew from the mother organization in Atlanta and the property holdings of the organization here since have been in dispute.

WILLIMANTIC

What may be taken as an indication of the interest in the next democratic town caucus has been manifested by the unusually large number of names handed to the board of registrars to be added to the caucus list. It is known that former operatives of the American Thread company, now on strike, have been showing considerable activity in this respect. A total of 183 names was added to the democratic caucus list as compared with fifteen added to the republican ranks.

Mrs. Agnes Bocash was in the local police court Saturday morning, charged with breach of the peace, to which she entered a plea of not guilty. The complainant against the woman was Victor Meech, a neighbor, who claimed that on Satrday, July 25, a bundle of papers was left by the defendant on his property and when he threw them back, Mrs. Bocash called him vile names and threw a stone which struck him in the side. The stone was introduced as an exhibit.

The fourteen-year-old daughter of the plaintiff, Jane Meech, testified to the trouble between her father and Mrs. Bocash. She said that she heard the names that the accused called her father.

Mrs. Laura Kemp testified that she did not see the alleged fracas, but she was walking along the road nearby at the time and was attracted by loud talking. She heard Mrs. Bocash call some vile names and thought some of them were meant for her.

Mrs. Bocash denied that she called Meech the names alleged or threw the stone on exhibition. She said she saw near the driveway on her land the bundle of papers which had been placed there by Meech, called his attention to it and he became abusive. The defendant said she picked up the bundle and tossed it at complainant.

Deputy Judge Russell A. Andrews stated that he believed that it was just another neighborhood row with Mrs. Bocash figuring in a technical breach of the peace. She was adjudged guilty and a fine of two dollars and costs. Mrs. Bocash gave notice of an appeal to the superior court and furnished a bond of one hundred dollars.

The Ladies' Aid Society of North Windham Congregational church held a most successful sale and entertainment Friday evening from 7 to 10 o'clock in North Windham Hall. The sale of ice cream, cake and fancy articles from 7 to 8 o'clock was followed by the entertainment program. Those taking part included Miss L. Monica McKeon and Arthur Roy of this city who gave vocal selections. The piano accompaniment was by Mrs. Robert Bates of Windham Center. The North Windham trio, Charles Tucker, viola, Mrs. Charles Tucker, piano, and Mrs. Thelma Harris Balcom, violin, also played and Mrs. Lillian Hughes of Windham Center gave reader readings. Mrs. Susan McAnarney of Detroit, Mich., operated three reels of moving pictures which were very interesting. The society realized about sixty dollars from the affair.

The price of gasoline in this city Saturday was 24 and 26 cents a gallon to the retail trade, Gulf Refining and Tydol gas being offered at the lower rate, with the Standard Oil and Buick companies products commanding the higher price. A reduction of two cents was put into effect Saturday morning by the Gulf Refining and Tydol companies. At the offices of the Standard Oil and Buick companies, the price to dealers and service stations was twenty cents, plus the state tax of two cents, making the retail price twenty six cents. The Gulf Refining and Tydol companies' price to dealers is now eighteen cents, plus the state tax of two cents, making the retail price 24 cents a gallon.

Miss Mary Frances Rollo, 93, oldest resident of the town of Hebron died Friday afternoon at the home of Frank H. Post in that place after an illness of several weeks. She was born in Hebron, September 7, 1832, the daughter of Augustine and Martha Hooton Rollo and had lived in that place all her life. She is survived by several nephews and nieces.

A meeting was held at Lakeside Casino, South Coventry, Friday evening at which it was decided to hold a dance during August for the benefit of the Lake Wangumbaug Protective Association. An illuminated shadow dance will be one of the features of the evening. Another will be the professional entertainment to be furnished by members of the actors' colony at the popular South Coventry resort. Daniel F. McCarthy of this city was chairman of the meeting and was also chosen to act as chairman of the committee of arrangements for the affair.

George Deming of Chaplin was before the local police court Saturday morning, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. He was not put to plea, however, as his attorney, William A. King asked for a continuance of the case which was granted. Saturday, August 29 was the date set for a hearing on the matter.

Funeral services for Miss Mae E. Johnson, whose death occurred in California, were held at the mortuary parlors of the J. C. Lincoln company at 62 Church street Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. Andrew S. Muirhead, pastor of the local Methodist Episcopal church officiated. Burial was in the family lot in Willimantic cemetery. The bearers were Homer E. Wood, Eugene J. Lattimer, Earl Daniels and Howard W. Daniels, all of South Coventry.

The X-L Choir of the Methodist Episcopal church held an enjoyable party Friday evening on the lawn at the home of Byron Potter of West Main Street. Vocal and instrumental selections formed a part of the program of entertainment. A delicious luncheon was served by the host and hostess.

MANSFIELD MAN DERANGED— SENT TO NORWICH HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 16.—John McKernan, of Mansfield City, aged about 64, was taken before Justice of the Peace George H. Andrews, of the Mansfield town court, Saturday morning on a charge of breach of the peace. He was not put to plea, however, as the court officials were of the opinion that he was of unsound mind.

James Green, of Eagleville, who owns a pasture across the road from McKernan's farm, was approached by the man who threatened to shoot him, last Friday afternoon. The matter was reported to State Policeman Walter Hardesty of the Stafford Springs barracks, who took McKernan into custody Saturday morning. The situation was reported to First Selectman Daniel C. Flaherty who called in Doctors Robert C. White and Joseph A. Girouard, of this city. They examined McKernan and found him to be suffering from a mental disorder. He was then committed to the state hospital for the insane at Norwich.

COLCHESTER FARMER PAYS $400 FOR HAVING HOOCH PLANT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 16.—Charged with a number of violations of the liquor law; having in his possession liquor with intent to sell, actual sale of liquor, reputation and possession of a still, Kasperniez Olumowicz was before the Colchester town court at 3 o'clock Saturday. The accused pleaded guilty to the charges and was fined a total of four hundred dollars and costs by Justice of the Peace Fred E. Baker. The cases were prosecuted by Grand Juror Charles Brown.

The appearance of Olumowicz in court was the result of a successful raid on his farm, located about two miles from the center of Colchester, by William S. Congdon and Stanton L. Briggs, of Willimantic, federal prohibition enforcement officers, and Constable Thomas Reilly, of Colchester. Having received a tip that the moonshine nest conducted by Olumowicz was considerably removed from his house they sought it by a roundabout route early in the evening. Two hours were spent before the location was found. In anticipation that the owner would pay a visit to the place, the officers waited four hours longer in a driving rainstorm, while keeping an eye on the contraband, which included a twenty-five gallon still set in place with three four-burner oil stoves; twenty-one gallons of finished product, and one hundred gallons of mash. When Olumowicz did not show up by 1 o'clock the officers went to his home and roused him. The Colchester man at first denied any knowledge of the contraband found in his farm, also disclaimed ownership of a loaded shot gun that was discovered.

A clever little piece of detective work, however, finally wrung a confession from Olumowicz. Near the still the officers found some cutlery and the remains of a piece of pie which someone had partaken of a short time before. These were taken on the trip to the home of the accused where the remainder of the pie was found, the piece from the moonshine nest fitting in to a T. The cutlery also corresponded with some found in the home. Confronted with this evidence, Olumowicz admitted his guilt. He then told the time-worn story of needing the money to pay off a mortgage on the farm and other expenses. He also related that another farmer had come to him during the night and wanted to borrow the gun, as he said he would kill the federal officers as he heard they were goin to raid his place.

The accused was then taken before the court, pleaded guilty and was fined. As he is an alien, the gun was confiscated and brought along with the other contraband to this city where it was locked up at federal headquarters, in the post office building.
